Blue Devils run into second half trouble

A halftime lead turned into a second half loss for the second time in two Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke starts Tuesday as the Blue Devils dropped a 36-8 Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football game to Kittson County North. The game was played at Grygla.

In a Sept. 4 season opener, Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke led Ulen-Hitterdal 14-6 at the half, but lost 28-14. In the unusual early-season Tuesday game against Kittson County North, the Blue Devils had an 8-0 edge at intermission, but gave up 30 third quarter points and were out-scored 36-0 in the second half.

A four-yard Jacob Kennel touchdown run and a Dustin Marquis conversion run on a game-opening possession provided the Blue Devils with an 8-0 lead that stood up for the rest of the half.

They had a chance to double the spread when the second half kickoff was returned for a touchdown. But a penalty erased the apparent score, and moments later a 65-yard Luke Nordin to Mike Hill touchdown pass, along with a Brett Homstad conversion run, tied the game 8-8.

"The penalty took away a touchdown and they came back to score right away," pointed out Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "That really hurt. You could see that we let down after that. We have to learn to shake those things off and not let them bother us so much."

Before the third quarter was done the Cougars added three more touchdowns — a 5-yard run by Homstad, a 10-yard Nordin pass to Matt Anderson, and a 6-yard run by Mike Peterson — for a 30-8 cushion.

"We couldn't stop the pass," explained Wilebski. "They ran one pass play, and we couldn't stop it."

Nordin was 9-for-11 passing for 186 yards and two touchdowns. Homstad carried the ball 11 times for 55 yards and two touchdowns.

"We're improving," said Wilebski. "If we could have played the second half like we did the first half, we could have won the game."

Kennel gained 59 yards on 19 carries and Marshall Tanner had 50 yards on 15 attempts to lead the Blue Devils' offense that produced 149 of its 171 yards on the ground. The completed just two passes.

Defensively, Wilebski handed out post-game praise to Steve Waling, Kylen Hagen, Blair Saurdiff, and Seth Vettleson – players who man the Blue Devils' line.

Pioneers lose twice

A pair of North Dakota teams handed Northland Community and Technical College 2-0 volleyball losses Wednesday at Wahpeton.

The two scores were similar as UND-Lake Region beat Northland 15-4, 15-9 and North Dakota State College of Science defeated the Pioneers 15-3, 15-12.

"Lake Region and Science both have really good teams," pointed out Northland coach Mike Zachow. "We could have played better. Our serving was off."

Fatigue might have also been a factor, hinted Zachow. After the long drive, the Pioneers had to wait two hours for the Royals and Wildcats to complete a three-out-of-five conference-counting match before taking the court. Illness has also slowed the Northland team in recent days, he explained.

Northland did have the services of setter Erica McGeary, a freshman from Thief River Falls, who was injured during a Friday match against Mesabi and missed a Saturday triangular involving the Pioneers, Vermilion and the Concordia College junior varsity.

The Pioneers took a 2-8 record into the weekend that featured Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division matches Friday at Rainy River and today (Saturday) at Hibbing.

Northland begins a four-match homestand Wednesday with a 6:30 p.m. contest against Central Lakes.

Travis Jansen of Thief River Falls met new Minnesota Vikings owner Red McCombs during a Sept. 4-6 Vikings Fan Club weekend in the Twin Cities. The group toured the Metrodome, had lunch at the Vikings' Winter Park training facilities and participated in a pregame ceremony prior to the 1998 Minnesota National Football League season opener against Tampa Bay.

NCTC player honored

Daryl Wockenfuss, a Northland Community and Technical College freshman linebacker, was named the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division Defensive Player of the Week following Sept. 12 MCCC action.

Wockenfuss returned an interception 48 yards for a touchdown, recovered a fumble, made three unassisted tackles and was credited with six assisted tackles in the Pioneers' 42-18 loss to Ridgewater. He played high school football at Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

It was the second straight MCCC honor for the Pioneers, whose Alex Anderson was Northern Division Offensive Player of the Week Sept. 12.

The 0-3 Pioneers are playing 1-2 Minnesota West in a 12-noon MCCC game today (Saturday) at Worthington.

Roseau River WMA dike roads open to public Sept. 20-27

Dike roads on the Roseau River Wildlife Management Area will be open to the public Sept. 20-27 from one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset each day.

Because of recent dike road improvements, favorable weather, and favorable conditions for wildlife project work, this is the first time in several years that the entire dike roadway has been open to the public for fall tours.

The Roseau River Wildlife Management Area is located 20 miles northwest of Roseau.

Dike roads and other roads in the WMA offer motorists a chance to enjoy the fall waterfowl migration and see a variety of wildlife as they traverse wetland, woodland, brushland, and farmland habitat. The recommended entry point is on the main dike road, one and three quarters miles south of the WMA headquarters on Roseau County Road 3. The headquarters is located 13 miles north of Badger and three miles west of Pine Creek.

Motorists are urged to use caution on the WMA because of narrow roads, soft shoulders and deep ditches. The entire route is about 40 miles and will take in excess of two hours if motorists choose to drive all of it. The speed limit on all WMA roads is 20 mph.

Inclement weather may require closing of the drive if roadways deteriorate – portions of the dike roadway are not gravel and become impassable when wet. Motorists should not drive through flowing or standing water on the emergency spillways.

For more information contact the Roseau River WMA office at 218-463-1557.

Marshall Co. Central outlasts Warroad 3-2 in volleyball rematch

Marshall County Central outlasted host Warroad 15-1, 5-15, 11-15, 15-8, 15-3 Thursday to push the Norther high school volleyball record to 3-2.

"We got our serves in, and we worked on things – we were missing," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "I was pleased with the effort."

Mandi Blawat had nine aces among her 25 service points for the winners, and played well both offensively and defensively, noted Jorgenson, who also said Jessica Anderson turned in a strong all-around performance.

"Warroad is a much-improved team," mentioned Jorgenson, whose team won an earlier meeting between the two 3-0.

Bears start strong, post 3-0 volleyball win against Gators

Lake of the Woods controlled play early and went on to sweep Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-2, 15-7, 15-12 Thursday in high school volleyball at Baudette.

"They (Bears) were very aggressive at the service line and we had trouble putting the ball in play in the first game," reported Gators coach Christine Adrian. "We came back and played pretty well, especially defensively, in the second and third games."

Kelsey Foldesi turned in a strong performance for the Gators, both in the back row and with a team-high seven kills, pointed out Adrian. Merri Reese was next on the Gators' kill charts with three.

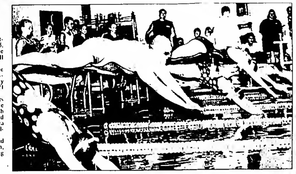
Badger/Greenbush-Middle River is 2-3 for the year.

Roseau takes 3-0 volleyball match from Wolverines

Roseau swept Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 15-10, 15-5, 15-6 Thursday in high school volleyball at Goodridge.

It was the second straight loss for the Wolverines after three season-opening wins.

DaNae Wiseth led the Wolverines with 10 kills, while Dana Wiseth had eight. Kathryn Stanley and Abby Schuler both collected six service aces, with Dana Wiseth picking up five. Schuler finished with 16 assists.



Roseau leaders included Kristi Glassman with 13 kills and Laura Lundbohm with 27 assists.

Grand Forks Central scored on a fourth-and-10 play from 15 yards out with four seconds left Thursday to edge Thief River Falls 20-14 in freshman high school football.

The two teams were tied 8-8 at halftime and were deadlocked at 14-14 entering the final period.

Thief River Falls touchdowns were 30-yard passes from Robbie Anderson to Jon Swanson, with Anderson adding a conversion run.

Thief River Falls played host to Detroit Lakes and Perham in a varsity triangular that was accompanied by a Thief River Falls vs. Roseau dual.

TRF swimmers host triangular meet

Detroit Lakes edged Thief River Falls 139-131 Thursday to win a triangular girls high school swim meet hosted by the Prowlers. Perham was a distant third with 49 points.

"It was a good meet," said Thief River Falls coach Shon Thompson. "There were a lot of close races. Our kids swam great."

Thief River Falls won the B match 16-14, 15-5.

TRF runners continue to show improvement

Second-year Thief River Falls head high school cross country coach Terri Ueland can not find fault in the Prowlers' efforts to date. Neither the boys or girls teams have been contenders in meets hosted by Warren-Alvarado-Oslo, Roseau and Crookston, but their work ethic hasn't been questioned.

"The team continues to improve every meet," said Ueland following a Thursday appearance at the Crookston Invitational. "I'm very proud of my team and anticipate they will improve a great deal in the upcoming weeks."

Park Rapids girls and Griggs County Central (ND) boys won Crookston team titles. Thief River Falls girls finished fourth in a field of five teams. Thief River Falls boys, due to an ankle injury that has ... had an incomplete team.

"Seth Harlow is showing both his talent and leadership," noted Ueland, looking at the boys' results. "Jacki Mooney led the girls once again, and Rebekah Solem had an outstanding race. Two other great races were run by sophomores Dewey Worker and Nick Nelson."

The Prowlers will stage their annual Thief River Falls Elementary Fun Run Monday at 3:30 p.m. at Challenger School before they compete again Tuesday at the Bagley Invitational.

Seamless Aluminum Guttering
Heating, Air Conditioning
378-4641 378-4585

Our Seamless gutters are manufactured from .032 gauge pre-painted aluminum; the heaviest gauge used in the industry. If your home is 20 feet or 200 feet in length our seamless gutter is made in one continuous length, eliminating any joints or seams in the middle. Inquire before you purchase "Seamless Gutter" about the thickness of the material used and be certain that it is made in one continuous length.
Seamless gutter is formed, cut and installed on site by a two man crew saving on labor cost. Freight charges are eliminated. Waste is almost unheard of due to gutter being measured and cut on site to exact lengths. No need to store left over odds and ends that get damaged before they can be used. Most jobs can be completed the same day. Call us for complete information and free estimates of your job at no obligation to you.

Agassiz Refuge celebrates Wildlife Refuge week

The public is invited to Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge to help celebrate the Fourth Annual National Wildlife Refuge Week on September 27, 1998 from 1 to 6 p.m. This year's theme at Agassiz is "Waterfowl Extravaganza". National Wildlife Week is timed to coincide with the annual fall migration. Fall colors should be at their peak and thousands of waterfowl and other migratory bird species should provide a great day in the outdoors.

Events at Agassiz will include guided bus tours at 1:3B and 3:30 p.m. providing a unique opportunity to view large numbers of ducks, Canada geese, sandhill cranes and other wildlife species. Videos will be available throughout the afternoon on the National Wildlife Refuge System, duck identification, the 1998 waterfowl breeding pair/brood survey results and fall flight forecast and the snow goose population. Donuts and refreshments will be served throughout the extravaganza and door prizes will be given out. Donations from the Agassiz Audubon Society, Pennington County Sportsman's Club, Fourtown-Grygla Sportsman's Club, Thief River Falls Ducks Unlimited Chapter and the Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunter's Association are being used to purchase the food and refreshments.

Refuges throughout the nation will be celebrating National Wildlife Refuge Week which is officially designated from October 11-17. National Wildlife Refuge Week was established four years ago to increase public awareness about the National Wildlife Refuge System as our nation approaches the System's 100th anniversary in the year 2003.

The National Wildlife Refuge System is the only one of its kind in the world, dedicated specifically to wildlife and habitat conservation. Since the establishment of the first national wildlife refuge, Pelican Island in Florida in 1903 by President Theodore Roosevelt, the National Wildlife Refuge System has expanded to 513 refuges. The total acreage of this system is 92 million acres. Size of refuges varies from the B.5 acre Mille Lacs NWR in Minnesota to the 20 million acre Yukon Flats NWR in Alaska. Since the celebration of the 500th refuge established in West Virginia in 1994 every state in the nation has a national wildlife refuge. The mission of the refuge system is: To provide, preserve, restore, and manage a nationol network of lands and waters sufficient in size, diversity, and location to meet society's needs for areas where the widest possible spectrum of benefits associated with wildlife and wildlands is enhanced and made available.

Through establishment of national wildlife refuges, a diversity of habitat has been acquired, protected, restored, and managed for the enhancement of wildlife and the continuing benefit of the American people. Like Agassiz NWR, most refuges are located along the four major north-south waterfowl migration flyways. Other refuges serve as sanctuaries for endangered species or for other species requiring unique habitat.

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is located 23 miles northeast of Thief River Falls between Holt and Grygla. All activities will be held at or begin at refuge headquarters. For additional information on National Wildlife Refuge Week and a brochure with a complete map of the refuge system and basic visitor's information for every refuge, call 1-800-344-WILD or visit the Internet home page at http://bluegoose.arw.r9.fws.gov/

Red Lake Falls and MPCA reach accord on past violations

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) has signed a stipulation agreement with the City of Red Lake Falls resolving past violations of the city's permit for wastewater treatment.

The agreement focuses on violations from April to September 1997. MPCA staff discovered in September 1997, that the city was bypassing untreated wastewater into the Clearwater River and had not reported the bypass as required by state law. It was later confirmed that the city had been bypassing all of its wastewater to the river in September, and had been bypassing at least part of its total wastewater flow continuously since April 1997.

The city did notify the Minnesota Department of Emergency Management's Duty Officer of the original bypass in April as required. But no further notification was made by the city operator of the continued bypass throughout the spring and summer, neither to the Duty Officer, the MPCA, or anyone else including the city officials. MPCA officials said the city also failed to submit required monthly Discharge Monitoring Reports for a five-month period during the bypass.

Dan Johanneck, city administrator for Red Lake Falls, said as a result of the stipulation agreement, the city did admit to the charges. He noted that during the five-month period, the city went to a great deal of effort to alleviate the problem, including leasing temporary pumps, and purchasing new pumps and back-up generator at great expense. Due to unusually high winter run off and spring rains, their initial system was not able to keep up.

Johanneck said the city has made great strides since 1997 to resolve the issues. Currently, they are undertaking a study of run off and their entire wastewater system. He said they have hired Bonestroo, Rosene, Anderlik and Associates, an engineering and architectural firm from St. Paul and Milwaukee, to conduct the study, which they believe will validate their belief that winter run-off and spring rains overwhelmed their system. The study will be completed in July of 1999.

He also noted that they will conduct other tests as well, and fix shortfalls in their system.

The agreement between MPCA and Red Lake Falls calls for the city to pay a civil penalty to the state of $27,424 to be paid in two annual payments beginning in January 1999. In addition, the city will develop a comprehensive wastewater system plan, including a contingency plan for emergency activities, as well as having a certified wastewater operator at all times to operate the city's system. The agreement also establishes future penalties if corrective actions are not completed as agreed.

Penalties in stipulation agreements are calculated on a formula that considers environmental harm, willfulness, and the amount the recipient saved by non-compliance.

John P. Murphy was convicted four years ago of terrorizing judges, prosecutors and probation officers in Ramsey county. The case received much attention in 1994 when Murphy admitted that in 1993 he put a fake bomb in Ramsey County District Judge Joan Smith's mailbox and threatened the life of a Ramsey county deputy sheriff.

A judge has ordered that Murphy live more than 150 miles from the Twin Cities when released on a 37-year probation, eliminating much of the state but not northwestern Minnesota. The Pioneer

Fruit trees, lilacs bloom again

Oakwood, ND - Fruit trees are blooming and lilac bushes are flowering at the Orell and Joanae Sovigny farm near Oakwood, ND. A August 26 hailstorm devastated the area and stripped the leaves off the bushes and trees. Since, the apricot, cherry and flowering crab trees have grown back leaves and blossoms, and the lilac bushes have provided fall bouquets. The farmstead was also hit by hail in May. The Walsh County Record

Bobbi (Young) Holm, her husband Steve, and sister Patsy are the third generation from the Young family to operate Young's General Store in Middle River. The store was founded in 1907 by Bobbi and Patsy's grandfather Henry Young. Their father, Howard Young, ran the store for many years and, at 83, continues to work there every day.

Young's Store holds to area tradition

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Since the early 1800's stores that sold a variety of merchandise have existed in the United States. These general stores were the beginnings of what we now often refer to as department stores.

In 1907 Henry Young founded Young's General Store in Middle River. Early inventory included food staples, yard goods, livestock feed, hardware and implements. Often customers traded goods such as cord wood and furs for the items they needed. Often on Saturdays, the trip into town for supplies was a weekly social event as, after working hard all week, folks combined trade with a day of visiting.

Ninety-one years later, Young's General Store still serves the folks of the Middle River community, providing them with a one-stop shopping center that, in addition to merchandise, offers a number of services as well.

From generation to generation, the Young family has operated the store. Howard Young took over the store from his father and eventually turned the reins over to the next generation, daughters Patsy Young and Bobbi Holm and Bobbi's husband, Steve. A fourth generation family member, Steve and Bobbi's 16 year old daughter, also works at the store.

At 83, Howard Young still comes into work at the store every day as does his wife Lorene. In addition to Young family members, two other Middle River women are employed there.

From groceries to hardware to clothing to giftware, Young's General Store carries an amazing inventory, and one quickly realizes that they can find just about

McKnight Foundation grant gives boost to VIP building

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Plans for a new million dollar regional transitional housing, children's visitation and administrative office complex for the Violence Intervention Project in Thief River Falls received a boost this week with the announcement by the McKnight Foundation that it has pledged $175,000 to the project.

Denise Sevigny, who has been executive director of the Violence Intervention Project (VIP) since January, said the organization will soon embark on its campaign for the project which currently is anticipated to cost $1,837,000.

"Announcement of this generous grant from McKnight gives us encouragement as we head into an ambitious but optimistic effort to secure the necessary capital for our project," Sevigny said.

"Our preliminary efforts have included applications for about half of the funds through foundations and other sources. Over the next several months we will be pursuing funding from government, corporate and individual supporters to reach our goal."

Sevigny said the McKnight Foundation grant is contingent upon VIP raising the balance of its funding by April of 1999. VIP serves a the seven-county Economic Development Region 1 including Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Norman counties.

Since November of 1994, the Violence Intervention Project has been located in the former Gamble-Robinson building on Davis Avenue and Third Street, across from the Eagles Hall. An earlier McKnight grant funded a feasibility study to determine if it would be best for VIP to remodel the existing building or to build new facilities. The study determined new construction to be the most cost-effective choice.

At present VIP is in the process of exercising an option to purchase property in Thief River Falls as a site for its new facilities. The building to be constructed would be approximately 12,000 square feet in size, all on ground level.

"We currently operate nine programs from our offices," the director said. "I view this as an exciting project for women and children in the region. We have visited a number of other sites in the state and incorporated what we believe to be the best of each into this building project."

Sevigny said the plan calls for the building to include transitional housing for women and children leaving dangerous situations and for a separate area with a separate entrance for fathers to visit children under court-ordered visitation privileges. A secured playground for children would also be part of the plan.

Administrative space would provide individual offices with greater privacy for clients and VIP staff members in the various programs. Preliminary architectural drawings are currently under review to be sure that client needs will be met in the new facility.

Executive director Denise Sevigny of Violence Intervention Project in Thief River Falls works with architect Brian Phelps of Stegner-Phelps Architects PA, Brainerd, in developing the layout for a new building being proposed for VIP in Thief River Falls. A grant of $175,000 to the project was recently announced by the McKnight Foundation in Minneapolis.

Win-E-Mac student celebrity for a day after concert

Erskine - Good fortune began when sixth grade Win-E-Mac student Melissa Tradewell and her friends were selected at random to sit in the front row at a Garth Brooks concert in Fargo last weekend.

During the performance, Melissa caught a signed drumstick tossed into the crowd by drummer Mike Palmer. Later during the performance, Garth Brooks finished off a bottle of spring water and gave the empty bottle a toss into the crowd. Melissa again was the recipient of the valued souvenir.

Melissa was happy to share tales of her experience and new possessions with friends at Win-E-Mac on Monday. Erskine Echo

Riverview to sponsor expectant parent classes

Expectant parent classes will again be sponsored by Riverview Healthcare Association. Two sessions will be held, the first on September 29 and the second on October 6. The classes will cover breathing and relaxation techniques during labor and delivery, coaching instructions and care after delivery.

Area physicians encourage their obstetrics patients as well as husbands, coaches and other interested persons to attend both classes. A better understanding of what to expect during childbirth will help ease fear of the unknown and create a more enjoyable childbirth experience.

Sue Smith RN will be the course instructor for both sessions. Smith is a labor/delivery nurse at Riverview Healthcare Association. The sessions will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the classroom at River view. For more information or to pre-register, call the obstetrics department at Riverview at (218)281-9300 or 1-800-743-6511.

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere
email: gabriel@northernnet.com

Now fall has really come and here are some more hot soup recipes. They'll be great for everyone who caught a cold last weekend and for everyone who is still trying to adjust to the cold weather after 90 degree weather the week before.

Here's a practical soup that's quick - imagine, home-made soup in half an hour - yum:

HAMBURGER SOUP
1 pound ground beef (lean)
16 ounce can tomatoes
3 carrots, peeled and sliced
2 potatoes, cubed
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery
3 cups water
3 cubes beef bouillon
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon oregano
1 cup green beans

Brown hamburger and drain. Add remaining ingredients except green beans.

Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add green beans and simmer 15 minutes more.

This soup takes a while to make, but anticipation makes it all the better. Anyway, while cooking the soup, you'll have time to bake some buns or bread to go with it:

THURSDAY BEAN SOUP
1 pound navy or Great Northern beans
1 large ham bone or 1 cup or more diced ham
2 stalks celery, diced
1 large onion, diced
1 bay leaf
1/4 teaspoon thyme
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste
2 quarts water

Combine all ingredients except salt in large pot and bring to a boil. Boil 2 minutes, then turn off heat and soak, covered, 2 hours.

Reheat and simmer until beans are very tender, stirring well occasionally and adding liquid as needed. Add salt and pepper to taste after cooking.

Make spicy or not by using as many of the spices or none, and use the hamburger, onion or garlic as you like - cook it in minutes:

POSSE STEW
15 ounce can stewed tomatoes
15 ounce can chili beans
15 ounce canned corn
15 ounce can hominy
4 ounce can green chili, diced
6 ounce can V-8 (spicy type if you like)
8 ounce can tomato sauce
1 pound hamburger
Onion
Garlic
Chili Powder
Cumin
Cajun seasoning

Brown and drain hamburger and onion, if you wish to use it. Mix all cans of ingredients, including liquids and spices of your choice. Simmer a few minutes and serve. Good with taco chips and/or sour cream topping.

And here is another quick soup that you can make in minutes - and you'll more than likely have the ingredients right on hand in the kitchen cupboard:

POTATO SOUP
1/2 small onion, chopped
8 medium potatoes, peeled and chopped
2 cups water
4 tablespoons butter
4 cups milk
3 to 4 forkfuls of sour cream
3 dashes Worcestershire
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook onion with butter in saucepan until limp. Add potatoes and water. Simmer until potatoes are soft, 15 to 20 minutes, then lightly mash potatoes in water.

Add milk, sour cream, Worcestershire, salt and pepper. Reheat but do not boil, stirring often.

Have you ever tried making tomato soup yourself? Here is a recipe you and your family might enjoy - have it with grilled cheese sandwiches, of course:

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP
2 1/2 cups tomatoes
2 slices onion
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon cloves
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk

Combine tomatoes, onion and seasonings. Simmer 10 minutes. Strain.

Make white sauce of butter, flour and milk. Just before serving, slowly add hot, strained tomato mixture to white sauce, stirring constantly. Do not reheat.

This one is probably an acquired taste, but I remember how much my uncle liked this soup. Eat it with those cute little oyster crackers:

OYSTER STEW
1 pint oysters
1/4 cup butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of cayenne pepper
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, if desired
1 1/2 quarts milk, scalded
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 teaspoon paprika

Heat oysters in their liquor. Add 1/4 cup butter, seasonings and Worcestershire sauce. When edges of oysters curl, add milk.

Bring just to boiling, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat at once, cut remaining 2 tablespoons butter in 6 pieces, place in heated soup plates. Pour soup over butter pieces and sprinkle with paprika. Oysters may also be chopped

Binge Drinking Danger On College Campuses

Eighteen-year-old Scott Krueger of Orchard Park, NY, told his twin sister on Sept. 26, 1997 that she could call him later but he probably wouldn't be coherent. The pledge class in his fraternity at MIT, he explained, had to drink a collective amount of alcohol. Several hours later Krueger was in a Boston hospital emergency room with a blood-alcohol content of .41—five times the drunken driving limit in Massachusetts. Two days later he was dead.

Scott was one of at least seven young people who died as a direct consequence of excessive or binge drinking—five drinks in a row for men, four for women—on college campuses last fall. Binge drinking is a "rite of passage" that is all too prevalent on the nation's college campuses and a tragic commentary on the lack of judgment by our country's future leaders.

Last November a Harvard School of Public Health survey of some 17,600 students at 150 colleges and universities found that:

• 44 percent of students reported binge drinking during the two weeks before the survey;
• Half of those reported at least three episodes of binge drinking in that time;
• 62 percent of the men and 49 percent of the women who frequently binge drank said they drove while under the influence;
• Students in fraternities and sororities were four times more likely to binge drink than other students.

Ariel White-Kovach is executive director of the Hazelden Center for Youth and Families, an alcoholism and drug dependency treatment facility in Plymouth which serves young people from 14 to 25 years of age. She points out the above situations and notes that "No sooner are college students' bags unpacked and their parents waved off than the come-ons begin: Ladies nights, bladder busters, rush week bashes, funnel drinking parties and a wide array of other booze-related games and contests."

According to a survey by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, liquor and bar ads account for a third of the advertising in college newspapers. The message is too visible to miss.

As someone who deals daily with the tragedy of alcohol abuse by young people, White-Kovach deplores excusing binge drinking because "everybody does it once in awhile" and advocates a crackdown on underage drinking by college administrations and law enforcement agencies.

"Getting caught drinking (on campus) should bring a swift and certain consequence, up to and including suspension," she writes. "Schools need to summon the courage to spike the warm, welcoming atmosphere they seek to create for newcomers with strong messages proclaiming their intolerance of alcohol abuse.

"A crackdown on campus drinking, however, could even be dangerous if it isn't coupled with a similar commitment to enforce the laws off-campus. That means beefed-up DWI screens, extra police shifts on weekends and a commitment from the courts to follow up with consequences for violators," she said.

White-Kovach challenges colleges to organize and promote social opportunities that don't involve drinking, providing a place for young, insecure people desperate to "fit in" and make friends in a new environment to do so without the hazards of alcohol.

"And everyone," she emphasizes, "from parents to teachers to those of us who help young people with alcohol and drug problems, need to talk, talk and talk some more to the young people we love and care about. We need to talk to them about the terrible toll of alcohol abuse and the pain it brings (whether from a single fatal episode of binge drinking or an addiction that develops from abuse) to the person who does the abusing as well as to the loved ones who also suffer the consequences.

"No single step, no single approach is enough," she said. "The issue must be seen as the immediate, emergency public health concern that it is—before any more Scott Kruegers end their college careers, and their lives, in an intensive care unit."

Big Brother Leans On Draft Non-Registrants

In accordance with federal law, young men must register with the U.S. Selective Service System within 30 days of their 18th birthday. Thanks to the marvels of computer technology, it will now be much more difficult for young men to evade that legal requirement—and much easier for third parties to check on the evasion.

As might be expected, the government emphasizes its view of this situation as positive.

"This new verification service will be enormously helpful to men who must provide their Selective Service numbers to obtain student loans or federal jobs," states Gil Coronado, director of the Selective Service System. "It will make registration verification easier for men in millions of computer households."

Why this should be easier than simply showing a draft card or giving a registration number over the telephone is unknown to us. Less of a mystery is the real purpose of the computer file and Internet access.

"It will also make it easy," Coronado said, as if in after-thought, "for officials dispensing federal and state benefits or privileges linked to registration to check and see if a young man is registered before he is deemed eligible for the benefit."

Such benefits include federal Pell grants and college loans, job training under the Job Training Partnership Act, eligibility for jobs in government such as the U.S. Postal Service, eligibility for citizenship, and state employment or even the opportunity to attend state colleges or universities in many states.

Want an idea of how Big Brother has a grip around your young man's wrist? Go to any computer connected to the Internet and punch up http://www.sss.gov—the Selective Service web site—where you will find a link to "Check a Registration." Enter the man's last name, social security number and date of birth. The computer will scan the data base and—if he has registered with Selective Service—display the man's Selective Service number and effective date of registration. Doesn't that listing make you feel all snug and private and secure?

This is not at all to suggest that young men should avoid registration as required by law nor attempt to circumvent the Selective Service system. It has been the obligation of young men to register for the draft since the program was started in 1940—although no draft has been conducted since 1973—and they should comply with the law. That 25-year draftless hiatus could end next year....or next month....or next week.

Consider, however, how easily that Selective Service list could be cross-referenced with computerized lists of other government agencies, such as the Department of Health or the Internal Revenue Service. Right or wrong, good or bad, it is another step for easy government access into the private lives of Americans.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Never again should we allow government to pry into the privacy of the lives of our citizens. Only the suspicion of criminal activity should warrant such an invasion. We demand of those knowledgeable of our private life to keep this information in confidence.

Government approval of media coverage of our president's sex life was inappropriate and offensive. It reduced the pursuit of justice to a vulgar soap opera. Partisan politics is at its worst when the boundaries of decency are crossed for the sake of political gain. All of us have been cheapened by this violation of our president's private life.

The intense focus on sex has contributed to our nation's distorted perception of morality. The inordinate outrage against Clinton's behavior would have us believe that the Ten Commandments have been reduced to one—forgetting that the commandment about sex did not even make the top five. It is not illicit sex as such, but the self-centered indifference to the well-being of others behind it, that is so destructive. Self-centered behavior is a major cause of the pain in our homes, and the evil in the world.

It is our obsession with our rights and our wants, and the absence of concern for others that is at the heart of our nation's moral decline, and our elected leaders have contributed to this.

A few decades ago we were a nation that cared. We gave generously to help war-ravaged nations to rebuild. We invested heavily in assisting our youth, our elderly and the vulnerable. We attempted to leave no one behind. Farmers were assured of decent prices and labor's paycheck was sufficient to support a family comfortably.

I believe the downward turning point was when our elected leaders placed energizing the economy above the needs of people. Market values were given priority over human values. Protective legislation was dismantled for the sake of maximizing profits. Self-interest was affirmed. Greed was sanitized by viewing it as a vehicle to prosperity. Programs for the needy were slashed. We mortgaged our children's future in order to cut taxes. Our government brought us prosperity, but modeled a decadent, self-centered morality.

Civil society is built upon mutual dependence and support. The erosion of our civil society is evident on every level, from Congress to our main streets, in the growing reluctance to make self-sacrifices for the well-being of our broader human family. In terms of human suffering, the sins of Clinton are trivial compared to the sins of the elected leaders who contributed to the undermining of our sense of responsibility for others.

However, we as citizens carry the ultimate responsibility for this erosion. It would not have occurred without our support. We who contentedly live a lifestyle that places our wants and desires above the welfare of others are active participants in our nation's moral decline. It is not so much Clinton's confession that counts, but our own confession and repentance that is essential for the moral renewal of our nation.

Sincerely,
Rev. Milo Mathison

MN Extension Service presents Home Buyer Series

Buying a home is one of the most important decisions that a person makes today. In order to prepare home buyers for this important step, the University of Minnesota Extension Service and Minnesota Housing Financing Agency will offer a series of "Home Stretch" Home Buyer Workshops on three consecutive Thursday evenings on October 15, 22 and 29. The workshops will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

The three-session workshop is designed for the first-time home buyers of low to moderate income, for homeowners ready to finance a contract for deed, or for persons just interested in exploring the possibilities of home ownership. Participants will gain a thorough understanding of the home buying process. They will find out — how much home they can afford, what lenders look for in a buyer, how to eliminate the barriers to home ownership, and what kinds of mortgage assistance programs are available.

A certificate of completion will be provided to all participants who attend all three workshop sessions. Call the Pennington County Extension Office at 218-683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116 to receive a registration brochure with more information. Seating is limited so register now. Registration deadline is Monday, October 12.

Minnesota State Patrol and the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA) are asking for the public's help in the investigation of a fatal hit and run crash, which happened early Sunday morning several miles east of or along, eastbound Highway 2 between 3:30 and 4 a.m. when he was struck from behind by a car or pickup size truck. He was dead at the scene.

Investigators believe the suspect vehicle sustained damage to its front end and possibly the left side. Authorities would also like to identify a vehicle reported in the area about the time of the crash and speak with the driver. The vehicle is described as a newer silver or light grey Lincoln being driven by a man with gray hair. Authorities do not know if this vehicle was involved in the crash but want to identify the vehicle and talk to the driver.

Anyone having information about these vehicles, or the person or persons involved in this incident, is asked to call the State patrol Office in Thief River Falls at 218-681-0942.

THE ICING ON THE CAKE

Jason Grahn, renowned Lake of the Woods guide, has his face on a cake at Wally's Supermarket in Roseau. Those of us who know Jason fairly well feel that his face belongs in—rather than on—the cake, but it is, after all, Wally's supermarket and Wally can put Jason's face wherever he feels it's appropriate.

The illustration on the cake combines nineties technology with the basic human need to put things in our mouths—sort of like the gap lead-based paint chips filled for my generation. Somehow, a photograph is transferred onto a paper-thin layer of frosting and then affixed to the top of a sheet cake.

The quality of the picture is really quite impressive, as the forced nature of Jason's smile and the over-extension of his arms make it clear he is trying to pass off the three-pounder in his hand as a soon-to-be-released six or seven. I think that is called sugar-coating the truth.

Am I jealous? Be serious. The next thing you know they'll be offering monetary incentives for such trite promotion and I'd have to start eating what I endorse. I'm already struggling to button "loose fitting" jeans; I don't want to have to order next week's wardrobe from Kleven Boat Tops.

No, Jason can have his cake. And he can eat it, too. But the idea of "Catch and Release and Eat" is a novel and laudable one. I like it very much and will assume it wasn't Jason's.

"Catch and Release" has encountered some hurdles during the last decade. The root of the problem was the reward system. Like the Episcopal church's charitable fund-raising efforts of the eighties, a "give until it hurts" philosophy was adopted by the fishing world: "If you haven't thrown back enough to feel bad about it, you haven't thrown back enough."

Well, this is America, the land of Hedonism, and the public wasn't about to buy into any plan that promoted pain as a reward. Go find the "leather and lace" of Hennepin Avenue if you are into the self-abuse scene, but don't expect me to reluctantly release fish until I reach the Nirvana of misery. I'm out there to enjoy myself.

More recent efforts discovered the benefits of positive reward. "Catch and Release" business cards were popular for a short time. Chronicle the event on a small cardboard chit and store the card in your tackle box where it could be nostalgically pored over at some future date. Better than the pain option, yet with incentive like that you might as well have been spending your weekends meeting with advertisers and salesmen and collecting a much wider and more imaginative range of paper IDs.

Cards turned into certificates and then to patches and hats. These are a little more permanent and special and don't get melted together with the plastic worms in the middle tray of your tackle box during a hot summer stretch, but they still lack the tangible, temporary, tasty reward of catching, keeping and eating. We want to satisfy that hunter/gatherer instinct, and mere recognition doesn't cut it.

Back to Jason. Catch the fish, take a picture, release the fish. However, releasing doesn't necessarily mean you can't eat what you caught. Get the photograph developed and take it to the grocery store. While you're waiting for whatever department it is to perform this miracle transformation from celluloid to edibility, wander up and down the aisles in search of your favorite food—pie, steak, turkey roll. This was a noteworthy catch; it should go on something special.

Hey, you can even put that pride and joy photo on some chunky slice of North Atlantic Cod and eat the biggest walleye you ever caught, guilt free. Or you could get creative and stick the entire roll of film on a bag of dinner buns, eating them in chronological order as you bore your family and friends with a bite by bite account of last summer's fishing trip. At least it would be in better taste than the dreaded home video.

And yes, the DNR would be an obvious proponent of such an effort. The money they'd save on stocking endeavors alone could probably be enough to fund "film to food" efforts statewide. Blending this newfound alternative with the state's occasionally condescending attitude toward sportsmen, the DNR could replace its current "Catch and Release" logo with a picture of Marie Antoinette and underneath inscribe the words, "Let Them Eat Cake."

"Cooked to Perfection" lesson will be presented on Friday, October 2, 1:30 p.m. in the Northwest Grains meeting room, St. Hilaire. Jody Horntvedt, extension educator from Lake of the Woods County is the instructor.

Finding time to cook "real meals" is difficult these days with the busy lifestyles of people of all ages. Those living alone often don't like the time it takes to make a meal for only one person. Fortunately, these lifestyles don't have to mean sacrificing home cooked meals. Plan to take part in this lesson to refresh your skills in food preparation with pressure cookers, slow cookers and microwave - for meals "cooked to perfection!"

This lesson is provided as leader training for organized Extension Home Study Groups, as well as open to the general public. Everyone is invited to attend; there is no charge for the lesson. For further information, contact Glenice Johnson, Extension Educator, Pennington County Extension office at 683-7030.

Prowlers struggle in cross country meet held at Detroit Lakes

Individual honors went to runners from West Fargo, but team titles went to the Fergus Falls boys and Perham girls Thursday at the Detroit Lakes Invitational high school cross country meet.

Thief River Falls boys finished 11th in a field of 13 teams. The Prowlers were not able to field a complete team for the girls' race due to illness, so they ran three individuals in the junior varsity race.

"Today wasn't a very strong day for us," admitted Thief River Falls coach Terri Ueland. "We have quite a few minor injuries that are keeping the runners from being as competitive as I know they can be. Hopeful we will be healthy and healed before our next race Thursday in East Grand Forks."

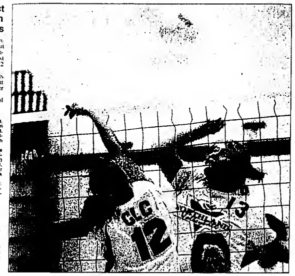
Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke tips Warroad in volleyball

A 15-12, 15-8, 15-10 Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke high school volleyball win over Warroad Thursday put the Wolverines at 7-4 for the year.

"It was not a pretty match," admitted winning coach Jean Schulz. "Both teams looked tired. But we took care of business and got the win."



The Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke sweep featured Mandy Sjulestad with six kills and DaNae Wiseth with four; Sjulestad and Abby Schuler with two service aces each; and Schuler with 23 assists. Rachel Orvis led Warroad with nine kills and Shelly Tveit had four aces.

RLCC is 3-1 winner over RLF in Thursday match

Heather Schiefert and Kelsey Lundeen had 13 and 12 kills, respectively, Thursday to lead Red Lake County Central to a 15-13, 15-9, 14-16, 15-10 high school volleyball win over Red Lake Falls.

"We didn't play well at all," said Mustangs coach Nancy Bray. "Our passing wasn't good. They (Eagles) maybe played really well. We had to work for every point we got."

Tammy Berberich had 25 assists for the Mustangs, who improved their record to 8-3.

A battle at the net developed between Kristin Halvorson (13) of Northland and Krista Savor of Central Lakes during Wednesday's Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division volleyball match in Thief River Falls. The visiting Raiders beat the Pioneers 3-0.

Raiders sweep Pioneers 3-0

Poor serving cost Northland any chance of picking up a Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division volleyball win over Central Lakes Wednesday. The visiting Raiders won 15-8, 16-14, 15-5.

"We had 16 service errors in the three games," pointed out Northland coach Mike Zachow. "That definitely hurt."

It wasn't one of the Pioneers' better performances, admitted Zachow. "Last Friday and Saturday we played outstanding volleyball, but I don't know what happened here. We just couldn't seem to get things going."

Northland was playing at home, playing in front of a fair-sized crowd and facing a team that has had trouble picking up wins lately, pointed out Zachow. But none of those factors came into play. "We played well against strong teams like Vermilion and Hibbing," he noted. "I don't know if we were playing at the level of the competition against Central Lakes, or what."

Three consecutive service aces by the Raiders' Nika Stayline helped turn an 8-6 Central Lakes edge into a 12-6 first-game spread.

Northland, after falling behind 9-3 in Game 2, had a chance to tie the match with a rally that caught Central Lakes at 12-12 on consecutive kills by Jaime Schwarz and Kristin Halvorson that were followed by a Halvorson ace. Back-to-back errors by the Raiders then put the Pioneers within a point of winning at 14-12.

However, a side-out kill by Amanda Silbernick, who drilled the ball through a double-block, took the ball out of the Pioneers' hands and led to a four-point, game-winning comeback by the visitors.

Central Lakes had a 6-5 edge in Game 3 before running off the final nine points of the night that ended with a kill by Krista Savor.

"We did a nice job coming back in the second game, but other than that we didn't do a whole lot," said Zachow, whose team fell to 2-11 overall and 1-5 in the Northern Division. Central Lakes headed back to Brainerd with a 3-10 overall record and 2-4 MCCC mark.

It was the only outing of the week for the Pioneers, who have home matches coming up against three Northern Division contenders - Wednesday vs. Fergus Falls, Friday vs Hibbing, Saturday vs. Rainy River.

Boys, girls high school cross country results...

Prowlers at Bagley/Fosston meet

Bagley/Fosston boys and Deer River/Northland girls won team titles Tuesday at the Bagley/Fosston Invitational high school cross country meet.

The two Thief River Falls teams had similar showings, with the boys placing ninth in a field of ten and the girls finishing seventh in an eight-team race.

"The competition was pretty hard," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Terri Ueland, who said she was more than happy with the Prowlers' performances. "I'm pleased with the fact that our boys are within about a minute-and-a-half of each other. We will be working hard the next couple of weeks so they can learn to push each other and work together even better. The girls team also worked hard. As always, I was proud of their efforts."

Seventh grader Jesse Sich ran with the Thief River Falls boys at the varsity level and was the Prowlers' fifth runner, noted Ueland. "He has a lot of talent, and a good work ethic," she mentioned.

Ueland also praised the performances turned in by team captain Seth Harlow, the first Thief River Falls boy across the finish line, and Chad Borneman, who was the Prowlers' second finisher.

Nordics' serves top Gators in volleyball

Marshall County Central turned opportunity into points Tuesday and beat Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-10, 15-10, 14-16, 15-4 in high school volleyball.

Both Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian said it was the Gators' struggles with serve receiving that led to the Nordics' win.

"I thought we played pretty well," said Jorgenson. "We were aggressive on offense most of the night, and we were alert on defense. Once we started getting our serves in, they (Gators) had trouble picking it up. We got some free balls that we were able to score on."

Kristi Kilen had a 25-kill night for the winners, and Tera Davidson capped a strong performance with an eight-point Game 4 run at the service line to secure the victory after the Gators had pulled out a third-game win and were threatening to tie the match at 2-2.

Setters Holly Augustine and Christina Hagen played well, according to Jorgenson.

"Our passing, by far, was the problem," acknowledged Adrian. "We let a lot of balls drop, and we gave them some balls to hit. It was a lack of communication on our part."

Kelsey Foldesi had eight kills and Merri Reese served six aces for the Gators.

The outcome put the Nordics at 4-2 and dropped the Gators to 5-6. Both teams are in Thief River Falls today (Saturday) for the Northern Lites Invitational.

Wolverines lose 3-1

Lake of the Woods turned a key third-game comeback into a 15-9, 9-15, 16-14, 15-7 Tuesday high school volleyball win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke.

With the match deadlocked at 1-1, the Wolverines had an opportunity to take control with an 11-2 Game 3 lead. But the Bears rallied for the win and carried the momentum into the fourth game for the victory.

"I was disappointed with the loss," said Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz, "but I think we proved we could beat them. We did a lot of good things."

Heather Hanson and Jessie Ballard were both in double figures in the kill department for the winners with 18 and 14, respectively. The Wolverines numbers showed Dana Wiseth with six kills and DaNae Wiseth with five. Kathryn Stanley of Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke led all servers with six aces. Teammate Abby Schuler had three. The Bears were led by Erin Beckstrand and Whitney Stoeckman with five aces each.

"We did a pretty good job blocking, but we had some trouble covering in the back row," noted Schulz.

The Wolverines were coming off a runner-up finish Saturday at the Roseau Invitational, where they posted pool-play wins over Warroad 15-1, 15-9; Blackduck 15-5, 15-2; and the Roseau junior varsity 15-6, 5-15, 15-13. Roseau varsity beat Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke in the championship match 15-10, 15-12.

RLCC winner over Sacred Heart

A strong start carried Red Lake County Central to a 15-4, 15-4, 11-15, 15-7 Tuesday volleyball win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

"We played fairly well," said Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "We started really well. Everybody got to play."

Kelsey Lundeen finished with 13 kills for the Mustangs, while Heather Schiefert had nine and Sylvia Hilgeman seven. Setter Tammy Berberich collected 31 assists.

One bull is taken during early part of '98 elk season

First hunt of the 1998 Minnesota elk season brought opening day success for one pair of hunters, and ended nine days later on a cold, blustery Sunday, leaving a second hunting party with no trophy to show for what state wildlife officials described as a good hunting effort.

At 7 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 12, Charles Weitemier and Sandra Hedlund of Center City both took aim at a 6x6 bull elk at a distance of about 150 yards, and dropped him on the spot. According to Paul Telander, Thief Lake area wildlife manager with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, the pair used a cow-call bugle to lure the bull to the edge of a sunflower field located about three miles north of Grygla on land owned by Norris Hagen – the same area that has proven most successful for other elk hunters in recent years.

"The bull appeared alone, between Norris Hagen's sunflower field and a brush-covered parcel of state-owned land," said Telander. "It wasn't the largest bull in the herd, but it was a good-sized animal with a nice looking rack, similar to the bull taken by Alan Severts two years ago." Severts, of Gatzke, was selected in the landowner permit drawing for the 1996 elk hunt.

Dale Hillig and Chuck Becker were not as successful this year. The two men hunted the Grygla area Sept. 12-14 and then returned home to Sebeka for a couple of days. They returned to Grygla Sept. 17 and hunted through the end of daylight on Sunday, Sept. 20.

"They reported seeing at least 10 bulls during their time afield, but didn't have a good, clear shot at any of them," explained Telander. "I'm sure it was very frustrating, especially as the hours ticked away on the second weekend. They worked hard. They did a good job of hunting. It's just that the elk can be very elusive."

Telander added that Hillig and Becker "deserve a lot of credit for being responsible hunters," he said. "They didn't risk taking a bad shot when they didn't have a clear target."

The DNR will contact the first of three alternate hunting parties, drawn during last July's elk permit lottery, to offer another pair of hunters the chance to fill the unfilled permit during the second hunt Oct. 10-18. The alternates will hunt at the same time as Steven and James Sparby of Grygla, who were selected to fill a third bull elk permit in the separate lottery reserved for for agricultural landowners and tenants living in the elk management area.

No permits for cows or yearlings were issued this year. Minnesota's elk management plan calls for maintaining a herd of 20 to 30 adult animals. The pre-calving population this spring was estimated at 35. All selected hunters are required to attend a pre-hunt orientation session conducted at the DNR Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area headquarters near Middle River.

Freedom to farm bill has not hurt agriculture – yet

(Note: This article was printed in the September/October 1998 edition of Prairie Grains, a publication of Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers)

The 1996 Farm Bill, commonly called Freedom to Farm, has been criticized as the primary cause of financial difficulties farmers are facing, but that criticism is altogether misguided, according to Dwight Aakre, North Dakota State University extension farm management economist.

Aakre says that during the past two years, farmers have been financially better off under the new farm bill than they would have been under either of the previous two farm bills. He points out that for the 1996 crop year, transition payments were $0.874 per bushel for wheat, $0.332 per bushel for barley and $0.251 per bushel for corn. Total transition payments received by North Dakota farmers alone came to $311.5 million.

If the previous farm legislation had been in effect, total deficiency payments would have been zero.

Similarly, transition payments for the 1997 crop year were $0.631 per bushel for wheat, $0.277 per bushel for barley and $0.486 per bushel for corn — and total transition payments received by North Dakota farmers came to almost $247 million. If the 1990 Farm Bill had been in effect, however, deficiency payments would have been just over $197 million.

Aakre says the major difference between deficiency payments provided by previous legislation and 1996 Farm Bill transition payments is that the latter are not affected by national average farm price — which is why farmers have received more in government payments over the past two years than they otherwise would have.

"Many producers are in financial trouble," he says, "but to suggest this is because of the 1996 Farm Bill is incorrect. We can't fix the farm financial problem if we do not recognize it — if we look the other way and blame the farm bill. Farmers' financial difficulties have been caused mainly by weather-related production shortfalls combined with escalating input costs."

It is true that farmers, in addition to all their other problems, no longer have the safety net they once had. But this is not the result of the new farm bill but of another piece of legislation, the 1994 Federal Crop Insurance Reform Act, which eliminated ad hoc disaster appropriations.

Aakre says farmers haven't yet experienced the downside of the 1996 Farm Bill, but this year they probably will. It's likely that the fixed transition payments farmers receive for the 1998 crop, plus the national average market prices they get, will add up to less than the old target prices of $4 for wheat, $2.36 for barley and $2.75 for corn. Even so, Aakre does not think the nation's farmers would be any better off in the long run if the country reverted to the old style of farm bill.

"Several decades of past farm legislation have actually served to speed up consolidation of farms," says Aakre. "Why? Because all government payments have been tied directly to operation or ownership of land. This has meant that farmers received benefits in proportion to the number of acres they controlled, rather than according to what they needed to support their families."

Aakre asks this question: Should an income support program support a business investment, or should it support people?

Income support payments based on land, he says, always get bid into the price of land, which means the price of land goes up. This raises the cost of production and benefits only the landowner.

"It is time to quit subsidizing land and investments," says Aakre. "If American society decides it is important to provide income support to agriculture, let's redesign the program so that transfer payments benefit the most people — rather than benefiting a handful of people who have the most."

Obsolete facilities can hinder dairy farm future

(Note: The following commentary is from Dove Kjome, southeast Minnesota dairy educator with the University of Minnesota Extension Service. Kjome has been involved in dairy education for 28 years.)

Minnesota has its share of older dairy facilities, and it creates real nightmares when producers look to some type of phased or major expansion. Having been on many dairy farms over the past three decades, I have seen many facilities that have become outdated and inefficient. In the upper Midwest, many dairy buildings are not located so as to fit into a system that facilities that were adaptable to new barn additions of 10-20 cows and some upgrading in feed handling and livestock waste. Today, however, their location leaves no room for any additional structure.

During a visit to a very successful dairy business in Pennsylvania a couple of years ago, I heard the owner remark that every livestock facility should be self-destructive in 20 years. Sound wasteful? Well, how many dairy farmers are operating today with the same tractor, corn planter, or pickup as 20 years ago? There comes a time in the life of a dairy farm when the old barn longer is useful. The problem is we can't trade it for a new one or an upgraded model.

Upgrading a currently used, older dairy facility located in an undesirable location is an insurmountable task for any builder or dairy consultant. Dairy producers need to be visionary and project where they might be in five, 10 or 20 years down the road. Is this older dairy barn an asset or just plain liability? Is it going to save significant borrowed capital, and will it be comfortable to work in if retrofitted? These are questions that must be addressed.

There is no question the upper Midwest dairy industry is girdled with many older dairy facilities. The tie-stall barn for 20 to 40 cows was the model to build in the early to middle twentieth century. However current dairy technology has offered us new ways to house, feed, handle, and milk cows in Minnesota and Wisconsin in a more efficient manner.

Today, we need to get out of the 1970s, 1950s, and even the 1940s — to get with the times and get modern. We need to get out of that old barn and accept the standards that have been offered and accepted in the past decade. There is a new way and a new day for dairy producers wanting to make dairying a business with a high quality of life in the 21st century.

Pennington 4-H leaders council meets Sept. 28

Monthly meeting of the Pennington County 4-H leaders council has been changed to Monday, September 28, at 8 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room due to the annual conference being held October 4-10, according to Van Swanson, county extension educator.

New officers for the coming year will be elected and the 4-H carnival and awards banquet will be among business items for discussion.

Swanson also reminds club leaders to call the county extension office (683-7030) with the list of games their club will operate at the 4-H carnival. All clubs are also asked to be represented at the leaders council meeting.

4-H carnival set Friday, Oct. 2 in Thief River Falls

Annual Pennington county 4-H carnival will take place Friday, October 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the city auditorium building in downtown Thief River Falls.

Clubs will begin setting up the games they will sponsor at 5 p.m. If they have not already done so, club leaders should call the county extension office at 683-7030 prior to the September 28 leaders council meeting to list the games their club will provide.

All 4-H families are also asked to provide a cake for the cake walk and two or three volunteers to work the cake walk project during the carnival.

Farmers find more diverse ways to support farming

Four out of five farm families in Minnesota receive income from off-farm employment and they have found more diverse ways to earn it than they did in the 1980s, according to a University of Minnesota study.

In a study conducted by Sharon Danes, family economist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service, only about 20 percent of the 345 farm family businesses which completed the survey had only farm income. Danes, who did a similar survey in 1988, says that farm families now have more diverse income sources.

In her latest study, she found that it was common for families to have at least one person, if not more, working off the farm. Other income sources included value-added products or home-based businesses.

"We saw enterprises like a grain hauling business, value-added crops and expansion of the existing farm business," Danes said. "Someone who had 50 milk cows 10 years ago now had 200. And it was common for two generations of farm families to go together to expand the business."

In addition, families that sold out had some protection from other income sources, compared to the 1980s. "Farm family businesses have diversified, just as non-farm businesses have," she says.

Husbands reported more tensions from the farm business than did wives. For example, "a lot of tension" was reported by 24 percent of husbands and 15 percent of wives over preparing for farm transfers; by 24 percent of husbands and 14 percent of wives over changing things in business; and 28 percent for husbands vs. 20 percent of wives on making financial decisions.

Major decisions regarding money, such as whether to buy or sell land or buy new equipment, were usually decided jointly between husbands and wives, Danes' study found.

"Wives are more involved in these major decisions than they were in our 1988 study," Danes said. "As more women are working off the farm, they are interested in helping decide how the money they bring into the family is used."

Slightly more than one-third of both husbands and wives said they had achieved their business profit goal. About half said they had achieved long-term viability and 65 percent of husbands said they had adequate capital and credit. This shows more stability than was shown in the 1988 study.

Surveys were received from 345 farm family businesses. A scientifically selected sample was drawn by USDA's Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service from its complete list of all Minnesota farms.

Copies of the "Farm Family Business" report are available from the Minnesota Rural Family Business Project, 275F McNeal Hall, 1985 Buford Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55108. They are also available at www.fsos.che.umn.edu/faculty/danes.html.

18th CRP sign-up will be conducted Oct. 26-Dec. 11

Next general sign-up of land for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) will take place during a seven-week period from October 26 to December 11, according to information received by Glenn Schafer, director of the Pennington County Farm Service Agency (FSA) office in Thief River Falls.

Schafer advises the public that the county office will not begin taking appointments for this 18th sign-up until Monday, October 19, one week ahead of the opening date. The reason, he said, is that the county office expects to receive more information on CRP which may affect the sign-up process.

U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman said the sign-up is "an opportunity for farmers and landowners to participate in a cost-effective, voluntary program to improve their land, water and wildlife resources. It is also an opportunity for current participants with contracts expiring next fall to make new contract offers."

United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) will continue to evaluate and rank eligible CRP offers using an Environmental Benefits Index (EBI) based on the potential environmental benefits gained from enrolling the land in the CRP. Decisions will be made on the EBI cutoff after the 18th sign-up ends.

Secretary Glickman said that the cutoff used in previous sign-ups may not be used for this one. The cutoff is decided after analyzing the EBI numbers of all the offers. Those which would have met previous EBI thresholds are not guaranteed a contract this time around.

"CRP is a highly competitive program," Glickman said. "I encourage all landowners to find out about the Environmental Benefits Index before the December 11 cut-off, and to consult with local USDA experts on steps they can take to maximize EBI points and increase the likelihood that their land will be accepted."

He noted that the EBI for the 18th sign-up is very similar to the EBI used for the 16th sign-up.

USDA is authorized to maintain enrollment of up to 36.4 million acres. Approximately 30.5 million acres will be enrolled in CRP contracts as of Oct. 1, 1998. The contracts awarded under the 18th sign-up will become effective Oct. 1, 1999. Just over 3.5 million acres currently subject to CRP contracts will expire on Sept. 30, 1999.

CRP maximum rental rates have been updated to reflect 1996-1998 local land rental rates. Farmers should contact their local USDA Service Center for current rental caps and additional information.

Secretary Glickman said the Conservation Reserve Program is designed to improve the nation's natural resource base. Participants enter into long-term contracts with USDA to enroll erodible and other environmentally sensitive land in long-term contracts of 10 to 15 years. In exchange, participants receive annual rental payments and a payment of up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing conservation practices.

The program protects millions of acres of American topsoil from erosion, the USDA secretary said. By reducing water runoff and sedimentation, it also protects groundwater and helps improve the condition of lakes, rivers, ponds and streams. Acreage enrolled in the CRP is planted to resource-conserving vegetative covers which make the program a major contributor to increases in wildlife populations in many parts of the country.

Sparby announces retirement from FSA directorship

Wally Sparby, executive director of the Minnesota office of the federal Farm Service Agency since his appointment by President Clinton May 17, 1993, has announced his retirement effective October 14.

A native of the Grygla area and long-time resident of Thief River Falls where he had agricultural and business interests, Sparby is a past county director of what was then the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He served as State Representative from House District 1B for 11 years prior to receiving his Presidential appointment.

In a meeting with state office staff Monday, September 21, he formally announced his retirement and said, "I have tried to do the best job possible for you, the employees, and for our farm customers."

He thanked agency employees for their cooperation and dedication to service and the state committee for the support given him during his six-year term.

Farm Service Agency coordinator Linda Hennen said that "agency reorganization and downsizing have been major challenges for all of us and we were fortunate to have Wally at the helm."

Sparby said that his intentions have always been to retire from service when the agency is running well and he feels good. He said that he intends to pursue his many activities such as fishing, hunting, traveling, golfing and spending time with his grandchildren. He and his wife Ione are purchasing a home in Thief River Falls and also have residential property on Springsteel Island near Warroad.

Harvesting off to a fast start

Another week of warm, dry weather as of September 21, allowed good progress on the corn and soybean harvest across the state. Little precipitation occurred last week over much of the state causing topsoil moisture conditions to decrease for the third week in a row. As of Friday, topsoil moisture ratings were 16 percent very short, 43 percent short, and 41 percent adequate, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service.

An average of 82 percent of the corn has reached maturity, compared to 18 percent last year. Six percent of the corn for grain has been harvested, while 92 percent of the corn intended for silages has been cut. The corn has dried down well in the field due to the warm, dry weather.

As of Sunday, 88 percent of the soybeans have reached the stage of dropping their leaves, versus 49 percent for the five-year average. Soybeans have reached maturity on 51 percent of the soybean acreage, approximately 10 days ahead of the five-year average. Fourteen percent of the soybeans have been harvested, compared to two percent last year and for the five-year average. The West Central district has harvested the largest percentage of soybeans. Some farmers are hoping for a hard frost that will finish off the green stems.

The warm weather has slowed the harvesting of potatoes, with 34 percent having been harvested. The state's sweet corn harvest is nearly completed.

Letting corn field dry can be money saving strategy

With Minnesota's corn crop maturing about two weeks ahead of schedule, producers may be money ahead to let their crop dry in the field until the end of September. Doing so can reduce or eliminate artificial drying expenses, says Dale Hicks, agronomist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Grain is drying rapidly and will continue to quickly drop in kernel moisture content with the air temperatures that are likely to occur during the next two weeks," says Hicks. "This can reduce drying costs and possibility increase profitability. In addition, field dried grain should have a high test weight."

Field drying carried some risks, notes Hicks. Harvest losses are likely to increase when corn is combined at lower kernel moisture levels, due to ear droppage and machine loses.

"The potential for pre-harvest ear droppage due to corn borer tunneling in the ear shank is low this year, since the corn borer infestation is very light," says Hicks. "However, warmer temperatures could cause stalk rots to develop more quickly and reduce stalk quality, which would increase lodging and harvest difficulty."

Hicks says machine losses increase at lower kernel moisture levels because of snapper roller shelling and grain cracking. Grain cracking may also lower corn storeability and quality.

"When machine losses are less than two percent, the savings in drying cost is greater than the value of the lost corn," says Hicks. "This makes it economically feasible to let grain dry in the field to moisture levels substantially lower than normal harvest moisture levels. Growers should evaluate stalk quality and the potential for ear droppage in deciding when to harvest."

When asked if he knew how many vendors the store deals with, Steve Holm wouldn't even venture a guess. "We deal with some on a weekly basis and others only once a year or so," he says. Hartz Foods in Thief River Falls supplies the groceries. "Hartz provides good service and is handy," Steve comments.

Young's General Store has seen a number of expansions over the years. The space where the post office once was now houses a large line of outdoor and hunting clothing, a line so complete that outdoorsmen from the Twin Cities come there every year to purchase hunting apparel. Every day work clothes and jeans can also be found there, and all of the clothing is available in sizes ranging from small to those for the big and tall man.

About 15 years ago the store expanded into a vacant building next door. There one can find a variety of giftware, yard goods, sewing notions, quilting and hobby supplies as well as women's clothing.

A niche between the two buildings contains a line of quality name brand boots and as complete a line of shoe care products and laces as one would find anywhere.

Along with groceries, every imaginable type of hardware can be found in the original store as can children's clothing, toys, small appliances, school supplies, medicines, toiletries and much more.

And while every inch of space, from floor to ceiling, is used, the store is organized and neat. No one employee, however, claims to know where everything is. Instead, each takes care of certain departments, and everyone works together.

The variety of services offered is a sign of the times as the store has video rentals, sells Minnesota lottery tickets, and is a registration station for big game. Customers can leave their dry cleaning there — the store an agent for Narverud Cleaners in Thief River Falls. Photographic film can also be left there to be sent in for developing.

If a Middle River area cook realizes she's out of sage when stuffing her Thanksgiving turkey, she doesn't have to worry. Young's General Store will be open. Surprisingly, the business is open every day of the year, and no one seems to remember a day when the store was closed. While the store closes at noon on Sundays and holidays, Bobbi says, "If someone calls and needs something, we come down and open the store." The family lives a couple blocks away. Tradition continues as the store offers extended hours on Saturday evenings.

Storm days are some of the store's busiest days. Business was brisk during the three-day power outage in the spring of 1997. "It was a real circus," Steve laughs. Hunting season is another busy time as hunters purchase outdoor clothing, shotgun and rifle shells and groceries.

Besides the outstanding amount of merchandise the store has to offer, the best thing the business has to offer is its customer service and friendliness. Strangers are made to feel welcome, and from the time a local walks through the door, an exchange of familiar banter takes place.

For some of us, a trip to Young's General Store is like going back in time. The original patterned tin lines the walls, still beautiful after all these years. The worn wood floor in the original portion of the store cushions the feet of shoppers as well as those who work there.

Though filled to the brim with up-to-date name brand merchandise, the store's fixtures and warm, friendly atmosphere will give youngsters an idea of the way things used to be.

Last year the store's uniqueness caught the attention of a Twin Cities television station. The Youngs were quite surprised when after a couple of unfamiliar gentlemen spent a half hour looking around the store, they asked if they could bring their cameras in. The feature was also aired on a local channel, and customers, new and old from near and far, are still talking about it.

Next weekend's annual Goose Festival will bring hundreds of people to Middle River, and the Youngs are proud of the community's cooperative spirit that makes the three-day celebration so successful. Young's General Store will be open for business — as it has been every day for as long as anyone can remember.

TRF freshmen down Devils Lake by 22-14

Thief River Falls edged Devils Lake 22-14 Thursday in a freshman high school football game at Prowler Field.

A 50-yard first quarter fumble recovery return by Jon Swanson started the scoring. The other Thief River Falls touchdowns came on a 3-yard run by Trent Christensen in the second quarter and a 1-yard run by Swanson in the third quarter.

Christensen also had a pair of conversion runs for the Prowlers, who led 14-8 at halftime and had their 22-14 final on the board at the end of the third quarter.

It was the establishment of the Great Northern Railway northward from Thief River Falls that played a dominant role in the establishment of Middle River in 1904. Railroad transportation was vital to the livelihoods of the pioneers of the early 1900's who were struggling with poor roads and communications.

Located on the banks of the Middle River, the main avenue ran north and south one block east of the street facing the railroad. A bridge crossing the river on that avenue was the fledgling community's first engineering project. More renowned to Middle River's history was the walking bridge that spanned the river at its side.

The business district of the new town was located where the avenue crossed the east-west street with business concerns enthusiastically snatching the opportunity for corner positions. Early businesses included a bank, hardware stores, a hotel, a bank and a general merchandise store.

By 1905, population had grown to the point where it was possible to incorporate. Due to the fact that the original townsite of Argyle, [illegible] known as Frenchtown, had been recorded as Middle River, the [illegible] was named Middle River City.

As the railroad enjoyed a boom business and the farm [illegible] gressed, the lots on Main Avenue filled with business [illegible]. While many businesses offered second story living quarters, [illegible] kept the pace with business development. Along with the [illegible] es and a school were built, and a number of doctors lived [illegible] the community.

Middle River reached the peak of its astounding [illegible] 1912 and 1914. A cigar manufacturing plant [illegible] in the early 1900's by M. Kock was among its most unique businesses. Another [illegible] business was the Christmas tree business of A.N. Johnson, [illegible] as "Spruce Tree" Johnson. Johnson used a funnel-shaped contraption [illegible] the branches of the trees he tied for shipping on the Great Northern [illegible]

Kind hearted Roseau woman helps Holmquists

Roseau - When Jean Larson heard about Julie Holmquist's disappearance, she tried to put herself in the parents' position but couldn't imagine what they were going through.

Jean had heard about people wearing yellow ribbons for Julie. Jean wondered if it would work at Polaris where she works on the line.

It worked better than she expected. Jean ended up spending days constructing ribbons using two-inch squares of blue tag board, photocopied pictures of Julie and yellow ribbon. While Jean's Julie ribbons did not require a donation, most people at Polaris gave something. With Polaris matching the amount raised by Jean, the project brought in over $850 for the Holmquist family. Roseau Times-Region

Fox Sports coming to Falls

International Falls - Fox Sports is coming to International Falls thanks to Bronko Nagurski.

Nagurski, the Falls native who in the 1920's and 30's went on to become one of the most legendary college and pro football players ever, was chosen by Fox football broadcaster John Madden for his "All Millennium Team."

The well-known Fox broadcaster will reveal his picks and profile each one during "The All-Madden All-Millennium Show" that will air on Fox on Super Bowl Sunday January 31, 1999. The Daily Journal

Former Williams resident listed as missing person

Williams - Vicky Poole of Williams is living every parent's nightmare. Her 19-year-old son, Jesse, has been missing since Labor Day and an All Points Bulletin (APB) has been issued nationwide.

Jesse was last seen on September 7 after leaving his job at McDonald's in Malvern, AR to walk to his father's house, less than a mile away. The Northern Light

Third Kennedy brother records golf ace in RLF

Red Lake Falls - Unlike the Kennedy brothers from Massachusetts, the three Kennedy brothers from Red Lake Falls have not all served in the U.S. Senate. They have, however, all had holes-in-one, and all three aces have been at the Oak Knolls Golf Course in Red Lake Falls.

Bruce, now a senior at Mankato State University, was the first brother to record an ace in May of 1996. Later that season brother Brad had a hole-in-one. Eight years old at the time, he is the youngest golfer to ever record an ace at the Red Lake Falls course. On September 21 Matt, a senior at Lafayette High School, joined his brothers when he aced the 165-yard hole #3 at Oak Knolls.

The brothers are the sons of Ron and Jan Kennedy. Their grandfather, Art Guillemette, was one of the founders of the present Oak Knolls Golf Club. The Gazette

Mark Swanson of Thief River Falls was one of 19 physically challenged individuals who participated in the first North Dakota Hunt sponsored by the United Foundation For Disabled Archers. Two other Thief River Falls men, Jim Carlson and Dana Klos, volunteered as guides for the event.

Mark Swanson joins UFFDA hunt in ND

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Since the beginning of time man has hunted — in the beginning out of necessity and later for sport. For many, the urge to hunt is primal. . instinctive . . unexplainable. For some, not even physical limitations can squelch the urge.

Archer Daniel Hendricks understood man's desire to hunt and commune with nature when, several years ago, an idea came to him while helping make a video of Camp Wilderness, a Boy Scout facility near Park Rapids.

It was from Daniel Hendricks' idea that the United Foundation For Disabled Archers (UFFDA) was born, and what began as a group with a handful of volunteers has grown into an organization with over 200 members nationwide. And the numbers are steadily increasing.

Each fall in Minnesota, UFFDA conducts a guided hunt for disabled archers at Camp Wilderness. A long list of contributors and sponsors and an even longer list of volunteers make the event possible.

Jim Carlson and Dana Klos of Thief River Falls are among those volunteers. Dana has participated as a guide for three out of the past four years, and Jim has been a volunteer guide for the last three consecutive years.

This year a work conflict made it impossible for the men to participate in the Minnesota hunt so Jim and Dana instead volunteered for North Dakota's first state hunt.

While the territory may have been strange, Jim's physically challenged charge for the hunt was very familiar to him.

When Dana heard that one of the hunters originally scheduled for the hunt was unable to make it, he called Mark Swanson of Thief River Falls and offered him a deal too good to turn down.

Mark is a double amputee as the result of a snowmobile accident in 1977. The son of Harold and Betty Swanson and one of eight children, Mark was 25 years old at the time of his accident. He admits that the first few weeks after his accident were pretty depressing. Once he found out he'd be able to drive a car, however, his attitude changed, and he realized that if he could drive there were a lot of things he would be able to do.

Mark went on to marry, and he and his wife, Annette, have two sons, Adam, 19, and 18-year-old Michael. Annette works at Digi-Key, and Mark draws Social Security Disability and stays very busy with a variety of activities.

Organizations may request Operation Round Up funds

Organizations involved in community projects and charities are encouraged to apply to the Operation Round Up program operated by Red Lake Electric Cooperative of Red Lake Falls.

Customers of the rural electric cooperative choose to voluntarily "round up" their monthly electric bill payment to the next highest even dollar to provide funds for this program. Presently 3,400 Red Lake Electric Cooperative customers are choosing to contribute small change each month to enhance their communities.

Funds will be donated primarily to nonprofit organizations to help fund their specific projects or programs. Since the program began in 1993, area organizations and charities have received $101,065 in grants. The board of directors of Red Lake Electric Trust determines the contributions to be made. Money is donated for betterment of the community within the outside service area boundaries of Red Lake Electric Cooperative.

Organizations wishing to apply for funds should contact the Red Lake Electric Cooperative office in Red Lake Falls at 218-253-2178 or 1-800-245-6068. A short application form must be completed and submitted along with an organization finance statement. The next semi-annual meeting to determine grants will be held in late October. Grand applications are due October 20.

For more information about Operation Round Up, the Red Lake Electric Trust or the application procedure, contact Ron Kennedy, general manager of Red Lake Electric Cooperative.

Northland hosts College Fair on Friday, October 9

More than 800 students from 14 area high schools have registered to attend the annual college fair Friday, October 9, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Admission is free and students should contact their high school counselor or call Don Howe at Northland (681-0862) for further information.

Draft scoping document on animal agriculture ready

Completion of the draft scoping document for the state's generic environmental impact statement on animal agriculture has been noted by the Minnesota Environmental Quality Board (EQB) and released to the public for comment. The scoping document is a proposed outline for what will be included in the study.

The first of six public comment meetings on the document has been scheduled for Tuesday, October 27, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. Others will be in Morris, October 28, Cold Spring, October 29; Marshall, November 4; North Mankato, November 5, and Rochester, November 9.

Copies of the document are available by contacting the Environmental Quality Board (Susan Schmidt at 651-296-2888 or Greg Downing at 651-205-4660). It is also posted on the website for the Minnesota Planning office at www.mnplan.state.mn.us.

Development of the draft scoping document is the first phase for the generic environmental impact statement—a statewide study reviewing the economic, environmental and social factors related to the changing livestock industry in Minnesota. The draft outline was developed with input from a 25-member citizen advisory committee appointed by the Environmental Quality Board for the project.

At a series of July meetings, one of which was held in Thief River Falls, approximately 800 persons expressed their views and the EQB collected the information necessary to shape the draft scoping document. Using written and oral comment, the advisory committee recommended 14 broad study topics with each topic clarified more specifically through study questions. The scoping document includes a work plan for the two-year project.

The citizen advisory committee, which was intended to represent all groups with a stake in the animal agriculture issue, met for a total of more than 60 hours throughout August and September to develop the draft outline. The EQB and advisory committee await public response before making revisions for the final outline for the generic environmental impact statement.

Minnesotans are invited to make written comments on the draft scoping document by mail, fax or e-mail by November 9. The address is GEIS/EQB, 300 Centennial Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155. Fax number is 651-296-3698 and the address for e-mail is animal.ag@mnplan.state.mn.us.

In November the citizen advisory committee will meet to review the public comments and develop recommendations for the Environmental Quality Board before drafting a final scoping document. The board is expected to meet in late December to consider the advisory committee's recommendations and to adopt the final scoping document or study outline.

The scoping document will serve as a blueprint for the last phase of the generic environmental impact study to be conducted over the next 18 months by the EQB and the advisory committee. Results of this study are expected to be available in draft form for public comment in early 2000.

Two new doctors have been added to the family practice staff at Altru Clinic, located in Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. Dr. Scott Petrescue (left) and Dr. Cory Rathgeber began their practices Thursday, October 1. They join Dr. Greg Houlihan and Dr. Judy Campbell as Altru physicians living in Thief River Falls. The clinic is also served by medical specialists who make scheduled visits to Thief River Falls nearly every day.

Altru Clinic adds two more family physicians to staff

Dr. Scott Petrescue and Dr. Cory Rathgeber arrived in Thief River Falls Thursday, October 1, to begin their practices in family medicine with Altru Clinic in the Northwest Medical Center building. Both are graduates of the medical school at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

Arrival of the two new physicians brings to four the number of family medicine doctors now living in Thief River Falls and practicing at Altru Clinic. Dr. Greg Houlihan and Dr. Judith Campbell had previously acquired housing here. Dr. Petrescue has purchased a house and Dr. Rathgeber is presently renting an apartment.

Altru Clinic leases remodeled space on the first floor of the convalescent and nursing care unit of Northwest Medical Center. It also has first option to lease the now vacant clinic floors of the medical office building attached to the medical center. The two floors have been vacant since Dakota Clinic Ltd. moved into its new building on Highway 59 southeast late this summer.

Dr. Petrescue is a 1996 graduate of the University of Saskatchewan with a Doctorate of Medicine (with Great Distinction.) He had previously received a bachelor of science degree in advanced anatomy at the university in 1991 and completed an Emergency Medical Technician program in Saskatoon in 1992.

During his college and medical school years he has been a program coordinator for the Canadian Mental Health Association, a first aid instructor for an ambulance service and CPR instructor for the Heart and Stroke Foundation.

He has done research in the Department of Cardiology at Royal University Hospital in Saskatoon and held membership in the Canadian Medical Association, Saskatchewan Medical Association, College of Family Physicians of Canada and College of Family Physicians of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Petrescue has also done volunteer work with the United Way, a nursing home and the department of psychiatry at Royal University Hospital and coached boys' floor hockey.

His wife of three years, Tami, is a hospital pharmacist and the couple likes to play golf and tennis. Dr. Petrescue also enjoys sculpting, woodworking and carpentry, gardening and wine and beer making. He has traveled to 15 different countries.

Dr. Rathgeber was a classmate of Dr. Petrescue who told him about Altru Clinic in Thief River Falls following his first visit here about a year ago. He also visited here and liked the opportunities and facilities available, from both the medical and community perspective.

Dr. Rathgeber completed his residency in family medicine at the University of Saskatchewan in June of 1997 and worked as as a staff physician in the Department of Family Medicine in Saskatoon until June 30 of this year. He received his bachelor of science degree in Great pumpkin tips the scales at Gonvick festival

Gonvick - When you mention the PGA in Gonvick, it has nothing to do with golf but instead the Pumpkin Growers Association.

The organization which began as a joke and competition among friends five years ago celebrated its 5th annual Pumpkin Days in Gonvick last weekend.

Wade Klema's monster pumpkin took the biggest pumpkin honors this year, tipping the scales at 719-1/2 pounds — just under the 722 pound state record. Farmers Independent

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere – email: gabriel@northernnet.com

Apples, apples everywhere. One a day will keep the doctor away, so make something with apples this week.

A main dish meal made with apples? Yes, and the apple juice and vinegar make the meat tender and juicy, too:

CIDER STEW

2 pounds boneless stew meat
2 tablespoons cooking oil
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon thyme
2 cups apple cider
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons vinegar
3 medium potatoes, quartered
4 carrots
1 small onion
1 cup celery

Shake meat in flour and thyme mixture and brown in hot oil. Simmer mixture for 2 hours in cider, water and vinegar.

Add potatoes, carrots, onion and celery and cook until tender.

Here's a salad that will be great with the Cider Stew above:

CARAMEL APPLE SALAD

1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 (20 ounce) can crushed pineapple
6 to 8 unpeeled apples, diced
1 (12 ounce) container whipped topping
2 cups dry roasted peanuts, chopped

Cook sugar, flour, eggs and lemon juice until thick. Cool completely.

Combine pineapple and topping. Stir in apples and 1 1/2 cups of the peanuts, then stir in the cooled cooked mixture.

Top with remaining crushed peanuts.

Here's an apple cake that can be eaten plain, with ice cream or whipped cream, or frosting, whichever you desire:

APPLE BLOSSOM BUNDT CAKE

1 1/2 cups oil
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
3 cups flour
1 1/2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups unpeeled, chopped apples (Jonathan are preferred, but others can be used)
1/2 cup walnuts or pecans, chopped

Heat oven to 325 degrees.

Cream oil and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well.

Sift dry ingredients and spiced together. Add to sugar mixture. Add vanilla, apples and nuts and fold together.

Bake in well-greased Bundt pan for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Cool for 20 minutes before removing from pan.

This is a good hot treat for that Halloween night party, so fresh and tasting like fall:

MERRY BREW

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 sticks cinnamon
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1/2 teaspoon whole allspice
1 cup water
2 quarts apple juice
1 lemon, thinly sliced
1 orange, thinly sliced

Combine sugar, salt, spices and water in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes.

Combine apple juice and fruit slices in large saucepan. Heat gently. Strain hot spice liquid into apple juice and serve warm. (Makes 2 quarts.)

Here's a good way to get that apple a day and make it a healthy one, too:

LOWFAT APPLE DIP

Low fat whipped topping
Low fat plain yogurt
Granola
Cinnamon

Mix equal amounts of low fat whipped topping and low fat yogurt in a small bowl. Dip apples in the mixture and then sprinkle with granola and dust with cinnamon.

Free Trade Should Be Fair For All Partners

We aren't all that enthused about the inspection pressures being placed on Canadian grain and livestock truckers by State Patrol personnel in North Dakota, South Dakota and now, it appears, in Minnesota as well. It doesn't strike us as a very proper way to treat a neighbor which has been a long-time friend.

Furthermore, it shouldn't be necessary for the individual states to take on this international problem. The movement of goods between nations is a federal question and should be handled on the federal level.

Gov. Arne Carlson, who on Tuesday requested that the Minnesota State Patrol deploy additional personnel in the western region of the state to monitor Canadian trucking, certainly acknowledges the proper authority.

"This is clearly a federal responsibility and it is critical for Congress and the President to take the lead in ensuring fairness for U.S. farmers," he said. He also called for a border summit to resolve the dispute before it gets worse. He proposed that USDA officials, U.S. trade representatives, members of Congress and governors from the affected states of Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota meet with Canadian officials to find a mutually acceptable resolution to the perceived inequities between the import policies of the two countries.

Again, the states shouldn't have to be involved—except in a watchdog role to be sure that our federal officials live up to their responsibilities. International diplomacy requires fairness and equality in agreements between nations. One-sided regulations serve only to increase tensions and heat emotions—as has been evidenced in the current dispute. This need for equality extends to the enforcement of regulations as well as their existence.

Frustration among U.S. farmers near the Canadian border stems from the perception that our federal government has been unduly lax in conducting the inspections allowed under existing trade agreements while the Canadians have been much more thorough. Coupled with the exchange rate that has the Canadian dollar worth less than two-thirds of the U.S. dollar, this situation has allowed a great deal of Canadian grain and livestock to reach U.S. markets—all to the detriment of U.S. producers.

International relations based on confrontation and retaliation is to neither country's benefit. A "we'll show them" attitude usually serves to show only a lack of common sense and an inability to reason. It is childish behavior and, were it not for the severity of the results, would be almost humorous.

As it now stands, independent Canadian truckers trying to make a living by delivering cargo are being made pawns in an international political chess game. It is not fair to these business people to be caught in the middle between their national government and the governments of the individual states. The determination as to whether they can legally haul their cargo from pick-up point to destination should be made before the trucks are loaded. It should be assured that if the product they carry is not acceptable for entry into the United States it will be turned back at the border—every time.

While Canadian producers should have equal access to U.S. markets as U.S. producers have to Canadian markets, it is true that some product on Canadian trucks is being shipped to the United States through Canada from other nations to circumvent U.S. trade barriers. When these attempts are made, the product should be seized as contraband.

In all cases, however, this is the responsibility of the federal government and fairness should prevail.

Sports World Hails McGwire, Sosa, Ripken

Baseball is a game of numbers, it is true, and this year the number study has centered on three record-setting individual players and one record-setting team. The latter is the New York Yankees and the record of 114 victories in a single season.

The former, of course, are home run hitters Mark McGwire of the St. Louis Cardinals and Sammy Sosa of the Chicago Cubs and ironman Cal Ripken of the Baltimore Orioles.

McGwire and Sosa demolished the single season home run record of Roger Maris which had remained at 61 for more than three decades. McGwire's five homers in his last 11 at-bats gave him 70 for the season while Sosa finished with an impressive 66, having taken the lead at that number before McGwire went on his final homer binge.

The home run derby featuring the two National League sluggers provided interest to the end of a season which had otherwise been mostly lackluster. The good teams wrapped up titles early and marked time until the playoffs. The also-rans added a little spark to the closing days of the regular season by battling for the wild card spot in the playoffs.

But the most impressive record of the season was one that was set by a player sitting on the bench. Cal Ripken voluntarily ended his consecutive streak of 2,632 major league games by telling his manager before the game with the New York Yankees on Sunday, September 20, that "I think the time is right."

Of all the numbers in major league baseball's archives, Ripken's record of consecutive games played is the most remarkable. Imagine going to work every day in an atmosphere where injury is commonplace and logging 16 years and four months without missing a day. Imagine besting the previously "unbeatable" record of Lou Gehrig by 502 games and more than doubling the total of the third place player, Everett Scott. (While Ripken was setting his record, the second longest streak was by Dale Murphy with 686 consecutive games.) Then imagine having accomplished all this at 38 years of age!

(Tragically, while the baseball world was celebrating with Ripken, the track and field world was mourning the death of Florence Griffith Joyner who died in her sleep, also at age 38. FloJo's flashing speed, flamboyant style and vibrant personality gave a highly personal sport a public visibility it may never see again.)

Some said that Ripken was hurting the team with a sub-par season while playing every day. The Minnesota Twins could have used that sub-par performance. Through the Sunday when he voluntarily ended the streak, Ripken's 160 hits would have tied him with the Twins' leading hitter, Todd Walker, for the most this season. His 14 home runs would have tied for third best on the team and his 27 doubles would have been in fourth place. His .274 batting average would have been sixth among reasonably regular Twins players, his 63 runs scored would have been been in fifth place and his 61 runs batted in would have been sixth on the team. His 50 walks would have been second, his 65 strikeouts would have been no worse than five other Twins and his defense was never really in question.

Our hat is off to the durable and effective Cal Ripken Jr. Interestingly, nobody playing today can even mathematically challenge his record until the year 2012.

We're On Your Street, Not Wall Street.

Because we are a community-owned electric utility, we don't have stockholders scattered all over the world. The real power brokers are you and your neighbors.

Before you know it, there will be major changes in America's utility industry. Outsiders will be crowding the airwaves and stuffing your mailbox with all kinds of offers. When that happens, we think you ought to know the differences between us and the energy conglomerates.

We are locally controlled and answer only to you — our customers — not to some anonymous corporate board. Our investments stay in the community and all citizens reap the benefits.

And we are working harder than ever to continue providing the most reliable service at rates you don't find on Wall Street.

Northwest Quadrangular meet...

Pirates, Jacks share tennis title

Crookston and Bemidji shared first place Tuesday in the annual Northwest Quadrangular girls high school tennis meet hosted by Thief River Falls.

The Pirates and Lumberjacks both finished the day with 15 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 10 and East Grand Forks 2. The team trophy actually went home with Crookston, based on a 4-3 edge over Bemidji in the tie-breaking head-to-head competition.

Most of the Prowlers' points came in doubles, where Katie Harbott-Lesley Ihle, Becca Leach-Jenni Gonsorowski and Toni LeMoine-Bridgette Stock were all 2-1 for the day. Harbott and Ihle lost for just the second time this fall when Shannon Wheeler and Nikki Baird of Bemidji won a 10-9, 7-4 tie-breaker match for the top spot at No. 1 doubles.

"Our doubles are pretty reliable," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "I don't know if it's inexperience, or what, but our singles players are having trouble."

Pioneers hold off Vermilion

Vermilion ran out of time at the Northland 1-yard line to end the first half and ran out of downs at the Pioneers' 1-yard line at the close of the game Thursday in a 19-12 Minnesota Community College Conference football loss at Prowler Field.

It was the second straight down-to-the-wire finish for the Pioneers, who edged Hibbing 24-20 last Saturday to snap a season-opening four-game losing streak suffered at the hands of MCCC Southern Division teams. The back-to-back Northern Division wins puts Northland in position to challenge for a playoff berth heading into the final two games of the 1998 regular season – Thursday at Itasca and the following Wednesday (Oct. 14) at home against Mesabi.

A first-series fumble recovery at the Northland 39 by Vermilion defensive end Sam McKinney led to the first touchdown of the game as Quanta Gregg began what would become a 46-carry, 225-yard night for the 5-11, 195-pound freshman from Dallas. He carried the ball on all five plays in the first Vermilion drive, scoring from three yards out with 3:40 elapsed. A kick by Brian Jorgenson made it 7-0.

A fumble recovery also set up the second touchdown of the night – this one recovered by Northland linebacker Michael Moore at the Pioneers' 44 early in the second quarter. Ten plays later quarterback Jason Pinkney completed his first pass of the night – a 19-yard touchdown over the middle to tight end Cody Huseble, who made an over-the-shoulder catch with a defender draped all over him. The conversion kick sailed wide left with 7:57 remaining in the first half.

The Ironmen had a chance to end the first half with a two-touchdown lead after McKinney came up with his second fumble recovery as he stripped the ball out of Pinkney's hands at the Vermilion 40 with 1:34 to play. The visitors had a first-and-goal at the Northland 3, where Gregg tried to dive over the middle for the score, but was brought down at the one. With no time outs left, Vermilion quarterback Zach Gustafson tried to stop the clock by intentionally downing the ball, but time expired on the snap.

A 22-yard Jorgenson field goal with 6:23 to play in the third quarter put the Ironmen up 10-6.

But it took Northland just two plays to take the lead as wide receiver Kelly Fossum made a spectacular catch on a long throw by Pinkney that carried for 45 yards to the Vermilion 29 and halfback Alex Anderson burst through the right side on the next carry for the touchdown.

However, the 12-10 Northland edge might have been the shortest lead the Pioneers have ever held, time-wise. On the conversion attempt, Vermilion's Duane Williams blocked the kick and teammate Jake Toman picked the ball up at the 15 with nothing but open field ahead. The two points tied it at 12-12.

Northland defensive back Ryan Halvorson broke through to block a punt that was recovered at the Vermilion 23 with 3:04 to play in the third quarter, a play that led to the game-winning touchdown. It took the Pioneers 12 plays to cover those 23 yards, but they finally reached the end zone on a plunge from inside the one by Jesse Lunsetter with 12:41 left. This time Northland kicker Matt Ulvness, who recently joined the team and was playing in his first game, added the conversion point.

That finished the scoring, but not the excitement. Vermilion, after a punt and a penalty had pinned the Ironmen back at their 3-yard line with 5:25 remaining, covered 93 yards in 19 plays before running out of downs with just 15 seconds on the clock.

Vermilion had a first-and-goal at the Northland 4-yard line when Gustafson and Terry Scott combined for a 10-yard gain on a fourth-and-two play with 40 seconds showing. But the Ironmen called their final time-out at that point and four straight incomplete passes – two knocked down by defensive backs Mark Beseman and Arthur Hamilton – ended the threat.

Spuds blitz Prowlers

Moorhead left quite an impression on Thief River Falls Tuesday while winning a one-sided 15-4, 15-5, 15-11 North Sub-Section 8AA high school volleyball match.

"They have a really good team," pointed out Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche. "They put some pretty big blockers at the net, and we couldn't get anything by them. It was a real eye opener."

Moorhead was once the dominant team in Section 8AA volleyball before being supplanted by Alexandria in recent years. But the Spuds, according to Roche, have apparently regained their touch. "They played well in every aspect of the game," she explained. "That's the Moorhead team that I remember. It's the best team we've faced, by far."

Thief River Falls' modest offensive numbers showed Rachel Mathson with six kills and Nicole Kopari, Lindsay Drury and Becky Bray with five each. Taya Hunt had 16 assists and four service aces.

Prowlers to host races

Annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational boys and girls high school cross country meet will be held Monday beginning at 4:15 p.m. at the Thief River Golf Club.

"We're looking forward to our meet," said Thief River Falls coach Terri Ueland. "Hopefully, we have nice weather and many fans."

It's the only home appearance of the year for the Prowlers, who ran at the East Grand Forks Invitational Thursday that produced team titles for the East Grand Forks girls and Warroad boys.

"The meet was pretty small, and yet it challenged us," reported Ueland. "Janae Harlow ran exceptionally well for the girls, and Jacki Mooney came through with a great fifth place finish."

Seth Harlow led the Thief River Falls boys with a ninth place showing. "The one thing that is keeping our boys from achieving what they are capable of, other than Zach Bosh's injury," explained Ueland, "is that they need to push harder throughout the race and not save themselves for the end."

Thief River Falls is 3-0 volleyball winner over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo

Nicole Kopari had 13 kills and seven blocks Thursday to lead Thief River Falls past host Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 15-5, 15-10, 15-11 in high school volleyball.

Lindsay Drury and Rachel Mathson teamed with Kopari to give the Prowlers a strong attack with nine and seven kills, respectively.

Taya Hunt set up the hitters with 34 assists. Becky Bray served five aces and Mathson had four.

"I thought we played really well," said Amy Roche, Thief River Falls' co-head coach, along with Bruce Jean. "We were clicking. We were on. Things went pretty smooth."

The win improved the Prowlers' record to 13-6-1.

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Thief River Falls beat Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 15-12, 15-5 Thursday in the A portion of an eighth grade volleyball match that was preceded by a 12-15, 15-2, 15-10 Warren-Alvarado-Oslo victory in the B contest.

G/G-G sweeps B/G-MR in Thursday volleyball

Dana Wiseth had nine kills Thursday as Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke swept a 15-6, 15-7, 15-11 high school volleyball match from Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

"It was Parent's Night," pointed out Wolverines coach Jean Schulz. "We played everybody, and they all did a good job." Dana Wiseth did a nice job covering the floor and hitting.

DaNae Wiseth and Mandy Sjulestad had four kills each for the winners. Merri Reese and Kelsey Foldesi led the Gators with five and four kills, respectively.

Abby Schuler had five assists for Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke. Kelly Everson picked up six and Tara Severts had four assists for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

The Wolverines are 9-4, the Gators 6-11.

RLCC vs. Waubun

Red Lake County Central hiked its record to 13-4 Thursday with a 15-7, 13-15, 15-2, 15-3 win at Waubun.

"We played well enough to win," reported Mustangs coach Nancy Bray, who had to alter her line-up due to illness that hit the team.

Heather Schiefert and Sylvia Hilgeman had 13 kills each for the winners, with Hilgeman adding eight service aces. Tammy Berberich came up with 31 assists.

The Mustangs will be at Crookston Tuesday and will play Win-E-Mac at Oklee on Thursday.

Pioneers beaten 3-0 by No. 6 ranked Spartans

It was a 3-0 loss, but Northland played a competitive match against one of the top teams in the country Wednesday when the Pioneers dropped a 15-5, 15-11, 15-10 Minnesota Community College Conference volleyball decision to Fergus Falls.

The visiting Spartans, ranked No. 6 in the latest National Junior College Athletic Association Division III polls, improved their MCCC Northern Division-leading record to 7-0 with the sweep. The Pioneers lost for the ninth straight time and fell to 1-6 in the Northern Division.

"Fergus Falls has a very good team," acknowledged Northland coach Mike Zachow. "Their hitters and blockers are very strong. But we actually played really well against them. We had a slow start in Game 1, but in the second and third games we played right with them."

It was a much-improved effort, said Zachow, over the Pioneers' previous start – a 3-0 loss to Central Lakes a week earlier in the same Northland gym. "Our passing was off a little – that's been our downfall all year," he explained, "but overall, I thought we played pretty well. It was a good team effort."

Northland carried a 3-12 overall record into a Friday night match against Hibbing, and will continue the home stand today (Saturday) with a 12-noon contest against Rainy River, another highly-ranked team that began the week with a 5-1 record and second place position behind Fergus Falls in the Northern Division.

MCCC Volleyball - through Sept. 27

■ Northern Division - Fergus Falls 6-0, Rainy River 5-1, Vermilion 4-2, Mesabi 4-2, Central Lakes 2-4, Hibbing 2-4, Northland 1-5, Itasca 0-6.

■ Southern Division - Bethany 5-0, Ridgewater 4-1, Minnesota West 3-2, Rochester 2-3, Riverland 2-3, Anoka-Ramsey 2-3, Minneapolis 0-6

Mustangs sweep Nordics

Red Lake County Central fought off a first-game Marshall County Central challenge Tuesday and went on to sweep the Nordics 16-14, 15-10, 15-10 in a high school volleyball match played at Newfolden.

"The first game was a good one," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We had some life and we were moving. If we could have pulled that one out, who knows what might have happened."

Red Lake County Central controlled play the rest of the night. The Mustangs were up 13-2 and 14-4 in Game 3 before the Nordics, behind the hitting of Emily Kragness, came back in a match-up of reserves.

"Our bench did a nice job," said Jorgenson. "Red Lake County Central has a good front row. They're big and they play tough defense. We have to establish our inside game to get our outside game going, but they took it away from us."

"We started a little slow, but we got better as the night went on," said Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "Our net play was improved. We kept them on defense most of the night."

Heather Schiefert led the winners with 11 kills, while Kelsey Lundeen had 10 and Sylvia Hilgeman nine. Tammy Berberich finished with 24 assists.

EGF tops TRF 19-16

East Grand Forks edged Thief River Falls 19-16 in freshman high school football Thursday.

Trent Christensen and Jon Swanson had 4-yard touchdown runs and conversion runs for the Thief River Falls points.

East Grand Forks led 6-0 at the end of the first quarter. Thief River Falls went ahead 8-6 at halftime and had a 16-13 edge through three quarters.

Wolverines collect set of 15-6 volleyball wins over Tri-County squad

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke starters and reserves enjoyed similar success Tuesday in the Wolverines' 3-0 high school volleyball win over Tri-County. All three games ended 15-6.

"The bench played quite a bit," pointed out Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz. "They did a good job."

Dana Wiseth led the Wolverines with five kills, while DaNae Wiseth and Kathryn Stanley both had three. Dana Wiseth, Angie Gast and Stanley came up with three aces each, and Abby Schuler finished with a team-high eight assists.

Changes announced for Thief River Falls' girls basketball staff

Changes in the Lincoln High School girls basketball coaching staff were announced recently following the resignation of long-time assistant coach Howard Thorson.

Amy Roche will be elevated from junior varsity coach to varsity assistant, and Paula Praska will be moved from freshman coach to junior varsity coach. Jeff Loe remains as the Prowlers' head coach.

The position changes, which are pending school board approval, were announced by Jim Sims, Director of Student Activities for School District 564.

TRF sophomores win

Three touchdown runs by Brian Loe led Thief River Falls past Detroit Lakes 22-19 Monday in a sophomore high school football game.

Loe scored on runs of 72, 8 and 90 yards. He also had a two-point conversion run, as did Nate Sorvig.

Thief River Falls led 8-7 at the end of the first quarter and a 16-13 halftime edge carried through the third quarter.

The Heart Of The Bear Matter

I once dated a girl in high school who told me that the less you understand about someone, the easier it is to dislike them. She was cute and intelligent and apparently didn't understand me very well at all because she dumped me shortly after our first date. I've come to accept both her rejection and her wisdom. Had we been discussing hunting rather than humanity, her logic would have been just as appropriately applied to bear-baiting.

To make sweeping generalizations about the out-of-doors from an urban Rhode Island perspective was unfair. My idea of a wildlife encounter was waking up early enough to catch the neighbor's dog in the act of relieving himself in our front yard. The occasional wisps of information we received about something as remote as bear-baiting were greeted with sound, one-dimensional condemnation. Surely this was a muted form of some Satanic ritual practiced by less socially developed cultures than our own.

We knew little more about hunting than what Jack London may have taught us, but his glorious adventures in the Klondike and the base process of bear-baiting were certainly not of like kind. Imagine, throwing your garbage around the back yard just so you could shoot the defenseless, starving creature that came to claim its humble existence from the stench pile. It's like declaring an open season on street people!

Now let's turn the pages ahead about a decade to view on unhappy hunter sitting beneath the semi-protective umbrella of a cedar grove while a fourth consecutive drizzly, cold, bearless September day festers around him. Having entered the season high on East Coast arrogance, the bitter pill of failure is even harder to swallow. Where are the bears? I've done everything just right! I've scattered things my kids refused to eat around the woods and now I'm here with a gun waiting to kill something. Simple. Apparently wrong.

Two years pass and another bear lottery is won. A little bit of humility has resulted in a large amount of study and a small bear is actually shot. The berry and acorn crops have been weak, tempering the success somewhat, but a step in the right direction has been taken nonetheless. The learning curve is established.

Two more years and the bear is bigger. A lot of luck is involved in this triumph, but it has been backed by thought and hard work. A diligent baiting regimen, more attention to scent and wind, increased patience in the stand, more thorough scrutinization of the woods rather than the bait; they've all increased the potential and left less of a portion to chance.

It is slowly dawning on me that baiting for bear, like downrigging for walleyes or reasoning with children, is an art form which the public has dramatically underestimated.

No bear license this year and I'm not whining too loudly. An impressive effort from the local oaks and July-like weather in September have left most bait stations untouched. If those with genuine expertise are having that tough a time, my shallow well of newfound knowledge would certainly struggle against such odds. I file my fellow hunters' tales of woe into my personal bear-hunting folder and will use it to increase the advantage next time I hunt. Despite the apparent similarities in political incorrectness, it has finally sunk in that bear hunting is a bit more difficult than clubbing baby seals.

Yet, even with all this apparent enlightenment, I continue to be concerned with the power of my ignorance. It took years of first-hand exposure to alter my views of bear-baiting. I also have opinions about spearing northerns, but I must confess to having spent very few hours in a darkhouse. I've held some reservations about predator hunting, but plan to make an effort to either cement or dispel them by actually pursuing it this winter. Hunting big game with dogs has never really appealed to me, but my criticisms will be held in check until some actual evidence has been accumulated.

I cringe when I think of all the non-hunting opinions I've formed based on little or no experience.

I also cringe when I recall the teenage girl who gave me such sage counsel years ago. Her concerns about 'judgment without experience' ring true on outdoor as well as interpersonal fronts. And while I don't think she'd be interested in gutting out any recently slain black bear, had she followed her own advice I believe she'd have been less casual about cutting out my heart.

time during the warm months as he repairs small engines and builds things. Currently he is making a log splitter. People come and go all day and Mark laughingly refers to the group of guys congregated in the shop as 'ladies' aid. He adds, "I have to fill the coffee pot a couple of times every day." During the winter months Mark spends a lot of time in his basement woodworking shop.

While Mark describes Annette as 'wonderful and loving,' she expects him to care for himself as well as take care of things around their home. Perhaps it's been the support without pity from his wife and the couple's large families that has made Mark into the man he is — differently abled rather than disabled.

While he was fitted with prosthesis, Mark has chosen to use a wheelchair. He currently drives a Jeep using the same adaptive controls that were used in the 1977 Buick Regal his dad bought him after his accident.

Mark, Annette and their sons are avid rifle hunters, hunting on the 160 acre parcel of land his dad bought years ago north of Grygla. Mark describes the experience as "good family time" even though because of the declining deer population, they didn't take any deer last year and may not again this year.

When Dana Klos called Mark and offered him the trip to the North Dakota hunt, he couldn't say no. UFFDA provided the license, food and lodging for four days and a nice camouflage hunting jacket that sports the UFFDA logo. Patches are added to the jacket every year one participates in the hunt. The trip cost Mark $20. "The price was right," he says.

The hunt was located at an old 4-H camp near Kindred, about 40 miles southwest of Fargo. Mark, Dana and Jim all hailed the merits of Delmore McLean, North Dakota's state UFFDA director. For months, McLean worked tirelessly to arrange funding, a staff of guides, volunteers to fix up the camp workers for the event, food to feed everyone and numerous other details. They also expressed their appreciation to Paul Kautzman for donating the use of the camp and other area property owners who allowed them access to their land.

Mark owns a cross bow which coincidently was a bow that Dana had won in a raffle at a previous Minnesota UFFDA hunt. Dana had traded the bow in at a local sporting goods store co-owned by Mark's brother-in-law, Rick Hicks, who gave Mark first chance at it at an attractive price. Mark has bear hunted with it, hitting a bear in the shoulder, and according to Mark, "It made him (the bear) mad."

The hunt began on Thursday, September 24 with registration, a welcoming ceremony, a late afternoon hunt and then an evening of socializing and visiting. On Friday and Saturday breakfast was served beginning at 5:30 a.m.

After Friday's morning hunt and lunch, there was a 3-D Shoot in the afternoon with teams made up of hunters and their guides. Mark and Jim placed third in the event.

On Saturday afternoon a shooting exhibition was held with the Sheyenne Archers and the guest hunters shooting. To determine what he would be shooting at, Mark drew a slip of paper from a hat and came up with a Froot Loop. From 30 feet Mark shot at the small donut-shaped piece of cereal. "I just missed it on the first shot," he says, "and nailed it with the second arrow!" At that time he was declared a "cereal killer" by the emcee.

With regard to Mark's shooting ability, Jim says, "He's a good shot." During one of the evening hunts Mark got a shot at a doe and thought he had hit it. He was frustrated only as others searched for his arrow and the blood trail that they didn't find. He wanted to help them and talks of fashioning leather pads to protect his stumps, enabling him to do the job himself. "I'll look kind of funny but who will see me?" Mark jests.

Of the 19 guest hunters participating in the hunt, six were from Minnesota, one was from Wisconsin and 12 were from North Dakota. Ages varied as did physical limitations. Thinking about a quadriplegic hunter who used his mouth to shoot his bow from a $22,000 chair, Mark said, "This ain't nothin'," pointing toward the place where his legs once were.

Jim was reacquainted with the blind hunter from Wisconsin that he guided during last year's hunt. Blind due to diabetes, Dick Wilson continues to be an avid hunter, shooting turkey, deer, bear and antelope using a regular compound bow. He also plays golf. When someone commented that all of the guest hunters had at least seen deer during the hunt, Dick quipped that he hadn't seen anything.

Mark was nicknamed "motor man" because he so enjoyed one of the three Bear Cat ATV's that Arctic Cat loaned the trio from Thief River Falls. In fact, he tried to convince Jim to tell Arctic that one had fallen off the trailer on the way home so he wouldn't have to give it up. "I could have slept on that thing," Mark says. His cabinmates probably wish that he had as his snoring became a source of jest.

A lot of good natured banter took place between the able bodied and physically limited men, fulfilling one of UFFDA's purposes — to bring together all archers in the spirit of camaraderie and friendship.

The three men returned to Thief River Falls tired, full of stories about their adventure and grateful to those who had made their trip possible. Mark was especially appreciative of the ATVs and trailer provided by Arctic Cat. Jim's employer, Land O'Lakes, donates his time as well as all of the dairy products which will be used at the Minnesota hunt this weekend at Camp Wilderness.

Mark also thanks Dana and Jim and all of the guides like them who contribute their time as well as the numerous others who work for months in advance to put the hunt together.

Mark still has that North Dakota license. His niece will be confirmed later this month in the western part of the state. He and his family will travel to their destination a couple of days early. His bow and hunting gear will be among the luggage. The desire to hunt continues.

Mark Swanson (right) and Jim Carlson participated in the United Foundation For Disabled Archers' first North Dakota state hunt last week near Kindred. Mark, a double amputee as the result of a 1977 snowmobile accident, was a guest hunter, and Jim was his volunteer guide. Dana Klos of Thief River Falls was also a guide for the four-day event.

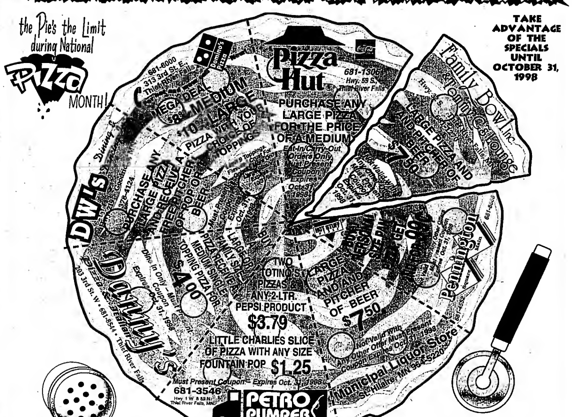
advanced physiology in 1990 and his Doctor of Medicine with Distinction in 1995.

During July and August of 1997 he provided locum relief to rural family physicians in Saskatchewan (as did Dr. Petrescue) through the Saskatchewan Medical Association. He previously worked as a house officer at St. Paul's hospital in Saskatoon, monitoring patients in the intensive care and medical wards.

The intensive two-year Family Practice specialty includes surgery, internal medicine, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, emergency medicine, psychiatry, palliative care, geriatrics and a primary focus on family practice. Elective time was spent in dermatology, orthopedics and rheumatology.

Cory and his wife Heather have been married for five years. She has worked eight years as a registered nurse with experience in pediatric intensive care, geriatric nursing, respiratory and renal patient care including renal transplants and set up a community program targeting isolated senior citizens.

Dr. Rathgeber enjoys golf, squash, skiing, football and weightlifting and his wife enjoys aerobic exercise, skiing and other sports. Both like camping, traveling and movies.



While Dr. Petrescue and Dr. Rathgeber had not planned to be in practice together, both say they like the opportunity to be a part of the development of a new clinic and in a location where medical specialists are available. They had expected to locate in larger communities, but found that Thief River Falls offered many of the medical facilities and community amenities they were looking for in a location.

Grafton police truck burned

Grafton, ND - An evening fire which destroyed a Grafton Police Department pickup last week has been ruled as an arson, and police say it could have been retaliation for several recent successful drug investigations in the area.

Grafton's police chief said that a rear passenger window was broken in the 1983 Ford crew cab pickup and an accelerant was used to start a fire in the rear passenger area of the truck. The vehicle is estimated to be a total loss. The Walsh County Record

White Earth election results are released

Mahnomen - White Earth Reservation election results were announced recently with interim Tribal Chairman John Buckanaga defeating challenger Francis "Butch" Bellanger.

Interim District III Tribal Council Representative Ralph "Bucky" Goodman defeated challenger Elmer "Gene" Tibbetts by only 14 votes.

Because of the Goodman's narrow win, Tibbets is reported to have said he would like a recount. However the White Earth General Election Board ruled that no recount would be held in races that were more than 10 votes apart. Mahnomen Pioneer

Church organist of 53 years honored

McIntosh - After playing the organ nearly every Sunday for 53 years, Gladys Narveson was honored recently at a retirement party at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church.

With music as the major focus of her life, she gave music lessons to area children for 44 years. Dolores was forced to quit playing because of a condition called tinnitis. Hearing a tune in her head constantly interferes with her hearing and concentration. The McIntosh Times

Candle cause of Bagley house fire

Bagley - A candle was reported as the cause of a fire which caused extensive damage to an upstairs bedroom in a Bagley home last Sunday.

A seven year old boy lit a candle and dropped it, igniting paper on the floor. The youngster was unsuccessful in his attempt to stomp out the flames. While fire was contained to the bedroom, the rest of the home suffered smoke damage.

Sunday, coincidentally, marked the start of Fire Prevention Week. Farmers Independent

Volunteers unite

Lake Bronson - After being closed for 24 years East Emmaus Lutheran Church is being restored by former parishioners.

A restoration committee was formed in July, and the outside of the church except for the steeple has been scraped, primed and painted. The group hopes to get it reshingled yet this year.

Started southwest of Lake Bronson in 1884, East Emmaus Lutheran Church dissolved 80-some years later. The present building was constructed in 1902 at an approximate total cost of $1,095. North Star News

Highway 11 now open for traffic near Roosevelt

Highway 11 between Roosevelt and Williams is now open for traffic, according to Bob Kleinschmidt, project supervisor for the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

The highway was reopened Monday, October 5, although some shoulder work, seeding and sodding remains to be done and permanent striping added to the roadway. Final touches should be completed in about two weeks.

Because the project is still considered to be under construction, Kleinschmidt urges all drivers using the highway to be extremely careful when traveling in that area.

Dairy research and promotion needs members

Minnesota Dairy Research and Promotion Council is seeking candidates to run for board positions in 11 regions in the state, including the 16 counties of Region 1 in northwest Minnesota.

Members elected will represent dairy farmers in their region and make decisions regarding the expenditure of dairy check-off funds. Candidates should be dairy farmers who are active and knowledgeable of dairy industry issues, respected in the community and interested in check-off promotion programs.

Counties in Region 1 include Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Clay, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, Roseau and Wadena.

Those wishing to be candidates in Region 1 should contact Rose Fulton, nominating chair for the region, at Route 1, Box 50, Warren, MN 56762 or call her at 218-745-5655 prior to October 15.

A mail ballot will be conducted in March of 1999 and those elected will serve a two-year term on the dairy council board.

Benefit event which has been designated as a "Rally for Roger" will take place Saturday, October 24, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Karlstad school. Roger Holmstrom, pictured with his wife Caara, has been battling leukemia for two years and will soon undergo a three to four-month autologous bone marrow transplant procedure which involves the use of his own bone marrow. Caara is the daughter of Earl and Marion Hougard, formerly of the Strandquist community, and is a track coach in Thief River Falls.

"Rally for Roger" to help Holmstrom in leukemia fight

People in the Strandquist area are joining in sponsorship of a "Rally for Roger" fund-raising event for Roger Holmstrom of Strandquist on Saturday, October 24, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Karlstad school. Supper and a silent auction will be included in the effort and matching funds will be provided by Aid Association for Lutherans and Lutheran Brotherhood.

Roger has been battling leukemia for two years and is now facing a several month procedure involving use of his own bone marrow and costing an estimated $200,000. It is unknown how much of that will be covered by medical insurance.

Roger, 43, is the son of Alvin and Ruth Holmstrom and has been employed by Newfolden Machining in Newfolden. His wife Caara is the daughter of Earl and Marion Hougard, formerly of Strandquist and now living in Bemidji. She works part-time for the Marshall county extension service and is a track coach in the Thief River Falls school system.

BCA proposes new crime lab facility in NW Minnesota

Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA) is conducting a feasibility study into whether a crime lab should be established in northwest Minnesota. Bemidji and Grand Rapids are the two cities being considered for the laboratory.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said he's very excited about the proposal and supports it 100 percent. Chief Froschheiser explained that currently any crime scene evidence that needs to be analyzed by the BCA is sent to the BCA crime lab in the Twin Cities. There's a minimum of 12 hours involved in delivering the evidence and returning to the community. Because of the time and cost involved in sending evidence to the crime lab, the police department does not send evidence to the lab as often as it could. In addition, Froschheiser said the crime lab in the Twin Cities has a long backlog of evidence to analyze.

The idea of a crime lab closer to northwest Minnesota has been discussed for a number of years, but because of a shortage of funds the idea has not been pursued. With a surplus of funds now available, the BCA and area law enforcement officials are more encouraged and will pursue the proposal.

Chief Froschheiser says he favors location of the crime lab in Bemidji over Grand Rapids simply because it would be 60 miles closer to Thief River Falls.

The crime lab being proposed would hire as many as 25 people.

In addition, BCA would provide a training coordinator to area law enforcement agencies, which he believes, is a very valuable resource.

Froschheiser was among police chiefs and sheriffs of several communities in northwest Minnesota to meet with representatives of the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension to discuss the proposal last week.

Dave Peterson, assistant laboratory director for the BCA, said an architect has been hired to start the study, which he expects to be completed in a couple of months. Currently no specific needs have been identified by the study, but he said, distance and time, as mentioned by Chief Froschheiser, are concerns to area law enforcement and the BCA. Currently, he explained, the BCA also provides on-site processing of crime scenes, he said. A crime lab in Bemidji would significantly reduce the response time of BCA to the scene. The time needed for BCA experts to attend court trials is also a concern.

The feasibility study is expected to address size and staffing as well. Peterson said one estimate is that the entire staff of a crime lab in Bemidji would include about 25 personnel. Once the feasibility study is completed a proposal will be prepared and presented to the legislature.

BCA currently provides investigators at several communities in Northwest Minnesota.

All skaters wanting to participate in the clinic must contact Ila Anderson at 681-2056 before October 19.

Tina Holte wins two firsts at state 4-H horse show

Grygla horsewoman now has five state trophies and ribbons from state 4-H competition

by Marvin Luodin Times Editor

Eight years ago 11-year-old Tina Holte of rural Grygla purchased a registered half-Arab yearling filly as one of her 4-H projects. This year 19-year-old Tina and Black Lady of Royale had their best year ever in 4-H horse show competition, winning two first place trophies, a fourth, a fifth and two sixth place ribbons at the state 4-H horse show at the state fairgrounds in St. Paul.

Saturday, October 3, was also the worst day of their relationship for Tina and Royale. While running with other horses in the Holte pasture, a foal crossed in front of the mare and she went down, then struggled to stand on three legs. A bone in the lower right rear leg had broken. She faces three months of wearing a cast and perhaps a future as a brood mare, but her days of glory as a riding horse are behind her.

Tina and Royale had done much of their growing up together. No other trainer had been involved in what they learned from each other. They enjoyed spectacular success, winning more than 80 trophies and countless ribbons and medals at local and area horse shows.

At the state 4-H horse show alone, the duo had won first place trophies in Western Pleasure classes in 1993 and 1995, English Pleasure Saddleseat and English Equitation Saddleseat this year and in horse training in 1993. They also earned 19 ribbons for third through ninth places in various classes at the state 4-H horse show since first placing in 1992.

In recognition of her achievement and leadership in the 4-H horse program, Tina was one of eight finalists in the state this year for the Dan Potch Award.

One of her major projects was spending two years training Dakota Friday, a registered quarterhorse mare, for Joshua, 13 and Jackie, 8, children of Tim and Marion Holte. The youngsters are members of the Grygla Go-Getters 4-H club.

Josh has mild cerebral palsy which causes muscle weakness on one side of his body. Tina trained Friday to make it easier for Josh to get into the saddle and to respond to his riding style, as well as with Josh to help him ride the best he can. Jackie is legally blind and special training was also done by Tina with both Jackie and her pony Penny to allow her to ride with confidence.

Tina has been a member of the Gatzke Busy Beavers 4-H club since she was eight years old and has always had a horse project in her club work. She started with a small horse named Maple Flame that was half Arab and half Shetland pony. "She was a real sweetheart," Tina said. "I had a great time with her."

Tina started riding horses when she was two years old. By the time she was three she was competing in area horse shows.

All of the children of Wayne and Marlene Holte started riding young. Tony, now 24 and living in Osceola, WI, started when he was four years old and Rod, now living in Iowa, started at age three. Martin, 17, a junior at Grygla high school, was on a horse before he was two years old and placed in keyhole and jumping figure eight classes at the state 4-H horse show this year.

More than her brothers, however, Tina has been involved not only in horse training but in helping others to learn about horses, riding and showing. She is on the horse project committee in Roseau county, conducted half a dozen horse clinics in Roseau county this summer, organized a local horse club and hosted weekly horse information meetings at her home for two years while in high school.

She was enrolled in the Minnesota 4-H horse training program which has requirements for accomplishments at various levels and has attended many clinics and programs to learn more about horses and riding. A member of the Bit and Bridle Saddle Club of Goodridge-Grygla and the North Country Horsemen of Middle River, she has also won several high point and futurity trophies in the Northern Riders Saddle Club.

Competing in the North Dakota Arab Horse Association shows in 1996 and 1997, Tina and Royale won grand or reserve championships in all divisions and earned the Tina Holte of rural Grygla, a member of the Gatzke Busy Beavers 4-H club, added two more first place trophies and four more ribbons to her collection of awards at the Minnesota 4-H horse show in September—bringing her career total to five first place trophies and 19 ribbon awards. She has also won more than 80 trophies in local and area horse shows, total points championships in the North Dakota Arab Horse Association competition in 1996 and 1997 and was named Roseau county Horseman of the Year in 1997.

Minors served at 8 of 15 EGF liquor establishments

East Grand Forks - The results of a recent East Grand Forks Police Department sting operation were eye-opening as eight of the 15 establishments selling liquor were discovered to be selling to minors.

Two minor college students were hired to go to local establishments and see if they would be served alcohol. The male, 19, and female, 20, were served in off-sale stores, service clubs and restaurants.

While the city council doesn't want to put anyone out of business, they want underage drinking to stop. The businesses serving alcohol to the minors were issued warnings with the promise that next time they will be cited. The Exponent

If it looks too good to be true, it probably is 1996 and 1997 were among the best years on record for many stocks and stock mutual funds. Returns were much greater than they have been over the past several years. That's good news for investors.

The bad news is that some individuals are now making long-term investment decisions based only on what happened in the very recent past. Those returns were the exception, not the rule. Looking only at short-term performance puts your long-term financial security at risk.

If you need sound advice on investments that will stand the test of time, give me a call.

LETTERS

To The Editor:
The proposed Winger Wetland Mitigation Project is of grave concern to many of the people of Winger township, City of Winger and of Polk county.

In the August 17 edition of the Thirteen Towns newspaper, Karen Bedeau, public affairs officer with the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) in Bemidji is quoted as saying an economic impact study of the project has not been done. "I don't think a study is required," she said. "The project will benefit the entire region. Everyone in the state will be paying for the project if it is approved." It appears this statement made by Ms. Bedeau is a reflection of the preparatory research which has gone into this proposed project.

Ms. Bedeau states that everyone in the state will be paying for the project. Is she suggesting that Mn/DOT, after it has purchased the land and donated the 1,886 acres to the DNR, that the DNR does not intend to pay its customary in lieu of tax payment of approximately $3 per acre, but intends to pay the same rate of real estate tax to Polk county at the approximate $8 per acre rate the adjoining farm land owners are paying?

According to the Polk county treasurer, Polk county will lose approximately $9,000 in tax revenue per year and half of that amount will be lost to the local school district. Due to the flood of 1997 Polk county lost over 500 homes and at a recent county commissioner meeting action was taken to increase real estate taxes for the county. It seems logical to me that Mn/DOT should go to another county in the state that has not experienced such severe devastation caused by natural disasters.

When Ms. Bedeau states the project will benefit the entire region, of whom was she thinking? Certainly not of the Winger community which stands to lose the sales for the input costs to raise 1,700 acres of crops each year. Fuel, seed, fertilizer, chemicals, insurance and machinery depreciation amounts to approximately $100 per acre, resulting in a loss of $170,000 per year of business for Winger and the surrounding area. Also lost to the local grain elevators will be the handle of approximately 70,000 bushels of commodities which would be grown on the land each year.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service now owns 1,482 acres in Winger township. If Mn/DOT purchases the proposed 1,886 acres, over 13 percent of Winger township will be owned by government agencies! This is too severe an economic impact for our already faltering agricultural economy. To date the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service owns 8,296 acres of land in Polk county and in addition the DNR owns and controls a total of 25,027 acres in Polk county, amounting to a total of 33,323 acres resulting in considerable lost tax revenue for the county.

According to the Environmental Assessment Worksheet prepared by Mn/DOT, item No. 6 states, "If necessary, berms will be built to prevent water from the site backing up off the project land." After farming for over 45 years it is no mystery to me that water which is unable to seek a lower elevation by going over the top of the land (or berm) will seep under its barrier, leaving the adjacent land wet, resulting in lower yields and devaluated land prices. This is of great concern to the adjacent farmland owners. One farmer said he could just as well get rid of his farm with all that water standing above him.

Anyone wishing to express their concerns pertaining to the Winger Wetlands Mitigation Project should direct them to Mr. James Denn, Commissioner of Mn/DOT, 395 John Ireland Boulevard, MS 100, St. Paul, MN 55155, telephone (651) 296-3000, Ms. Marla Conroy, Legislative Auditor, Office of Legislative Auditor, Centennial Office Bldg, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155, telephone (651) 296-4708; Gerald Larson, Environmental Services Coordinator, Mn/DOT, 3485 Hadley Avenue, Oakdale, MN 55128, telephone (651) 779-5094; John Saxhaug, DNR Building, Box 30, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155, telephone (651) 296-0237, and your State Senator, Representative and County Commissioner.

Sincerely,
Phil Mork

Vikings Priming Fans For Another Heartbreaker?

There it was on national television Monday night—a stunning performance by the Minnesota Vikings football team which humiliated the vaunted Green Bay Packers and caused hopes of Vikings fans to rise to new heights. If The Pack was so easy to flatten, shouldn't every other team in the league be a walk-over as well? Wrap up the Super Bowl trophy and ship it to Minneapolis. The Vikings' ship is coming in.

Well, not quite so fast. The season is long and arduous and one emotional victory in the fifth game of the schedule doesn't guarantee anything down the road. If anyone should realize that, it is Vikings fans who have been wooed and won and then rejected time and time again. Why should this season be different than all the rest? Is it just another invitation to heartbreak? Past performance indicates it probably is.

With that caution expressed, however, fans of the Vikings are justified in taking pleasure from the Monday night performance. The team ignored history and tradition and hoopla and absolutely dominated an acknowledged favorite in the Packers, ending Green Bay's home winning streak at 29 games dating back to 1995. Its supposedly porous secondary intercepted the legendary Brett Favre three times and gave up only 114 yards on 13 completions until Doug Pederson relieved the starter in the fourth quarter and directed two scoring drives. Even at that, the Vikes had a fourth interception that was nullified by a less than intelligent knockdown of Pederson after he had delivered the ill-fated pass.

It was interesting to compare the post-game summary with a pre-game story by Jeff Seidel of Knight Ridder Newspapers in the Grand Forks Herald Monday. He listed 20 ways the Vikings could beat the Packers, then explained in "Reality Checks" why they were unlikely to happen. For the most part, reality in the game was far from what the Reality Checks projected.

For instance, Randall Cunningham's ability to lead an upset was questioned as a "13-year veteran playing on borrowed time." Cunningham completed 20 of 32 passes for 442 yards—the most ever against a Packer team—and four touchdowns.

For instance, Seidel wrote that "(Randy) Moss doesn't touch the ball enough to dominate a game. He is averaging just four catches per game." The Vikings rookie caught only five passes Monday night—for 190 yards and two touchdowns.

For instance, he wrote that Vikings' punter Mitch Berger is tied for last place in the NFC, averaging a measly 32.9 yards. Berger punted only once—for 51 yards with no return.

For instance, "The Packers know how to take (Cris Carter) out of the game. Carter has 27 100-yard receiving days in his career but only one against the Packers—in 1993." Carter caught a game-high eight passes for 119 yards, including five third-down catches for first downs during Vikings scoring drives.

For instance, "(Jake) Reed has only nine catches for 82 yards." Reed caught four passes for 89 yards and a TD at Lambeau Field Monday night.

For instance, "(Robert) Smith has rushed for only 115 yards in his past two games. And Green Bay is tough against the run. The Packers held the Detroit Lions to 75 yards rushing and Tampa Bay to 37 yards." Smith carried 25 times for 78 yards despite Cunningham's passing success— which included a toss to Smith on a screen pass that the running back toted 24 yards for a TD. And the Vikes out-rushed the Packers on net yardage 103 to 102 yards.

For instance, "The Packers lead the league in defense. They have allowed just 17.5 points a game...." The Vikings had 545 yards of total offense and scored 37 points—more than double the average previously allowed by The Pack.

So, Vikings fans, do your gloating while the gloating's good. Your team delivered an old-fashioned whuppin' Monday night. Enjoy it while you can. History tends to repeat itself, and December disappointment may be coming.

Amendment No. 1 Faces Taxpayer Opposition

Taxpayers League of Minnesota, based in St. Paul, has recently announced that it is launching a campaign for the defeat of Amendment No. 1 in the Minnesota general election November 3. The amendment to the state constitution would require that 40 percent of the proceeds of the Minnesota State Lottery be directed to the state's Environmental Trust Fund for the next 25 years.

As we have visited with political candidates who stopped by our office while on the campaign trail in the past several months, we haven't found any who were opposed to the amendment. Several expressed the view that they didn't know of anyone who would be opposed to it. That was before the Taxpayers League, headed by Darrell McKigney as president, announced its campaign.

"The amendment will determine if 40 percent of state lottery proceeds will either be spent on environmental activities or directed to the general fund where it could be used for tax relief, education, crime fighting or other needs," McKigney said in his announcement of the opposition effort. "A vote for the lottery/environmental trust fund amendment is essentially a vote for a 25-year tax increase, or to cut funding for education, crime fighting, transportation or health care by hundreds of millions—or even billions—of dollars over the next 25 years.

"Voters need to know," he continued, "the choices they are making if this amendment passes. If (it) passes, it means either higher taxes or it means money will be spent on the Minnesota Frog Watch rather than neighborhood Crime Watches. It means spending money teaching environmental political correctness in the classroom, rather than math or reading. This amendment locks us into the priorities of environmental activists for the next 25 years and removes the authority of the legislature to make those decisions for an entire generation."

Well, we think McKigney may be both right and wrong. We agree that there are environmental expenditures with lottery funds which may seem frivolous, wasteful or even contrary to sound conservation principles. We disagree that passage of the amendment is equivalent to a tax increase or somehow deprives funding for other state needs. In our book, that is warped thinking —similar to lawmakers equating a reduction in increase to a budget cut.

Personally, we aren't fond of the state lottery at all. We aren't convinced the state wouldn't be better off without it. We're still angry about the legislature usurping half of the lottery proceeds for the general fund, contrary to what the voters approved in authorizing the lottery just months earlier. What this constitutional amendment will do is protect at least a portion of the lottery proceeds from future legislatures and guarantee the funds will go for originally intended purposes.

Beyond that, it behooves all Minnesotans to keep a close watch on how the Environmental Trust Fund is administered. It should not be allowed to become a treasury for environmental activism, but a pool to draw from when the state's resources are in trouble or money for enhancement is not otherwise available.

The Taxpayers League of Minnesota may be the state's largest nonpartisan and nonprofit taxpayer advocacy organization, but we think it is off base in seeking to defeat Amendment No. 1. We know its campaign won't affect our decision. We're voting yes.

SOUPÇON.

Sherry LaCoursiere

I got a new cooking magazine and some of the recipes were so exciting that I had to share them with you. The magazine is "Quick Cooking" by Taste of Home magazine. And you can use up the last of that garden produce in some of the recipes.

Instead of pizza tonight, try this nourishing soup that tastes like everyone's favorite. Serve with some fat bread sticks for dipping - yum:

PIZZA SOUP
1 1/4 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
2 cups water
1 (15 ounce) can pizza sauce
1 cup chopped pepperoni
1 cup chopped fresh tomatoes
1/2 cup cooked Italian sausage
1/4 cup Italian seasoning
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Shredded mozzarella cheese

In large saucepan, sauté mushrooms and onion in oil for 2-3 minutes or until tender.

Add water, pizza sauce, pepperoni, tomatoes, sausage and Italian seasoning. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally.

A little green pepper makes this dish special - and you can double or triple it for a bunch:

HAM AND SWISS CASSEROLE
1 (8 ounce) package medium noodles, cooked and drained
2 cups fully cooked ham, cubed
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese
1 can cream of celery soup, undiluted
1 (8 ounces) cup sour cream
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup chopped onion

In greased 9x13 inch baking dish, layer 1/3 of the noodles, and 1/3 of the ham and cheese.

In small bowl, combine soup, sour cream, green pepper and onion. Spread half over top of first layer. Repeat layers, ending with noodle, ham and cheese layer.

Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 40-45 minutes or until heated through.

Here's another pizza dish - this one is quick and yet will fill that hunger for pizza tonight:

BUBBLE PIZZA
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1 can (15 ounces) pizza sauce
2 tubes (12 ounces each) refrigerated buttermilk biscuits
1 1/2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

In skillet, brown beef. Drain. Stir in pizza sauce.

Quarter biscuits and place in greased 9x13 inch baking dish. Top with beef mixture.

Bake, uncovered, at 400 degrees for 20-25 minutes. Sprinkle with cheeses and bake 5-10 minutes more or until cheese is melted. Let stand for 5-10 minutes before serving. (Serves 6-8.)

What's better than a sweater on a cool fall day - I'm going to make these for my grandchildren when they come over:

DOGS IN A SWEATER
1 package (11 ounces) refrigerated bread stick dough
8 hot dogs
8 popsicle sticks or skewers
Ketchup, mustard and/or Ranch dressing

Separate dough. Roll each piece into 15 inch rope.

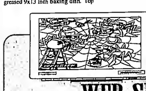
Insert sticks into hot dogs lengthwise. Starting at one end, wrap dough in a spiral around hot dog, pinching ends to seal.

Place 1 inch apart on a baking sheet that has been sprayed with non stick cooking spray.

Bake at 350 degrees for 18-20 minutes. Serve with toppings.

Serve those sweatered skewered dogs with this nourishing hot soup that you've been cooking all day in a crock pot:

NO-FUSS POTATO SOUP
6 cups cubed peeled potatoes
5 cups water
2 cups chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup thinly sliced carrots
1/4 cup butter
4 teaspoons chicken bouillon
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 (12 ounce) can evaporated milk
3 tablespoons fresh parsley, chopped
Snipped chives (optional)



In large slow cooker, combine potatoes, water, onion, celery, carrots, butter, bouillon and salt and pepper. Cover and cook on high for 7 hours or until vegetables are tender.

Add milk and parsley and mix well. Cover and cook 30-60 minutes longer or until heated through. Garnish with chives, if desired. (Serves 8-10.)

WE APPRECIATE OUR PASTORS...
Pastor Curtis and Lorraine Anderson
Pastor Mel and Karen Sich
Thank you for all you do for us.

Like Ezra,
you devote yourselves to study and obey God's word, and to teach it to us. You have walked the walk, not just talked the talk.

Like Daniel,
you have purposed in your hearts not to let your lives be compromised. You have the courage to stand by your convictions.

Like David,
you have given us new songs to sing. You are truly men and women after God's own heart.

Like Timothy,
you have a genuine interest in our welfare. You look out for the interest of others. You truly have a servant's heart.

"You show us the Bible is "now"... not full of tired stories on dusty pages of an old book, but stories of real men and women of faith grappling with life's gritty, basic issues—as relevant today as 3,000 years ago. Thank you for your hard work, for caring, for teaching us, and for living what you teach."

In competition in the Western Pleasure class at the Minnesota 4-H horse show in 1997, Tina Holte and "Royale" placed seventh. In 1993 and 1995 they won first place in that event at the state show—earning two of their five first place trophies in seven years of state competition.

English outfit worn by Tina Holte of Grygla was used as she won first place in two English riding classes at the Minnesota 4-H horse show in St. Paul in September.

Barrel racing was one of the games in which Tina Holte used her half-Arab mare "Royale." Her horse was quick but not fast, Tina said, and never placed in that event at the state 4-H horse show, where this photo was taken in 1996.

Pintabian sire "Lancer" is a recent addition to the horse herd at the Wayne and Mariane Holte farm northwest of Grygla and is expected to be used with several mares to help supply the demand for more animals in the new breed originated at Karlstad.

One of the projects in which Tina Holte of Grygla has been involved is the training of this quarterhorse mare for the children of Tim and Marion Holte. She spent two years in the training of "Dakota Friday" and a pony named "Penny" to accommodate the children's special needs.

Tina and "Royale" are pictured at the Wayne and Mariene Holte farm northwest of Grygla. They combined over the years to win five first place trophies and 19 ribbons at the state 4-H horse show—including two first place trophies and four ribbons this year alone.

Tina Holte wins two firsts

year-end total points championship. Tina was also winner of the Roseau county "Horseman of the Year" award in 1997.

At only 19 years of age, she is a junior with a double major in marketing and management at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. She attended the University of Minnesota in Crookston under the post-secondary options program while a junior and senior in high school, earning both her high school diploma from Grygla and her Associate in Business degree from UMC last spring.

Prior to going to UMC, she was involved with band, choir, student newspaper, yearbook, volleyball, basketball, peer helping, speech and Knowledge Bowl at Grygla high school.

At UMC she was a member of the Student Program in Activities for Campus Entertainment (SPACE) where she received an award for organizer of the week. She was also a member of the student Marketing and Management club and served as its regional representative, attending student government meetings at several colleges.

In addition to attending college classes, she worked for two years at a group home for physically handicapped residents on weekends and during the week. Through the work study program at UND she puts in about 30 hours every two weeks working for a group of biologists, chemists, geologists and a biochemist at the university's environmental research center.

Her goal is to get into the medical school at the University of Minnesota and become a pediatrician.

1992—Seventh place in Jumping Figure Eight;

1993—First place in Horse Training; first place in Western Pleasure, and seventh place in Western Horsemanship;

1994—Fourth place in Horse Training;

1995—First place in Western Pleasure, sixth place in English Showmanship, and seventh place in Keyhole;

1996—Third place in Western Pleasure; fourth place in English Showmanship; fourth place in English Pleasure Saddleseat, and seventh place in Jumping Figure Eight;

1997—Fourth place in English Showmanship; fourth place in English Pleasure Saddleseat; fourth place in English Equitation, seventh place in Western Pleasure, ninth place in Jumping Figure Eight, and ninth place in Western Horsemanship;

1998—First place in English Pleasure Saddleseat, first place in English Equitation Saddleseat, fourth place in English Showmanship, fifth place in Western Pleasure, sixth place in Keyhole, and sixth place in Pole Bending.

It is unusual for riders to use the same horse for competition in both the show and game events, but Tina and Royale were able to accomplish that feat over time and training. When the mare was four, Tina started using her in games and a year later in saddleseat competition. Royale is smart and learns quickly—which includes knowing how to open gates with flip latches. Gates have to be tied shut to keep her confined.

The mare has produced three foals, one of which arrived this spring and is an active member of the group of 19 horses the Holte family owns. If the broken leg heals successfully—as early prognosis indicates—she could provide the Holtes with a number of fine foals in the future.

Tina has one more year of 4-H club eligibility remaining in the horse project but, with the loss of her horse to injury, it will be a case of starting over with another horse to close out a highly successful 4-H horse project experience. The likely candidate is Jasmine, a four-year-old Arab purchased by the Holtes this spring as a brood mare. She has had no training at all up to this time. There is a challenge to that possibility, but the question will always remain as to what a year it could have been with Royale.

The Holmstroms are active members of Bethesda Lutheran Church in Strandquist where Caara is now the church council president. It is the church congregation which is organizing the rally, which includes serving the supper and soliciting donated items from business places for the silent auction. Individuals may also bring items for the auction on the afternoon of the benefit.

The sponsors are also placing collection canisters in the banks in Thief River Falls, Newfolden and Karlstad and inviting contributions to be mailed to Rally for Roger Fund, Prime Security Bank, Karlstad, MN 56732. Checks should be made out to the Rally for Roger Fund.

At the request of the benefit sponsors, Caara Holmstrom has prepared the following explanation of her husband's situation and their plans for the near future:

"Roger has a condition known as chronic myelogenous leukemia. He was diagnosed approximately two years ago and since then has been receiving chemotherapy treatments on a daily basis, seven days a week. He has been treated with a drug known as Interferon, which costs approximately $2,500 per month. Total cost for his Interferon alone last year was over $35,000, some of which was covered by insurance. Unfortunately, the Interferon did not put his leukemia into remission as the doctors had hoped it would, so they are trying another treatment option, which is bone marrow transplantation.

"The University of Minnesota Bone Marrow Transplant Center has been looking for a matching bone marrow donor for Roger for two years, but a suitable donor has not been found, due to the fact that he needs a very close match due to his age. Adult leukemia patients need almost a perfect match before a transplant can be done, as opposed to children who tolerate a partial mismatch much better.

"Roger's leukemia is at the point where he can no longer wait for a suitable donor, so the doctors have decided to do what is called an autologous transplant, which uses Roger's own marrow and no donor is needed. Unfortunately, this will not cure his leukemia, it will just slow it down and buy him some time in hope that they will make advances in medical research by the time his leukemia returns. Most patients relapse within five years.

"During this process he will be given high dose chemotherapy for one day and then his stem cells (parts of the blood responsible for growing new marrow) will be collected out of his blood over a period of four days. These stem cells are what will be reinfused—or 'put back in'—after very intense chemotherapy and radiation. Collecting the cells involves two IVs, one in each arm and a machine that filters the blood. The blood is drawn out of one arm and filtered to remove the stem cells, and then it returns to his body via the other arm. This process lasts five hours per day for four days.

"Once his cells have been collected, he will undergo one week of very high dose chemotherapy and total body radiation twice a day. This will destroy all of his bone marrow and remaining cells, which will also destroy his entire immune system. The cells that were originally collected will be put back in after this week of intense immuno-suppression. These cells act as 'seed' for new marrow to grow back and hopefully—because the cells were treated with chemotherapy before they were taken out—they will be leukemia free so he will have a clean slate.

"Once the cells are reinfused he will be in isolation until his bone marrow grows back, which will also create a new immune system. Until this happens he is at great risk for infection and a simple cold or flu virus could prove fatal. Because of this extreme risk of infection, he will be isolated and monitored closely for the first 100 days after his transplant. These days will consist of daily tests and blood transfusions to support his developing immune system. Once his blood counts have returned to normal, he will be released and may come home and continue being monitored every other day at Altru Clinic in Grand Forks, ND.

"The whole process will take three to four months. Insurance will cover a portion of this, but we do not know how much. In addition, we are required to stay near the hospital during the months following his transplant so he can be rushed in quickly if complications arise, which is not unusual. Apartment buildings are provided for patients and cost $750 per month plus utilities and parking fees. This figure stays the same no matter which building we live in."

Sponsors of the benefit ask the area public to "please remember Roger in your prayers, then join us October 24 as we all Rally for Roger at the school in Karlstad."

The Sweet Smell of Success

My backyard is a scattered collection of baseball-sized holes. First I blamed my dog, then the neighbor's dog, and then, when I found plastic toy soldiers using the divots as bunkers, I blamed my kids. The shape coincided perfectly with our missing ice cream scoop.

My neighbor set me straight. Skunks. He recommended I not get too fancy. "Shoot them at night in your underwear." Two parts of that suggestion made a lot of sense to me—I chose not to inquire about the third. Besides, I was already preoccupied thinking of Jay. Skunks always remind me of Jay.

In all the years Jay spent guiding on Lake of the Woods, I can't remember seeing a bona fide smile. It wasn't that he was unhappy, but more a reflection of his personal style. Jay was dryer than a Sahara summer, and to openly acknowledge amusement from his own or any other quarter was considered boorish. Virtually unflappable, he played a mean game of cards.

Skunk population, like grouse numbers, are cyclical. These trends are even more evident within the confines of island existence. Several skunkless years would invariably be followed with a plague fall or two.

In response to the occasionally swelling numbers, Loren Bray (longtime local and Governor of Oak Island) developed a simple live trap from a 35-gallon oil drum. The premise was a simple one: confine the skunk in tight quarters (it would not spray in there) until it could be removed a discreet distance from the lodge and cabins and dropped, stink and all, into the lake. It worked perfectly. Dozens of potentially offensive situations were tactfully defused in this manner.

Jay spent enough time on the water guiding that he missed out on most of the skunk disposal duties. As best we could tell, then, it was with sincere enthusiasm that he greeted this chore when it finally fell upon his shoulders one brisk October morning.

We watched over our mugs of morning coffee as a poker-faced Jay carted the trap, like a cumbersome overnight bag, down to the dock, heaving it and its contents into the lake. After tethering the load to a dock post, he lit a cigarette and waited for nature to run its inevitably callous course. Ten minutes later the dripping barrel was thrown on the back of a four-wheeler and escorted into the woods for disposal.

Now 10 minutes under water for most of us would be more than adequate. However, skunks, like other hibernators and recently born mammals, have the ability to shut down the bulk of their bodily functions, creating a need for significantly less oxygen. Survival time in the lake can be lengthy—a fact we apparently neglected to tell Jay when assigning the morning duties.

Half way down that woodsy trail, the scratching from inside the trap started again. Not one to panic and unconvinced that a return to the lake was the answer, Jay calmly removed the canister from atop the cargo rack and placed the bung hole flush against the ATV's exhaust port. Stepping back to smoke another cigarette, he waited for the carbon monoxide to do what the water hadn't. A Camel Light later, Jay and his once again harmless baggage were bouncing down the trail.

When he reached the appropriately random distance for ejection, Jay opened the trap door and shook the skunk out. Turning to go, he noticed the surprisingly sure signs of shallow breathing—the critter was still alive. While not admittedly alarmed, Jay's calm reached a level of concern. Yes, the skunk was groggy, but more importantly, it was free.

Taking the closest rotten birch limb he could find, Jay silently cursed the more refined but totally ineffective methods of attempted execution. He would finish this once and for all.

Apparently Jay's Cro-Magnon beating roused the last vestiges of the skunk's survival instincts. In a final, powerful, dying act of defiance, the animal rolled and sprayed from a distance that is more commonly reserved for the dealing of cribbage hands. The odor from the woods told the tale even before Jay's return to the lodge. Someone placed a lonely glass of tomato juice at a distant table on the front deck.

I have tried, in vain, to get Jay to acknowledge some level of anxiety in connection with this event. He claims to have remained unruffled throughout, although he seemed a little miffed when, even after half a dozen washings, his clothes still had to be burned.

"When you consider everything," he suggests wryly, "I still think I'd rather be in my shoes than the skunk's."

He doesn't smile when I remind him that we had to burn his sneakers as well.

Red Lake Co. Central beaten by Crookston 3-1 in Tuesday match

Red Lake County Central struggled in several areas of the game Tuesday during a 3-1 high school volleyball loss at Crookston.

The Pirates won 15-5, 15-10, 9-15, 15-2.

"It was not a good night," admitted Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "We were on defense all night. Our serving wasn't there when we needed it, and our passing wasn't good."

Kelsey Lundeen led the Mustangs with 14 kills and Sylvia Hilgeman had six service aces. Setter Tammy Berberich played well, according to Bray, as she chased down errant passes.

Red Lake County Central is 13-5.

Blue Devils shut out by Kittson Co. North

Unable to break into the win column over the first month of the 1998 high school football season, Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke had nevertheless been able to put puts on the scoreboard – until Friday (Oct. 2) that is, when the Blue Devils were shut out by Kittson County North 54-0 in a Top of the State Conference Nine-Man game played at Lancaster.

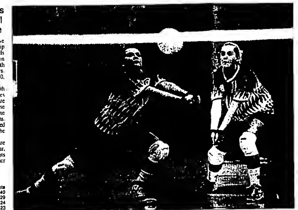
TRF-Roseau tennis match is rained out

Wet weather canceled the final Thief River Falls regular season girls high school tennis match – a Tuesday dual at Roseau.



The Prowlers will take a 13-5 dual meet record into the team portion of the 1998 North Sub-Section 8AA tournament Monday at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre. Individual portion of the tournament will be played there Tuesday.

TRF sophomores fall 20-8

Warroad won a soggy 20-8 match-up with visiting Thief River Falls Tuesday in sophomore high school football.

Thief River Falls scoring came on a two-yard run first quarter run by Brian Loe and a fourth quarter safety.

Warroad led 14-6 at halftime. Thief River Falls sophomore/junior varsity program is 5-3.

Prowlers' comeback nets 3-2 volleyball win...

TRF rally beats Green Wave

There was entertainment on two fronts Tuesday when Thief River Falls hosted East Grand Forks in high school volleyball. On the court, the Prowlers staged another remarkable comeback. In the stands, the Thief River Falls student section – mostly a large group of very animated, slightly off-key boys – serenaded the crowd with Christmas carols, in reference to the visitor's holiday-like school colors. You would have been hard-pressed to find better entertainment.

Much like they did in a 3-2 victory over Bemidji in front of the same type of enthusiastic crowd back on Sept. 10, the Prowlers managed to turn an impending loss into an improbable come-from-behind victory.

East Grand Forks, already up 2-0, was ready to wrap things up with a 10-4 lead in Game 3 before the Thief River Falls rally kicked in and produced an 11-15, 8-15, 15-11, 15-6, 15-7 win.

"I really don't know how to explain it," said Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche, "but it's almost like we do better when we're down. We sometimes have a hard time getting going."

Actually, the Prowlers did start strong, scoring the first four points of the night, then maintaining that edge at 8-4. But back-to-back kills by Katherine Johnson and consecutive ace serves by Sarah Barrett sparked an East Grand Forks surge that ended with a kill block by Jill Effhauser to close out the Game 1 win.

Poor passing got the Prowlers in trouble right away in Game 2, putting them in an 8-2 hole. Back-to-back aces by Barrett put the Green Wave up 14-4 and, after a brief Thief River Falls rally, a block by Lisa Kouba ended it.

East Grand Forks turned a 4-4 tie into a 10-4 lead in Game 3. But a couple of point-producing violations called against the Green Wave opened the door for the Prowlers, who went ahead 12-11 on a service ace by Rachel Mathson and won it on a game-ending kill by Nicole Kopari.

After an ace by Becky Bray and a block by Taya Hunt erased an early 3-1 East Grand Forks edge in Game 4, the Prowlers dominated, with everybody getting into the act. Down the stretch, the final four points came on an ace by Kopari, a corner kill by Lindsay Drury, a well-placed shot by Laura Follett, and tap inside the line by Bray that ended the night's longest rally.

Fifth game was close, for a while. Bray served back-to-back aces to break a 7-7 tie as the Prowlers rattled off the final nine points of the night. Kopari surprised the East Grand Forks defense that was set up for a kill attempt with a tap-in that made it 14-7 and Follett drove a spike off a blocker for the last point.

Kopari led the Prowlers with 18 kills and was joined in double figures by Drury with 12 and Bray 11. Hunt had impressive numbers, too, with 13 service aces and 44 assists. Effhauser was nearly unstoppable early and racked up an eye-opening 30 kills, while Johnson added 16 and Kouba 14. Emily Bydal was credited with 47 assists and Barrett had eight aces.

"We were having trouble with our passing earlier in the match, and Effhauser was hitting the ball hard," explained Roche. "But our passing got better. We were getting the ball to Taya for the sets, and our hitters were putting it away. We did a much better job blocking, too. We were playing with a lot of intensity and a lot of enthusiasm – thanks to the crowd."

East Grand Forks won the two preliminary matches, including a 11-15, 15-7, 15-10 junior varsity decision and a 7-15, 15-11, 15-12 C squad verdict.

The Prowlers, who took a 14-7-1 record to Detroit Lakes Thursday, will wrap up their home schedule Tuesday when they host Fergus Falls.

Wolverines get by RLF

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke beat Red Lake Falls in three games, but the Tuesday high school volleyball match was anything but a blow-out as the Wolverines held off the host Eagles 15-13, 17-15, 18-16.

"We didn't play as well as we did the night before (a 3-0 Monday sweep of Marshall County Central), but we kept working at it," said Wolverines coach Jean Schulz. "Red Lake Falls covered the floor really well, but we kept plugging away."

Dana Wiseth and DaNae Wiseth both had seven kills for the winners, while Kathryn Stanley and Angie Gast finished with six each. Stanley and Gast served three aces apiece and Abby Schuler wound up with 15 assists as the Wolverines improved their record to 14-4 for the year.

Gators lose to Bears 3-0

A strong Lake of the Woods team swept Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-4, 15-4, 15-8 in Tuesday high school volleyball.

"Actually, we didn't play that bad," reported Gators coach Christine Adrian. "Defensively we held their top two hitters to 10 kills. But it's really hard to side-out against them, and our serving percentage was down some."

Kelsey Foldesi led the modest Badger/Greenbush-Middle River attack with five kills. "You don't get a lot of offensive opportunities against them," noted Adrian.

The loss dropped the Gators to 6-12.

Nordics swept by Rams

Marshall County Central played Roseau tough in Game 1, but failed to come up with a win and couldn't maintain that performance level the rest of the night in losing a 15-12, 15-2, 15-3 Tuesday high school volleyball decision to the host Rams.

"We played well in the first game," said Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We made some nice attacks and did a lot of things right. But they have to learn to do that for more than just one game."

Kristi Kilen stood out on defense at the net and Emily Kragness played well off the bench, pointed out Jorgenson, whose team is 8-9.

SEE WHAT OTHERS ARE MISSING.

On an Arctic Cat ATV you'll see more of the great outdoors. At least more than ... Maybe that's because Arctic Cats feature superior suspensions for a more comfortable ride and superior handling, plus more ground clearance and larger fuel capacities. Or maybe it's just because Arctic Cats are built better than others. There's only one way to find out. Come see for yourself.

Prowlers take final race to clinch dual vs. Fosston/Bagley

A final-race win by Thief River Falls 400-yard freestyle relay team netted the Prowlers a 95-90 girls high school swimming win over Fosston/Bagley Tuesday at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Lindsay Ehrenstrom, Kristin Naplin, Andi Sorvig and Chelsea Haviland had a two-second drop to win the final relay in 4:02.26.

"The meet was a close one," noted Thief River Falls coach Shon Thompson. "The fans got their money's worth. All of the kids swam great. Everyone was focused on their race."

Chelsea Haviland set a school record with a 1:12.19 in the 100 breaststroke and Brittany Haviland turned in a sectional-qualifying time in the 50 freestyle as the Prowlers improved their dual meet record to 4-3.

"It was a big win for us," said Thompson. "It was a meet where every point counted."

TRF ninth grade squad wins in overtime, 22-20

Thief River Falls came up with a 22-20 overtime win Thursday in a freshman high school football game at Warroad.

A 20-yard run by Dan Almquist and a 1-yard run by Jason Smsky that was followed by an Almquist conversion run produced the Thief River Falls points in regulation time that ended in a 14-14 tie.

Trent Christenson scored from a yard out in overtime and Jon Swanson added the conversion, with the Thief River Falls defense then stopping Warroad on the final offensive series of the game.

Thief River Falls ninth graders are 4-4.

Itasca takes title in victory over NCTC

Itasca clinched the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division football title Thursday with a 29-19 win over Northland.

After winning back-to-back Northern Division games against Hibbing and Vermilion, Northland was in position to play for a division title going into the final two games of the 1998 regular season schedule – at Itasca and then Wednesday at home against Mesabi. But the Vikings shattered those dreams, and now the Pioneers need some weekend help from elsewhere in the MCCC in order for them to be in position to gain the second Northern Division post-season playoff spot in the 3 p.m. Wednesday finale against the Ironmen at Prowler Field.

It was a disappointing outing, admitted Northland coach Dan Willoughby. "We had a chance to win the Northern Division, and we played on our heels most of the game," he said. "We just didn't go after it. They (Itasca) did, and they won. We weren't aggressive. We were taking the blocks. You can't win football games playing like that."

Northland gained 265 yards on 54 running plays, led by Alex Anderson with 89 yards on 15 carries and Paul Teevens with 68 yards on 21 attempts. Itasca ran 51 times for 265 yards, with Clint Zimpel doing most of the damage on a 29-carry, 182-yard night.

The Pioneers were 5-for-15 in the air for 56 yards and two interceptions. The Vikings were a similar 5-for-14 passing for 89 yards, but no interceptions.

Northland is 2-5 overall.

Sacred Heart edges Blue Devils by 14-6

East Grand Forks Sacred Heart scored in the final minute of the first half to turn a one-touchdown edge into a two-score advantage and went on to beat Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 14-6 Thursday in Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football at Goodridge.

Ahead 8-0, the Eagles put themselves in position to finish the half with a touchdown with a long-gainer off a trick formation play that set up a 5-yard Jamie Kaiser scoring run.

The loss dropped the Blue Devils to 0-6.

"That one hurt," admitted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "The kids played hard. They're playing well enough to win."

Marshall Tanner had a 24-carry, 162-yard game for the Blue Devils, who had the service of quarterback Alex Holte, recovering from a broken bone in his foot, for the first time this fall. "It was great to see Alex in there," said Wilebski. "He did an excellent job."

Wilebski also cited the defensive efforts of Steve Waling at an end and Luke Nonivick at nose guard.

Aaron Gregoire led Sacred Heart with 92 yards on 32 carries.

The Blue Devils finished with a 267-254 edge in yards on the ground.

B/G-MR volleyball squad drops 3-0 match to Rama

Kristi Glassman had 13 service aces Thursday to lead Roseau past Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-4, 15-12, 15-6 in high school volleyball.

"We played all right except for our serve receiving," reported Gators coach Christine Adrian. "The second game was our best game."

Dezi Sovde had four kills to lead a Badger/Greenbush-Middle River offense that had limited opportunities due to the Gators' problems trying to pass the ball.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River, losing its fourth straight 3-0 decision, fell to 6-13.

Warroad - At its annual conference recently, the Minnesota Association of Innkeepers awarded David Marvin of the Patch Motel in Warroad with its prestigious "Innkeeper of the Year Award." The award is presented annually to the innkeeper who demonstrates the highest standard of professionalism in the lodging industry. The Minnesota Association of Innkeepers is a trade organization with over 600 members. Warroad Pioneer

State's fastest growing sport comes to Roseau

Roseau - Even though hockey is a religion for many in Roseau, the community is a little behind the times when it comes to the sport. There is not one girl's hockey team, either school level or club affiliated, in Roseau. Ninety-eight high schools in Minnesota have girls hockey teams.

Change is in the air in Roseau, however, after girls hockey advocates Mary Doig and Sharon Grafstrom recently received the blessings of the Roseau Youth Hockey Association. A motion was carried that "the RYHA endorses the development of girls youth hockey as part of RYHA."

Doig and Grafstrom are excited to get the word out that girls too can play hockey in Roseau. Right now they're just planting the seeds and taking small steps to integrate girls hockey into the community. Roseau Times-Region

Death of cattle being investigated

Gonvick - James Johnson of Gonvick was concerned when he found his first dead cow on September 25. A second dead animal was discovered on September 30. When he found his third dead animal on October 1, he became very alarmed and called a local veterinarian to perform an autopsy.

In addition to the three dead animals, there was recent evidence that a pickup backed up to the chute of a corral and that the gates had been opened but closed quickly because they were positioned wrong. Also left behind was a pail containing corn used to lure the cows. Johnson doesn't use corn.

It was determined that the third cow died of internal bleeding. All of the cows were pregnant with 90-day embryos. The Clearwater Veterinary Office and Clearwater Sheriff's office are continuing the investigation. The Leader-Record

Erskine landmark facelift complete

Erskine - Erskine's landmark — the "World's Largest Northern" — has been restored to its original condition.

Due to high water conditions on the lake the area where the fish sets was often flooded. Fill was hauled in and the area along the lake was rip-rapped with rock to prevent any erosion of the higher ground. Also, volunteers donated their time to repair the landmark's broken jaw and teeth and resurface and repaint the fish.

Ernie Konickson was the builder of the landmark back in the 1950s. Erskine Echo

Robin Silverman to speak at "Night out for Women"

"If I'm Doing Everything Right, Why Is Everything Going Wrong" is the topic for motivational speaker Robin Silverman of Grand Forks, ND, when she speaks at a special "night out for women" Monday, October 26, at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, beginning at 6 p.m.

The event is co-sponsored by the Thief River Falls chapter of the American Association of University Women and Falls Book Company. It will include dinner, door prizes and the speaking program.

Tickets at $8 each are available from AAUW members and at Falls Book Company and the Pennington county extension office. They must be purchased by October 20 to ensure a meal reservation.

"Most people play at life according to rules that are handed down from childhood," Silverman says. "But sometimes what we believe to be right is betrayed by everything going wrong. Learn how to detach from trouble, quiet your worries and transform fear into acts of love. Visualizing new and better circumstances is a first step in making your imaginary pictures come true."

Silverman is considered to be a specialist in bringing out the best in others. She is the creator of Love from Home workshops and lectures, which have helped more than 10,000 men and women discover more of the good in themselves and their lives. She has published more than 1,200 newspaper and magazine articles that illustrate the constructive power of our thoughts, attitudes and intentions.

Author of A Bosnian Family, an award-winning book about refugees from the war in former Yugoslavia, she is also the creator of two video tapes—Love from Home and Relaxation for Busy People. Originally from New Jersey, she now lives in Grand Forks with her husband Steve, two daughters and a collie which loves pasta.

School District 564 community forum

Next community forum on education in the public schools of School District 564 has been scheduled for Thursday, October 22, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the Challenger elementary school cafeteria. All residents of the school district are encouraged to participate.

Curved counter being built by craftsmen at Northern Woodwork Inc., in Thief River Falls was inspected by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wells of rural Goodridge during Manufacturer's Week tours Wednesday, October 14. Art Tranby, who has been an owner of the company for a number of years, showed Mr. and Mrs. Wells some of the methods and equipment used in the plant. While most of the business now involves use of laminated materials, some special projects in wood are still being created in the shop. A number of local manufacturing firms offered tours to the public during the week and a recognition dinner was held.

Local manufacturers praised for contributions to the community

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Several local manufacturers and industry leaders were recognized at a Manufacturer's Week luncheon Thursday at the Evergreen Eating Emporium for their contribution to the economic stability of Minnesota and the community of Thief River Falls.

Those receiving special recognition included: Arctic Cat Inc., Digi-Key, Land O'Lakes, Forsbergs, Northern Pride, Northern Woodwork, Independent Machine Service, Hydra-Mac International, Hi-Performance Engineering, Custom Draperies by Michelle, Thief River Falls Linen, Jobs Inc., the Minnesota Workforce Center, Minnesota Technologies, and Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce.

The luncheon was part of a week of events honoring local manufacturers. Events during the week also included several tours at many of those manufacturers.

Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim read the manufacturing week proclamation, and thanked those manufacturers at the luncheon for coming to the event. He noted that without the contributions to the economy of manufacturers, Thief River Falls would not be as big a concern as it is today.

Senator LeRoy Stumpf praised local manufacturers and said the manufacturing industry was worthy of a week of celebration. He noted the contribution of manufacturing to the economy of Minnesota. He also noted while many people think of the Twin Cities as the hub of manufacturing in Minnesota, manufacturing jobs have been increasing at a much faster rate in rural areas. In view of the difficulties manufacturers are having finding qualified people, and affordable housing problems for those employees, he asked manufacturers to continue to work with legislators to find solutions to those problems.

Over the past several years, he said, legislators have worked with manufacturers to respond to the need for continued education for employees. He said in view of continued economic problems throughout the world, he foresees employee education to continue to be an important issue. "We need to be very competitive in what we do," said Stumpf.

Representative Tim Finseth echoed the sentiment of Sen. Stumpf, saying that one of of five non-farm jobs are now in manufacturing. He said manufacturing has a huge impact on Minnesota, that's why legislators have been able to work with manufacturers. He encouraged manufacturers to continue to work with legislators to make sure they stay competitive. It's important to the future of Minnesota and this town, he said.

Deb Hamms, a representative for Collin Peterson, read a letter from Congressman Peterson who is in Washington, DC. The letter commended manufacturers and noted that they are important to rural Minnesota's economic health. Noting that he was the first congressman to hire a economic development director, he said he remains committed to continued economic development in Minnesota.

Tom Groves of Minnesota Technologies received some laughs when he announced solemnly that he was "from the government and here to help you". On a more serious note, he said that his office was here to help manufacturers and encouraged them to seek him out at his office for assistance.

Jerald Wenner of the Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development, said he remembered working with Don Stewart, Thief River Falls Com-

Sheila Tharaldson, Pennington County Farm Woman of the Year

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

For many of today's women life is a balancing act as spouses, children, homes and jobs all vie for time and attention.

Pennington County's 1998 Farm Woman of the Year, Sheila Tharaldson, experiences that balancing act every day. In addition to working side-by-side with her husband Kevin on their farm, she has a job and takes care of their home and four children.

Sheila and husband Kevin celebrated their 17th wedding anniversary on August 1. They raised sheep when they were first married, and both brought farm experience to the marriage. Kevin grew up on the farm across the road from where he and Sheila make their home.

Sheila was raised on a farm a few miles away. With four younger sisters and two foster sisters, Sheila grew up in a house full of girls, the oldest daughters of LeRoy and Jeannie Johnson. Her parents continue to farm.

After high school Sheila worked at her parents' cafe in Goodridge, and continued until she and Kevin started their family. Their four children are Ashley, 15; Bethany, 13; Josh, 10, and Kayla, 8. Sheila didn't go back to work at the cafe until Kayla was two.

The Tharaldson farm is located about four and a half miles southwest of Goodridge. They rent 120 of the 700 acres they farm, and this year they raised wheat, oats, and canola as well as corn and alfalfa. Sixty acres of canola was something new they tried this year, and while Sheila described the crop as "all right," they found that they might want to plant a shorter variety

After getting home from her job at the Best Western, Sheila Tharaldson likes to feed the calves and get some of the preliminary milking chores done so that she can spend some time with her children when they get home from school. Sheila is Pennington County's 1998 Farm Woman of the Year.

Enquirer features Clearbrook mother and daughter

Clearbrook - Ten years ago the Enquirer ran a story about six sisters and their sister-in-law who all became pregnant at the same time and gave birth to seven healthy babies in a nine month stretch. The babies — five girls and two boys — were born between October 30, 1986 and August 10, 1987.

Recently the Enquirer brought the mothers and their children together for a reunion and did another story about the amazing group. Liisa Amundson and her daughter, Shanea, were among those attending the gathering.

Shanea, a 6th grader in Gonvick, is said to be typical of the youngsters. She's a straight-A student who plays volleyball, softball and trumpet in the band.

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

A couple more tasty main dish recipes from that Quick Cooking magazine and then - dessert - chocolate recipes - all from the tops of Hershey's cocoa cans. Oh, yum (and I can't taste or smell because I have a terrible cold (we aren't saying that other word "flu" because people back away and cover their faces when I say it), but I'm making something chocolate as soon as I can taste again.

Here's a quick and easy way to fix that chicken for tonight's dinner:

CRISPY CHICKEN
1 1/2 cups crisp rice cereal, coarsely crushed
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1/4 cup butter, melted
4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts (1 pound)

In shallow bowl, combine cereal, flour and seasonings. Place butter in another bowl.

Dip chicken in butter, then into cereal mixture. Place in greased 7 x 11 inch baking pan. Drizzle with remaining butter, and bake, uncovered, at 400 degrees for 20-25 minutes, or until juices run clear. (Serves 4.)

Something good (and really easy) to make with that chicken:

ROASTED RED POTATOES
1 pound small red potatoes
1 tablespoon oil
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cut potatoes into 1/4 inch thick slices. Toss with oil. Place in single layer in a greased 9x13 inch pan. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and Parmesan and cover tightly with foil.

Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until tender.

This will be the first thing I bake when I can taste again - It sounds really quick and easy (cuz I don't have much energy right now):

HOT FUDGE PUDDING CAKE
1 1/4 cup granulated sugar, divided
1 cup flour
1/2 cup cocoa, divided
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 cup salt
1/2 cup milk
1/3 cup butter or margarine
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 cup brown sugar, packed
1 1/4 cups hot water

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Combine 3/4 cup sugar, flour, 1/4 cup cocoa, baking powder and salt. Melt butter.

Add milk, butter and vanilla to flour mixture and beat smooth. Pour into ungreased 9 inch square baking pan.

Combine 1/2 cup sugar, brown sugar and 1/4 cup cocoa and sprinkle evenly over top. Pour hot water over all and DO NOT STIR.

Bake 35 to 40 minutes or until center is almost set. Let stand 15 minutes, then spoon into dessert dishes and top with sauce from bottom of pan. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

Everyone's favorite - chocolate cupcakes with white frosting - put some Halloween candies on top and they will be great for special "Trick or Treaters" this year:

BLACK AND WHITE CUPCAKES
2 cups sugar
1 3/4 cups flour
3/4 cup cocoa
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk
2 eggs
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup oil
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Line about 30 muffin cups with paper cups.

Combine dry ingredients in large bowl. Add buttermilk, eggs, water, oil and vanilla and beat on medium speed of mixer for 2 minutes (mixture will be thin). Fill cups 2/3 full with batter.

Bake 15 minutes or until pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool and frost.

Vanilla Frosting
1/4 cup softened butter
1/4 cup shortening
2 teaspoons vanilla
4 cups powdered sugar (divided)
3-4 tablespoons milk

Beat butter, shortening and vanilla. Add 1 cup of the powdered sugar and beat until creamy. Add 3 cups more of powdered sugar alternately with milk, beating to spreading consistency.

Trick or treaters or anyone else would enjoy these cookies - the recipe makes about 4 dozen delicious cookies - and these aren't the same peanut butter ones you've made for years, either - these are chocolate:

MINI-KISS CHOCOLATE BLOSSOMS
1 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups flour
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 teaspoon salt
Additional sugar
1 3/4 cup mini-kisses semi-sweet baking bits

Beat butter, sugar, eggs and vanilla in large bowl.

Combine flour, cocoa and salt and gradually add to butter mixture, beating well. Refrigerate about 1 hour or until firm enough to handle.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Shape dough into 1 1/8 inch balls, roll in sugar and place on ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake 8-10 minutes or until set. Press mini-kiss lightly into each cookie. Cool on wire rack.

Medicare promotes mammogram screenings

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness month. Once again, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), the federal agency that operates the Medicare program, is taking this opportunity to urge female beneficiaries to take advantage of the breast cancer screening benefit available under Medicare.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 expanded Medicare coverage of screening mammograms. Effective January 1 of this year, Medicare began paying for an annual screening mammogram for all female beneficiaries age 40 and over. This change made Medicare Part B coverage consistent with the frequency recommendations of most major breast cancer authorities. Also, the annual Part B deductible, currently $100, no longer applies to this service, so women needn't wait to take advantage of this benefit. Medicare still pays 80 percent of the covered amount and the patient still must pay the 20 percent Part B co-insurance for this service.

The risk of getting breast cancer increases with age but, unfortunately, many older women don't realize this, and they don't get mammograms regularly. Nationally, the most recent Medicare claims data show that only about 40 percent of Caucasian women and, even fewer, about 30 percent of African-American women, take advantage of their Medicare coverage of screening mammograms. HCFA wants to change this situation, to decrease this racial disparity and to encourage more women to get a screening mammogram every year.

Beneficiaries need to know about this important change in their benefits as well as other important improvements in Medicare coverage of preventive benefits and early detection services. This promotion is one of HCFA's Consumer Information Program campaigns aimed at helping Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries become informed consumers of health care services and encouraging them to obtain covered preventive health care services. HCFA works with its claims processing contractors and other partners such as Peer Review Organizations, State Health Insurance Assistance Programs, and health advocacy and senior groups to educate people about these benefits.

HCFA is also working in partnerships with the Centers for Disease Control and prevention (CDC) and the Cancer Information Service of the National Cancer Institute (NCI), part of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), to draw attention to the importance of early detection of breast cancer and to a woman's continuing need for mammograms as she ages. Through an inter-agency agreement, NCI has modified some of its promotional materials to focus on older women. One of the important messages about mammograms that these pamphlets, posters, bookmarks and other items convey is that mammograms should be done "Not just once, but for a lifetime."

Women who would like more information about breast cancer prevention, screening and treatment can contact NCI's Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER. More information about Medicare coverage can be obtained from the Medicare Hotline, 1-800-638-6833.

Competition Works In Indianapolis Government

Mayor Stephen Goldsmith of Indianapolis, IN, the nation's 12th largest city, was elected in 1992 on a privatization platform. His view was that government operations are inherently inefficient and that many of these operations could be done better for less cost by the private sector.

Shortly after his election, however, he changed his privatization model to what he calls a "competition model," according to a talk he delivered to Center of the American Experiment in Minneapolis. The result has been millions of dollars of taxpayer cost saving. One wonders if the principles employed in Indianapolis could not be applied to other governmental situations. Following is some of what Goldsmith explained.

The new mayor started doing a different city job each week—picking up the trash, cutting the grass, sealing cracks in the road, filling holes—and found that invariably the city employees had good ideas about how to improve their productivity. "It struck me as strange," he said, "that they had to sell these ideas to the mayor in order to implement them."

Mayor Goldsmith determined that "the problem was that public monopolies are particularly inefficient. It is not that public employees are inherently inferior to private employees; it is that public systems are inherently inferior to private systems. They are not competitive, and they are bureaucratic, suffocating innovation and reducing the amount of value we can add."

He asked the city budget office for financial information and it provided the certified financial report. "The color separations and the quality of the paper and the pictures were really very good," he said, "but there wasn't anything that showed how much it cost to pick up a ton of trash, to fill a pothole or to clean 100 yards of sewer. There was no activity-based costing. We didn't even know what businesses we were in, let alone how much each of those activities cost."

The mayor announced to the city council that he was going to privatize the wastewater treatment plants. The council disagreed and the leading council member in that area suggested hiring a big accounting firm to evaluate instead. Ernst & Young subsequently declared that the city of Indianapolis had one of the two or three most efficiently run wastewater treatment plants in the country.

"We decided to ask for bids on managing our plants and got five from all over the world," Mayor Goldsmith said. "The winning bidder, a combination of a french water company and an Indianapolis water company, reduced our costs by 44 percent—$70 million over the first four years of the contract. Remember, we were one of the most efficient in the country, and our costs were 44 percent too high. This suggests that when government benchmarks itself against other government organizations, it is irrelevant. The benchmark needs to be in the competitive marketplace."

The decision to privatize the city's fleet management services came during collective bargaining with the union involved. The union president came to the mayor and reminded him that it had been promised 90 days to put together a bid before any activity was outsourced. On his next visit, the union president asked, "Would you mind if we froze our wages?" Asked what the "catch" was, the president said: "The catch is, we want 50 percent of the upside. We want a share of the gains. We're willing to work twice as hard, but we want incentives."

In the 90 days the union had to put together its bid, it cut management overhead by 75 percent, doubled the number of productive hours per mechanic, did customer evaluations and met with all their customers. They won the bid and their costs came down by 25 percent.

When the sewer system was placed on bids, the blue-collar union workers came to the mayor and said, "Our management isn't very good, so we're going to go out with a private company and bid against our management." They won the bid and saved the city $12 million.

Goldsmith said that the city has now done 75 of these competitions and saved $400 million. It has cut taxes three times, increased its budget surplus four times, cut its non-public safety workforce 40 percent, maintained the size of its blue-collar workforce and put 100 more police officers on the force—all by allowing the competitive marketplace to work.

The mayor said that while he likes to save money and have smaller government, some of the most satisfying successes have been smaller ones. For instance, 20 of the urban churches have contracts with the parks department to manage their neighborhood parks; clean them, run the programs in them and create neighborhood revitalization and a sense of ownership.

While visiting a city swimming pool with his children, Goldsmith saw some chipped concrete and was concerned that people would cut their feet, so he got a broom and started sweeping up the chips. After a while, he thought he should go and check on his daughters, so he asked the lifeguard if he would mind finishing the sweeping.

"I'm a lifeguard," was the reply, "not a custodian."

"I'm the mayor," Goldsmith said, "and you're no longer a lifeguard."

Mayor Goldsmith says that the problem is that job classification systems prevent a team approach. He found it in the welfare system where he said it is easy to get people off welfare: you just stop paying them. It's a lot more difficult to get someone off welfare and into a job.

A few years ago Indianapolis brought in America Works, a pay-for-performance company that helps people get off welfare and into jobs in the private sector. In the first 90 days, America Works had received only 45 referrals from the welfare department although there were 12,000 people on welfare in the city. The public employees in the welfare department were doing their job, which was to see whether the person on the other side of the desk had looked for work and was eligible for benefits, to give that person a check and to move on to the next person in line.

"The state employees' pay was not related in any way to whether people got jobs," Goldsmith said. "There was a total disconnect between organizational behavior and the values that as a state and city we thought were important."

Applying business principles to city government has paid off for Indianapolis. Could it work on a similar scale in other government?

The Stage Is Set For The Perfect Irony

Team loyalties and preferences aside, who could ask for more in baseball's World Series which gets underway today between the New York Yankees of the American League and the San Diego Padres of the National League. It's the team everyone loves to hate against a mighty underdog that has beaten the odds and scrapped its way into the Fall Classic, including recording three wins against the heralded Atlanta Braves in the Braves' home park.

The Yankees are a talented, solid team which reeled off a record 114 wins in the regular season. They have talented defense, an awesome lineup of hitters and seemingly invincible pitching. On the record and on paper they have a lock on the world championship.

We would like to see the free-agent dominated Yankees lose in the seventh game of the series, getting that close to the world title but not quite getting it. It would be the perfect irony.

Dare we carry that perfection to the utmost satisfaction scenario: Tony Gwynn, a 16-year Padres veteran homering in the top of the ninth inning of a previously scoreless seventh game—and Minnesota Twins defector Chuck Knoblauch taking a called third strike with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth.

It couldn't happen to a better team.

Four Simple Steps for Winterizing Your Car

It used to be that the arrival of Old Man Winter went hand in hand with switching to a lower viscosity, or thinner, motor oil more suitable for colder temperatures.

Today's technology, however, has provided car owners with a number of highly engineered options that are versatile enough to perform year-round. Kendall Motor Oil engineers recommend checking the owner's manual to determine whether or not your particular car requires a winter-viscosity motor oil.

"The majority of late-model cars specify an all-year viscosity product, like Kendall Superb® 100 SAE 5W-30," explains Bruce Klussmann, senior sales engineer for Kendall. "However, about 20 percent of cars made these days still require a different viscosity in the winter than in the summer."

For cars that fall in the latter category, it is important to follow the manufacturer's specifications, since using a motor oil that is too thick, or too high in viscosity, will delay the flow of oil into the engine upon start-up in extreme-cold conditions. This can result in increased engine wear and lower gas mileage, and even can prevent the engine from turning.

Klussmann points out that this applies more to climates with extreme differences in temperature from winter to summer. In terms of an overall checklist for winterizing your car, Kendall suggests having your service location also check the following three additional items:

• Check the undercoating for corrosion — Over time, a car's undercoating gets abraded from the elements. "It's a real good idea to get the undercoating touched up, especially in areas where there's a lot of salt on the road," says Klussmann. This important measure could prevent rust from developing in the future.

• Check the freezing point of the coolant — Most car manufacturers suggest changing the antifreeze every two years, but there are some long-life antifreeze products on the market that only need to be changed every five years.

• Change tire tread and adjust tire air pressure — Standard tread tires should be replaced by either winter tires or all-weather tires. Once your car is fitted with the proper tires, make sure that they are adequately inflated. Generally, a car's tires lose approximately one pound of pressure for every 10-degree decrease in temperature.

Help Keep Your 'Keeper' From Springing a Leak

Whether it's a quick jaunt to the neighborhood store or an interstate trek to visit relatives for the holidays, we depend on our cars to get us to our destinations safely and hassle-free. However, cars are far from inexpensive. In fact, owning a car is perhaps the second biggest investment most people will make — purchase costs, operating expenses, repairs and insurance premiums all can require a sizable amount of the annual household income.

Perhaps as a result of these costs, an emerging trend shows today's drivers are holding on to their cars longer than before. According to the most recent study (1995) by the Polk Co., a Detroit-based research firm, drivers are keeping their cars for an average of 5.7 years, up from just 4.6 years in 1985. Additionally, the survey illustrates that cars built in 1995 are expected to last more than 16 years, up from 13 years in 1985. In short, there are more older cars out on the road.

With cold weather just a few flips of the calendar away, it's vital to get your car in shape for the long winter driving season. Although cars have benefited from the advent of superior manufacturing and safety developments, older cars require special attention to ensure key systems are operating properly. Perhaps the most important of these is the engine lubrication system which supplies essential moving parts with motor oil. If your car has a leak, it can mean more than just unsightly driveway stains, it can also signal a potentially expensive problem. Now, with STP® Engine Stop Leak, a motor oil additive that stops minor leaks and helps condition engine seals, drivers can have a little more peace of mind.

As a result of common, everyday driving, polymer seals that help bond vital engine surfaces together can become dry and shrink, resulting in a loss of oil. STP® Engine Stop Leak is formulated with a special agent to help rejuvenate shrunken, dried-out polymer seals and gaskets damaged by the heat of normal engine operation. Not only does it help stop the loss of oil from minor leaks, but it also helps fortify a car's motor oil with a viscosity index improver.

"Many drivers panic at the first sign of an oil leak," says Greg Mostoller, STP product manager. "However, in a lot of cases, these leaks can be taken care of directly by car owners, eliminating the need for costly repair work. Treatment is easy. Drivers simply can pour an entire 14.5-ounce bottle of STP® Engine Stop Leak into the crankcase and run the automobile for 15 minutes immediately following to ensure proper circulation."

Compatible with regular and synthetic motor oils, the product contains no solids to clog filters or inhibit oil flow and will not harm oxygen sensors or catalytic converters.

Fall: Time to Check Your Automobile's Health

Now that summer's over, it's time to check the overall health of your car to prepare for a smooth ride this winter. The summer's heat, dust, and stop-and-go traffic all have taken their toll on your vehicle, and when combined with the effects of last winter, you could be poised for serious car problems. The following tips, courtesy of Sears Auto Center and NTB National Tire & Battery stores, the nation's leading tire and battery retailers, can help you get the most from your car this winter:

Tires — Check your tires' air pressure at least once a month, and be sure to rotate them as suggested in your owner's manual. Check the tire tread for wear, cuts or lodged obstacles that can puncture your tires. Also, check the inside and outside tire walls for cuts, bubbles or blemishes.

Brakes — Be alert for noises. A "squeak" can be a warning of brake-pad wear or a buildup of foreign matter, and a "grinding" usually signifies serious damage to other brake parts. As the most important safety feature on your car, don't take chances with your brakes. Get them checked this fall and consider it a winter insurance policy for your family.

Shocks, struts and suspension — If your car sags, sways or "dives" when braking or cornering; has a harsh, bumpy ride, especially after hitting a bump or pothole; or your tires have uneven wear — your shocks, struts and suspension parts may be worn.

Batteries — Car batteries tend to fail when you least expect it, especially if they are more than 3 1/2 years old.

In fact, it's the combination of heat and natural vibration during the summer season that causes battery problems in colder temperatures, not the cold itself. The only accurate way to determine battery strength is to let a certified technician with professional equipment verify its level of charge. Therefore, get your battery checked before the cold weather sets in.

What Can You Do?

If your car shows any signs of excessive wear, take it to a reputable service center that offers ASE-certified technicians and written guarantees on all parts and labor, which both can be found at the more than 1,100 Sears Auto Centers and NTB National Tire & Battery stores throughout the country.

Need Automotive Repairs? Here's Advice

Unless you're a car-care enthusiast with plenty of tools and free time, you'll probably depend upon a professional for all but the most minor automotive maintenance tasks.

The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), an independent, nonprofit group that tests and certifies the competence of automotive technicians nationwide, offers the following advice to consumers on finding a good repair shop.

1. Read the owner's manual to become familiar with your vehicle and follow the manufacturer's service schedules.
2. Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one. You can make better decisions when you are not rushed or stranded.
3. Ask friends and associates for their recommendations.
4. Check with your local consumer organization about the reputation of the shop.
5. Arrange for transportation to lessen the temptation to select a shop solely on its location.
6. Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.
7. Professionally run establishments have a courteous, helpful staff. The service writer should be willing to answer your questions.
8. Policies (labor rates, fees for diagnostic services, guarantees, methods of payment, etc.) should be posted or explained to your satisfaction.
9. Ask if the shop customarily handles your vehicle make and model. Some facilities specialize. If your vehicle needs major work, ask if the shop usually handles that type of repair.
10. Feel free to ask for the names of a few customers as references. Call them.
11. Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area: civic- and community-service awards, membership in the Better Business Bureau, and customer-service awards.
12. Look for qualified technicians. Trade-school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work and ASE certification of the technicians all are measures of competence. ASE-certified technicians carry credentials listing their specific areas of expertise (brakes, electrical systems, etc.), while their employers often display the blue-and-white ASE sign.
13. Reward good service with repeat business and customer loyalty. It is mutually beneficial to you and the shop owner to establish a relationship.
14. If the service was not all that you expected, don't rush to another shop. Discuss the problem with the service manager or owner. Give the business a chance to resolve the problem. Reputable shops value customer feedback and will make a sincere effort to keep your business.
15. Keep good records; keep all paperwork.

Mopar CUSTOMER CARE
Thousands of individual components make up a vehicle's operating systems. With normal use, these components are subject to wear, deterioration and corrosion.
Lubricants, fluids and filters are just part of these components which are vital to keeping a vehicle running smoothly and are also subject to deterioration and contamination over time.
Manufacturers recommend regular vehicle maintenance to inspect components that are particularly subject to wear and to replace the lubricants, fluids and filters that have reached the end of their service life.
All vehicle manufacturers have recommended maintenance intervals. Maintenance is recommended based on three factors: 1. Odometer reading (mileage), 2. Elapsed time (number of months since the last scheduled maintenance), 3. The condition under which the vehicle is regularly driven. Most vehicle owners should follow the mileage recommendations for maintenance. However, people whose driving consists primarily of short trips and who accumulate mileage slowly should follow the recommended time periods. Service intervals also depend upon whether the vehicle is driven under "normal" or "severe" conditions as listed in the owners manual. An item not listed in most owners manuals is severe cold. When a vehicle's engine and transmission temperature can range from -30 degrees up to 210 degrees (some vehicles several times a day) it can lead to premature wear on many of the components designed to help your vehicle run at its peak performance. In these extreme conditions it's best to follow the service maintenance schedule.
Whether it's called vehicle maintenance or preventative maintenance, the key purpose is to maintain a vehicle's performance. Contributing to longer life, better driving economy and more reliable operation.
Maintenance also prevents small problems from becoming bigger ones and ensures the vehicle is as safe as possible and conforms with safety and emissions laws and regulations.
Call or stop in and talk to Mark or Barry to discuss your vehicles recommended maintenance.

Harbott-Ihle doubles team will be playing in Section 8AA meet

High school tennis career of Thief River Falls seniors Kate Harbott and Lesley Ihle was extended for at least another week Tuesday when the season-long doubles tandem finished second in the individual portion of the North Sub-Section 8AA tournament at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre.

Seeded second, Harbott and Ihle received a first round bye, swept past Tracy Depew-Kate DeWenter of Bemidji 6-1, 6-2 in the quarterfinals and got by Austin Scott Kim Ash of Moorhead 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 in the semifinals. Top-seeded Bemidji tandem of Nikki Baird-Shannon Whelan beat Harbott-Ihle 7-5, 6-4 in the title match.

"They (Harbott-Ihle) played well," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. "It was a close match."

Harbott and Ihle have lost just three matches this year – once against Crookston and now twice to Baird-Whelan.

Top four finishers in Tuesday's singles and doubles competition advance to the Section 8AA meet Tuesday back at the Tennis Centre.

Thief River Falls' second doubles team, No. 8-seeded Jenni Gonsorowski-Becca Leach, beat Amy Miller-Eva Bjork of Fergus Falls 6-1, 6-2 in first round play, but lost to Baird-Whelan 6-4, 7-6 in the quarterfinals.

In singles, both Thief River Falls entries lost their first matches. Second-seeded Heather Hanson drew a first round bye and was then upset by No. 7-seeded Jess Brown of Bemidji 6-4, 6-4 in the quarterfinals. Jessica Seelhammer of Moorhead eliminated No. 8-seeded Jenny Kimball 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 in the first round.

Fifth-seeded Ida Omenass of Fergus Falls beat No. 1-seeded Jamie Huskey in the semifinals and defeated Brown in the singles finals.

Norsemen edge Northland 16-13 in overtime...

Mesabi wins playoff qualifier

Mesabi came out a 16-13 overtime winner Wednesday in a Minnesota Community College Conference playoff-qualifying football showdown with Northland at Prowler Field.

The winner in the regular season finale for both teams was guaranteed second place in the Northern Division and a match-up with the Southern Division champion in the MCCC playoff semifinals.

After playing to a 13-13 regulation time tie, the teams lined up at the 25 for their overtime offensive sequence. The Norsemen went first. They picked up a first down at the 14, stalled, then sent Jeff Corean on for a field goal attempt that he hit from the 20-yard line.

Northland went four-and-out on offense in overtime to end a 2-6 season.

"It was disappointing to lose like that," admitted first-year Northland coach Dan Willoughby, "but our young men did everything we asked them to do. I was proud of the way they hung in there and battled."

A hard rain that fell in the first half created a slick, muddy field. The conditions, which included a 45-minute suspension of play as a lightning storm passed over Thief River Falls, had a hand in producing what was hardly textbook-perfect football.

Mesabi won in spite of six turnovers (two fumbles, four interceptions), 11 penalties (for 101 yards) and a meager six first downs for the day. Northland lost despite an almost endless supply of turnover-created scoring opportunities in which the Pioneers' offense failed to produce a single point on drives that reached the Mesabi 16, 9, 1, 24, and 20 yard lines in the first half, and the 6 and 35 yard lines in the third quarter. The Pioneers added to the head-shaking collection of errors with seven turnovers (three fumbles, four interceptions) and seven penalties.

Northland, ranked No. 1 in the MCCC rushing charts, ran the ball 74 times, mostly using former Goodridge/Grygla Gatzke teammates Jesse Lunsetter (36 carries, 106 yards) on the inside and Alex Anderson (22 carries, 68 yards) on the outside. Anderson's task was a little more difficult because of the footing.

"That's kind of the way the season has gone for us," noted Willoughby. "We could run the ball well, but we couldn't finish off the drives. Jesse did a great job for us. Alex ran well, too, but it's hard to run outside when it's slippery like that."

While Northland spent a good deal of the afternoon tantalizingly close to the Mesabi end zone, the visitors' offense failed to produce a drive that crossed midfield until their final series of the of the first half. However, they still scored twice as tailback Ricky Thomas took an option pitch around the right side, eluded a tackler or two and went 71 yards for a touchdown with just 2:20 gone in the game. Tied at 7-7 midway through the second quarter, the Norsemen went with the option again to go back on top. But this time quarterback Jadi Westby kept the ball and cut up field for a 52-yard run.

Northland points came from the defense. A quarterback sack by Matt Kasprowiez knocked the ball out of the hands of Westby, who was dropping back to pass near his goal line, and it was recovered in the end zone by Roge Webb with 12:57 remaining in the first half. In the third quarter, a strong rush pushed Mesabi blockers back into punter Barry Pederson, who was kicking out of his end zone. The Pioneers wound up with the ball at the 2-yard line, and three plays later Anderson scored from a yard out for the tie.

"Our defense did a nice job," confirmed Willoughby. It was a defense that featured three Arthur Hamilton interceptions, along with fumble recoveries by Webb and Dan Niebuhr.

Mesabi will take a 4-4 record into post-season play.

Prowlers handle Otters 3-0

A 3-0 Tuesday win over Fergus Falls in Thief River Falls' final regular season home match all but assured the Prowlers an encore appearance in front of a Lincoln High School gym crowd when the North Sub-Section 8AA volleyball tournament gets underway later this month.

The Prowlers had little trouble disposing of the Otters 15-3, 15-3, 15-6 and boosting their record to 16-7-1 heading into the regular season finale Tuesday at Roseau.

North Sub-Section 8AA tournament starts Thursday, Oct. 29, with a seven-team field that will be headed by Alexandria and Moorhead. With regular season wins over 8AA rivals Bemidji, Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls could be seeded as high as third in field that also includes a Brainerd team that is playing at the .500 level in the Central Lakes Conference. No. 1 seed will receive a bye in first-round play that will find No. 7 at No. 2, No. 6 at No. 3, and No. 5 at No. 4.

Semifinals will be played at the site of the two highest seeds Saturday, Oct. 31. Championship match, again at the site of the highest seed, will be Thursday, Nov. 5.

Fergus Falls started Tuesday's match with a 3-0 first-game lead, then proceeded to give up 15 unanswered points. An ace by Laura Follett began a string of six straight service points by the senior that turned a 4-3 contest into a 10-3 spread. An ace by Taya Hunt and a kill by Follett closed it out.

Shelli Eriksen came off the bench to record back-to-back aces during a five-point service line run to provide Thief River Falls with a 7-1 second game advantage. Three consecutive aces by Becky Bray made it 12-3. Final points came on back-to-back kills by Rachel Mathson and an another ace by Bray.

Fergus Falls had an early 3-2 edge in Game 3, but another short service run by Eriksen, which began with an ace, put the Prowlers ahead 6-3. She later had a block and two kills during a six-point stint at the service line by Julie Martell that made it 12-5, and capped a Parent's Night performance with a match-closing kill.

"Shelli came in and did a great job hitting and serving," noted Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche. "It was a good night. Everybody played, and everybody contributed."

Lindsay Drury led the Prowlers with nine kills, while Eriksen and Nicole Kopari both had seven. Bray served six aces and Hunt finished with 17 assists.

While the match might have lacked the excitement of the Prowlers' dramatic come-from-behind win over East Grand Forks in their previous home appearance, the team still performance well, according to Roche. "We did our job," she said. "Our hitting was a little soft, but our serving was on."

RLCC defense keys 23-8 win

Red Lake County Central defense scored the first points of the game and kept Win-E-Mac off the scoreboard until the final seconds Tuesday as the Mustangs remained unbeaten with a 23-8 North Tri-County Conference Nine-Man high school football win at Oklee.

A safety recorded by the Mustangs' Steve McMullen, who tackled the quarterback in the end zone, broke a scoreless second quarter tie.

It was soon 9-0 as Red Lake County Central took the ensuing kickoff and finished the drive with a 2-yard Andy Gustafson run.

"We played well on defense all night," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "Offensively we sputtered a little bit. At times we played okay, but at other times we kind of stumbled. We had a few too many penalties."

Gustafson finished the night with 177 yards on 20 carries. His big gainer was a 60-yard breakaway that carried to the Win-E-Mac 2-yard line moments after the Mustangs' defense stopped the Patriots on a fourth quarter fourth-and-two play. Mark Lorenson scored from a yard out to make it 23-0.

The winners ran the ball 35 times for 207 yards to compensate for a 4-for-11, 29-yard passing performance that ranked well below the Mustangs' average.

There were just 15 seconds left when Travis Nelson hauled in a tipped pass for a 30-yard Win-E-Mac touchdown play to spoil the Red Lake County Central shutout bid.

McMullen was in on nine tackles during a performance that included two tackles behind the line of scrimmage, three quarterback sacks and the safety. Nick Waldal had a hand in 13 tackles, Matt Bjerklie 12, Lorenson 11, and Wade Westlake nine, along with a fumble recovery.

The 7-0 Mustangs will complete the 1998 regular season schedule Monday when they play Red Lake at Plummer.

TRF cross country team shorthanded

Meets at Park Rapids Monday and at Hawley Thursday will close out the 1998 regular season schedule for the Thief River Falls boys and girls high school cross country teams.

The Prowlers ran at Karlstad Tuesday in a meet hosted by the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River/Marshall County Central/Tri-County cooperative program. Warroad boys and East Grand Forks girls won both team and individual honors.

"Due to MEA vacation, we were missing a large portion of our team," reported Thief River Falls coach Terri Ueland. "The runners today did their job and worked hard. Andre Thibodeau did a great job for our boys JV team."

Thief River Falls boys received a boost with the return of Zach Bosh, one of the Prowlers' top runners, who has recovered from an injury. "Zach is back and healthy," noted Ueland. "We have not yet been able to run a meet in which all of our varsity boys finished the race, so I'm looking forward to having them all together against and competing as a complete team."

Turnovers key 17-13 TRF victory...

Thief River Falls is winner over Otters

Two Fergus Falls turnovers were instrumental Thursday in helping Thief River Falls to beat the visiting Otters 17-13 in Section 8AAAA high school football.

Ahead 7-3 heading into the final minute of the first half, the Otters mishandled a punt that was recovered by the Prowlers and converted into a go-ahead touchdown.

Trailing by the final three-point margin in the fourth quarter, Fergus Falls was on the move and threatening to regain the lead by reaching the Thief River Falls 20-yard line with five minutes to play before a fumble recovery by the Prowlers allowed them to run out the clock.

"Sometimes you get a break or two," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "We haven't always gotten them in the past, but we got a couple of breaks tonight on the turnovers."

The match-up of 3-3 teams was the 1998 regular season finale for the Prowlers, but the victory assured Thief River Falls of a home game for the Tuesday, Oct. 31, Section 8AAAA playoff quarterfinals. Results of the Tuesday (Oct. 20) game at East Grand Forks will determine the Prowlers' exact post-season seeding spot – either No. 3, 4 or 5 – behind Alexandria and Detroit Lakes.

"This was a very good football game," said Mumm after the Prowlers returned to the win column following back-to-back losses on the road to Class 5A teams Bemidji and Grand Rapids. "We beat a good football team."

First Thief River Falls possession of the night produced an impressive 7-minute, 17-play, 67-yard drive. But a penalty that followed a first-and-goal opportunity from the Fergus Falls 3-yard line wound up forcing the Prowlers to settle for a field goal – a strong 22-yard kick by Levi Kraft – with 2:51 remaining in the first quarter.

A top-of-the-line Fergus Falls passing combination featuring quarterback Aaron Olson and wide receiver Timothy Erickson put the Otters on top when they hooked up on a 22-yard touchdown with 3:04 to play in the first half. The 15-play, 76-yard drive included a first down-producing quarterback sneak by Olson on a fourth-and-one gamble from the Fergus Falls 33. Olson would later hit Erickson in full stride in the back of the end zone, with Luke Draxten adding the conversion kick.

It looked like the Otters would be taking that four-point edge into intermission when they forced the Prowlers to punt in the final minute. But Brian's Loe's 34-yard kick was dropped by return man Justin Arneson and recovered by the Prowlers' Jeff Rislov at the Fergus Falls 13 with 52 seconds on the clock.

Two plays later Thief River Falls quarterback Treavor Peterson hit receiver Darin Bjerknes on a slant pattern over the middle for a 13-yard touchdown. Kraft's kick sent the Prowlers into the locker room up 10-7.

"We got the turnover, and we converted; that was the key right there," explained Mumm. "We haven't always been able to convert turnovers into points in the past. But we did tonight, and it was big."

Fergus Falls, after recovering a Thief River Falls fumble at the Prowlers' 37 on the first series of the second half, quickly reached the 17. But a fourth-and-one run was stacked up for no gain.

That Thief River Falls defensive stand was followed by a 60 yard Wade Chiodo touchdown run. It was the big gainer on what would be an eye-popping night for the senior halfback who shook off an ankle injury that has plagued him all season to gain 225 yards on 28 carries. On the touchdown, Chiodo started left, picked his way behind blockers and stumbling defenders as he came back to the middle of the field, bounced off a couple of tacklers and broke into the clear. Kraft, the Prowlers' most consistent and reliable kicker in recent memory, added the conversion for a 17-7 spread with 4:10 left in the third quarter.

It didn't take Fergus Falls long, however, to close the gap once again. On the first snap after the kickoff, Olson and Erickson (sounds like a combination that should be playing at St. Olaf) hooked up on a 31-yard pass that jump-started a 9-play, 64-yard scoring drive. Another Olson-Erickson pass that went for 15 yards turned a fourth-and-10 into a first down at the Thief River Falls 18. Fullback Nick Duffy scored on a two-yard dive with eight seconds to play in the quarter.

The Otters were on the move again in the final period when they ran into a third-and-10 situation from the Prowlers' 34. Not surprisingly, Olson went to Erickson for the first down. The pass worked for 14 yards, but while Olson struggled for additional yards against a pair of defenders, Nick Drees stripped the ball away, then fell on the fumble at the Thief River Falls 20 with 5:14 to play. Fergus Falls players and coaches argued that forward progress had been stopped and the play should have been whistled dead before the fumble occurred. But the officials ruled otherwise, and Thief River Falls, behind the running of Chiodo and fullback Adam Haviland, ran out the clock.

Olson wound up with a 9-for-17, 116-yard passing performance, with Erickson catching six of those throws for 108 yards.

Bemidji defeats TRF 115-68 in swimming

Bemidji was a 115-68 winner over Thief River Falls Tuesday in a girls high school swim meet at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Keeping Current

Freud would have loved the outdoor world. So much of our human interaction with it has to do with sex. The fall season really exaggerates our dependence on the natural cycles of the world. Our successes in deer camp, for example, are all based on reaching the "rut," that magical time when bucks stop following their brains and start being led around by does.

Or the more subtle way that ducks need to acknowledge differences in responsibility based on sex—hens following drakes into a well-placed decoy pattern, only to have the drakes circle twice and land least or last.

Or, in a more obvious fashion, the way the triumphs of our pheasant trips hinge so precipitously on the possibility of a buddy's female chocolate lab being in heat, punctuating a walk through the weeds with the distracted snarlings of every male hound in the pack.

Our fall fishing, too, roots itself in sexual drive. Unlike spring, however, it's not the walleyes' move toward reproduction that begins the annual autumn run. This time of the year it's the actions of another lake dweller that gets the ball rolling and, in the chain reaction sequence on which so many species are dependent, eventually puts fish on your line.

First, and most obviously, we have the Emerald Shiners. These shiners spawn in the spring like the bulk of the lake's fish, pulling walleyes up on the shallow sand bars in June for easy, gluttonous meals. In the fall, however, shiners seek out current. Whether a search for food in the form of zooplankton, a need for increased oxygen levels of recently aerated water, or a quest for more habitable living temperatures in the face of the upcoming winter, is a mystery. They're there; that's all we need to know. If you're in doubt, wander down to any lighted dock on the Rainy River after dark and watch as the water boils under the artificial illumination.

It's not just the rivers, however, that experience this congregation of shiners in the fall. Up in the Islands, the water follows the same river channels that it has for thousands of years as the flow pushes its way north toward the inevitability of Hudson Bay.

In the tight, pinched off channels of French Portage and Big Narrows, for example, you can find a flow so strong that it makes the movement of the Rainy seem tame in comparison. In these isolated areas of exaggerated current, you'll find Emerald Shiners and, logically, you'll also find walleyes. The tactics for taking them are painstakingly similar to those employed on the river—vertical jigging from an anchored position or a creepingly slow backtroll with the current.

Ah, yes, back to the current. Where is it taking us? Well, to understand fall fishing is to understand current and where and when it originates.

There are controlled dams at either end of Lake of the Woods. Opening the Boise Dam at the head of the Rainy River certainly creates current, as millions of gallons of water rush their way into the lake basin.

Unfortunately, such a surge is short-lived if there is no outlet. The water begins a back and forth, north-south roll, similar to the sloshings in a bathtub, if the Canadian hydroelectric dam in Kenora remains closed. Consistent, fishable current is dependent on water moving north into the English River system which can only happen if the dam on the north end is open.

Yes, once again, a satisfactory fishing experience falls into the control of a fickle Canadian culture.

We want current. Current depends on the opening of the Kenora dam. The Kenora dam gets opened when there is a need for electricity. The demand for electricity comes on those cold autumn nights when everyone north of the border turns up the baseboard heaters a little bit. To get our current, we need cold Canadians. Simple transitivity.

Here's a notion that would serve two purposes. Realizing that Canadians, like Americans, get cold when they jump into bed alone, we could label October "Sleep with a Canadian Month," enlisting the help of all our single, promiscuous, northern Minnesotans. With a concentrated run on Canadian bedmates, partners for our "neighbors to the north" would be harder to find. And without the benefits of romantic warmth, Canadians will click their electric heaters on at an earlier than usual date, begetting current and, therefore, happiness for those of us with a passion for fishing. In short, when Henri, the lusty Canadian lacks a current passion, our passion for current is fulfilled.

And those who physically entertained their Canadian October dates would not only enjoy the benefits of companionship, but have the added bonus of being able to keep six walleyes the next day, the only legal prerequisite for possessing fish from that side being an "overnight stay in a Canadian bed." Obtaining the necessary receipt from such an overnight stay may pose some problems, but what innovative ideas never encounter obstacles?

From the hunting of deer to the shooting of birds to the catching of fish, it all comes back to sex for success. Freud would certainly be impressed with the patterns of fall.

TRF ninth grade ends football season at 5-4

Thief River Falls freshmen wrapped up their 1998 football season Tuesday with a 32-6 win at Crookston.

Trent Christensen scored on runs of 3 and 10 yards for the winners, who led 24-0 at halftime. Other touchdowns came from Jon Swanson on a 3-yard run and Jon Forney on a 45-yard pass from Robby Anderson. Conversion points included runs by Swanson (2) and Anderson, along with a pass from Anderson to Dan Almquist.

Thief River Falls finished 5-4, with the largest scoreboard spread among the four defeats being an 8-0 loss to Bemidji.

Sheila Tharaldson, Pennington County Farm Woman of the Year

next time.

When Sheila's dad found it necessary to stop milking cows because of a medical condition in 1988, Sheila and Kevin bought enough cows to fill their barn and started a dairy operation. While Sheila had helped put up hay and done other farm chores, she hadn't actually milked cows. It was a new experience for Kevin, too.

In the beginning, the new dairy farmers had a lot to learn, and it took them three years to convince their banker that they were firm in their commitment. Today, Sheila and Kevin have about 150 head of cattle, and milk about 55 head on a year-round basis.

After taking four months off, Sheila began working as a waitress at the Best Western in September. Her mother started working there a year ago, and not only does Sheila enjoy spending time with her mom at work but describes her hours from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. as "perfect." She earns some extra spending money and says, "The kids love the tips!"

Those cows, however, have to be milked before Sheila goes to work in the morning, and her day begins in the barn at 4 a.m.

And, it's usually back to the barn when she gets home in the afternoons at 2:30. She likes to get the calves fed and some of the preliminary milking chores done so that she can spend some time with Josh and Kayla after school.

Milking begins again by 4:15 p.m. and is wrapped up just in time for her to pick Ashley and Bethany up from volleyball or basketball practice at 6:30. When it comes to preparing dinner, Sheila says, "I've gotten smart." She plans ahead and uses the oven so dinner is ready when they get back from town.

Her days are long, and obviously she gets tired. "It's just Kevin and I," Sheila says, "and the work has to get done everyday." In past months Kevin's brother has helped out quite a bit, something Sheila describes as "nice."

The kids are starting to help out, too. During they summer they did the calf chores. The alfalfa crop is baled into round and square bales, and the youngsters got a taste of baling and stacking square bales this year. They also have domestic chores, taking care of the yard, doing laundry and dishes.

When offering directions to their home Sheila described a "white farmhouse and a barn." While one might have expected to find the old two-story 20 by 24-foot house the family of six lived in before, the farmhouse is actually a new home the Tharaldsons built three years ago.

The large manicured yard is artistically decorated for Halloween. Pumpkins harvested from the garden line the driveway and deck, and a group of ghosts whimsically hold hands as the breeze makes them appear to be dancing around a tree. The evidence of children is everywhere — a tire swing hanging from a tree, a big trampoline and a sandbox. An assortment of cats and a big collie named "Lassie" are on hand to welcome visitors.

Creative talent is also apparent inside the family's large tastefully decorated home. Appropriately, Holstein cows in various forms decorate the wall and greet guests coming through the front door. Children's artwork is prominently displayed. The soft gray and blue color scheme reflects calmness, offering comfort after a long day's work.

When it comes to hobbies, Sheila finds relaxation in the garden and especially enjoys her flowers. "I try to make my flower garden a little better every year," she says. She cans the produce from the vegetable garden and is particularly pleased with the results of the squash she canned this year.

Farming and hard work is a way of life at the Tharaldson home, and even though prices aren't good and the weather hasn't been great for a few years, they aren't complaining. "The bills get paid," Kevin says. Much of their income goes back into the farm. "Sometimes you're worn out," Sheila says, "and you wish you didn't do it. We wonder how it's all going to get done every day." But, the family is committed to their farm and way of life, and if it means starting their day at 4 a.m., the work gets done.

While it's been four years since the family took even a modest vacation, they have fun together playing games, fishing on the river and swimming in the pool at Franklin Middle School. They enjoy the sporting activities that Ashley and Bethany participate in, and Josh is excited about playing basketball this year, too. On the rare occasions when the family takes a day off, it's Josh's fifth grade teacher who does the milking for them.

With regard to her Farm Woman of the Year status, Sheila says, "I'm a little embarrassed. There are so many women who do what I do." Kevin smiles and says, "It's a good deal. She deserves it." Ashley, Bethany, Josh and Kayla are all obviously proud of their mom.

Sheila will be honored and compete with 12 other Minnesota and North Dakota county winners for the Red River Valley Farm Woman of the Year title at the 16th annual Harvest of Knowledge Agri-Women's Conference in Grand Forks on October 23. Other county winners from the Northern Watch area are Donna Dagen of Karlstad and Kittson county, Terry Weiss of Red Lake Falls and Red Lake county and Marlene LeBlanc of Crookston and Polk county. Sheila's mom and sister plan to attend the banquet with her. Farm work will keep Kevin at home.

While she may be humble and even a bit embarrassed about the award, it's clear to others that she deserves it. On the farm, Sheila Tharaldson has found balance and happiness for herself and her family. And though the days may be long and the work hard, smiles are bright and laughter is genuine. Life is good for the Tharaldsons.

Transportation enhancement funds available for projects

Approximately $1.5 million in federal enhancement funds will be available for potential projects in northwest Minnesota for the years 2001-2003 according to the Northwest Minnesota Area Transportation Partnership.

Steve Baker, northwest district engineer for the Minnesota Department of Transportation, said the Federal Transportation Efficiency Act of 1998 (TEA-21) provides funding for projects that enhance the transportation system. These projects can include bike/pedestrian trails, scenic overlooks, rehabilitation of historic transportation buildings and several other types of activities.

Any organization interested in learning more about these funds and how to apply for them is invited to attend an application workshop from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon on Friday, October 23, at the community center in McIntosh. Staff from Mn/DOT, the Headwaters Regional Development Commission (HRDC) and the Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) will be in attendance at the workshop to assist with application procedures and information on criteria for the use of federal enhancement funds. Time will also be provided to allow individual consultations to explore specific project areas.

Anyone unable to attend this workshop can get an application by calling Craig Collison, Mn/DOT district planning engineer, at 218-755-3813. Applications for enhancement projects are due no later than Friday, December 18.

Anyone having questions prior to the workshop is invited to call Collison at the number above; Cliff Twedale, HRDC planner, at 751-3108 or Charles Fritz, NWRDC planner at 745-6733.

Schools receive info on Voice of Democracy

Packets of information on the Veterans of Foreign Wars Voice of Democracy essay and public speaking contest have been sent by Post 2793 in Thief River Falls to public and private schools in six area communities.

Receiving packets were schools in Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Plummer, Middle River, Newfolden and Goodridge, according to Roy A. Jorgenson, chairman of the Voice of Democracy committee for Post 2793. Cathy Aune heads the project for Auxiliary Unit 2793.

Prizes of $50 for first place, $35 for second and $25 for third in each school are being offered by the sponsoring post. Each school will select its own winners, and these winners will be entered in the district contest where additional prizes are offered.

The contest is open to students in seventh, eighth and ninth grades, who may also enter individually if their schools are not participating. For more information, call 681-1211.

What Freedom Means to Me is the topic for the contest and theme length must be not less than 300 nor more than 400 words. Theme development accounts for 50 points of the judging criteria with 30 points for clarity of ideas and 20 points for the way the essay addresses the theme.

Entry deadline for students is December 15.

Other contest entry rules are included with the packets sent to the schools mentioned above.

Quilt winner Jill Johnson (right) of Thief River Falls displays her prize with quilt maker Merilyn Hersted of Viking. The snowflake pattern quilt was raffled by the Thief River Falls Quilters Guild as a fund-raising project. Each year one of the club members volunteers to make the raffle quilt. This year Donna Koehmstedt of Thief River Falls cut the pieces and Mrs. Herstad did the piecing and machine quilting.

Beef Cattle workshop held In Bagley Oct. 20

Minnesota Extension Service will conduct the Northwest Minnesota Beef Cattle Producers workshop on Tuesday, October 20, at the Bagley Livestock Exchange west of Bagley on Highway 2. The day's program will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will include a noon meal provided courtesy of Joe Varner, Bagley Livestock Exchange.

The Beef Workshop is an Minnesota Extension educational effort designed to provide helpful and up-to-date information for livestock producers in this area of the state. In addition to educational presentations, a large number of commercial and livestock exhibitors will be on hand displaying their goods and services.

Stock producers need to insure performance of their herd in order to take advantage of today's changing markets. To help with that, topics at the 1998 workshop will include discussion on Cattle Industry Outlook, beef quality, the Minnesota Beef Council, beef pastures, heifer selection, artificial breeding and fly control. As a test of producer skills, the program will include a "cattle weight" contest where participants will win prizes for correct estimates. Throughout the day, stock producers will have the opportunity to visit with a large number of machinery, equipment, feed, pharmaceutical and livestock exhibitors.

Although the program will focus on beef cattle, all livestock producers are invited to attend this free event. Please contact the University of Minnesota Extension Service - Pennington County at 683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116 if you have questions.

CRP expansion approved by U.S. Ag. Dept.

Congressman Collin Peterson has announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman approved Minnesota's plan to expand the State Conservation Reserve Program priority area in nine farm counties.

"We've been working hard on this for a long time," said Peterson. "I'm glad to see that everyone's hard work has paid off."

According to Peterson, the approved expansion includes the eastern parts of Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties as well as parts of Beltrami, Clearwater, Stearns and Todd counties.

The plan was submitted to Secretary Glickman by Wally Sparby, State Farm Service Agency director. Peterson said Sparby and his State technical committee deserve a great deal of credit for managing this proposal. "Wally worked hard for our farmers by drawing the support of not only agriculture, but also the environmental communities," said Peterson. "In fact, some environmentalists were initially opposed to the CRP expansion, but we now have total support. I thank everyone who came together to promote this effort."

The extended priority area will be available during the 18th CRP sign-up which begins October 26 and runs through December 11. "I am hopeful that this will allow more people who want to be included in the CRP the opportunity to do so. This is perhaps one more piece of assistance to help our local farm economy by stabilizing land values."

Farmers should contact their county FSA office for information regarding the Conservation Reserve Program and the 18th sign-up.

Agri-tourism conference set for December 1

An Agri-Tourism Conference will be held at the University of Minnesota at Crookston from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Tuesday, December 1. The conference will focus on identifying and developing agricultural attractions and businesses which can then be marketed to visitors.

The conference will be the second in a three part series and will feature various speakers from private industry and government service. Partners in this endeavor include the Minnesota Office of Tourism, University of Minnesota Tourism Center, University of Minnesota Extension Service, University of Minnesota Crookston and several local tourism promotion organizations.

The cost of the conference is $15 which includes lunch. Persons interested in further information are urged to contact Joan Reitmeier at the Northwest District Extension Office at 218-281-8683.

18th CRP sign-up to attract increased interest

Modified Conservation Priority Area makes more cropland eligible in northwest Minnesota

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Expansion of the Conservation Priority Area (CPA) to include eastern areas of Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties, the eastern edge of Beltrami county and the upper fourth of Clearwater county is stimulating interest in the 18th sign-up for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) which begins on Monday

The sign-up period extends through December 11 and all applications taken during the sign-up period will be considered. While there is no advantage to order of application, county FSA personnel encourage farmers not to wait until the end of the sign-up period to contact the FSA office. Appointments are being given at all county FSA offices at the present time.

Coupled with the expansion of eligibility for enrollment is the poor economic conditions for agriculture presently existing in the area. The difficulty in showing a profit from crop or livestock production makes the assured government payment for CRP acreage more attractive.

Counties Seek Increase In Allowable CRP Acreage

In fact, interest expressed in the CRP sign-up in several northwest counties is so high that the county Farm Service Agency (FSA) committees have considered requesting an additional five percent eligibility beyond the previously allowable 25 percent maximum enrollment of any one county's cropland in the program

Pennington county's committee voted Thursday to make application to the state FSA committee for the authorization to increase the eligible percentage to 30 percent, according to Glenn Schafer, executive director of the county FSA office. The county currently has about 42,000 acres enrolled with 35,000 acres available for enrollment to reach the 77,000-acre 25 percent mark. Approval of the county committee's request would add another 15,400 acres to the allowable total.

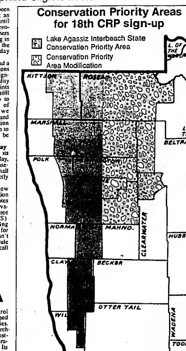
Schafer said it is not known if the sign-up will exceed the 25 percent figure, but the county must have made application for the extension prior to start of the sign-up Monday in order to be eligible. By noon on Thursday, the office had scheduled between 130 and 150 appointments to take CRP applications during the first three weeks of the sign-up period. Each landowner is being scheduled for a half-hour appointment.

Pennington county's information meetings were scheduled for Friday at 10 a.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium and 2 p.m. at the community center in Goodridge.

Roseau CRP Interest High

In Roseau county the FSA committee was meeting Friday morning to review survey forms sent to farmers, businesses and organizations prior to making a decision on requesting authority for an additional five percent sign-up.

Barbara Roseen, county executive director for the FSA, said the farmers in Roseau county had been encouraged to defer scheduling an appointment for CRP sign-up until information meetings on the program were held. Some 211 farmers attended the information meeting in Roseau Thursday morning while the meeting in Badger Thursday evening attracted another 183.



Roseen said that the county had a high percentage of its applications accepted during the last open sign-up period and has a water quality designation that helps in the points system for acceptance. "We still have about 86,000 acres to go to reach the 25 percent figure of 137,211 acres," she said, "but if we get the sign-up we anticipate based on the turn-out at the information meetings, it might not be enough to allow everyone who wants to be included."

Red Lake County Meet Tuesday

Red Lake county will hold its information meeting on Tuesday, October 27, at 1 p.m. in the basement of the Red Lake Falls city hall and will take appointments directly following the meeting.

"All of Red Lake county is now covered by the special Conservation Priority Area designation," notes Shawnn Balstad, district conservationist for the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS). "This means that all qualifying cropland is eligible to be offered for the CRP program, but it doesn't guarantee acceptance. To schedule an appointment with the FSA, call

Conservation Priority Areas have been expanded for the 18th CRP sign-up to begin Monday, October 26 and continue through Friday, December 11. The revised area indicated above will make approximately 1,400,000 acres of cropland in northwest Minnesota available for enrollment in the Conservation Reserve Program.

County board supports SwisPennCo with MPCA

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Tuesday at a Pennington County Board meeting, commissioners approved a request to support SwisPennCo's efforts with MPCA to move some Class I compost.

SwissPennCo representative Bob Kruse described the problem as a "log jam".

In a nutshell, SwisPennCo and the County are co-permittees under the license to operate. Each has separate property. The county's facility, which is located east of SwisPennCo's facility, is where SwisPennCo makes and stores compost. It is also the only facility permitted to make and store compost. The problem is that SwisPennCo is required to store the compost in a covered facility and they have now filled all the available storage space, and can no longer make compost without moving some to its facility west of the county property.

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, however, is hesitating in its permission to move the compost, not only because the SwisPennCo property is not permitted, but because SwisPennCo is operating under an expired permit and is having difficulty staying in compliance with MPCA regulations.

Kruse and Rick Nordhagen, operators of SwisPennCo, said Tuesday that they should be in compliance with MPCA regulations now and they would like to be allowed to move the finished compost out of the building, either to their location west of the county site or to another location.

Kruse and Nordhagen believe they have a market for the compost, but because they cannot get it out of the building, the compost won't cure properly. Nordhagen explained that it takes three years for compost to age; and because this compost hasn't been exposed to the elements it's the same as it was the day they put it in the building.

Kruse described the situation as a log jam and expressed concern that they had nearly $300,000 invested in the compost. The goal of this request, he said, is to get it moved out of the building so they can do some more screening.

As the building is full, more and more garbage is being taken to a landfill.

Apparently, MPCA isn't as sure about markets and financial stability of the operation. At a meeting on the re-permitting request of SwisPennCo early in October at MPCA offices in the Twin Cities, MPCA allowed SwisPennCo to continue to operate under the permit which expired in November of 1997, and asked the Office of Environmental Assistance (OEA) to perform a feasibility study to determine whether there's a market for compost and other recyclables, and whether SwisPennCo has the financial stability to continue.

OEA is separate from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and is more concerned about waste management policies. Part of its purpose is to "research and promote practical and cost-effective solutions to waste generation and waste management". Its goals and objectives are different from the MPCA, which is directed by law to "administer laws relating to preservation of the environment and protection of the public health consistent with the economic welfare of the state." It is, in this case, the permitting agency.

Howard Person, county solid waste officer, said at the earliest, the feasibility study would be completed in January.

Compliance issues for SwisPennCo began to come to a head with the MPCA last year when neighbors of the facility began to complain more forcefully about garbage blowing into their yards.

A number of meetings were held and efforts were made to clean up garbage which had blown from an open "fluff" pile at the facility and into yards and fields, sometimes a few miles away. SwisPennCo explained that the "fluff" pile was due to a lack of storage created by circumstances beyond their control, including a fire, and problems with machinery.

The stipulation agreement resulting from these meetings established some fines and goals for SwisPennCo's clean-up effort.

Prisoner hangs self in jail on Thursday

Wesley Eugene Jorgenson, 35, Thief River Falls, died Thursday evening in the Pennington County jail after he evidently hung himself with a bed sheet.

Pennington County Sheriff's department issued the following news release Friday morning: "On October 22, at about 8:45 p.m. Wesley Eugene Jorgenson, 35, Thief River Falls, was arrested by the Thief River Falls police department for domestic assault. The individual was transported to the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center booking room. The individual was then placed into a cell in the Pennington County jail.

"At 9:15 p.m. one of the inmates notified the jailer of an inmate hanging himself. Mr. Jorgenson was given medical attention and transported to Northwest Medical Center by ambulance where he was pronounced dead. An autopsy will be performed.

"The incident is being investigated by the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension."

It is standard operating procedure to have an outside law enforcement agency investigate such incidents when they occur in a county jail.

C&NC records perfect score during state inspection

Convalescent and Nursing Care staff at Northwest Medical Center were proud and excited to learn that they had achieved a perfect score during an unannounced state inspection of their facility. It's their first perfect score in many years.

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Staff of Northwest Medical Center's Convalescent and Nursing Care (CNC) unit are excited about receiving a perfect score during its last inspection conducted by the Minnesota Department of Health. Although the CNC unit repeatedly receives good marks, it has been a long time since its last perfect inspection.

Sandy Parker, director, said the staff was very excited when they heard.

Parker explained that the inspections by Minnesota Department of Health are unannounced. The inspection at the Northwest Medical Center CNC was held from August 25 to 27. That's three days of people looking over your shoulder and carefully observing how residents are treated, and how jobs are being performed and whether they measure up to federal guidelines.

When it was all over, the survey team complimented the staff for giving excellent care to the residents emphasizing the CNC staff's

Keeping Watch AROUND THE REGION

Kathi Carlson

DL resident stops burglar in action

Detroit Lakes - A Detroit Lakes man was hospitalized in stable condition last week after he was allegedly caught by a home owner while attempting to burglarize the man's home.

The homeowner arrived home at approximately 11 p.m. to discover John Warren, 33, and two others in the act of burglarizing his home. All three tried to flee. Warren was allegedly caught by the homeowner who used a weapon to subdue him after he resisted.

According to Detroit Lakes Police Chief Kelvin Keena, the weapon the homeowner used was "not a gun." He also said that the homeowner did nothing wrong, using force that was "reasonable and necessary." Detroit Lakes Tribune

Financial woes stop RCAT buses

Roseau - The financial problem that has plagued the RCAT Service for several weeks came to a head recently with RCAT officials pulling the plug on operations until new state funding arrives later in the month.

The shutdown brings hardship to Roseau county residents who have come to depend on the bus for transportation to work, medical service and for entertainment. It will especially impact ODC and FOCUS clients.

Sixty-five percent of the service's budget comes from the state, and 35 percent is funded locally. RCAT has had a difficult time coming up with the 35 percent portion of its needs each year. Warroad Pioneer

Suspects sought in recent Williams burglaries

Williams - Three Williams businesses were burglarized last week. A burglary in the store in the Williams Area Community Center was reported to Lake of the Woods County Sheriff's Department on October 12.

Thefts were also reported at Andy's Garage and the elevator in Williams that day.

Two suspects from Ohio were identified in connection with the burglary at the Community Center and may possibly be part of the other robberies. While the two suspects may have left the area, residents are asked to be on the lookout for a red 1979 Ford pickup with Ohio license plates. The Northern Light

Frank Grygla descendants visit

Grygla - When asked where she would like to go on vacation, Lucille Grygla Overson of Lyndal, Utah opted for Grygla, the town named for her grandfather.

Recently Lucille, her son and his wife and other family members visited Grygla where they searched for Grygla memorabilia and took photographs of buildings and signs bearing the name "Grygla."

Lucille's grandfather, Frank Grygla, was the chief surveyor and engineer in the area back in the late 1800s. When the first U.S. Post Office was established in 1898 it was registered with the name Grygla. The Grygla Eagle

On behalf of the Governor, Wenner said he applauded manufacturing and said it was the centerpiece of the Minnesota economy.

Kent Fritze, Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce president, thanked local manufacturers for their contribution to the economy of Thief River Falls, but added not everybody realizes how important manufacturing is to the economy of Thief River Falls.

18th CRP sign-up to attract increased interest

Modified Conservation Priority Area makes more cropland eligible in northwest Minnesota

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

Expansion of the Conservation Priority Area (CPA) to include eastern areas of Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Polk counties, the eastern edge of Beltrami county and the upper fourth of Clearwater county is stimulating interest in the 18th sign-up for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) which begins on Monday.

The sign-up period extends through December 11 and all applications taken during the sign-up period will be considered. While there is no advantage to order of application, county FSA personnel encourage farmers not to wait until the end of the sign-up period to contact the FSA office. Appointments are being given at all county FSA offices at the present time.

Coupled with the expansion of eligibility for enrollment is the poor economic conditions for agriculture presently existing in the area. The difficulty in showing a profit from crop or livestock production makes the assured government payment for CRP acreage more attractive.

Counties Seek Increase In Allowable CRP Acreage

In fact, interest expressed in the CRP sign-up in several northwest counties is so high that the county Farm Service Agency (FSA) committees have considered requesting an additional five percent eligibility beyond the previously allowable 25 percent maximum enrollment of any one county's cropland in the program.

Pennington county's committee voted Thursday to make application to the state FSA committee for the authorization to increase the eligible percentage to 30 percent, according to Glenn Schafer, executive director of the county FSA office. The county currently has about 42,000 acres enrolled with 35,000 acres available for enrollment to reach the 77,000-acre 25 percent mark. Approval of the county committee's request would add another 15,400 acres to the allowable total.

Schafer said it is not known if the sign-up will exceed the 25 percent figure, but the county must have made application for the extension prior to start of the sign-up Monday in order to be eligible. By noon on Thursday, the office had scheduled between 130 and 150 appointments to take CRP applications during the first three weeks of the sign-up period. Each landowner is being scheduled for a half-hour appointment.

Pennington county's information meetings were scheduled for Friday at 10 a.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium and 2 p.m. at the community center in Goodridge.

Roseau CRP Interest High

In Roseau county the FSA committee was meeting Friday morning to review survey forms sent to farmers, businesses and organizations prior to making a decision on requesting authority for an additional five percent sign-up.

Barbara Roseen, county executive director for the FSA, said the farmers in Roseau county had been encouraged to defer scheduling an appointment for CRP sign-up until information meetings on the program were held. Some 211 farmers attended the information meeting in Roseau Thursday morning while the meeting in Badger Thursday evening attracted another 183.

Roseen said that the county had a high percentage of its applications accepted during the last open sign-up period and has a water quality designation that helps in the points system for acceptance. "We still have about 86,000 acres to go to reach the 25 percent figure of 137,211 acres," she said, "but if we get the sign-up we anticipate based on the turn-out at the information meetings, it might not be enough to allow everyone who wants to be included."

Red Lake County Meet Tuesday

Red Lake county will hold its information meeting on Tuesday, October 27, at 1 p.m. in the basement of the Red Lake Falls city hall and will take appointments directly following the meeting.

"All of Red Lake county is now covered by the special Conservation Priority Area designation," notes Shawnn Balstad, district conservationist for the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS). "This means that all qualifying cropland is eligible to be offered for the CRP program, but it doesn't guarantee acceptance. To schedule an appointment with the FSA, call

Conservation Priority Areas have been expanded for the 18th CRP sign-up to begin Monday, October 26 and continue through Friday, December 11. The revised area indicated above will make approximately 1,400,000 acres of cropland in northwest Minnesota available for enrollment in the Conservation Reserve Program.

DL resident stops burglar in action

Detroit Lakes - A Detroit Lakes man was hospitalized in stable condition last week after he was allegedly caught by a home owner while attempting to burglarize the man's home.

The homeowner arrived home at approximately 11 p.m. to discover John Warren, 33, and two others in the act of burglarizing his home. All three tried to flee. Warren was allegedly caught by the homeowner who used a weapon to subdue him after he resisted.

According to Detroit Lakes Police Chief Kelvin Keena the weapon the homeowner used was "not a gun." He also said that the homeowner did nothing wrong, using force that was "reasonable and necessary." Detroit Lakes Tribune

Financial woas stop RCAT buses

Roseau - The financial problem that has plagued the RCAT Service for several weeks came to a head recently with RCAT officials pulling the plug on operations until new state funding arrives later in the month.

The shutdown brings hardship to Roseau county residents who have come to depend on the bus for transportation to work, medical service and for entertainment. It will especially impact ODC and FOCUS clients.

Sixty-five percent of the service's budget comes from the state, and 35 percent is funded locally. RCAT has had a difficult time coming up with the 35 percent portion of its needs each year. Warroad Pioneer

Suspects sought in recent Williams burglaries

Williams - Three Williams businesses were burglarized last week. A burglary in the store in the Williams Area Community Center was reported to Lake of the Woods County Sheriff's Department on October 12.

Thefts were also reported at Andy's Garage and the elevator in Williams that day.

Two suspects from Ohio were identified in connection with the burglary at the Community Center and may possibly be part of the other robberies. While the two suspects may have left the area, residents are asked to be on the lookout for a red 1979 Ford pickup with Ohio license plates. The Northern Light

Grygla - When asked where she would like to go on vacation, Lucille Grygla Overson of Lyndal, Utah opted for Grygla, the town named for her grandfather.

Recently Lucille, her son and his wife and other family members visited Grygla where they searched for Grygla memorabilia and took photographs of buildings and signs bearing the name "Grygla."

Lucille's grandfather, Frank Grygla, was the chief surveyor and engineer in the area back in the late 1800s. When the first U.S. Post Office was established in 1898 it was registered with the name Grygla. The Grygla Eagle

County board supports SwisPennCo with MPCA

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Tuesday at a Pennington County Board meeting, commissioners approved a request to support SwisPennCo's efforts with MPCA to move some Class I compost.

SwissPennCo representative Bob Kruse described the problem as a "log jam".

In a nutshell, SwisPennCo and the County are co-permittees under the license to operate. Each has separate property. The county's facility, which is located east of SwisPennCo's facility, is where SwisPennCo makes and stores compost. It is also the only facility permitted to make and store compost. The problem is that SwisPennCo, is required to store the compost in a covered facility and they have now filled all the available storage space, and can no longer make compost without moving some to its facility west of the county property.

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, however, is hesitating in its permission to move the compost, not only because the SwisPennCo property is not permitted, but because SwisPennCo is operating under an expired permit and is having difficulty staying in compliance with MPCA regulations.

Kruse and Rick Nordhagen, operators of SwisPennCo, said Tuesday that they should be in compliance with MPCA regulations now and they would like to be allowed to move the finished compost out of the building, either to their location west of the county site or to another location.

Kruse and Nordhagen believe they have a market for the compost, but because they cannot get it out of the building, the compost won't cure properly. Nordhagen explained that it takes three years for compost to age; and because this compost hasn't been exposed to the elements it's the same as it was the day they put it in the building.

Kruse described the situation as a log jam and expressed concern that they had nearly $300,000 invested in the compost. The goal of this request, he said, is to get it moved out of the building so they can do some more screening.

As the building is full, more and more garbage is being taken to a landfill.

Apparently, MPCA isn't as sure about markets and financial stability of the operation. At a meeting on the re-permitting request of SwisPennCo early in October at MPCA offices in the Twin Cities, MPCA allowed SwisPennCo to continue to operate under the permit which expired in November of 1997, and asked the Office of Environmental Assistance (OEA) to perform a feasibility study to determine whether there's a market for compost and other recyclables, and whether SwisPennCo has the financial stability to continue.

OEA is separate from the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency and is more concerned about waste management policies. Part of its purpose is to "research and promote practical and cost-effective solutions to waste generation and waste management". Its goals and objectives are different from the MPCA, which is directed by law to "administer laws relating to preservation of the environment and protection of the public health consistent with the economic welfare of the state." It is, in this case, the permitting agency.

Howard Person, county solid waste officer, said at the earliest, the feasibility study would be completed in January.

Compliance issues for SwisPennCo began to come to a head with the MPCA last year when neighbors of the facility began to complain more forcefully about garbage blowing into their yards.

A number of meetings were held and efforts were made to clean up garbage which had blown from an open "fluff" pile at the facility and into yards and fields, sometimes a few miles away. SwisPennCo explained that the "fluff" pile was due to a lack of storage created by circumstances beyond their control, including a fire, and problems with machinery.

The stipulation agreement resulting from these meetings established some fines and goals for SwisPennCo's clean-up effort.

Prisoner hangs self in jail on Thursday

Wesley Eugene Jorgenson, 35, Thief River Falls, died Thursday evening in the Pennington County jail after he evidently hung himself with a bed sheet.

Pennington County Sheriff's department issued the following news release Friday morning: "On October 22, at about 8:45 p.m. Wesley Eugene Jorgenson, 35, Thief River Falls, was arrested by the Thief River Falls police department for domestic assault. The individual was transported to the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center booking room. The individual was then placed into a cell in the Pennington County jail.

"At 9:15 p.m. one of the inmates notified the jailer of an inmate hanging himself. Mr. Jorgenson was given medical attention and transported to Northwest Medical Center by ambulance where he was pronounced dead. An autopsy will be performed.

"The incident is being investigated by the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension."

It is standard operating procedure to have an outside law enforcement agency investigate such incidents when they occur in a county jail.

C&NC records perfect score during state inspection

Convalescent and Nursing Care staff at Northwest Medical Center were proud and excited to learn that they had achieved a perfect score during an unannounced state inspection of their facility. It's their first perfect score in many years.

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Staff of Northwest Medical Center's Convalescent and Nursing Care (CNC) unit are excited about receiving a perfect score during its last inspection conducted by the Minnesota Department of Health. Although the CNC unit repeatedly receives good marks, it has been a long time since its last perfect inspection.

Sandy Parker, director, said the staff was very excited when they heard.

Parker explained that the inspections by Minnesota Department of Health are unannounced. The inspection at the Northwest Medical Center CNC was held from August 25 to 27. That's three days of people looking over your shoulder and carefully observing how residents are treated, and how jobs are being performed and whether they measure up to federal guidelines.

When it was all over, the survey team complimented the staff for giving excellent care to the residents emphasizing the CNC staff's

Misdemeanor guilty plea in shooting

Birchdale - Thomas T. Crumpton, a farmer Department of Natural Resources employee, intends to plead guilty to a misdemeanor charge in connection with a shooting incident last April on the Rainy River.

According to court documents, Crumpton allegedly fired a rifle from the deck of his residence in Birchdale toward Leroy and Gordon Wilson, members of the Rainy River First Nations band, who were netting sturgeon for the band's hatchery located at Manitou Rapids, Ontario. The men claim that the shell from Crumpton's gun fell within 10 to 12 feet of their boat.

Crumpton admits firing a shot but said he did not fire toward the men. In a prepared statement in August, he said he believed the Wilsons had illegally staked gill nets on the U.S. side of the Rainy River.

Following the incident the DNR placed Crumpton on investigatory leave. As of June, however, he has no longer been employed by the DNR according to a DNR human resources department spokesperson. Crumpton was off-duty at the time of the incident and is a 17-year veteran of the DNR. He told The Daily Journal in August that he plans to appeal his dismissal. The Baudette Region

Absentee voting ballot procedures

Secretary of State Joan Growe has released information to the public concerning the process for voting by absentee ballot in the November 3 state general election.

"Voters who will be absent from the precinct or unable to go to the polling place due to illness, physical disability, religious observance or service as an election judge in another precinct may vote by absentee ballot," Growe said. "I encourage those persons who plan to be out of town on election day or who are disabled and unable to go to their polling place to apply immediately for an absentee ballot."

Applications for absentee voters may be obtained from the county auditor in person, by mail or by fax.

Eligible voters may cast their ballots either by mail or in person at the county auditors' offices or other locations designated by the county auditor. The county auditors will have extended office hours for absentee voting prior to election day, from 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturday, October 31 and from 5 to 7 p.m. on Monday, November 2.

The last day to submit an application in person for absentee ballots is Monday, November 2, at 7 p.m. Voters who apply for an absentee ballot by mail should apply no later than Friday, October 30 to insure the timely arrival of the ballots.

Visually-impaired voters may receive absentee voting instructions in Braille, audio cassette or in large type format from their county auditor. Eligible voters in health care facilities located in the municipality where they reside may obtain an absentee ballot application from election judges who will visit the facility during the 10 days prior to election day.

Voters in health care facilities may also designate a person to deliver their absentee ballot to them during the four days prior to election day and until 4 p.m. on election day.

Voters should contact their county auditor or municipal clerk for additional information concerning absentee voting.

SOUPÇON

I'm giving you more chocolate recipes this week, so If you can't stand it or don't need the calories, don't read on. I made the Chocolate Blossoms and the Pudding Cake from last week and both were outstanding. Those cookies would be great for Christmas. Just be sure to chill them well and roll them fast. I rolled one shretful all at onre and then dipped them into sugar instead of rolling and dipping one at a time. Worked great.

Peanut butter and chocolate - what would make a better brownie!

MARBLE PEANUT BUTTER BROWNIES

2 packages (3 ounces each) softened cream cheese
1/2 cup creamy or crunchy peanut butter
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
1 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 eggs
3/4 cup cocoa
1 1/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk chocolate chips

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 9x13 inch baking pan.

Peanut Butter Filling

To prepare peanut butter filling, beat cream cheese, peanut butter, sugar, 1 egg and milk until creamy. Set aside.

To make brownie batter, melt butter. Stir in sugar and vanilla. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat well with spoon after each. Beat in cocoa, then add flour, baking powder and salt. Beat well. Stir in chips.

Remove 1 cup batter and pour remaining batter into prepared pan. Spread peanut butter filling over batter and then drop reserved batter over peanut butter filling by teaspoonfuls. Gently swirl knife through layers to marble.

Bake 35-40 minutes, until pick inserted in center comes out almost clean. Cool and then cut into bars.

This is not for those who are watching their calories, but oh my, what a treat:

CHOCOLATE LOVER'S CHEESECAKE

3 (8 ounces each) packages softened cream cheese
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 (8 ounce) container dairy sour cream
2 teaspoons vanilla
1/2 cup cocoa
2 tablespoons flour
3 eggs
Crust
Chocolate Drizzle

Preheat oven to 450 degrees.

Prepare crust (recipe below).

Beat cream cheese and sugar until blended. Add sour cream and vanilla, beating well. Beat in cocoa and flour. Add eggs, one at a time, beating just until blended. Pour into crust.

Bake 10 minutes at 450 degrees, then reduce heat to 250 degrees and bake 40 minutes more. Remove to wire rack.

With knife, loosen cake from side of pan. Cool completely and remove side of pan. Drizzle with Chocolate Drizzle (recipe below). Refrigerate several hours and store in refrigerator.

Chocolate Crumb Crust
1 cup chocolate wafer crumbs
1/4 cup butter or margarine

Combine and press into 9 inch springform pan.

Chocolate Drizzle
1/2 cup semi sweet chocolate chips
2 teaspoons solid shortening (not butter, margarine or oil)

Microwave on high for 30 seconds. Stir. If needed, microwave 15 seconds more at a time, stirring after each time, just until chips are melted.

This pie is simple to make but very elegant:

SILKY COCOA CREAM PIE

8 inch baked pastry shell
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup cocoa
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Prepare pastry shell. Cool.

Mix sugar, cocoa, cornstarch and salt in saucepan. Gradually stir in milk.

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Boil 1 minute and remove from heat.

Gradually stir about half of hot filling into yolks. Return all to saucepan and heat to gently boil. Cook and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat, stir in butter and vanilla.

Pour into crust. Press plastic wrap directly onto pie surface and cool. Refrigerate until set. Garnish with whipped cream.

These cookies would make great Halloween treats. Instead of peanut butter chips, you could try chocolate or white chocolate - or divide the dough and try them all - yum. Or you could make bars of the batter, or ice cream sandwiches with the cookies - try them all:

CHEWY CHOCOLATE COOKIES

2 cups flour
3/4 cup cocoa
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cups butter or margarine, softened
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 2/3 cups peanut butter chips

Heat oven to 350 degrees.

Stir flour, cocoa, soda and salt together. Set aside.

Beat butter and sugar until fluffy. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Gradually add dry flour mixture, beating well. Stir in chips. Recipe makes 4 1/2 dozen cookies.

Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 8-9 minutes (do not overbake, cookies will be soft - they will flatten while cooling). Cool slightly and then remove to wire racks. Cool.

To make as bars: Spread batter in greased 10x15 inch jelly roll pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until set. Cool in pan on rack before cutting.

To make ice cream sandwiches: Prepare cookies as directed and cool well. Press scoop of vanilla ice cream between flat sides of cookies, wrap and freeze firm.

JULIE WOULD HAVE SAID "WOW"

There is an old saying that states "A picture is worth a thousand words". If that is true it would require a thousand pictures just to thank all the volunteers, to list all the individuals and businesses that gave donations of all types. And to personally thank each of the almost 1,200 patrons that passed through the gate for the Julie Holmquist Family Benefit.

Although the benefit was put together by many, a few must be noted for taking an ember of an idea and fanning that ember until it became a roaring blaze of activity. That ember was produced by the caring thoughts of Mike Trueman, Glenn Voytilla, Joanne Ballard, LuAnn Hennum and Peggy O'Brien. Also many businesses, social clubs, organizations and private individuals gave of themselves and their products to insure the success of the benefit. Yet we would feel remiss if we didn't mention Border View Lodge for turning over their resort to hold the benefit.

There is an old belief that if someone does one unselfish act of kindness, that kindness will be returned a thousand fold. And that goes along the same lines as "No Man is an Island". For each act we do in our lives, no matter how trivial, will touch the lives of many. A community can be described as a group of individuals with a common thread. Whether that thread be the family that makes up the home to the homes that make up the towns, to the towns that create a State. Or whether that community thread begins as an individual who helps others for the simple joy of doing it. Or to the thousands that respond to aid a single family.

Julie was a joyous child who participated in community events for the joy it brought her and the pleasure her acts brought to others. Her acts of kindness have truly been returned to us ten thousand fold. This benefit incorporated the true character and spirit of Julie's daily acts and thoughts. We know her reaction upon hearing of such a benefit for anyone would have been to rise from her favorite chair and say "Wow, can you believe they did that".

So instead of just a simple thanks to everyone, let us instead say welcome all to the Julie Holmquist community of kindness.

The Julie Holmquist Family

A Glance Into Another Culture's Disaster

This area's flood of the century a year and a half ago is still vivid in most minds and the recovery effort in the Red River Valley is still almost daily in the news in one aspect or another. Memory of that flood and resultant actions is in sharp contrast to description of recent flooding and recovery in parts of China.

Eight flood crests in July and August along the Yangtze River claimed more than 1,320 lives and caused more than 166 billion yuan ($120 billion in U.S. dollars) in damage. Millions of people are trying to rebuild their homes, farms and businesses. The Red River flood in the U.S. had very few lives lost and affected far fewer people Individual personal loss is great in either case, of course, but the resources of our nation to assist in recovery are impressive in comparison to those of China. A supplement to Publisher's Auxiliory, official publication of the National Newspaper Association, is titled CD Features and contains an article by Jiang Jingen about a couple with two children in Shanwan village in Heilongjiang province in China.

The family lost its home, vegetable crop which it normally sells for its livelihood, and 20 sheep which the farm wife had been raising for two years and expected to sell for about 4,000 yuan ($480) to buy new clothing for the family and a color television set.

In the Red River Valley the government brought in hundreds of mobile homes and along with private sources provided hundreds of millions of dollars in recovery aid and protection against future similar disasters. The couple in China used bricks and wood picked out of the post-flood debris and spent two days building a one-room shack.

The husband in the family went to work at a local brick-making plant for 12 hours a day, receiving no salary. Instead, he received 100 bricks a day in exchange for his labor. His ambition was to collect more than 2,500 bricks to build a new home—a diyinzi, or partially underground dwelling common in northeastern China. According to the article, the couple drew up plans for their new home. It would be about 1.6 yards above ground, half a yard underground, 3.8 yards wide and 4.4 yards long. They would fill the top with dry hay covered by plastic sheeting "to keep it warm and dry."

About 70 percent of the county's farmlands—4.7 million acres—were completely destroyed by the flood and direct economic losses were 128 million yuan ($14 million U.S.). More than 210,000 people—two-thirds of the county's residents—were affected by the flood with 120,000 forced to relocate and 55,000 homeless.

The relief effort for this catastrophic loss?

"We have collected more than 600,000 yuan ($72,000 U.S.) in special housing funds," the county magistrate said, "mainly to buy construction materials such as bricks and beams for the homeless farmers.....We are striving to stretch each yuan."

Need a little perspective in your life? How about the prospect of future life in a home scarcely larger than a Lake of the Woods fish house and an average of $1.50 in relief per person to build homes for 55,000 people? A FEMA trailer unappreciatively trashed by residents in 18 months of occupancy in Grand Forks would look like a palace to these Chinese flood victims.

Yet we complain

Aching From Raking? Tips Can Ease The Pain

Minnesota Chiropractic Association has confirmed what millions of husbands have told their wives for years: "Raking is a one-sided, repetitive motion, which is tough enough on the neck, shoulder and low back" the association states in a recent news release. "Add it to the bending and heavy lifting required to rake and bag leaves, and you're placing a lot of stress on your body."

But the association has also offered tips "for ridding raking of its physical pain." What kind of help is that? We're talking major stress here! We need tips to avoid raking, not how to rake with less pain! Raking leaves is a pain!

So here are the association's tips (in italics), with our reaction to each.

• Stretch before you start raking. We find that stretching out in a full-length prone position on the couch in front of a college football game works best. Do this slowly. It is impossible to over-extend this important preliminary activity.

• Try alternating hand placement on the rake. Alternating this hand placement on the rake handle with your spouse or an older child seems to provide the greatest relief.

• Alternate your raking motion, even slightly, to prevent all stress from being placed on just one muscle group. Specifically, alternate raking on right and left sides. You will find that when you walk around the rake to change sides, the bent portion at the end of the rake teeth will be pointed in the opposite direction. While this permits a much easier raking motion due to the reduction of rake teeth catching in the grass, it is quite inefficient in moving leaf volume and leads to disappointment, frustration and reduced self esteem. Rather than risk adverse mental and physical anguish, it may be best to just quit.

• Break the yard into segments requiring no more than 30 minutes of raking time. Obviously, that is a typographical error. It should read "three (3) minutes of raking time." Preferably, each of those broken-down segments should represent half of the yard.

• If you find yourself aching, stiff or sore, apply COLD compresses (not heat) to the area of discomfort. Since the palms and fingers of the hand are likely to be the first to sustain such injury, you would be well-advised to put away the rake at the first indication of discomfort, move to a relaxing location and firmly grasp a "cool one" to relieve the symptoms. Use the same alternating hand principle applied to the rake handle (see advice above) and change containers frequently to maintain the cold temperature.

With a little attention to the rules, leaf raking can be made a lot more tolerable. The wind will probably blow tomorrow or the next day anyway.

LETTERS

I would like to thank everyone in Northwestern Minnesota who wrote letters about the farm crisis to our U.S. Senators Paul Wellstone and Rod Grams, and members of the U.S. Senate and House Agriculture Committees. Your commitment to our farmers and rural communities has made a difference.

This week, negotiators in Congress approved a $6 billion farm-relief package to be included in Congress' final omnibus spending bill. Sen. Wellstone is calling it a "significant victory for Minnesota." Of this money, the state will likely receive approximately $335 million in crop-loss indemnity and income-relief payments, compared to the $227 million under the provisions of the agriculture appropriations bill vetoed by the president last week. The difference of $108 million for Minnesota is based on preliminary calculations by Senate Agriculture Committee staff. Actual results might not be known for several months until production and crop-loss statistics for the 1998 crop year become available. The increased funding benefits Northwestern Minnesota farmers who have experienced multi-year crop losses.

By no means is this an end to the farm income crisis. There are still long-term problems that need to be addressed, including Congress' failure to deal with the loan rate crisis that has plagued farmers since the 1996 Freedom to Farm Bill was enacted. Hopefully, this emergency funding will give farmers the help they need.

Anyone with questions or comments can contact me at Box 66, Kennedy, MN 56733 or 218-674-4480.

Fifty-six complete Walk Pennington Co.

Fifty-six individuals completed the 1998 "Walk Pennington County" fitness program, receiving t-shirts and a certificate of recognition. This annual event encourages people to participate in a minimum of 25 hours of exercise over the summer months. They can choose from walking, running, biking, aerobics, in-line skating, swimming, and other activities. Participants tracked their exercise by filling in 15-minute squares which led them around a map of Pennington County. When finished, the exercise pattern represented the equivalent of walking from Thief River Falls to Goodridge, Highlanding, River Valley, St. Hilaire, Goose Lake, and back to Thief River Falls.

The program is sponsored annually by Northwest Medical Center, Dakota Clinic, University of Minnesota Extension Service and the Thief River Falls Area United Way.

Individuals completing the event included: Sheri Liedberg, Marie Engen, Edie Brandli, Mary Morken, Lavay Hickerson, Carol Unruh, Paulette Odette, Gaye Thorson, Brenda Fisher, Mary Jo Wolter, Joanne Kohler, Darla Miller, Rose Schmitz, Betty Olson, Marcy Mickelson, Lois Wang, Iris Furuseth, Marian Stark, Jean Janisch, Barbara Okland, Kim Swanson, Anita Hendrickson, Donna Fosholm, Helen Halvorson, Janice Olson, Kristie Olson, Ashley Staebler, Andrew Lallier, Lynnet Solberg, Lucy Stancyk, Grace Pagnac, Theresa Blakely, Glenice Johnson, Catherine Jorgenson, Jamie Fort, Veronica Erickson, Shelly Staebler, David Furuseth, Allan Morken, Linda Rockstad, Vicki Kolden, Betty Roadfeldt, Debbra Swanson, JoAnn Bauer, Lori Johnson, Jeanette Reierson, Craig Mickelson, Anita Cardinal, Jerry Okland, Clayton Troskey, Joyce Olson, Pat Krider, Betty Erickson, Leah Thompson, Bernice Skime, and Rosalind Westlin.

D-Day/Great American Smokeout on November 19

Minnesota D-Day ("Don't Smoke Day")/ the Great American Smokeout is the day each year when smokers and non-smokers alike commit to keeping our society and our children smoke-free. This event is co-sponsored locally by the American Cancer Society, Minnesota Council and the American Lung Association of Minnesota.

Smokers across the nation will be packing up their cigarettes and other tobacco products for the day on Thursday, November 19. For "hooked" smokers, D-Day is a day to prove to themselves that they can quit. For teenagers and children, D-Day is a day to work toward a better, healthier, smoke-free environment.

Last year, about 26 percent of smokers nationwide participated in D-Day, known nationally as the Great American Smokeout. The American Cancer Society and American Lung Association expect even more smokers and supporters to participate in the 1998 event through community, business, and school D-Day programs. Non-smokers can join in the D-Day fun by giving up one product owned by a tobacco company and/or adopting family members, friends or co-workers and helping them quit for the day.

The term Smokeout was coined by Arthur P. Mullaney in 1971. He created an event that asked people in Randolph, MA, to give up cigarettes for a day and donate the money saved to a high-school scholarship fund. Later, Mr. Lynn R. Smith, editor of the Monticello Times in Minnesota, spearheaded the state's first D-Day, or Don't Smoke Day. It spread like wildfire throughout Minnesota and then blazed west to California in 1976, where it was renamed the Great American Smokeout. Now in its 22nd year as an annual nationwide celebration, D-Day/Great American Smokeout is better than ever.

North American Hunter features area near TRF

North American Hunter, the official publication of the North American Hunting Club is featuring Thief River Falls in its 20th Anniversary issue, which is the October 1998 edition now appearing on magazine stands.

The pictures for the Hunting Gear Supplement were taken in the Thief River Falls area in September of 1997. Many of the photos taken for the special advertising section were taken by Mitch Kezar, professional photographer and a former resident of Thief River Falls. Other groups and companies that assisted in attracting North American Hunter to the area and assisted in the preparation of the photo shoot included the Thief River Falls Convention and Visitors Bureau, Minnesota Department of Tourism, Best Western of Thief River Falls, Arctic Cat ATV's and snowmobiles, Northwest Airlines, and WH_2P, Inc. Marketing Communications.

North American Hunting Club members who receive the magazine may just recognize some of the locations, dogs, equipment, and at least one smiling face. On Page 130 of the magazine, a full page advertisement promotes Thief River Falls and the surrounding area.

North American Hunter Magazine is the official publication of the North American Hunting Club and has a circulation of 200,000 subscribers from all over the United States.

Time Well Spent

I've had the opportunity to spend a lot of my recent guide days up in the islands. It's both exhausting and exciting. You've read elsewhere, or lamented on your own, about the overwhelming number of choices facing the outdoor Minnesota world in the fall.

Hunting starts to trample on fishing time. Ducks and pheasants limit one's ability to become efficient with a bow or rifle. The muskie and crappie frenzy of October dents the commitment to the finest time walleyes may have to offer all year. Grouse and geese merely add to an already muddled pictures.

Factor in the gloomy prospect of rapidly shortening days and you've got enough ebb and flow of adrenaline to make manic depressives out of anyone carrying a Sportsman's License. Island life not only mirrors this confusion, but holds it so tantalizingly close to our senses that fun and frustration hold hands on any October trip north.

Consider:

Bluebills. Everyone wants to shoot some this time of year and there's no better place than an isolated, guano-covered piece of granite in the middle of the Little Traverse. These birds fly late, making them an ideal quarry for anyone who stayed up too late watching the overtime conclusion of a Monday Night Football game. It's a fast, furious numbers kind of hunt, worlds apart from any mallard slough. But get your shooting in quick, because we've still got a lot to do. Give it 'til 9:30 a.m. at the latest.

Crappies. Fall is the time of year when crappies are their most vulnerable. Schooling up tight as they pursue shiners, Lake of the Woods crappies bite best in the morning, scattering into smaller pods in the afternoon. Spend two hours here, travel time included, because you're going to eat an early lunch. Remember, we skipped breakfast.

Walleyes and perch. You can find them in the deep, mud-bottomed channels. These are pre-lunch walleyes, the one-pound variety, that cook quickly and eat great. It's sinful to ignore the perch that you'll find mixed in here. They're legitimate "keeper" size and the action that they provide in October can be the fastest you'll ever get on a rod and reel anywhere. Use an ultralight and only fish for one hour.

Shore lunch. The fire is a necessity anyway, since it's only reached 40 degrees and it's past noon. No bugs and scenic as heck. Try to keep moving and chewing because there's more to get done.

Pigs. We'll look for bigger walleyes after lunch, concentrating on deeper, steeper rock on the edges of current. The "hogs" that we found in the Big Traverse in July and August have moved to these edges, mixing in with their more moderately sized brethren in a search for pre-winter food. It's a hey-day. Enjoy it for 90 minutes.

Muskies. It's becoming a cliche, that picture of the guy with his coveralls on and a mustache full of frozen snot, trying to look macho under the impressive weight of a 50-inch muskie. There is no better time than October. Casting is acceptable but trolling is the ticket. Give it 'til five o'clock in the deep channels and we'll probably have a fish in the boat.

Smallmouth. Ten minutes on the same deep topped reef that you caught walleyes on in July is adequate here. We'll boat three bass that elicit comments like "the biggest" and "Holy ----!" 'Nuff said.

We've got to hustle now, because like we found in the morning, those diver ducks move at a little different time than their puddling cousins. Back to the open water, throw out the decoys, and hunt until the sun touches the horizon. That's about 6:15. Anything you see after that will be huge strings of high-flying ducks heading toward the serenity of the open water. Your two or three dozen decoys will carry no clout when compared with the raft of 150,000 birds that is forming a few miles south.

You can sit back and enjoy the orange glow of the horizon for a few minutes before picking up and heading in. You've worked hard today at experiencing all that October and the Islands have to offer.

Grouse! We forgot the grouse!

Let's check the schedule for tomorrow.

Riverview Health supports grief support sessions

Riverview's Community Hospice in Crookston is sponsoring a series of support group sessions for anyone who has experienced a loss and is interested in attending. There will be four meetings, each focusing on a different aspect of the grief process.

The first session, being held on Tuesday, November 3, will include discussions on the dynamics of grief and relating personal experience with the normal grief process. The second group session will be on Thursday November 5 and will cover responses to grief; understanding normal grief reactions and developing coping skills that work. The third of the four group meetings will be Tuesday, November 10 and will cover the stress grief can have on relationships and how to help relationships survive the changes and stress of a loss. The last session on Thursday, November 12, will focus on grieving and growing and looking to the future.

Each session will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the conference room off the Riverview cafeteria and there is no charge for the program. The groups will be led by Community Hospice Social Worker Tracey Wenthin, BSW and Bereavement Coordinator Nancy Lankow, LSW. Space is limited so please pre-register by calling 218-281-9478 or toll free at 1-800-743-6551, extension 478.

Wolverines post 3-1 win vs. KCN for 18-6 regular season mark

Dana Wiseth had 14 kills Tuesday as Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke beat Kittson County North 13-15, 15-5, 15-6, 15-4 in a high school volleyball match played at Grygla.

"Not too bad," was the way Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz described her team's outing that wrapped up an 18-6 regular season. "We started kind of slow, but we picked it up. It was a nice way to finish."

Mandy Sjulestad, Kathryn Stanley and DaNae Wiseth contributed six kills each to the Wolverines' attack. Abby Schuler collected 19 assists, while Stanley had three service aces and Aylissa Hoffman had two.

The Wolverines will face Stephen-Argyle Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Sub-Section 32A tournament quarterfinals at Northland Community and Technical College.

RLCC ends regular season with win vs. Clearbrook-Gonvick

Heather Schiefert had 12 kills Monday as Red Lake County Central closed out an 18-7 regular season with a 15-6, 15-12, 15-2 high school volleyball win over Clearbrook-Gonvick at Oklee.

Kelsey Lundeen and Sylvia Hilgeman joined Schiefert in double figures in the kill department with 11 each.

"We played pretty good, solid volleyball in all three games," reported Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray.

East Grand Forks runningback Justin Hecht was chased by Thief River Falls defensive lineman Wade Haviland on this first quarter carry during Tuesday's high school football game at East Grand Forks. The Green Wave edged the Prowlers 10-7.

Green Wave takes 10-7 win from TRF

Two punt returns by Travis Lindgren and a 39-yard field goal by Kyle Schantzen added up to a 10-7 East Grand Forks win over Thief River Falls Tuesday in a high school football game that closed out a 4-4 regular season for both teams.

Neither team accomplished a lot offensively. Outside of an 80-yard fourth quarter touchdown drive, the visiting Prowlers were never in sight of the East Grand Forks end zone. And the Green Wave, while spending most of the night in Thief River Falls territory, could muster just five first downs – none in the second half.

"Our defense did whatever they could to keep us in the football game," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm, "but offensively..we got beat up front."

Take away the touchdown drive and Thief River Falls' deepest penetration of the night was the East Grand Forks 41-yard line. While field position gave Schantzen an opportunity to try three field goals (he missed from 28 and 36 yards), the Prowlers' strong-legged Levi Kraft was never given the chance at matching the three-pointer.

"We were very flat," said Mumm. "I can't seem to motivate them any more. I have to question myself. I don't know the right buttons to push to get them going."

East Grand Forks reached the Thief River Falls 11, 26 and 5-yard lines in the first half, but still went into intermission involved in a scoreless tie. That changed on the first Green Wave possession of the second half after Lindgren fielded a punt on the run at his 16 and went 71 yards down the right side to the Prowlers' 13. Three plays later Justin Hecht took the ball through the middle on a five-yard touchdown run. Schantzen's kick made it 7-0 with 7:04 remaining in the third quarter.

Lindgren also set up what proved to be the game-winning field goal with an 18-yard punt return that carried to the Thief River Falls 26 early in the fourth quarter. Four plays (including a 10-yard holding penalty) netted just three yards, but Schantzen's kick put the Green Wave up 10-0 with 8:27 to play.

"He (Lindgren) is dangerous," pointed out Mumm. "It doesn't matter if it's kickoffs, punts or wide receiver, sooner or later he's going to beat you."

Thief River Falls' only offensive spark of the night was the late-game 13-play touchdown drive fueled by quarterback Treavor Peterson, who covered 68 of the 80 yards with 8-for-12 passing. He hit Wade Chiedo on a slant pattern over the middle for a 7-yard score that was followed by a Kraft kick for a 10-7 game with 4:04 left.

The Prowlers' defense forced the Green Wave to punt twice over the final four minutes, but both times gave the ball back on turnovers to wipe out any comeback hopes.

A low Peterson pass caromed off the body of the intended receiver and stayed in the air long enough for Danny Oian to make a diving grass-top interception at the Green Wave 44 with 2:22 remaining. Then with just 26 seconds to go, East Grand Forks defensive end Greg Meagher sacked Peterson from behind, forcing a fumble that he recovered at the Thief River Falls 18 to finish off the Prowlers.

Poor serving costs TRF in 3-2 setback

Service line errors cost Thief River Falls Tuesday in a 3-0 regular season-ending high school volleyball loss at Roseau.

The Rams won the see-saw contest 6-15, 15-9, 11-15, 15-10, 15-13. The Prowlers missed 29 serves during the course of the match as their record dipped to 16-8-1.

"We haven't had much problem serving this year," said Amy Roche, Thief River Falls' co-head coach along with Bruce Jean. "Generally we're an above-average team serving. But they (missed serves) killed us. Other than serving, I thought we played pretty well."

The two teams matched up well, according to Roche. "They were all very close games," she noted. "We started out strong. We came out smoking, but then we started worrying about our serves."

With setter Taya Hunt collecting 51 assists, five Prowlers reached double figures in the kill department during the long, five-game match. Nicole Kopari led the hit parade with 24 kills, while Lindsay Drury had 18, Becky Bray and Rachel Mathson 11 each, and Hunt got into the act with 10.

Hunt also had nine service aces, while Kopari and Bray finished with five each.

Thief River Falls won the junior varsity match 15-10, 6-15, 15-11.

TRF to host Sauk Rapids-Rice in football playoffs...

Prowlers will tackle Storm

Tuesday's opening round of the 1998 Section 8AAAA high school football playoffs will feature a first-ever meeting between Thief River Falls and Sauk Rapids-Rice, who will square off at 7 p.m. on Prowler Field. The winner will head to Alexandria for a Saturday semifinal game.

Regular season point standings determined the post-season match-ups. Top-seeded Alexandria will draw a first round bye, while the No. 4-seeded Prowlers host the No. 5 Storm in the other half of the Upper Bracket. In the Lower Bracket, Tuesday quarterfinals will find No. 7-seeded Little Falls at No. 2 Detroit Lakes and No. 6-seeded Fergus Falls at No. 3 Rocori.

Championship game will be played Thursday, Nov. 5, at 8 p.m. at the Fargedome.

Thief River Falls and Sauk Rapids-Rice both went 4-4 during the regular season. The Storm started the year with three straight losses, falling to 1997 Class AAA state champion Albany 12-0, Chisago Lakes 18-6 and Foley 15-13 before beating Princeton 21-0 and Mora 26-9. Sauk Rapids-Rice fell to Pine City 21-0 in Week 6, but finished the schedule with wins over North Branch 24-17 and Milaca 22-13.

The Prowlers received a forfeit win from Washburn (WI) to start the season, then lost to Detroit Lakes 31-14, edged Crookston 14-13 and shut out Virginia 50-0. They lost back-to-back games to Clars 5A Bemidji 40-13 and Grand Rapids 33-28, came back to knock off Fergus Falls 17-13, but fell to East Grand Forks 10-7 in the regular season finale.

An injury-plagued season continued for the Prowlers when senior Aaron Hendricks suffered a broken arm during Tuesday's game. Hendricks, who played regulaily in the defensive backfield ar part of the Prowlers' rotation system, was getting a chance to play some offense while spelling starting halfback Wade Chiodo late in the first half when the injury occurred on his first and only carry of the night.

Gators host 8AA playoff game

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River will play host to Bagley tonight (Saturday) in the Section 8AA high school football playoff quarterfinals. Game time is 6 p.m. in Middle River.

The Gators are 5-2. They were idle this week after closing out the 1998 regular season with a 28-0 victory over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo (Oct. 14) that stretched their winning streak to four games and gave them back-to-back shutouts going into the playoffs.

"We're playing pretty solid football," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Steve Willman. "Obviously there is still room for improvement, but we're happy with the way we're playing right now."

The Gators did not face any of the other Section 8AA teams during the regular season. A win would advance them into the Thursday, Oct. 29, semifinals against either Cass Lake-Bena or Pine River-Backus.

In the other 8AA quarterfinal bracket, top-seeded Mahnomen received a first round bye and will host a Thursday semifinal game vs either Pequot Lakes or Walker-Hackensack Akeley, who meet in today's quarterfinals.

Section 8AA championship game will be played Thursday, Nov. 5, at 5:30 p.m. at the Fargodome.

The Gators are going after their third straight post-season title. They won the Section 8C championship in 1996 and, after the Minnesota State High School League expanded its playoff field, captured the Section 8AA crown in 1997.

Mustangs cap 8-0 schedule

■ RLCC completes unbeaten regular season

Red Lake County Central completed an 8-0 regular season Monday with a 62-20 win over Red Lake in a North Tri-County Conference Nine-Man high school football game played at Plummer.

Andy Gustafson scored three touchdowns and gained 123 yards on just nine carries for the Mustangs. Wade Westlake and Nick Waldal both scored twice for the winners, with Mark Lorenson throwing for a pair of touchdowns.

Scoring started early. A game-opening possession for Red Lake wound up producing a 7-0 Red Lake County Central lead when a punt snap was dropped in the end zone and recovered by Westlake.

It was 27-6 at halftime, and on the first play of the second half, Gustafson broke off a 43-yard touchdown run.

"Actually, we didn't play all that well," said Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "We had way too many penalties. But it was a chance to end the season with everybody getting playing time both offensively and defensively."

The Mustangs finished with 179 yards on 25 running plays and Lorenson was 9-for-13 passing for 162 yards. Waldal caught three passes for 100 yards. Kick returns of 30 and 55 yards by Benji Kvasager also helped set up a pair of Red Lake County Central touchdowns.

Defensively, Matt Hruby had five unassisted tackles and seven assisted stops; Waldal wound up with five tackles, six assists and a fumble recovery; Matt Bjerklie had five tackles, two assists and a fumble recovery, and Jarrod Johnson made four tackles and added three assisted stops.

It was the first-ever unbeaten regular season for the Oklee-Plummer cooperative, and the first undefeated campaign for Brantl since 1983 when his Plummer squad war also an 8-0 North Tri-County Conference champion. That year a conference title earned teams a post-season Minnesota State High School League state playoff-qualifying game. The Cardinals beat Northern Lights Conference winner Kennedy 31-24 to move into the Nine-Man state quarterfinals, where they lost to Norman County West 46-0.

When MSHSL enrollment adjustments bumped Red Lake County Central into 11-man Class C, the program struggled. But with the addition of a sixth playoff class that allowed the Mustangs to return to Nine-Man football, on-the-field success followed over the past couple of years as Brantl nears the end of his 29th season as head coach.

TRF runners wrap up regular season

Thief River Falls boys and girls wrapped up their 1998 regular season high school cross country schedule Thursday by running in the Hawley/Ulen-Hitterdal Invitational.

Fergus Falls boys and Pelican Rapids girls won team titles. Individual wins went to Stephen Steskividge of Bagley/Fosston and Christa Pribula of East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls boys placed fifth and the girls were sixth in a six-team field.

"Although we didn't perform they way we would have liked to, we ran pretty well," reported Thief River Falls coach Terri Ueland.

Thief River Falls boys lost the services of Zach Bosh, who aggravated an ankle injury that has plagued him this fall and was not able to finish the race. Already missing from the line-up was Chad Borneman. Bosh and Borneman are the Prowlers' top two runners.

Individual efforts highlighted the showing by the Thief River Falls girls, according to Ueland. "Lisa (McKercher), Emily (Mugaas) and Rebekah (Solem) all ran well," she said.

Section 8AA meet will be held Thursday at Sartell, with the boys running at 4 p.m. and the girls starting at 4:30 p.m.

Shootout loss ends Blue Devils season

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke had trouble putting points on the scoreboard in three previous games, producing just one touchdown while losing to Kittson County North (54-0), East Grand Forks Sacred Heart (14-6) and Stephen-Argyle (67-0). Monday, offense war not a problem But defense was, with the Blue Devils losing a 46-42 shootout to Tri-County in a Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football game played at Goodridge.

It finished an 0-8 season for the Blue Devils and first-year head coach John Wilebski.

"It might not show it in the record, but we did improve through the season," pointed out Wilebski. "I think we came a long way from where we were at the start of the year. It was tough on the seniors, but we played a lot of younger kids this year, and we built a good foundation for the future."

Monday's season finale was a wild one. The two teams were tied 24-24 at halftime. Tri-County went ahead 38-36 in the third quarter and held on for the win over the final 12 minutes.

"No defense," noted Wilebski. "The defensive line play on both sides was poor."

It was a different story on the other side of the ball, according to Wilebski. "Our offensive line play

Central Lakes holds on for win over NCC

The Northland Community and Technical College volleyball squad went down fighting Thursday (Oct. 22) when the Pioneers finished the 1998 season by pushing Central Lakes to five games before losing a rally-point decision.

It appeared the host Raiders would duplicate an earlier 3-0 victory over the Pioneers, but instead they wound up working for a 15-0, 15-11, 10-15, 11-15, 15-8 decision.

Northland's year ended with 16 straight losses and a 2-19 record.

"I couldn't have been more proud of team," said first-year Northland coach Mike Zachow after the gutsy final-match performance. "The way the season went, and after losing the first two games, they could have very easily just gave it up. But they kept coming back. It was a great team effort. In the first game, Central Lakes played the best volleyball I saw all year," he said. "They never made an error. We played well, and we still got beat 15-0."

Harbott-Ihle beaten

Thief River Falls' senior doubles tandem of Katie Harbott and Lesley Ihle were eliminated in the first round of the individual portion of the 1998 Section 8AA girls high school tennis tournament Tuesday at the Grand Forks Tennis Centre.

Beth Steiger and Mandy Sheets of Brainerd jumped out to an early 4-0 first-set lead and went on to beat Harbott and Ihle 6-2, 6-3 in the quarterfinals of the four-bracket tournament that advanced its top two finishers to the Class AA state meet.

The loss closed out the season for Harbott and Ihle, who advanced in tournament play with a runner-up finish in the North Sub-Section 8AA doubles competition.

"They didn't play that bad," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg, "but they fell behind right away."

St. Cloud Tech beat Bemidji 5-2 in the state tournament-qualifying Section 8AA team championship match. The Tigers and Lumberjacks were winners in the South and North Sub-Section 8AA tournaments, respectively.

Kim Rose back home for concert in Erskine

Singer-songwriter Kim Rose, a native of the Erskine community who is building her career in public performance, will be back home for a concert on Sunday, November 1, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Erskine community center.

Coffee will be served during the afternoon and free-will donations will be accepted. Free registration will also be held for an autographed copy of Kim's first CD entitled Lover's Epitaph.

Rose, 28, who was featured in the Thief River Falls Times late last July prior to her Erskine "Summer Sizzler" concert, performs a wide variety of music that has appeal to listeners of all ages. She has a distinctive brand of "songtelling" incorporating faith, humor, poetry and political satire and her program includes a number of songs she has written herself.

Kim and her older sister were raised in the Union Lake area south of Erskine by their grandparents after their mother committed suicide when Kim was 10. Her grandmother, Madeline Johnson, still lives there and is an active member of the community.

For the past year and a half Kim has been performing full-time, spending a lot of time on the road and expanding her experience and gaining new fans and support. Wherever she has performed the audiences have been impressed and responsive, calling for encores and giving standing ovations.

In July Kim was nominated by the educational television station in Duluth-Superior for the Arrowhead Regional Arts Council's award for outstanding artistic achievement. The winner of that award will be announced in November.

In making the nomination, Dan Corbett, director of lifelong learning for WDSE-TV, wrote: "This prestigious award should go to the best of the best. Hence, my pleasure in submitting this nomination on behalf of the best singer-songwriter to emerge from our area in a long, long time.

"I have known Kim Rose for four years as both a fan of her remarkable music and as the director of several events at which we were fortunate enough to acquire her talents. Professionally, I engaged Kim Rose to perform at important events while I was Superintendent of Schools for the Diocese of Duluth; Superintendent of Schools for Barnum; education professor at the University of Wisconsin—Superior; and in my current position.

"At each event she captivated the audience with the beauty and power of her voice and the celebration in original song of her love of the Northland. At every performance for which I engaged Kim Rose, the audience gave her a standing ovation!

"One of the most surprising and wonderful facts about Kim Rose as a full-time performer is that she donates at least one-third of her performances for charitable and/or community events....Her commitment to bringing concert hall quality entertainment to rural areas and underserved populations is a tremendous artistic boon to Northland communities that should be formally recognized and applauded."

Rose also received a special award from the Public Broadcast System for her continuing work to involve children with the wonder of storytelling through her musical performances, which included Reading Rainbow celebrations in the Duluth area.

"The performances Kim Rose gave at these not-even-standing room celebrations quite simply astounded everyone," the letter accompanying the award stated.

"The case with which she performed for and interacted with children and also engaged the attention of the hundreds of adults present is a performance versatility I have not witnessed in any other performer."

Kim Rose, singer-songwritar who was raised in the Union Lake area south of Erskine and is a 1988 graduate of Fertile-Beltrami high school, will return home for a concert Sunday, November 1, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Erskine community center. Free-will donations will be accepted and coffee will be served.

BPO Elks offer scholarships to 500 students

Nearly $2.1 million in college scholarships will be awarded by the BPO Elks of the USA to a total of 500 high school seniors through its 1999 "Most Valuable Student" scholarship contest.

The contest is open to students in the graduating class of a high school, or its equivalent, who are citizens of the United States and residents within the jurisdiction of the BPO Elks of the USA. Applications will be available after November 1 from high school guidance offices, local Elks ledges or on the Internet at www.elks.org. For more information locally, contact the Thief River Falls Elks Lodge 1308 at 218-681-3045.

Deadline for the contest is Jan. 15, 1999. Completed applications must be turned in to the scholarship chairman, exalted ruler or secretary of the local Elks lodge.

Male and female students will compete separately. Applicants will be judged on financial need, leadership and scholarship. The Elks National Foundation will award scholarships to the top 500 applicants. The top male and female student will each receive scholarships of $7,500 for four years. Second place male and female will receive $4,000 a year for four years and third place will receive $3,000 a year for four years. The Foundation will also award 494 scholarships of $1,000 a year for four years. The 500 winners will be announced in May of 1999.

Through this competition and its four other scholarship programs, the Elks National Foundation annually awards nearly $3.2 million in college scholarships. In addition, many state Elks associations and local lodges offer scholarships.

Red River Trail group to promote river recreation

Red River of the North River Trail Group was formed recently to explore the possibility of developing a recreational water trail and other recreation opportunities in the Red River corridor. The group is comprised of local organizations, agencies and individuals interested in expanding the use of the Red River.

According to Cliff Barth, mayor of Breckenridge, a tentative vision or goal was established at a recent organizational meeting. "The Red River Trail will provide safe recreational access to the Red River of the North, with emphasis on interpretive, historical and environmental information," said Barth.

River Keepers, a Fargo-Moorhead group, initiated the organizational meeting October 13 in Moorhead. According to Bob Backman, executive director of River Keepers, the Red River of the North River Trail Group will initially focus on the river segment from Wahpeton-Breckenridge to Fargo-Moorhead. Initial plans call for small task forces to begin preliminary discussions and planning sessions. The entire Trail Group will meet again in January next year.

For additional information contact Bob Backman, River Keepers, at 701-235-2895; Cliff Barth, Breckenridge Mayor at 218-643-8363; or Dick Kimball, north area Trails and Waterways supervisor with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources at 218-755-3972.

TRF residents warned about skunks in area

Thief River Falls residents are being asked to be alert for the presence of skunks — of the four-legged variety. The malordorous critters are apparently on a high population cycle and are finding their way into garages and other hiding places.

The animal control officer in Thief River Falls, who has been receiving as many as three to four calls per day regarding skunks, says the skunks are looking for places to hibernate. He suggests that residents cover up likely hiding places. He also suggests that residents place moth balls in likely hiding places. Apparently, the smell of moth balls is more than even skunks can stand.

18th CRP sign-up to attract increased interest

Marshall County Expects Many CRP Requests

While a decision had not been made by the county committee as the Northern Watch went to press Friday morning, county executive director JoDell Poolman said she expected the county would request a waiver from the 25 percent maximum to permit 30 percent of the county cropland to be enrolled in the CRP program.

"Our bankers and many of our farmers favor the request," Poolman said. "I would expect our feed and seed dealers and the only implement dealer in the county to be opposed."

Marshall county's allowable acreage for CRP is presently set at 202,101 acres with 158,826 acres presently enrolled. With about 150 appointments already made for CRP sign-up in the Marshall county office in Warren, Poolman expects that the sign-up acreage will exceed the 43,275 acres remaining. An increase to 30 percent would permit another 40,420 acres to be enrolled.

East Polk In Expanded Area

East Polk county is also expecting a high number of appointments for sign-up with about 70 requests received through Thursday, according to NRCS district conservationist Raymond Reading at McIntosh.

Expansion of the Conservation Priority Area to include eastern Polk county is the major reason for the increased interest, Reading said. A public information meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, November 18, from 1 to 2 p.m. in the building housing the NRCS and FSA offices in McIntosh.

"We thought a meeting in the middle of the sign-up period would give us a chance to see how things were coming along and to update farmers on the situation," Reading added. He said he didn't expect Polk county to come close to its 25 per cent cropland enrollment maximum, and therefore no consideration was given to requesting a greater percentage.

Kittson Meetings Slated

In Kittson county information meetings will be held Monday, October 26, at 1:30 p.m. in the Lancaster American Legion club rooms, at 7 p.m. in the Kittson county courthouse in Hallock and on Tuesday, October 27, at the Eagles hall in Karlstad.

The FSA and NRCS officials told the Northern Watch that a number of farmers who intend to sign up for CRP contracts are younger farmers with hopes for an improvement in agriculture and the possibility that they can pick up their operation again when contracts expire 10 years from now.

Officials Temper Optimism

But the county officials also caution applicants about being too optimistic that their applications will be accepted.

"The nation has 36.4 million acres of CRP authorized," states Mike Ratzlaff, NRCS district conservationist in Pennington county. "In the 15th sign-up in the spring of 1997 about 16 million acres were accepted," he said. "Another nine million acres were accepted in the 16th sign-up in the fall of 1997 and it is anticipated that only five to six million acres will be accepted in this 18th sign-up." The 17th sign-up was for limited eligibility acres.

Cropland Eligibility

To be eligible to be placed in CRP, land must be:

(1) Cropland that has been planted or considered planted to an agricultural commodity two of the five crop years from 1994 to 1998 that is also physically and legally capable of being planted in a normal manner to an agricultural commodity; or

(2) Marginal pasture land that is either:

• Certain acreage enrolled in the Water Bank Program, or

• Suitable for use as a riparian buffer to be planted to trees.

In addition to basic cropland eligibility requirements, at least one of the following conditions must be met. Land must:

(1) Be considered highly erodible land according to the conservation compliance provision or, if a portion of a field, have a weighted average Erosion Index of 8 or higher.

(2) Be considered a cropped wetland;

(3) Be subject to scour erosion;

(4) Be located in a national or State CRP conservation priority area; or

(5) Be cropland associated with non-cropped wetlands.

Producer Eligibility

An applicant for CRP must have owned or operated the land for at least 12 months prior to close of the sign-up period unless:

• The new owner acquired the land as a result of death of the previous owner,

• The only ownership change occurred due to foreclosure where the owner exercised a timely right of redemption in accordance with state law; or

• The circumstances of the acquisition provide adequate assurance to the Farm Service Agency that the new owner did not acquire the land for the purpose of placing it in CRP.

teamwork, professionalism, management of physical restraints and management of pain.

Parker said teamwork refers to more than just the 84 employees on CNC. She said "team" involves administration, nursing, medical staff, social services, activities, billing, dietary, housekeeping, laundry, pharmacy, occupational, physical, respiratory and speech therapy and volunteer services. It's really a reflection on the whole hospital.

The high degree of professionalism among the staff, which was complimented by the survey team, refers to their attention and compassion to residents and their families, as well as problem solving.

A major focus of this year's inspection was management of physical restraints, a hot topic, Parker said.

Parker said the CNC staff have been reviewing the use of restraints for about 12 to 15 months. Prior to the surveyors visit, staff had attended various staff updates and workshops on the subject.

Presently, of the 90 residents at the CNC only two are on restraints, one with a side rail and another on a wheel chair.

Parker said since they began reviewing each use on a case by case basis and significantly reducing the use of restraints, they haven't observed any notable increase in accidents.

Parker said the policies regarding the use of restraints have shifted dramatically in the past couple of years from injury prevention to the comfort, happiness and dignity of residents. Parker said now they are using a lot of alternatives, such as alarms on wheelchairs that sound an alarm when a residents gets up out of a chair.

Parker cautioned that they aren't restraint free and don't intend to be in the future. Their focus, however, is on individual assessment. That assessment involves input from the resident, family and staff.

The 80-plus staff members of the CNC were also complimented on their management of pain. Parker said that's a result of individualized assessment and working with other staff and hospice on occasion.

Staff at the CNC aren't resting on their laurels. They are continuing their staff education efforts and other ways to improve on this year's perfect score.

County board supports SwisPennCo

The relationship between SwisPennCo and the county has been somewhat strained by all of these problems. The county is a co-permittee and subject to the same liability as SwisPennCo. Also, the county has been placed in a position of monitoring compliance issues at SwisPennCo. Tied to compliance issues are SCORE funds, which originate from taxes on garbage. Those funds are returned to counties, ostensibly for recycling efforts. As an incentive to meet compliance goals, the county told SwisPennCo that it would give the operation roughly $12,500 per quarter. Following recommendations derived from inspections, the county has not awarded the funds to SwisPennCo for the last two quarters. The county board will consider whether to award the funds to SwisPennCo at its next meeting.

The inspection report given by Howard Person and Pam Parkinson, environmental planner for the extension office, Tuesday at the county board meeting did not seem to indicate that the county was prepared to award the funds for the third quarter.

Kruse differed with Person on some of the definitions of terminology used by Person. Kruse and Nordhagen believe they are now in compliance.

Tuesday, the county board supported SwisPennCo's request to MPCA to move the compost piles, but permitting issues remain a large and concerning issue.

Solid waste issues are always a serious topic, and it was almost ironic that at the same meeting, the county received its final draft of a Solid Waste Plan that officials have been working on for years. In view of the continuing problems between SwisPennCo and the MPCA, the county board also received what Parkinson described as a "contingency plan" which without further discussion, was termed "very sensitive".

Person said the county board really has three options at this time: 1) do as they have always done — be a co-permittee and continue the relationship; 2) try to alter the contract to reduce liability; or 3) cancel the compost agreement and permit the county facility separately from SwisPennCo to limit liability.

was tremendous," he said, citing the blocking done up front by Seth Vettleson, Clifton Hanson, Steve Waling and Bryan Bjerkile.

Their efforts helped Marshall Tanner run for 227 yards on 21 carries. He scored three touchdowns. Mark Haugen added 57 yards on 11 carries and Alca Holte netted 38 yards on 14 tries.

In addition to the 88 points, the two teams combined for 835 yards of offense, with the Blue Devils netting 417 yards on 54 plays and the Wildcats picking up 418 yards on 77 snaps.

"We did everything but win," said Wilebski. "We didn't pick up any wins, but I think the kids still had fun this year."

Local student participates in College theater

Lisa Swanson of Thief River Falls will be among 26 students at Jamestown College performing in the musical "The Pirates of Penzance". The musical will be performed October 28-31 and November 4-7. Each performance begins at 8 p.m. in Jamestown College's Little Theatre.

With its hilarious tale about a rollicking band of pirates that threaten the lovely and virtuous daughters of Major-General Stanley with marriage, this masterpiece from the world's foremost creators of operetta is unsurpassed in all of musical comedy. "The Pirates of Penzance" was written by W.S. Gilbert, with music by Arthur Sullivan.

Biogas collection technology may qualify for loan

Minnesota Department of Agriculture has made $200,000 available in the form of zero-interest loans to farmers or others demonstrating manure storage and treatment techniques that collect biogas.

The loans are available to Minnesota residents looking to implement farm anaerobic manure digestion/biogas technology on their farms. This technology involves adapting manure storage and treatment practices to collect biogas, which may either be burned off or used as a source of heat and electrical generation.

The process also provides benefits to farmers by reducing odor and biologically stabilizing the digestion byproducts for such uses as fertilizer, feed or bedding.

Applications will be accepted until December 1. Projects must be implemented in Minnesota by Minnesota residents and must meet additional eligibility criteria. An independent panel of farmers and agricultural specialists will review applications.

For more information or a loan application, contact MDA Management Analyst Robert Iwan at 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107 or call him at 651-296-3820.

Cancer support group has first meeting Nov. 5

First meeting of a cancer support group sponsored by Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls and the American Cancer Society will take place Thursday, November 5, from 6 to 8 p.m. in the board room at the local medical center.

Facilitators for the group will be Joney Poole, RN, chemotherapy nurse at Northwest Medical Center and Ione Gibson, social worker. The group will meet on the first Thursday of each month from 6 to 8 p.m. in the board room.

Research studies are gathering evidence that mutual help group attendance—in conjunction with good medical care—contributes to the quality and length of life. Through them, people with cancer have access to information about developments in the field of cancer treatment, to information about local and state resources and to information about cancer research. Sharing with others and learning together can be a powerful experience, Poole said.

Grant applications for sustainable ag projects offered

Applications for grants are being accepted by the Minnesota Department of Agriculture's Sustainable Agriculture Program through December 15 to research and demonstrate innovative solutions for sustainable agriculture.

Individuals and teams of farmers, researchers and educators are eligible for up to $25,000 in grants to help get projects started.

Projects must be conducted on farms and are funded for three years. Joint applications for watershed projects or farmer groups are encouraged. Applicants are encouraged to contact program staff to solicit feedback in developing proposals. An independent panel of farmers and agricultural specialists will review applications.

A summary of current grants underway is available in the free, recently published Greenbook '98.

For more information and applications, contact Wayne Monsen, Grant and Loan Program Coordinator, Sustainable Agriculture Program, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107. Telephone number is 651-296-7673 or see MDA's home page on the internet at http://www.mda.state.mn.us.

Thefts appear to be a 'sign' of division

Detroit Lakes - The Detroit Lakes community center issue has some people so worked up they're stealing "vote no" signs out of peoples yards.

While only a half dozen such thefts have been reported to the police department, the actual number of stolen signs is between 80 and 100. Last weekend 11 "vote no" signs were found in a garbage can near the high school.

A Vote No committee was formed in opposition of a proposed half-cent sales tax in Detroit Lakes to pay for a community center.

The pro-sales tax group says it is not behind the thefts and that it wishes whoever is stealing the signs would stop.

The community is divided on the community center issue which will be decided in a referendum vote on November 3. Detroit Lakes Tribune

Nightmare ends for Williams family

Williams - October 22 started out like any other morning during the past six weeks for Vicky Poole of Williams. She was coping with the disappearance of her teenage son in Arkansas six weeks ago.

As she was making dinner for her other children the phone call that she had been waiting for came. Ryan had been found.

When she spoke to her son a few minutes later he explained that he had been in Texas the whole time and didn't know anyone was looking for him. He had simply left Arkansas to take a new job in Texas and hadn't called home. He said that he had told other people he was leaving, but through some miscommunication that message hadn't been passed on to anyone else.

He had returned to Arkansas to pick up his belongings when he was "found." His mother didn't understand the whole story but doesn't care. "I'm just thankful that my son is alive and well." The Northern Light

First female mayor appointed in Ada

Ada - Ada has its first woman mayor with the recent appointment of Kim Peters to the post.

The Ada City Council held a special meeting last week to fill the vacancy in the mayor position following the death of Don Visser. Vice Mayor Steve Tongen opened the meeting and announce that he was unwilling to take the lead position. He then moved to pass a resolution appointing Peters to the post through the remainder of the current term. Norman County Index

Warroad quilters hit milestone

Warroad - The ladies of Zion Lutheran Church in Warroad have made quite a few quilts over the years, turning out nearly 300 quilts in the average year.

This year they set a milestone constructing their 5,000th quilt for Lutheran World Relief. Although most of the quilts are sent away some have been made and shipped to help at a more local level. They donate them to families who have had fires and in the spring of 1997 sent a number of quilts to Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. Warroad Pioneer

Vicky Moman of Thief River Falls located the Medallion in the Medallion Hunt promoted by local merchants. Grygla receives funds for affordable housing project Greater Minnesota Housing Fund (GMHF) announced $202,000 in matching funds for three affordable housing projects in Greater Minnesota. One of the projects is located in Grygla.

The projects were selected through GMHF's Employer Assisted Housing Program that matches employer contributions to affordable housing projects and programs in Greater Minnesota. The Employer Assisted Housing Projects, located in Duluth, Grygla, and Mower county, will provide 71 low and moderate income employees with downpayment assistance and help construct four new affordable rental units.

Employer Assisted Housing is any housing program that is assisted by employer contributions or financing. Many rural communities and employers face growing pressure to increase the housing opportunities available to local employees. Employers can help address the affordable housing shortage through direct financial participation in local housing efforts and such efforts will be complemented by GMHF's Employer Assisted Housing Program. The result is a more stable local workforce and a healthier local economy.

"Employers are concerned about the lack of housing in their communities, but are not often active participants in addressing local housing needs. The Greater Minnesota Housing Fund is pleased that these employers have accepted the challenge and have worked with their communities to make affordable housing more accessible to these 75 families," Warren Hanson, President of GMHF.

Employers in three communities have recently become active in helping meet the local affordable housing need.

Grygla is a small community with a lack of rental housing for local employees and their families. Employment opportunities are strong, but many employees are forced to commute great distances because they are unable to find a decent and affordable place to live. Concerned about the vitality of the community, eight local employers and the Lions Club joined the City of Grygla in supporting a 4-unit rental project being developed by the Grygla Area Development Corporation. GMHF is matching the $60,000 in local contributions, with the balance of financing coming from American State Bank and the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency.

GMHF's Employer Assisted Housing program was launched in 1997. Since that time, GMHF has matched employer dollars in 12 affordable housing projects and programs, leveraging over $2.3 million in private employer dollars. Employer contributions have assisted the development of 149 affordable rental units and provided 112 families with downpayment assistance. For more information on Employer Assisted Housing, contact GMHF at 1-800-277-2258.

The Greater Minnesota Housing Fund is a non-profit intermediary organization that supports the creation of affordable housing in areas of economic growth throughout Greater Minnesota. Funded with $25 million from the McKnight Foundation and Blandin Foundation, GMHF helps communities and housing developers by assembling project resources and providing modest gap financing.

Campaign for District 1B nears end

Tim Finseth
for State Representative
District 1B

Lori Olson
for State Representative
District 1B

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the privilege of serving as your state representative over the past five years.

On Tuesday, November 3, you will make a very important decision about the direction state government takes in the next two years. Rural Minnesota, particularly District 1B, needs continued strong leadership at the State Capitol. With your help I will continue to be a strong voice and advocate for you and our community.

Northwest Minnesota has always been my home. I was born and raised on a farm south of Oklee where I still own a farm with my brother. I am currently employed with the Marshall County Soil and Water Conservation District, and live near Angus with my wife Ruth, and our son Cameron. In addition I am a member of the Warren Lions, Warren Snowmobile Club, Warren Rod and Gun Club, Minnesota Deer Hunters Association - Thief River Falls Chapter, Ducks Unlimited, and the Evangelical Covenant Church of Warren.

During the past five years as your legislator, I have worked hard to represent our communities at the State Capitol. Most recently, I have served on the House Committees on: environment, environment finance, transportation, and as the lead Republican on Ways and Means, and also served on the Flood Recovery Task Force. I have received the "Friend of Agriculture" award from the Farm Bureau for my efforts in protecting the family farm and promoting our agricultural industry. In addition,

My husband, Lyle and I farm east of Thief River Falls, raising mostly small grains. We have two boys, ages 12 and 14, who one day hope to farm the land that has been in the family since this area was opened for homesteading. We are raising our sons, as we were raised, with the rural values of honesty, integrity and hard work.

I come from a politically active family that taught me government is to serve the people and that being a public servant is an honor and a privilege. It would be my honor and a great privilege to represent you in St. Paul.

The issues that are important to me are exactly the same as the ones important to you. It wasn't hard to choose the campaign slogan "One of us for all of us," because I am one of you. I am a wife, a mother, a farmer, and a community member. Your voice will be heard and your concerns will be aired with a vote for me. I want to be your strong voice in the State House of Representatives.

Farmers Need a Strong Voice. Farming is the foundation of our rural communities. The growth and future of our towns depends on people having money to spend. Because of weather, crop disease and poor prices, we are experiencing all the pitfalls of the "Freedom to Fail" farm bill. The financial assistance coming from Washington D.C. is reported in billions, yet does nothing to address the real problems with agriculture. We cannot wait for Congress to take action, Minnesota must choose right now to support the family farm.

Charles Josephson of Thief River Falls was awarded the French bronze medal for Valour during his visit in September to five communities in France. The communities in France were celebrating their liberation from the Germans during World War II. Josephson was an Infantryman in the Fifth Division which liberated the communities.

U.S. Soldiers remembered by 5 French communities

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Almost 54 years after five towns near the border with Germany were liberated by the allies, which included the U.S. Fifth Infantry Division, the five towns held celebrations honoring the men and women who fought and died for their freedom. Charles Josephson of Thief River Falls was among the honored guests for the event.

A member of the U.S. Armed services between May of 1942 to October 15 of 1945, Josephson explained that he served with the Fifth Infantry division and currently belongs to the Society of the Fifth Infantry Division. A recent story in the society's newsletter informed members that the five towns in France — Corny, Domot, Ameville, Pagny sur Moselle, and Noveant sur Moselle — were participating in a celebration organized by "Thanks GIs", a organization created to honor the soldiers who liberated the communities nearly 54 years ago from German occupation. The celebrations were being held not only to honor those who fought and died in the battles that liberated the communities, but also for the benefit of young children in the communities who did not know much about the battles or understand their significance. The Society of the Fifth Infantry Division invited members to write to the organization and describe to their recollection of what happened during those battles.

Josephson was not likely to forget. On September 14, 1944, while fighting in these battles, he was severely wounded by a sniper. His ticket home was punched, but not until he had spent 13 months in hospitals. His letter describing his experiences resulted in an invitation to attend the celebrations in France September 11, 12, and 13 of 1998. He was one of five soldiers from the Fifth Infantry division who responded to the invitation.

They were quite anxious to meet him. Josephson said they called him five times to make sure he was going.

The celebrations are etched in his memory. As Josephson described it, he and his wife Ethel participated three days of parades, large receptions, meeting dignitaries, and five-course meals.

When they arrived at the Luxembourg airport they were met by two representatives of "Thanks GIs" and three representatives of the Luxembourg government. Later that same day he met the president of "Thanks GIs" and her husband in Corny.

The next day the celebrations began at Pagny sur Moselle with a parade lined by hundreds of people and children grades 1 through 8. Following the parade they placed a wreath at the monument of French War dead. At city hall, the mayor spoke and thanked the retired GIs for coming to France and presented them with medals and other gifts. A reception was then held for 400 to 500 people. After the reception they had a five-course meal.

That afternoon they went to Ameville where just about everything was repeated. In addition they were taken by restored army vehicles to places where the Fifth Division fought their way across the Moselle river. At the river, they placed a wreath in the water for the GIs who died in that crossing. After that, they had a two-hour five course dinner, which ended at about midnight.

Josephson was impressed that at every event the same band began each proceeding with the Star Spangled banner followed by the French National Anthem. Flags from many veteran posts were also at the events every day, Josephson said.

The next day they went to Domot where they were presented medals and named honorary citizens. Military officials and the mayor of the city spoke. At the ceremony, which was followed by a wine reception, for 300 to 400 peo-

Farmer pinned under tractor for nine hours

Shevlin - Robert Johnson's tractor tipped back until it rested with the nose pointed upward, pinning him between the seat and the ground.

The accident occurred around 9 a.m. last Tuesday at his rural Shevlin farm, and Johnson remained pinned until his wife Diane found him at 5:30 p.m.

Firefighters from Clearbrook were called to remove the tractor, and Bagley's Fire Department sent help.

Gasoline dripped on Johnson as he lay pinned all day, causing chemical burns to his skin. He was taken to Clearwater Memorial Hospital and was then transferred to MeritCare Hospital in Fargo. According to his brother, while not broken, one of Robert's legs suffered serious damage. Farmers Independent

FSA accepting loan deficiency payments

Farm Service Agency is currently accepting applications for Loan Deficiency Payments (LDP) on grain commodities that have been harvested for uses other than grain, such as silage and forage. If a farmer has this type of commodity, but has already started feeding or has sold the commodity, they must apply for the LDP by November 2, 1998, to receive payment. If the commodity is stored in the farm and not sold, the LDP may be applied for at any time.

LDPs are effective when the Posted County Price (PCP) for a commodity goes below the established county commodity loan rate. Payment is issued on the difference between the loan rate and the PCP. The PCP is calculated by FSA and generally follows the daily local market price; it is available at local elevators, radio stations and the FSA office.

To be eligible for an LDP, farmers must be eligible for USDA/FSA benefits, have produced the crop, and have title to the commodity at the time of application.

Loan Deficiency Payments are now available on 1998 crop only, through March 31, 1999 for small grains and May 31, 1999 for coarse grains.

BSU band to perform in TRF on November 9

Bemidji State University band will perform an 8:45 a.m. concert on November 9 at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls as part of Bemidji State University's fall concert in-school tour.

Playing with the band is Anthony Kennedy from Thief River Falls. Kennedy, a freshman music education major, is the tenor saxophone section principal. Selected by audition, principals conduct sectional rehearsals and lead group preparation.

The concert is the first stop for the band on the tour, which begins with a kick-off concert in Bemidji. Between November 9-11, the band will also appear in the Minnesota towns of Hallock, Warroad and Blackduck as well as the cities of Elk Creek and Miami in Manitoba.

"The concert will offer something for everyone," said Dr. Jeff Macomber, director of the University band. "Musical selections will include an eclectic mix of traditional, modern, serious, popular, old and new pieces for wind band."

Featured are works by Robert Ward, George Gershwin, Ralph Vaughan Williams, Edward Elgar, Jack Stamp, Stephen Bulla, and David Holsinger.

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere
email: gabrich@northernnet.com

I hope none of you made the Hot Fudge Pudding Cake from the October 17 Soupcon with 1/4 cup salt. I made a typo and it should be 1/4 teaspoon salt. Please change your recipe. Sorry about that – wouldn't it taste awful?

Halloween night is the time for a quick meal to allow time for trick and treating and (too much) candy-eating afterward. Maybe these recipes will help you have a happy Halloween.

The kids will love this pizza-like dish before they go out trick or treating, and it will keep them warm the whole evening:

POTATO PEPPERONI DISH

2 - 4 tablespoons butter
5 large unpeeled potatoes, cut into 1/8 inch slices
1 small onion, chopped
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
1 (8 ounce) can tomato sauce
1 (3 1/2 ounce) package sliced pepperoni
2 large tomatoes, diced

In non-stick skillet, melt butter. Remove from heat. Arrange potatoes on bottom and up sides of skillet. Sprinkle with onion, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over low heat until the potatoes are tender, about 20 minutes.

Sprinkle with cheese. Layer with half of tomato sauce, all of pepperoni and tomatoes and then remaining tomato sauce.

Cover and cook on low until cheese is melted and tomatoes are heated through.

And here's another meal that would be great for Halloween night:

TACO PIZZA

1 1/4 cups cornmeal
1 1/4 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2/3 cup milk
1/3 cup butter
1/2 pound hamburger
1/2 pound pork sausage
1 (6 ounce) can tomato paste
1 (14 1/2 ounce) can diced tomatoes, undrained
1 envelope taco seasoning mix
3/4 cup water
1 1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese
2 cups chopped lettuce
1 cup diced fresh tomato
1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
1/2 cup sliced green onions

In medium bowl, combine cornmeal, flour, baking powder and salt. Add milk and butter and mix well.

Press into bottom and sides of 12 to 14 inch pizza pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Cool.

In large skillet, brown beef and sausage. Drain. Stir in tomato paste, canned tomatoes, taco seasoning and water. Bring to a boil and simmer, uncovered, for 5 minutes. Spread over crust.

Combine cheeses and sprinkle 2 cups over the meat layer. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes or until cheese melts.

Top with lettuce, fresh tomato, olives, onions and remaining cheese.

Have this salty snack ready when the little goblins are sick of sweets - it's easy to make in the microwave:

MICROWAVE SNACK MIX

1/2 cup butter
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
5 cups oyster crackers
3 cups mini pretzels
2 1/2 cups salted peanuts
2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese

In small micro-safe bowl, combine butter, chili powder, cumin and garlic powder. Cover and microwave until butter is melted.

In 3 quart micro-safe bowl, combine crackers, pretzels and peanuts. Add butter mixture and mix lightly. Sprinkle with Parmesan and toss to coat.

Microwave, uncovered, on high for 7-8 minutes or until mixture begins to toast, carefully stirring every 2 minutes. Cool and store in airtight containers.

If your little ghosties get some apples for their treats, they'll love to eat them if you have this tasty dip on hand:

PEANUT BUTTER APPLE DIP

1 (8 ounce) package cream cheese, softened
1 cup peanut butter
1 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup milk
3-4 apples, cut into wedges

In mixing bowl, combine first 4 ingredients. Mix well. Serve with apples. Store in fridge.

Diving Ducks

We've all seen some version of the sentiment, whether on a wall poster or a T-shirt or the brim of a ball cap. The specific image which sticks in my brain involves an overwhelmingly large bird of prey swooping out of a darkened sky, talons menacingly outstretched as they reach toward the unprotected frailty of a field mouse. The outcome is inevitable; there is no avenue of escape.

The caption reads "A last act of brave defiance" as the mouse stands silhouetted against the fiery prospects of his demise with arm raised and middle finger extended. And while the "cuteness" of the picture might threaten its credibility, I'll contend that nature does indeed allow for such sublime moments. I was guiding for ducks this weekend and had nature extend its finger three times.

Hunting is not a perfect science. Yes, the goal is to kill in as humane a fashion as possible, but unfortunately there is room for error. It's this margin that separates the good hunters from the great ones. Knowledge and experience minimize the potential for misplaced shots.

Duck hunting, and more specifically, diving duck hunting, exaggerates this gray area between good and great. Questions about range become less of an issue than speed and its relevance to leads. Bluebills and buffleheads will generally decoy close enough to offer good shot opportunities, but the pace of this offering can intimidate even the most seasoned of hunters.

In short, there are going to be some cripples—birds that drop to the water but are still physically capable of swimming away. Usually a quick second shot is all that's needed to end the chase, but occasionally choppy water and the tightly packed feathers of the now balled-up bird allow for escape beyond shotgun range.

I don't carry a gun when I guide, leaving me two options. First there's the marginally legal practice of putting a guy with a loaded shotgun in the bow of the duck boat and bouncing him across three-foot waves in pursuit of a duck that dives into the crest of each roller only to surface in some random spot 20 yards away so that the guy with the shotgun can swing wildly, lose his balance, and fire off a round before the duck dives again. No thanks! That sounds like something Doc Kevorkian might concoct.

I like the follow-them-until-they-are-tired-and-scoop-them-up-with-a-net method. It requires a little more patience and time, but it's infinitely safer and what would I be doing other than drinking coffee in the blind and ruining my chances at a decent tip by pointing out to my charges just what poor shots they were anyway?

The duck dives and I rush to that spot and top, watching for the telltale bubbles that the bird must expel to keep its buoyant body under water. The bubbles indicate the direction taken and sure enough, the bird surfaces. Seeing me, it dives again, coming up this time only half as far away. I follow the tiring duck. The process continues and the distances shorten until I stand poised at the gunwale, dip net in hand, ready to end the chase.

But this last dive ends in no resurfacing. I glance around and make dejected note of the rock pile 30 yards to the east. Yes, he could have reached bottom, I acknowledge in defeat. The duck is gone.

In a classic example of Mother Nature getting the last grim laugh, ducks will recognize the futility of their flight and lock tenaciously onto weeds or wedge themselves in available bottom structure, preventing a return to the perils of the surface.

No, they can't expect to survive. They breathe air like you and I. However, given the choice between succumbing to capture or mutinously denying the surface world a meal by self-imposed destruction, they choose the latter. They accept the death, but do so on their terms, not mine.

I don't intend to make a big emotional to-do about this, but I'd like to recognize the power of the notion. It makes my passions for hunting seem so much more noble and my quarry so much more worthy when I think of that duck, permanently bound to the bottom of the lake, in eight feet of murky water, its wing upraised with all the primary feathers curled back except the middle one in a "last act of brave defiance."

Arena Walking Program begins on November 2

On Monday, November 2, the Thief River Falls Arena Walking Program will begin its 12th year at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center in Thief River Falls. The program was begun to encourage people to walk on a regular basis as part of their exercise and fitness program. The Arena Walking Program is again sponsored by the Dakota Clinic - TRF and Northwest Medical Center and is available to the community through cooperation with the City of Thief River Falls.

Interested persons may register at the front desk of Northwest Medical Center beginning October 29, 1998. Registration is $3. At the time they register, participants will receive a book for logging miles. Walkers reaching goals of 50, 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500 miles are asked to call Gail Holland at Northwest Medical Center to report their miles.

The Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center is available for walking seven days a week but certain time restrictions must be imposed to allow other activities to take place. Walkers are invited to use the facility daily, from 7:30 a.m. to closing. Participants are discouraged from walking during hockey games, recreational skating and other activities using the arena. No walking will be allowed from 7:30 a.m. to noon on days after hockey games (to allow for cleaning). Walkers are asked to keep safety in mind at all times when walking. The City of Thief River Falls Park and Recreation Department is asking that all walkers treat skaters with courtesy - even if it means slowing down your walk in that area. Better yet, when Recreational Skating is in session - walk forward and back, avoiding the front altogether.

Any questions regarding the Arena Walking Program can be directed to Gail Holland, Public Relations Coordinator at Northwest Medical Center, 218-681-4240, ext. 210.

Agassiz Lost Bay Auto Drive closes for the season

Lost Bay Habitat Drive and Maakstad Hiking Trail at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will close on Wednesday, November 4, and will remain closed until Spring 1999. Visitors may continue to observe wildlife along Marshall County road 7, which bisects the southern portion of the refuge, and along other roads bordering the refuge. Some of the resident wildlife species observed during the winter months are moose, deer, common ravens, black-billed magpies, downy and hairy woodpeckers, ruffled grouse and several other species of birds and mammals which remain active during the winter months.

The refuge staff hopes that everyone who visited the refuge during the summer months enjoyed the plant species making up each habitat type and wildlife species living in each habitat along the drive and hiking trail. The drive will open again approximately May 1, 1999.

Let's Look At Reality Of Amendments 1 and 2

On Tuesday's election ballot will be three proposed amendments to the Minnesota Constitution, two of which deal with natural resources and the environment. It is important to note that on all constitutional amendments, adoption requires a "yes" vote by a majority of those voting in the election. Those who do not vote on an amendment are in fact counted as voting against it.

Amendment No. 1 would extend the dedication of lottery proceeds to the environment and natural resources trust fund and maximize long-term total return to the fund.

Amendment No. 2 would "affirm that hunting and fishing and taking of game and fish are a valued part of our heritage that shall be forever preserved....."

This latter amendment, if adopted, would add a section to Article XIII of the Minnesota Constitution which would read: "Hunting and fishing and the taking of game and fish are a valued part of our heritage that shall be forever preserved for the people and shall be managed by law and regulation for the public good."

This amendment is an opportunity for residents of Minnesota to make a statement on the value these outdoor activities hold for them and make it much more difficult for individuals and groups to attempt to end these recreational pursuits. And since the amendment calls for continued law and regulation to manage these activities for the public good, expressed fears of reducing species to extinction under the amendment are unfounded. We look at it as buying an insurance policy against loss of a valued possession.

While most people have a pretty good idea what Amendment No. 2 will and will not do, such is not the case with Amendment No. 1. There seems to be much misunderstanding, not so much over what the amendment would require but how the lottery proceeds are being and would be used. We weren't clear on all points, either, so we made a couple of phone calls to find someone who could provide some education.

We found that person in John Velin, director of the Minnesota Commission on Legislative Resources (LCMR), which administers the environment and natural resources trust fund— the fund into which 40 percent of the net state lottery proceeds are deposited. If Amendment No. 1 is adopted, the fund would receive not less than 40 percent of the state lottery proceeds from the year 2001—when the current dedication of proceeds ends—through the year 2025.

We believe there are several facts to take into consideration regarding this amendment and all its ramifications.

First of all, back in 1988, authorization of the state lottery was "sold" to rural Minnesota on a split of the lottery proceeds—50 percent to an Environmental Trust Fund (created on a separate amendment question in the same election) and 50 percent to the Greater Minnesota Fund aimed to help rural areas of the state. Minnesota voters bought into the lottery as a means to raise extro money for these purposes. The division of proceeds was not a part of the actual amendment, however, and within the next session the legislature had dumped the Greater Minnesota Fund and taken more than half of the lottery proceeds for the general fund. Without passage of Amendment No. 1 Tuesday, the rest of the dedicated proceeds could disappear into the general fund by the same process after current dedication expires in 2001.

Second, the lottery proceeds which go into the environment and natural resources trust fund can not be spent. The principal remains to grow and only a portion of the interest can be spent for environment, natural resources and wildlife purposes. If the amendment is passed Tuesday, it is projected that the trust fund would grow to $1.2 billion by the year 2016 and there would be about $58 million available annually for expenditure—and millions of dollars of interest would still be available each year until then. This is a good insurance policy for wildlife and the environment if the state faces leaner times down the road.

Third, while the term "natural resources" is used in the name of the trust fund, it is not administered by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The DNR can—and does—request project funds from the LCMR. But funds may also be requested by private non-profit organizations and other public agencies for projects. Requests are evaluated by LCMR staff for their compatibility with an adopted strategic plan and ranked as to priority by the commission. This ranking is formed into the LCMR budget which must be approved by the legislature every two years. LCMR also administers the Minnesota future resources fund which receives two cents from the tax on each pack of cigarettes sold in the state.

In 1997, for instance, LCMR recommended to the legislature funding of 101 projects totaling $37,208,000. Of this total, 19 percent went to local government, 24 percent to private non-profit projects, 44 percent to state projects, 2 percent to state/private college projects and 11 percent to the University of Minnesota, primarily for research.

Any agency or entity receiving an appropriation from LCMR must submit a work program and semiannual progress reports as a condition of accepting the funds. None of the money provided may be spent unless the commission has approved the work program.

LCMR is a 20-member commission including the chairs of the House and Senate committees on environment and natural resources, House ways and means and Senate finance, and environment and natural resources finance or their designees, seven members of the Senate appointed by the subcommittee on committees of the committee on rules and administration, and seven members of the House appointed by the speaker. At least three members from the House and three from the Senate must be from the minority caucus.

In addition, the governor appoints an 11-member citizen advisory committee—including at least one member from each of the state's eight Congressional districts—to advise the legislative commission on project proposals to receive funding from the trust fund and the development of budget and strategic plans. Arlan Anderson of Argyle is a member of the citizen advisory committee from the Seventh District. In other words, folks, the LCMR is about as close to the people as any state operation can get.

A recent editorial in the Duluth News Tribune opposes the trust fund dedication extension. It says it would be "especially a mistake to dedicate money in the Constitution. Dedication by law can at least be overturned by a simple act of lawmakers. Once it's in the Constitution, it takes a lot of time and a vote of state residents to end the restriction.....Such dedication is, essentially, a statement that we don't trust those who'll come after us to do the right thing."

Precisely the point. Without some worthy purpose for its proceeds, the state lottery lacks any redeeming social virtue. With the environment and natural resources trust fund as a beneficiary, this method of pilfering from the people has at least a semblance of respectability. If things in the state get so bad financially that a change is necessary, the people can adopt a corrective amendment—and that's O.K. But the beauty of this amendment this year is that lawmakers won't be able to get their hands on the money with a "simple act" a few months or a few years down the road—as they did in the past.

Legislators hate dedicated funds. That's why the people should love them, including extending this one.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

The flyer sent to our homes by the Taxpayers' League contains gross distortion of figures. More alarming is the fact that it fosters an ideology, accepted by many politicians, which poses a major threat to our state's quality of life. It conveys the message that excellence can be achieved without sacrifice.

That is echoed by candidates who on one hand promise to cut taxes, and on the other hand to express their commitment to such things as improving the quality of education. This sounds great to voters, but it is political gibberish. There are no short cuts to excellence. Quality and tax revenues are inseparable.

The State of Minnesota has the reputation of having the highest quality of life in the nation. How we raise the tax revenue to maintain this quality is debatable. I would advocate lowering the taxes for those who are struggling and raising taxes on those with the means to pay. However, the need for this tax revenue is not debatable.

Sincerely,
Milo Mathison

my re-election effort has been endorsed by the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce and the National Rifle Association.

While meeting with constituents this summer, I have heard many issues that are of concern to area residents, the farm crisis, jobs, education, crime, healthcare, flood recovery and taxes to name a few. These are also issues that are important to me.

I know how important agriculture is to this state and particularly to this region. That is why in the legislature I authored the Federal Crop Insurance reimbursement bill, the scab funding bill, the farm equipment sales tax exemption bill and the landowners rights bill. I also worked to revise the wetland laws and other burdensome regulations that affect farmers ability to manage their farms. These have been important steps to help preserve our family farms.

I have always worked to protect jobs in our area. That is why I have worked to reform our workers compensation laws and our business and industry tax laws. When snowmobiles and personal watercraft were being threatened by liberals in state government I worked to lead the charge against over-regulation that would take jobs from our community.

Minnesota home owners and business property taxes are much too high. This is why I supported lowering property taxes and also supported the property tax rebate. I have also consistently voted to lower income taxes and wasteful spending by the State of Minnesota. I have always opposed any tax increases and will continue to do so in the future.

And finally, the education our children receive today is crucial to their future and the future of our state. I remain committed to equal funding of our rural schools and an educational system that promotes reading, writing and math skills. We can no longer throw money at programs that do not meet our overall goal — a quality education preparing students for their future.

My highest legislative priority is to you, the residents of District 1B. By working together, we will keep Northwestern Minnesota a great place to live, work, and raise our families.

Thank you for your support.

Grant to MN to assist individuals with disabilities

Minnesota will receive $517,243 this year and nearly $2.59 million over five years to assist adults with disabilities in getting jobs. With this grant, comes the opportunity to counter the disincentives to employment that exist in the current disability benefit system.

"Minnesota is routinely setting record-low unemployment rates, yet three-quarters of the people with disabilities do not have jobs," said Minnesota Governor Arne Carlson. "This grant will provide a giant step forward in assisting people with disabilities to join the workforce at a time when Minnesota faces a worker shortage."

Work Incentives Assistance Centers will be established within Minnesota WorkForce Centers throughout the state to educate and inform eligible Minnesotans. The pilot project reduces the barriers to returning to the workplace.

"Minnesota, again, is at the fore front of discovering innovative ways to match employers and job seekers," said Minnesota Department of Economic Security Commissioner R. Jane Brown. "Our Rehabilitation Services branch will be partnering with the Minnesota Department of Human Services in this pilot project."

Also, earlier this month, Wally Roers, who is director of Minnesota's Disability Determination Services (DDS), received the Social Security Administration Commissioner's Award. The award recognizes the outstanding work of Roers on behalf of DDS in Minnesota and nationwide. The Commissioner's Award is the highest honor given by SSA. DDS is in Minnesota Department of Economic Security's Rehabilitation Services, and processes applications for Minnesotans who file for disability benefits.

ple, a gentleman asked if Josephson would visit with the man's grandfather. Josephson shook hands with the man's grandfather who was about Josephson's age. In French, which was translated by his son, he explained that because of the Americans he was let out of Dachau, an infamous concentration camp. Josephson said the man did not want to let go of his hand. Josephson was not even sure the man was liberated by the Fifth Division.

Following this reception they went to another reception where Josephson said, it seemed like everyone had something for them to autograph. That reception was followed by a five-course dinner.

After the dinner, they went to Corny where they participated in another parade and placed wreaths at two of their war memorials. One marker was dedicated in part to the Fifth Division. Josephson remembered that at Corny, two days before he was wounded they fought a battle with the Germans, killing and capturing 38 and four tanks. It was also where 18 of their men were captured.

During the ceremony at Corny, a member of French Military Affairs presented each of them with the French equivalent for the Bronze Medal for Valour. After this ceremony they rode on the river in a restored army duck. Then, they went back downtown and dedicated another marker to the Fifth Division where a new bridge was being built and then another reception followed by another five-course meal, which ended sometime around midnight.

The next day, they were taken to two German forts above the town of Corny. The forts had been built between 1870 and 1918, but were used again by the Germans during World War II. Josephson explained that the public is not allowed in the forts because of danger caused by unspent ammunition.

During World War II, one fort housed 800 men in an underground fortress that covered 240 acres. The second fort covered only 150 acres. "That's what we were supposed to take during World War II," said Josephson.

A lot of men died during the battles for the forts in this area, he added.

While at the forts Josephson explained that one of their driver's had a habit of going into the forts despite the prohibition. In 1994 he spotted the heel of a GI boot and in attempting to dig it out discovered a foot and body attached. He reported it to the U.S. cemetery caretakers who contacted French authorities. Upon investigation, they recovered the remains of two GIs who had been medics. They had dog tags on and were identified and interred in the cemetery. Josephson said the French government later located their driver and sentenced him to a few days in jail for going in the fort.

Josephson said he was injured in September and at that time they had the forts surrounded. It wasn't captured until November. They lost an awful lot of men trying to take the fort before they decided to sit back and starve them out.

That afternoon, they traveled to Metz where they had dinner at French Military Headquarters. Then they went to Noveant sur Moselle where they participated in another parade, heard a speech by the mayor and bands played. At city hall they were given gifts including a commemorative plate, a scroll naming them honorary citizens, boxes of candy, a bottle of wine and a wooden shoe filled with a bag of French soil. The idea behind the wooden shoe and bag of French soil was to allow the GIs to take a little of their adopted home back with them and plant a flower in the soil. Then, he said, they had another five course meal, which didn't end until 1 a.m.

The next day, Josephson said, they started home. He said that while he was in the airport reading U.S. Today, a man came up behind him and handed him a Luxembourg newspaper. The newspaper contained a news story and pictures of the many celebrations. As Josephson was to discover, it was one of many newspaper accounts of the event. As he recalled then, there were photographers and news organization representatives everywhere they went.

Josephson grew up in Goodridge after his family moved there in 1922. He was married for about 14 to 15 months before he was drafted into the military. During the 63 days he served in combat, he said, they lost over half of his original company. He was wounded twice during his service. The first injury was a result of shrapnel from mortar fire. The second injury was caused by a sniper.

Following his military career, Josephson worked for 10 years at the Middle River Record, and then 21 years at the employment office in Thief River Falls.

Family & Friends support group to meet November 2

Friends & Family support group will be at 10 a.m. on Monday, November 2 in the community room at Summerfield Apartments in Warren. The meeting is for family members or friends who provide care and/or support to elderly persons.

Marshall Manor has a unit specializing in care for people with Alzheimer's or related disorders. Realizing the impact the disease has on families, it provides education and support for families facing these issues.

Five former soldiers of the U.S. Fifth Division during World War II were honored during celebrations in France this September. The purpose of the event was to remember the sacrifice of those who fought during the war and help the young children of those communities participating in the event, to learn more about their history. The five men were, from left, Mitchell Sytkowski, Nick Pokrajec, Charles Josephson, Larry Nichols, and Frank Smith.

Everywhere they went people were asking for their autograph. Charles Josephson of Thief River Falls, was among five former soldiers of the U.S. Fifth Division during World War II who helped liberate five communities in France. These five communities held celebrations in September.

One of the forts that the U.S. Fifth Division attacked during World War II still stands. Charles Josephson of Thief River Falls recently had an opportunity to visit the fort in France.

Several mayors of communities in France, including the Mayor of Pagny, greeted Charles Josephson of Thief River Falls. Josephson was one of five individuals who responded to their invitation to visit them in France. The five individuals were also members of or connected to the Fifth Division which liberated the five communities from German occupation in World War II.

Charles Josephson and his wife Ethel visited several communities in France where Josephson and other members of the Fifth Division during World War II were honored.

This marker was dedicated to the "valiant American soldiers of the United States Fifth Division," who are remembered for crossing the Moselle river in September of 1944 to liberate the community of Corny for German occupation. It was one of the markers dedicated during celebrations in France attended by Charles Josephson. Josephson was among the soldiers of the Fifth Division.

Levi Kraft kicked a single-game school record four field goals Tuesday in Thief River Falls' Section 8AAAA high school football playoff game against Sauk Rapids-Rice at Prowler Field. The first kick (left) was a 20-yarder. The third kick was the longest at 39 yards and was followed by a fist-pumping celebration (right) by Kraft and his holder, Jeff Rislov (99). Despite the field goals and a 3-for-3 effort in extra point kicks by the 5-9, 230-pound senior, the Prowlers lost a 40-33 season-ending overtime decision.

Sauk Rapids-Rice wins 8AAAA football playoff game in overtime...

Storm out-scores Prowlers 40-33

You can't match touchdowns with field goals and come out ahead in football. It doesn't compute. Thief River Falls found that out Tuesday in a 40-33 Minnesota State High School League Section 8AAAA playoff game loss to Sauk Rapids-Rice that required overtime to produce a winner.

Including overtime, both teams had 10 offensive possessions. The Prowlers produced points on seven of those opportunities, the Storm scored a half-dozen times. However, four of the Thief River Falls scores were field goals, while all six Sauk Rapids-Rice scoring plays were touchdowns.

The NFL-like performance by Thief River Falls kicker Levi Kraft, who hit field goals from 20, 30, 39 and 31 yards, along with a 311-yard, three-touchdown rushing effort by halfback Wade Chiodo, couldn't get the No. 4-seeded Prowlers past the No. 5-seeded Storm and into the playoff semifinals against top-seeded Alexandria. A season that held high expectations ended at 4-5.

Sauk Rapids-Rice went to 5-4 and earned the trip to Alexandria behind halfback Louis Winskowski, a 5-8, 153-pound junior, who carried 27 times for 336 yards. He scored twice and fullback Josh Merrick reached the end zone three times, including a tie-breaking 2-yard run in overtime.

Coming off a disappointing performance in a regular season-ending 10-7 loss at East Grand Forks the previous Tuesday, the Prowlers found themselves trailing the Storm by 15 points in the first half and, after a see-saw battle, still faced a 14-point fourth quarter deficit. But they rallied and forced overtime on a 40-yard Chiodo touchdown run and a Kraft conversion kick that tied it 33-33 with 61 seconds remaining in regulation time.

It didn't take Sauk Rapids-Rice long to gain the advantage in the extra session as Winskowski weaved through the left side on an eight-yard first down carry and Merrick, a 6-2, 232-pound senior, charged through the middle on second down to score standing up. Ryan Gustofson's conversion kick made it 40-33.

> ■ Quarterfinals Tuesday, Oct 27 - Detroit Lakes 41, Little Falls 6, Sauk Rapids-Rice 40, Thief River Falls 33 (ot), Fergus Falls 21, Rocori 3.
> ■ Semifinals Saturday, Oct 31 - Sauk Rapids-Rice at Alexandria; Fergus Falls at Detroit Lakes > ■ Championship Thursday, Nov 5 - Fargodome, 8 p.m.

Thief River Falls' overtime offense was also two plays long, but with starkly different results. On the first snap, quarterback Treavor Peterson caught a finger in the eye as he tried to hand the ball off. The Prowlers lost a yard and the services of Peterson on the play. Thief River Falls' season ended on the next play when back-up quarterback Brad Bulger became engulfed in a strong push from the Sauk Rapids-Rice interior line on a quick one-step slant-in pass call that wound up as a fumble. Storm linebacker James Tabatt fell on the ball to preserve the win.

It was a disappointing, but gutsy performance by the Prowlers, according to head coach Jeff Mumm. "After the East Grand Forks game, I challenged the kids during the week," he said. "I wanted them to show the armchair quarterbacks in the community what they could do. I was proud of the way they played tonight. They can walk off the field holding their heads high. There were at least three times in the football game where they could have quit, but they didn't. They kept coming back. We gave ourselves a chance to win the football game at the end, and that's all you can ask."

Things could not have started any better for the Prowlers, who ripped off gains of 19 (Chiodo), 14 (Adam Haviland), 14 (Chiodo) and 16 (Chiodo) yards on the first four running plays of the night. But after those big chunks of yardage gave Thief River Falls a first-and-goal at the 3-yard line, the Prowlers hit a wall and had to settle for a Kraft field goal from the 10. It was a sign of things to come.

The 3-0 edge stood up through the rest of the first quarter. The next 12 minutes produced 31 points.

A 10-play, 56-yard Sauk Rapids-Rice drive ended with a 14-yard Nathan Larson swing pass to Merrick out of the backfield for a touchdown 1:23 into the second quarter.

Chiodo responded with a 56-yard run on the Prowlers' next play from scrimmage that carried to the Storm 13. But they were still there when Kraft was called on to kick from the 20, making it 7-6.

The next series featured a 38-yard run by the speedy Winskowski that was followed by a next-snap 17-yard touchdown run by Merrick, who stepped through tacklers on a trip through the middle with 6:19 to play in the first half.

An interception by defensive back Jon Pressnall at the Thief River Falls 45 and a return to the 23 led to a 3-yard touchdown dive by Merrick with 4:33 on the clock to provide the Storm with a 21-6 cushion.

However, a 37-yard kickoff return by Darin Bjerknes to the Thief River Falls 45 set up a 10-play, 55-yard touchdown drive for the Prowlers, who pulled within 21-13 on a 3-yard Chiodo run just 52 before halftime.

The Sauk Rapids-Rice offense continued to shred the Thief River Falls defense with a second half-opening drive that came within inches of the goal line before a penalty moved the Storm back to the 6-yard line. On fourth down, Larson had his pass picked off by Bjerknes in the end zone.

Thief River Falls turned the good fortune into points when a 57-yard Chiodo run set up Kraft's eye-opening 39-yard field goal that made it 21-16 with 5:25 to play in the third quarter.

Again, however, the Thief River Falls defense could not contain the Sauk Rapids-Rice offense. Six plays after the field goal Winskowski was streaking down the left side on an 18-yard touchdown run.

The story kept repeating itself when Thief River Falls reached the Sauk Rapids-Rice 15 before stalling and Kraft came to the rescue with his fourth field goal of the night, this one from 31 yards for a 27-19 game with 9:47 remaining.

A quick 20 seconds later it was another two-touchdown spread as Josh Gunderson returned the ensuing kickoff to the Storm 40 and Winskowski scored from there on first down.

The Prowlers responded to the challenge with a 9-play, 55-yard touchdown drive. Chiodo went off tackle to score from 7 yards out. The conversion kick by Kraft put it in reach at 33-26 with 6:01 showing.

Thief River Falls forced Sauk Rapids-Rice to punt for the only time all night on the next series, and followed that with a game-tying touchdown drive. The Prowlers faced fourth down twice in that sequence. A Peterson-to-Chiodo pass picked up 20 yards on a fourth-and-seven from their own 33, and Chiodo went untouched off right tackle for his 40-yard touchdown run on a first down-seeking fourth-and-three call.

The Storm had a chance to end it in regulation time, but after reaching the Thief River Falls 13 and then killing the clock when Larson spiked the ball in the final moments, they inexplicably ran a fullback dive and ran themselves out of time before a field goal attempt could be put in place.

"You couldn't ask for a better football game," said Mumm. "We kept the people in the stands, that's for sure. Our kids played well. We just couldn't stop them."

The four field goals by Kraft came within one of breaking the school career record for field goals – five by Chris Nelson from 1985 to 1987. Longest field goal in the Prowlers' books is a 45-yarder by Dave Upham vs. Melrose in 1985.

Chiodo, despite an ankle injury that plagued him much of the season, went over the 1,000-yard mark for the second straight year, adding to his Thief River Falls career rushing record he established as a junior. His 33 carries against the Storm tied the school mark set by Paul Kezar vs. Staples in 1989.

With continuing construction of the football field at the new Multi-Events Center, Tuesday's contest may have been the final football game at Prowler Field. If it was, it was a memorable way to close the gates.

Gators, Nordics lose quarterfinal matches

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and Marshall County Central lost quarterfinal matches Tuesday in high school volleyball tournament play.

Kittson Central outlasted the Gators 15-13, 11-15, 8-15, 15-10, 15-7 in the Sub-Section 32A tournament at Northland Community and Technical College.

Crookston beat the Nordics 15-5, 13-15, 15-2, 15-9 in a Sub-Section 31A match played at East Grand Forks.

It was a game comeback effort by the Gators, who started the match in an 11-0 hole against the favored Wolfpack, who finally secured the win by pulling away from a 7-7 fifth game tie.

"We played them pretty tough," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian. "We started a little slow, but we came on. Overall, it was one of our better matches of the year."

Tournament score sheets listed the winners' Krista Bogestad with 40 kills and Natalie Costin with 15 service aces. The Gators were led by Kelsey Foldesi with nine kills and seven aces. Karie Visness of Kittson Central collected 38 assists. Kelly Everson and Sarah Peterson shared the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River setting duties, picking up 14 and 10 assists, respectively.

The Gators finished the year 9-17. "Overall, we did okay," offered Adrian. "I thought we might have won a few more matches. We had good team chemistry and the kids worked hard, but we were more focused on defense than offense. It was tough to score points sometimes when we were concentrating so much on defense."

Marshall County Central, after a slow start against Crookston, came back to win Game 2, but could not carry the momentum into the third game.

"Overall, I wasn't disappointed with our performance," said Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We did things right in the second game, but we didn't play that way in the third game. It was almost like they (Pirates) were the team who won Game 2 and had the momentum in Game 3. But I guess that type of attitude comes with experience. We made too many un-forced errors that cost us dearly."

Kristi Kilen turned in a strong all-around performance for the Nordics with 12 kills, four ace blocks and five ace serves.

The Nordics finished 12-13.

"We've been struggling the last couple of years," acknowledge Jorgenson. "Our goal this year was to play .500 volleyball and gain some respectability. You always want more. I felt there were three matches we lost that we maybe should have won. But overall, I think we accomplished our goals."

Warroad beats TRF swim squad 134-53

Warroad was a one-sided 134-53 winner over visiting Thief River Falls Tuesday in girls high school swimming.

"Our times were a little off," reported Thief River Falls coach Shon Thompson, "but we have some swimmers who are hurting and some who missed practices because of illness. Warroad is a tough team because of the depth the have."

Chelsea Haviland led the Prowlers with first place finishes in diving and the 100 breaststroke. Thompson said the Prowlers also received good performances from Michelle Johnson, Kendra Mooney and Jenny Heaton (JV) in the 100 butterfly.

New TRF head coach searching for wrestlers

First-year Thief River Falls head high school wrestling coach Rick Yanke has put a call out to boys in grades 6-through-12 who might be interested in giving the sport a try this winter.

The Prowlers are looking at a shortage of numbers, particularly in the 120 to 150-pound weight range, according to Yanke.

Newcomers who might be interesting in joining the program at the start of practice Nov. 16, are invited to contact Yanke at Franklin Middle School by calling 681-8813, or Thief River Falls Director of Student Activities Jim Sims at Lincoln High School by calling 681-7140.

Participants are reminded that all required forms must be completed and participation fees must be paid before the start of practice.

TRF youth basketball sign-up, meeting is Nov. 2

Boys and girls in grades 2 through 6 who would like to participate in the 1998-99 Thief River Falls youth basketball program are reminded to register before Nov. 2. Forms have been given to students at their schools.

Players must return those forms to the school office, Sjoberg's Inc., or mailed to Sylvia Sjoberg at 105 Fosse Court, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Registration fees before Nov. 2 have been set at $15 for grade 2; $20 for grades 3 and 4; $30 for grades 5 and 6. There is a $50 family cap. A $10 late fee will be charged after Nov. 2.

A youth basketball parent information meeting will be held Monday, Nov. 2, at 7 p.m. in the Franklin Middle School cafeteria.

Brainerd holds off TRF 3-2

■ North Sub-Section 8AA volleyball

Not this time. A Thief River Falls team that staged two remarkable comebacks during the regular season that turned 0-2 deficits into 3-2 wins over Bemidji and East Grand Forks tried it again Thursday in a first round North Sub-Section 8AA high school volleyball tournament match against Brainerd. The scene was set as the host Prowlers, after losing the first two games, came back for a pair of wins. However, the visitors re-wrote the final chapter and headed home with a season-ending 3-2 victory.

Sixth-seeded Brainerd prevailed 15-12, 15-10, 10-15, 2-15, 15-8 and will take an 11-11 record to Alexandria for a semifinal match against the once-beaten and top-seeded Cardinals. Third-seeded Thief River Falls' season ended at 16-9-1.

Thief River Falls co-head coach Amy Roche thought maybe the Prowlers' comeback magic might pull another win out of the fire.

"We played really well in the third and fourth games," she said. "We served well, we did a good job with our passes, and we were hitting the ball. Everything was coming together. But Brainerd got some serves in on us at the start of the fifth game and that seemed to take us out of our rhythm."

It appeared Brainerd might have made a long trip for a short match when Thief River Falls began the night with a dominating show that produced Game 1 leads of 5-0, 7-1 and 11-4. But three aces in a string of five service points by hard-hitting Beth Stoltman ignited a Brainerd comeback. The first-time Thief River Falls visitors tied it at 12-12 on a kill by Julia Moran, went ahead on a kill by Stoltman, then finished off the rally with an ace by C.C. Meidinger and a kill by Stoltman.

Brainerd mixed six service errors with six aces in Game 2 that went from 3-3 to 11-3 behind the serving of Stoltman. An ace by Rachel Greelis kept the Prowlers in it at 13-10, but they couldn't retain service, and back-to-back aces by Brainerd's Kirsten Larson closed the book.

Thief River Falls turned things around in Game 3, leading from start to finish. A one-sided 11-2 score was chopped to 11-10 before the Prowlers regrouped and finished the win with two aces by Taya Hunt and a Nicole Kopari kill through a double-block.

Taya Hut put the Thief River Falls offense into motion with a set while Brainerd defender Amber Haapajoki looked on during Thursday's North Sub-Section 8AA high school volleyball tournament match. The host Prowlers lost a 3-2 decision.

The Prowlers dominated Game 4 to tie the match at 2-2. They were already up 8-2 when Greelis came in to serve. She stayed at the line for the duration, finishing it with an ace.

But Brainerd pulled the rug out from underneath the Thief River Falls comeback in Game 5. Three errors by the Prowlers led to an early 5-1 deficit. And it was 9-1 after a Moran spike went out of bounds off the fingers of a Thief River Falls defender.

"That's volleyball," offered Roche. "It's a game of momentum. When you're hot, you're hot; when you're not, you're not. We've had trouble all year keeping a high level of intensity through an entire match."

The Prowlers didn't give up without a fight. They faced a 13-5 deficit following an ace by Laura Bogenschutz, but came up with five side-outs down the stretch to make Brainerd work for the final two points. A net violation called against the Prowlers put them in a 14-6 hole, but a Rachel Mathson spike through a blocker and a Brainerd error renewed the rally dreams.

A well-placed shot by Brainerd's Amber Haapajoki took service out of Thief River Falls' hands and Stoltman put the finishing touches on a strong night with a kill.

"We could have easily rolled over and died, but they didn't," said Roche in praising the down-to-the-wire effort by the Prowlers. "They played hard to the end, even when they (Brainerd) were sitting at 13, 14 points in the fifth game."

Kopari had 15 kills and Lindsay Drury 12 for the Prowlers, who got a 29-assist, 8-ace effort from Hunt. Haapajoki and Bogenschutz both finished with 12 kills for Brainerd. Bogenschutz added 24 assists and Stoltman collected eight aces.

Otters, Cardinals win in 8AA cross country

Section 8AA high school cross country team titles went to the Fergus Falls boys and Alexandria girls Thursday at Sartell.

Second place finishers also earn state meet spots, extending the 1998 season for the Bemidji boys and Sauk Rapids-Rice girls teams.

Bemidji runners Luke Mullranin and Amber Newby swept the individual honors.

Thief River Falls trailed the field in both races. The top runners for the Prowlers were Jacki Mooney (71st) and Seth Harlow (74th).

"We didn't place high, but we ran hard," said Thief River Falls coach Terri Ueland. "I know the team did the best they could. We don't compete against most of the teams we faced today."

Class A and Class AA boys and girls state cross country meet will be held Saturday, Nov. 7, at St. Olaf College in Northfield.

Levi Kraft tried to help out with a block on the play. The Storm won 40-33 in overtime to advance into the post-season semifinals.

Plummer residents have until November 10 to submit ballots

Minnesota Public Utilities Commission will accept ballots through Tuesday, November 10, 1998, on the issue of whether telephone calls between telephone customers in the Plummer (218/465) telephone exchange and telephone customers in the Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire telephone exchanges and the Brooks and Red Lake Falls telephone exchanges will become local calls.

If approved in the polling process, Extended Area Service (EAS) will allow local, instead of long distance, calling among telephone customers in the telephone exchanges of Plummer and Thief River Falls/St. Hilaire and/or Plummer and Brooks/Red Lake Falls.

A majority of telephone customers voting in Plummer will decide the EAS question. If a majority of customers approve EAS for either or both proposed routes, all customers in the Plummer exchange, including those who fail to vote on the issue and those who vote against EAS, will be required to pay higher monthly telephone rates. Telephone customers in Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire exchanges and the Brooks/Red Lake Falls exchanges will also pay higher rates if EAS is approved by the customers voting in the Plummer exchange.

On September 30, 1998, the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission mailed rate information, along with ballots, to all customers in the Plummer exchange.

The Commission expects to know the results of the poll by the end of November 1998. If approved, the Commission will direct the affected telephone companies to implement EAS within approximately 12 months.

Telephone customers with questions can call the Commission's Consumer Affairs office toll-free at 1-800-657-3782. Customers can also write to the Commission by addressing their letters to: Plummer EAS, Minnesota Public Utilities Commission, 121 7th Place East, Suite 350, St. Paul, MN 55101-2147.

Our state already spends money to help farmers get off the farm through re-training and re-education programs. This money would be better spent in helping farmers re-tool in order to grow and market alternative crops. We should be supporting marketing cooperatives for products grown in our state. The state of Minnesota should be keeping the family farmers on their land by supporting the development of alternative crops and promoting Minnesota-grown products.

Students Deserve a Strong Advocate. I don't like to see children in over-crowded classrooms, using, and sometimes sharing, out-of-date textbooks. As a school volunteer, I have seen our students' needs outgrow the current levels of state funding.

When Arne Carlson froze state funding for our schools, the burden shifted to local property taxes. This has resulted in unequal educational opportunities for our children. We have all seen the great school facilities and programs that are available to students in the property-tax-rich districts.

Our rural children deserve the same educational opportunities as every other student in Minnesota. As your delegate to the House of Representatives, I will work to make that happen. As the mother of two children, the wife of a school board member, and the daughter of a teacher, education is a priority in my life. I'll make it a priority in the Legislature, too.

Our Communities Need a Strong Voice. As township treasurer, I have seen the effects of declining local government aid. Administration and enforcement of many former state programs are being thrust on our local governments. This has forced a choice between cuts in local services or increases in property taxes. Shifting the burden from the state to local taxpayers has hit those who can least afford it the hardest. Working people, business owners, senior citizens, families, taxpayers. . . We all need a stronger advocate in St. Paul.

Expectations. What do you expect from your elected representative? We all have high expectations of the people we cast votes for. I know I do.

I expect my elected delegate to represent me aggressively with a strong voice. I expect my representative to know her or his constituents — you and me; to know what is important to them; and to know what will help or benefit them. I expect this elected official to work with me in mind every time she or he authors, reads or votes for a bill. A the very least, I expect this delegate to not miss out on funding and low interest loans because he or she didn't realize it could benefit our community, schools and businesses.

I want my elected representative to have a strong presence in my community; not just come around at campaign time. I'd like to see her or him at community gatherings and meetings, taking the time to talk with real people about their very real problems and concerns.

My Expectations are My Promises. These are just some of the reasons behind my decision to run for the House of Representatives. My expectations of an elected delegate are my promises of how I would serve you in the State Legislature. I want to represent you — the residents of District 1B — with a strong voice because I don't feel that we, in northwestern Minnesota, have been heard at the Capitol in St. Paul.

I Will Speak With A Strong, Clear Voice. With your vote on November 3, you will make your voice heard in St. Paul. With your support — your vote — I can make a difference for you! I will work tirelessly in the State Legislature to ensure that our voices and concerns are expressed with a strong clear voice.

NW Minnesota bucks metro area trend as Jesse Ventura is elected state's Governor

Voter turnout very high throughout region for non-Presidential election year

While northwest Minnesota voters didn't share the percentage of support given Governor-elect Jesse Ventura in the metro and surrounding area of the state in Tuesday's general election, enough voter support was gained by the Reform party candidate in this area of the state to provide him with his margin of victory.

In a "shocker" that has been the talk of the state and much of the nation, 36.9 percent of Minnesota voters provided Reform party candidate and former professional wrestler Jesse Ventura enough votes to win a four-year term as Governor of Minnesota. Ventura and his Lt. Gov. running mate Mae Schunk—a 63-year-old school teacher originally from the Red Lake Indian Reservation—received 764,688 votes.

In second place in the three-way race for governor among eight registered candidates was St. Paul Mayor and Republican Norm Coleman, who received 710,942 or 34.3 percent of the votes.

Trailing was early favorite DFL candidate Hubert H. (Skip) Humphrey III, currently Minnesota's Attorney General, with 583,544 votes or 28.2 percent of the total. All other candidates combined had only one-half of one percentage point of the vote.

(The state totals reported above were as of 9:27 a.m. Thursday with 4,031 of 4,055 precincts reporting or 99.4%.)

While northwest Minnesota voters were more conventional in their balloting, Ventura received far greater vote numbers here than other minority party candidates in the past.

In Pennington county, for instance, Ventura had 1,226 voter (21%) while Humphrey had 2,253 (38.73%) and Coleman had 2,226 (38.27%).

In Marshall county, Ventura trailed, but with a respectable 834 votes while Humphrey had 2,008 and Coleman was a close second with 1,959.

In Red Lake county, Ventura had 339 votes to 920 for Humphrey and 842 for Coleman.

Polk county voters gave Ventura 1,699 votes while Humphrey led Coleman 4,770 to 4,462.

Kittson county gave Humphrey a good edge with 1,185 votes to 757 for Coleman and 389 for Ventura.

And Roseau county made Ventura a contender with 1,081 votes to 2,975 for Coleman and 1,863 for Humphrey.

Voter Turnout High

In Pennington county and throughout northwestern Minnesota the turnout of voters was quite high for a non-Presidential election. Turnout in Pennington county was at 71% with 5,816 voters going to the polls. There were 7,230 voters registered prior to 7 a.m. Tuesday and another 793 registered at the polls. There were 169 absentee ballots cast in Pennington county.

Marshall county had 5,386 registered voters prior to Tuesday and 666 registering on election day. There were 4,944 votes cast for a nearly 82 percent turnout.

Polk county had 16,555 voters registered prior to the election and 1,093 registered on election day. There were 11,183 votes cast or more than 63 percent. Several of the other area counties had not computed their voter registration and ballots cast totals.

House District 1B

Rep. Tim Finseth of Angus, a Republican, carried all four counties in which District 1B is located to win reelection over DFL challenger Lori Bergland Olson of Thief River Falls. Rep. Finseth will now be in the majority party in the House of Representatives as Republicans gained enough seats in Tuesday's election to swing the balance of power.

Finseth won in his home territory of Marshall county (1,122 to 576) and Polk county (1,514 to 1,197) while besting Olson in her home county of Pennington (3,157 to 2,569 and even having a slight edge in the DFL stronghold of Red Lake county (1,101 to 1,022).

House District 1A

DFL Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy also retained his seat in the House of Representatives with a win over Republican challenger Buck Webb. Rep. Tunheim had 7,856 votes (58.5%) to 5,560 votes (41.4%) for Webb.

Clark, Kalinoski, Spears elected to TRF school board

Carl Clark, Barb Kalinoski and Mike Spears bunched at the top of the heap to win election to the School District 564 board of education Tuesday, November 3. They established a clear margin over the other four candidates in the race.

Barb Kalinoski led all candidates with 2,951 votes, followed by incumbent Carl Clark, present board chair, with 2,821 votes and Mike Spears with 2,739.

Rev. George Davis was fourth high on the list with 1,463—more than 1,200 votes behind Spears. Jon Lindgren was fifth with 1,407 votes, followed by Sami Haj with 1,269 and Ann Juhl with 1,254.

Kalinoski led in the 10 Thief River Falls precincts with 1,803 votes while Clark had 1,645 and Spears had 1,612. She also led in St. Hilaire with 62 votes while Spears had 54 and Clark had 46.

Clark led in the rural precincts (not including St. Hilaire) with 1,026 votes, followed by Kalinoski with 990 and Spears with 979. Red Lake county's only precinct voting in School District 564 gave Clark 19 votes, Spears seven and Kalinoski 6. The five Marshall county precincts in the district gave Kalinoski 90, Spears 87 and Clark 85.

Voter turnout in the district was 67.7 percent with 5,328 of 7,908 registered voters casting ballots. Highest percentage was 85 percent in Precinct 4B where 339 of 401 registered voters voted.

Lowest percentage (exclusive of the Marshall county precincts where 151 of 394 voters cast ballots for 38%) was 61 per cent in Broy township where 25 of 41 registered voted and in Precinct 3A in Thief River Falls where 269 of 440 registered voters went to the polls in the school election. City precincts averaged a 65 percent turnout and Pennington county rural precincts (including St. Hilaire) averaged 73 percent.

Goodridge School District

In School District 561 at Goodridge where the school election was being held concurrent with the general election for the first time, Aldon Hyland with 263 votes (35.54%) and Tom Scheef with 240 votes (32.43%) were reelected over Tony Rubischko who received 116 votes (15.67%).

Write-In Scramble At Oklee

School District 627 at Oklee had a write-in scramble in its first school election in conjunction with a general election with 35 people receiving one or more write-in votes.

Lana Nelson, who was facing her first election after being appointed to the board to fill the unexpired term of Errol Rustan, received 526 votes to gain a full four-year term.

Long-time board member John Lerohl did not seek reelection and no one had filed for the second open position on the board. John Melby received 101 write-in votes to be elected for a four-year term. Third place vote-getter in the election was Anita Vettleson with 75 votes.

Mike Hruby wins handily in Pennington Co. Sheriff race

Deputy Mike Hruby recovered from a second place finish in the primary election in September to handily win election as Pennington County Sheriff in the November 3 general election Tuesday. Sheriff Gerald Moe is retiring at the end of his present term.

Hruby carried 30 of the county's 34 precincts—including all 10 precincts in Thief River Falls, the City of St. Hilaire and the City of Goodridge to win with 3,584 votes (61.62%) to 2,182 voter (37.51%) for Ray Kuznia, also a deputy in the Pennington county sheriff's department.

Kuznia led only in Deer Park township (36-30), Highlanding township (53-34), Reiner township (29-25) and Star township (42-38). Hruby piled up margins as much as 86-9 in Silverton township and 39-6 in Wyandotte township.

Sheriff Moe had endorsed Kuznia, who had served as chief deputy, as his successor for the office, but an advertisement run by Hruby in the last week of the campaign contained the names and signatures of dozens of county and city law enforcement and other officers who endorsed his candidacy.

County Treasurer

Pennington County Treasurer Vickie Bjorgaard won reelection over challenger Kim J. Carlson with 3,753 votes (64.52%) to 1,885 (32.41%). Carlson is a clerk in the county treasurer's office.

Bjorgaard led in 33 of the county's 34 precincts, losing only in Goodridge township by a 17-13 margin.

SWCD Supervisor

Raymond S. Olson, a veteran board member of the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District, was easily reelected with 3,363 votes (57.82%) to 1,715 votes (29.48%) for challenger Owen Stenvik.

Others elected to the SWCD board unopposed were Linda Hanson, District 4, with 4,896 votes and Darrow Lundeen, District 5, with 4,902 votes.

Other County Offices

All other Pennington county officers ran unopposed as incumbents. Reelected were Robert Carlson, County Commissioner, District 2, 805 votes; Arden (Bud) Comstock, County Commissioner, District 4, 810 votes, Kenneth Olson, County Auditor, 5,199 votes; Ken Schmalz, County Recorder, 5,191 votes; David Olin, County Attorney, 5,106 votes; and Dr. Richard Heinrichs, County Coroner, 4,943 votes.

Area Sheriff Races

County Sheriff seemed to be a popular office in the area with several races held.

In Marshall county, where 30-year Sheriff Dennis Brekke is retiring, Deputy Herb Maurstad was elected with 3,585 votes (73.7%) to 1,278 votes (26.3%) of the votes for Greg Winskowski.

In Red Lake county Sheriff Allan Morken withstood a strong challenge from Randy Brekke, receiving 648 votes (53.7%) to 558 (46.2%).

In Polk county, Sheriff Douglas Qualley had little trouble with challenger Clayton Briggs, receiving 8,302 votes (76.4%) to Briggs' 2,531 votes (23.3%).

Other Area Elections

Voters in the City of Newfolden made history by approving a local option of liquor sales in the city. Votes on the question had been held numerous times in prior years to no avail, although the issue was defeated by only eight votes (81-89) in the last attempt in November of 1994.

On Tuesday the vote to permit liquor sales provided a substantial margin at 127 to 83. The petition to place the question on the ballot this year was presented by Ron Kragness, owner and operator of The Hobo Haus, a 3.2 bar which has added a limited food menu to its offerings.

In Marshall county, veteran District 1 County Commissioner Calvin Melgard was unseated by challenger Terry Potucek. The latter received 591 votes (54.8%) to Melgard's 488 votes (45.2%). In District 3, Ken Price ran a late write-in campaign for county commissioner but lost to incumbent Ben Kleinwachter, 432 (46.2%) to 504 (53.8%).

In Red Lake county, interim County Recorder Fern Brevik lost her bid to be elected to the office where she had been appointed. Joyce Paquin received 1,211 votes (56.53%) while Brevik received 931 votes (43.46%).

In east Polk county where Rupert Syverson of McIntosh did not seek reelection as county commissioner in District 4, Warren K. Affeldt of Fosston won election with 1,345 votes in a close race with Marvin

Wahl Bros. Racing changes to Polaris

Greenbush - After many years of racing Ski-doo snowmobiles and four world championships under its belt, Wahl Bros. Racing of Greenbush is switching to Polaris.

Ski-doo is located 1,500 miles from Greenbush in Valcourt, Quebec. Polaris is located up the road a few miles. Polaris has been out of oval racing for many years but is a leader in development and design. Wahl Bros. is a leader in oval racing. All indications are that the partnership should work out well.

KC School slows down building project timeline

Hallock - Kittson Central School Board members agreed to slow down the timeline of the proposed building project.

Kittson Central Superintendent Bruce Jensen says he is concerned about the board's 4-2 split vote to proceed with the project. Slowing the project down will give them a better handle on the agricultural situation and the district's finances, and hopefully, everyone will feel more comfortable with the expansion. Kittson County Enterprise

'Troops' fire up Grafton girl's basketball fans

Grafton, ND - Their goal is to "stand out and fire up the crowd," and anyone who has seen a girl's basketball game at Grafton this year will have to say that the Troops have accomplished their mission.

Calling themselves the "nice boys," the group of ten seniors and juniors keeps fans in suspense from week to week as to what kind of garb they will be decked out in — one night they're in togas and another night their outfits are "just plain stupid." The group never practices any cheers or its trademark pyramid. Regardless, the gym rocks at all the games and the Spoiler girls basketball team has a winning record. The Walsh County Record

Two arrested for arson, damage to property

Fosston - Two men were arrested recently by a Polk County Sheriff's Department deputy after allegedly damaging several mailboxes and lighting 37 large hay bales on fire.

Information from a 911 call included a partial license plate number, description of the vehicle and which direction it was traveling.

The deputy arrived at the scene and saw additional damaged mailboxes as he drove east on the county road. Three miles down the road he saw a row of 20 large hay bales on fire, and one mile farther down the road he saw the two suspects lighting another row of 17 bales on fire. The deputy arrested Daniel Marion Berrisford, 20, of Grand Forks and formerly of Fosston, and Wayne LeRoy Martine, 21, of Bagley, without incident as they walked back to their vehicle. They were taken to Northwest Regional Correctional Center in Crookston. The Thirteen Towns

White Earth tribe unveils new draft constitution

White Earth - Under a draft constitution all adults who belong to the White Earth Bank of Ojibwe will be members of government. Prepared by a committee of 12 members over the last 16 months, the draft constitution lays out four distinct branches of government.

The Grand Council consisting of all adult tribal members would meet at least once a year to approve the budget, review the annual audit and hear status reports on the band's finances, programs and businesses. The 21-member elected Central Council would have broad powers of government, basically controlling the policy-making and administrative hiring functions.

The executive branch would consist of a president and vice president, elected as a team. The president would be responsible for implementing and enforcing the laws of the reservation. The judicial branch would consist of a trial court and supreme court whose members would be licensed to practice law in any state in the United States. The Supreme Court would have authority to interpret the constitution, but findings of fact could only be made by the trial court.

The draft now needs to be discussed at community meetings across White Earth, according to White Earth Secretary-Treasurer Irma Vizenor. A constitutional convention could be held in about a year where a two-thirds majority would be required to approve the new constitution. Detroit Lakes Tribune

Cooler weather means hearty dishes and yummy baking. Today's recipes are just a mish-mash of some good recipes for crisp fall days. I have also included a diabetic recipe after a request from a reader who would like to see more of these types of recipes. I will try to include one every now and then.

Got pumpkin left from Halloween - make these nutritious treats - and I bet you could use raisins or dates in them when you get tired of chocolate chips, too:

PUMPKIN CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES
1 cup butter, softened
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
1 cup oats
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup cooked or canned pumpkin
1 1/2 cups chocolate chips

In bowl, cream butter and sugars. Beat in egg and vanilla.

Combine flour, oats, soda and cinnamon. Stir into creamed mixture alternately with pumpkin. Fold in chips.

Drop by tablespoonfuls on greased baking sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 12-13 minutes or until lightly browned. (Makes 4 dozen cookies.)

Here's an easy way to cook a chicken, and a little different than the usual ways - tangy and tasty:

HONEY-GLAZED CHICKEN
1/2 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 chicken, about 3 pounds, cut up
1/2 cup butter, melted (divided)
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup honey
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 1/2 teaspoons curry powder

In bowl or bag, combine flour, salt and cayenne pepper. Add chicken pieces and dredge or shake to coat.

Pour 4 tablespoons of the melted butter into 9x13 inch baking pan. Place chicken in pan, turning once to coat. Bake, uncovered, at 350 for 30 minutes.

Combine brown sugar, honey, lemon juice, soy sauce, curry powder and remaining melted butter. Pour over chicken. Bake 45 minutes more or until chicken is tender, basting several times with pan drippings.

Wonder what to do with that fancy spaghetti squash you bought? Here's a wonderful way to use it for a main dish meal:

SPAGHETTI SQUASH CASSEROLE
1 small spaghetti squash (1 1/2 to 2 pounds)
1/2 cup water
1 pound ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped sweet red pepper
1 garlic clove, minced
1 (8 ounce) can tomatoes with liquid, cut up
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 cup mozzarella, shredded (or cheddar)
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley

Cut squash in half lengthwise. Scoop out seeds and place, cut side down, in baking dish. Add water. Cover and bake at 375 degrees for 20-30 minutes, until easily pierced with a fork. When cool enough to handle, scoop out squash, separating the strands with a fork.

In skillet, cook beef, onion, red pepper and garlic until meat is browned and vegetables are tender. Drain.

Add tomatoes, oregano, salt, pepper and squash. Cook and stir for 1-2 minutes, until liquid is absorbed. Transfer to ungreased 1 1/2 quart baking dish and bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley and let stand a few minutes to melt before serving.

Speaking of squash, try this one on those kids who hate the vegetable and they'll begin to love it - and you might want to use this for Thanksgiving, too:

BUTTERNUT SQUASH BAKE
1/3 cup butter or margarine, softened
3/4 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 (5 ounce) can evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups mashed cooked butternut squash
Topping
1/2 cup crisp rice cereal
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup chopped pecans
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

In mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar. Beat in eggs, milk and vanilla. Stir in squash (mixture will be thin). Pour into greased 11x7 inch baking pan and bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until almost set.

Combine topping ingredients and sprinkle over casserole. Return to oven for 5-10 minutes or until bubbly.

I bought one of those frozen chicken pies to eat the other day and was so disappointed - it wasn't good at all and very little of anything inside. This hearty dish, filled with good things and plenty of them, would be the thing to make instead of buying some dinky frozen pie. Wouldn't it be good with Thanksgiving's leftover turkey, and this recipe is big enough to serve all those lovely leftover family guests, too:

CHICKEN AND DUMPLING CASSEROLE
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 garlic cloves, minced
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup flour
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon basil
1/2 teapoon pepper
4 cups chicken broth
1 (10 ounce) package frozen green peas
4 cups cubed cooked chicken
Dumplings
2 cups buttermilk biscuit mix
2 teaspoons basil
2/3 cup milk

In large saucepan, saute onion, celery and garlic in butter until tender. Add flour, sugar, salt, basil, pepper and broth and bring to a boil. Cook and stir for 1 minute. Reduce heat.

Add peas and cook for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in chicken.

Pour into greased 9x13 inch baking dish.

For dumplings, combine biscuit mix and basil in a bowl. Stir in milk with a fork until moistened. Drop by tablespoonfuls over casserole (12 dumplings).

Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Cover and bake 10 minutes more or until dumplings are done.

Thanks to Cecelia for the idea, here's a yummy, low sugar dessert recipe for anyone, and it has the diabetic exchanges and other nutrition values listed for those who want that information:

BANANA GRAHAM DESSERT
1 (1.5 ounce) package instant, sugar-free vanilla pudding mix
2 3/4 cups cold skim milk
1 (8 ounce) cup nonfat sour cream
12 reduced fat graham crackers
2 large, firm bananas, sliced

In mixing bowl, beat pudding mix and milk on low speed for 2 minutes. Fold in sour cream and let stand 5 minutes.

In 3 quart bowl (or pretty serving dish), layer 1/3 each of the graham crackers, bananas and pudding mix. Repeat layers twice. Refrigerate. Makes 9 servings.

(Diabetic Exchange: One (1/2 cup) serving equals 1 1/2 starch. Each serving contains 114 calories, 141 mg sodium, 4 mg cholesterol, 22 gm carbohydrate, 5 gm protein and 1 gm fat.)

Making A Big Stink

I stink. No, not my writing, you booh, my body. There's a lot of odor coming off my body. My relatives and close friends have suggested this to me for years, but I wrote their nose-pinching nastiness off to the common pettiness that seems to have become such a daily part of my adult life.

I've spent the last 20 years since glandular activity reared its ugly head trying to minimize that self-created social liability. A lot of deodorant and the occasional shower and I thought I had this thing licked. It seems, however, the ante has been raised. My perceptions of personal hygiene can no longer be gauged by the proximity of fellow riders in an elevator or whether I get a handshake instead of a hug from my mother on her annual visit west. No, the judges are far tougher than that. I've got to convince the whitetails of northern Minnesota that I don't smell that bad.

I'm not a great hunter, but I pay attention to the basics. When deer hunting, I try to calculate and accommodate for wind direction. One stand will work better on the general flows from the west while another drags scent away from trails during east breezes. By season's end, I'll have established three or four niche spots that demand the specifics of a south-southwest wind or an east-northeast track, for example. A year from now all these will change as deer patterns evolve differently or I absent mindedly forget what it was I did last season.

And not only do I pay attention to the wind in acknowledgement of my smell, but I go to far greater lengths than the casual swipe of Ban Roll-On to combat these odors. Lots of "Scent Neutralizer" seems logical, although I'm confused as to how a spray that feels, smells and tastes like water will work any better than the shower I just took.

Liberal use of buck scent laced with some miracle compound called Tonquin is a favorite of mine, too. I can't swear that it works, but the picture on the tube of the hunter being bowled over by an enraged deer certainly gives me hope. I also do dumb things when I'm mad and if this Tonquin upsets the deer, I'm going to give it a try.

And don't forget the doe urine. Ignore those warnings about putting the stuff on your body. I apply it liberally to my clothing, assuming that even if I miss my shot opportunity I can always track that deer down in 6-8 weeks with a paternity suit.

A few well-placed squirts of red fox cover scent and I'm ready for action. I can't help but feel, as I breathe in the gut-tumbling collection of scents, that an hour under a McDonald's exhaust vent would be preferable, but this is hunting and a man's gotta do what a man's gotta do. If smelling bad is part of my machismo duty, so be it.

The first deer whiffs me, upwind, from nearly 75 yards away. His snorting and blowing echo through the woods for 10 minutes, making it clear to any other living creature within a day's walk that there's some fool standing in a tree over here smelling worse than fumes from an idling diesel pickup. Somewhat daunted, I apply more Tonquin and try a new spot. The results are similar. My frustration mounts. I had better results when I just stunk like myself. I decide to go home and reconsider my approach.

I drive home with the truck windows open, despite the fact it's just 22 degrees. Our dog bounces down the driveway to meet me, only to encounter a wall of smell that causes him to growl menacingly at me as he lifts his leg at every one of the vehicle's tires. My wife demands I strip naked before even entering the garage. The passersby on the road point and laugh. My kids taunt me from a distance...and I wonder if they've noticed the odor.

I think about the past, about the days when I was young and learning of the benefits of personal hygiene. I think about my eventual discovery of underarm deodorant shortly after the smells of maturation kicked in. And I think about the way the world treats me now.

I think, too, about all the trite one-liners that have been thrown my way over the last several decades and decide that the more things change, the more they do, indeed, stay the same.

Country Crafts and Balloons Announces Changes

Ken and Lesa Hagman, owners of Country Crafts & Balloons have made some major changes to their store this past week. They have added a new line of highly scented candles, scoop potpourri, adult gag gifts & cards and have expanded the crafts and woodwork.

Ken and Lesa have also taken over new ownership of a local balloon business having balloons and balloon deliveries, wedding balloon decor, candy bouquets, singing telegrams and Lincoln Prowler balloons.

Ken and Lesa opened their store February 1998 and are having a great success. They are the proud parents of three children, Roxanna 10, Ken Jr. 3, and Blade, six months old.

Among caring for the children, Ken finds time to hand-make a lot of the woodwork and Lesa hand-makes the swags, wreaths and special orders. You can always expect to be greeted with coffee and a smile.

Ventura Deserves An Opportunity To Prove Himself To The Voters

On Tuesday enough Minnesota voters put their Xs where their thoughts were to elect a Reform party candidate rather than a Republican or Democrat as Governor for the next four years. It was a case of Minnesotans having the courage to vote their complaints about party politics and bickering rather than just talking about them. In our opinion, that puts this state ahead of the rest of the nation in honesty and conviction.

Not that we had given Governor-elect Jesse Ventura the chance of the proverbial snowball in Hades. We had expected those who expressed support for him in the opinion polls to abandon him in the polling place, not wanting to "waste" their vote on someone with no chance to win. Such was not the case—probably because those opinion polls shortly before Tuesday's election indicated the race was close enough to give the former professional wrestler at least a chance at actually being elected.

While shock was being expressed by many people across the state and nation when Ventura cruised into office with 37 percent of the vote—not a mandate, but certainly a majority among the three main candidates—that shock was being felt mostly by mainliners and traditionalists. The believers in the Ventura bid were no more than mildly surprised, if not simply satisfied to say "I told you so."

Certainly there are those observers of state government who view the Ventura victory with alarm. If the intent of the voters who supported the Governor-elect was to fire a warning shot over the bow of the ship of state, they believe, the trajectory was miscalculated and the shot hit just above the waterline. Indeed, there are a number of people among Ventura voters who never expected him to be elected, and now are wondering "what did we do?"

We would be surprised if Jesse himself did not wake up one morning after the reality of the election had sunk in and say to himself, "Oh, my God! I'm the Governor! What am I gonna do now?"

There is a saying in corporate America that people rise to the level of their incompetence. That saying is not without basis, and it can be applied to government as well as business and industry. The thesis is that it is soon recognized if someone is incapable of fulfilling the responsibilities of a particular position or office.

It is too early to pass judgment on Jesse Ventura's ability to govern. He has demonstrated an ability to lead—or at least to attract the support of a substantial number of Minnesota's populace. And these are people who, for the most part, feel they have been forgotten or ignored by the governmental powers that be.

Ventura said, while his lead was early and the votes were being counted, that he wanted to do right by "the people" of Minnesota. But "the people" is too generic a term. The question is, which people? The farmers or the environmentalists? The foresters or the tree huggers? The conservationists or the preservationists? The cabin owners or the personal watercraft riders? The savers or the spenders? The haves or the have-nots?

Too often in government—as in life—it is necessary to choose sides and not all of "the people" can be satisfied. If Ventura is not already aware of this, it shouldn't take him long to learn. Attempting to be a mediator may also be fraught with peril. The middle ground between two lofty positions can frequently be quicksand.

Add to the Reform Party victor's challenges the DFL majority in the Senate and the new Republican majority in the House and you have a formula for potential political chaos. Conversely, there is also unparalleled opportunity to display leadership.

Minnesotans are resilient people. We have withstood hordes of mosquitoes, three-day blizzards, 100-year floods, the idiosyncrasies of Gov. Rudy Perpich and the arrogance of Gov. Arne Carlson. Certainly we can survive—and perhaps even thrive—under at least one gubernatorial term by Jesse Ventura.

Certainly we should not expect the new governor to fail before he is given an opportunity to succeed. He has a ton of work to do in the next few weeks to prepare for the 1999 legislative session, but he deserves a fair chance to prove himself. And he also deserves the respect that comes with the office as long as he does nothing to dishonor it.

Some Election Losers Didn't Lose Much

Other than some sleep and a little embarrassment from getting ambushed by a minor party candidate, three out of four of the major party losers in Tuesday's gubernatorial election didn't lose much.

Sen. Roger Moe, who was not up for reelection this year, retains his position as Senate Majority Leader. His adventure as candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Skip Humphrey DFL ticket was primarily a few months' diversion. GOP Lieutenant Governor candidate Gen Olson of Minnetrista is also a State Senator, and since none of the Senators' were up for election this year, has time remaining on her term.

GOP gubernatorial candidate Norm Coleman could go back to his desk as Mayor of St. Paul until at least the next mayoral election. It was not required for any of these three candidates to give up their government posts to run for other government positions, and so the taxpayers paid their regular salaries while they were out looking for other employment.

Hubert H. (Skip) Humphrey, however, could not run for two offices and so forfeited his Attorney General position when he won the state DFL primary and became a candidate for governor. One would not expect him to be in great danger of lengthy unemployment nor immediate poverty once he leaves his present office, however, and that may temper one's sympathies for his sacrifice.

News Flash: Someone Used The Crosswalk!

For the first time in our experience of driving Pennington Avenue (the Airport Road) from four to six or eight times a day, a pedestrian actually used the crosswalk between the Northern Pride turkey processing plant and the parking lot across the road. The unique happening was at about 12:10 p.m. Thursday, November 5.

There has been a painted crosswalk and overhead flashing red lights in the location for a year or two now, virtually universally ignored by walkers and drivers alike. Since the lights flash 24 hours a day every day of the year, they do little to alert regular users of the road. And pedestrians prefer to walk directly across the roadway from the plant or their cars or from their cars to the plant, paying no heed to the painted crosswalk.

But on Thursday a young lady stopped on the curb and then walked across the roadway within the lines of the painted crosswalk, and even acknowledged with a grateful wave the drivers who had stopped their vehicles to allow her to cross. It is such an unusual occurrence to have someone actually use the marked and signaled crossing that we thought it deserved special mention.

Weather Service worker predicts a nasty winter

Mark Ewens, data acquisition program manager for the National Weather Service in Grand Forks, ND, made his predictions for the winter of 1998-99 in a recent edition of MinnKota Cyclone, published by the NWS. Ewens' article follows.

Due largely to abnormally warm sea surface temperatures in the equatorial Pacific Ocean, our atmospheric circulation across the northern United States last winter resulted in unusually mild temperatures. For some locations across our region temperatures for the winter of 1997-98 were the mildest ever recorded. Snowfall was also rather light with only a dusting of snow cover on Christmas Day.

What can we expect for this year? Based on our measurements of the earth's electric field, taken at the National Weather Service in Grand Forks, it should be a much colder winter with more snow.

Could La Nina be an influence? Perhaps. La Nina occurs when sea surface temperatures in the equatorial Pacific Ocean are colder than normal. In the past, the occurrence of La Nina has resulted in colder than usual temperatures across our region.

Expect a cold period from November through February with temperatures averaging three to eight degrees below normal. The below average rainfall of late summer and early fall should swing back to above normal precipitation from November through January. Total precipitation is expected to average 150 percent of normal or about 10 to 30 inches more snow than usual.

Ewens said the experimental electric field forecasts can be checked out on the weather service home page in the Internet at www.crh.noaa.gov/fgf/elfest.htm.

18 organizations are given Operation Round Up funds

Red Lake Electric Trust board of directors awarded $9,640 in its Operation Round Up funds to 18 nonprofit community organizations at its semi-annual meeting October 28.

The Operation Round Up program is administered by Red Lake Electric Cooperative and receives its funds when customers voluntarily "round up" their monthly electric bill payments to the next highest even dollar amount. Since the program began in 1993, a total of $110,705 has been granted.

In the current distribution, Thief River Falls branch of Hospice of the Red River Valley received $1,500 to provide bereavement services to families of long-term illness patients after their death. Community Hospice of Crookston received $500 for educational purposes with its volunteer staff.

Four programs which provide Christmas gifts for children of needy families received grants. The programs for Pennington, Marshall and Red Lake counties each received a $500 grant while the program in Crookston received a $300 grant.

St. Hilaire Fire and Rescue Squad received a $500 grant to help equip a recently-acquired pumper truck. Star township in Pennington county was granted $500 to help outfit two new firefighters from the township who will be a part of the Goodridge Fire Department.

Sunview Senior Dining Center in Red Lake Falls was given $500 to help purchase a new freezer and other kitchen equipment. Dial-A-Ride of Red Lake Falls received a $100 grant and Middle River Seniors a $500 grant to help provide transportation for senior citizens to essential services.

A $500 grant was made to the Goodridge Lions club for improvements to the heating system in the Goodridge community hall. Crossroads Displaced Homemakers program of Thief River Falls was given $340 to purchase automobile winter survival kits for 20 clients. A $1,000 grant was made to the Violence Intervention Project of Thief River Falls to provide services for victims of domestic violence and sexual assault.

Two programs for child safety were given grants. The Thief River Falls and Pennington county safety camp was given $500 to help fund the annual two-day camp. Quin County Community Health Service was granted $400 to provide take-home packs of support materials to students in grades two through five in area schools participating in the "Seeds of Safety" program.

Two grants were also made to organizations providing services for the developmentally disabled. The new Habilitation and Training Center in Red lake Falls was given $500 to help furnish its client lounge area and the Falls DAC in Thief River Falls received $500 to help provide programs to enable its clients to live as independently as possible.

"The Operation Round Up program has been embraced and supported by 82 percent of our customers who currently participate," said Ron Kennedy, general manager of the rural electric cooperative. "These grants are made possible due to the generosity and community spirit of our electric service customers and provide some needed dollars to area community service providers."

Red Lake Electric Trust board of directors includes Mark Naplin, rural Red Lake Falls, president; Orlan Stolaas, rural Oklee, vice president; and Joyce Johnson, rural Viking, secretary-treasurer. Ex-officio directors are Verol Mosbeck, president of the board of Red Lake Electric Cooperative, and general manager Ron Kennedy.

Tri-County high school offers Antigone as play

Tri-County high school drama department will present a modern adaptation of Sophocles' Antigone Thursday-Saturday, November 19-21, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium in Karlstad. Tickets are priced at $2, $3 and $4.

"Because of the nature of Greek tragedy, this play is not recommended for pre-school or young children," advises director Robert Gust. Assistant director is Kay Bostrom.

While the play was written as a modern adaptation by Dr. Christopher Jones, it preserves much of the convention and conflict evident in the original play written by Sophocles about 435 BC, director Gust said. The play involves the many conflicts resulting from Antigone's courageous struggle to bury the body of her brother Polyniecees on the field of battle in accordance with the laws of the gods but in direct defiance to King Creon's edict that prohibits such an act.

Cast members comprising the Court include Jennifer Fjosne as Antigone, Elizabeth Stusynski as Ismene, Benjamin Ruud as Creon, Rachael Freeman as Eurydice, Andrew Halverson as Haimon, Anders Berggren as Pallox, Karissa Blomquist as Arianna and Kelly Gustafson and Jared Britten as guards.

Townspeople include Anna Levenhagen as Silene, Amanda Kazmierczak as Leora, Kristyne Lyon as Palia, April Sjovall as Melora, Katherine Grandstrand as Doria, Danielle Langehaug as Cythia, Brady Swanson as Drago, Kyle Levenhagen as Demopolis, Jeremiah Knight as Silenius, Jarod Andersen as Xanthos and Shawn Aanenson as Marcos.

Shannon Clark is student director with Shawn Aanenson as stage manager and Anders Berggren as assistant stage manager. Carrie Hageland is in charge of lighting. Dera Benson handles the sound system and set construction is by Shawn Aanenson, Jarod Andersen, Anders Berggren, Jennifer Fjosne and Andrew Halverson.

"The Day I Touched the Sky" —a skydiving experience

As Lived And Written by Kevin Nelson

This adventure started as a dream which we all have at one time or another. I had the idea that one day I'd like to soar above the clouds in an airplane and then jump from its relative safety, have a parachute open and float gently to the earth.

I realized this would take a lot of thought, preparation and internal fortitude. Skydiving for the first time is quite a feat for anyone who can summon the courage. For me it would be an even greater accomplishment.

I was paralyzed in a diving accident 20 years ago outside Strandquist, at a state drainage ditch which flows to the Tamarack River. I have adapted quite well to life without use of my arms and legs. Using a mouth stick I am able to paint, type, use elevators, open doors and do many things for myself.

Living independently with the help of personal care attendants for 17 years in Minneapolis, I have had many wonderful experiences. Included are recording a full-length CD on which I wrote all 10 songs, co-produced and sang lead vocals, sang at several major events throughout Minnesota, hold an AA degree from Normandale Community College in Bloomington, have garnered many awards as a vocalist/song writer and am currently developing my next recording project.

After a recent loss of over 78 pounds, I knew this skydiving idea was even more possible. In the spring of 1998 I figured I would commemorate my 20 years of surviving my injury by taking "the big plunge."

I started researching skydiving on the Internet, making contact with a lady who is a parachute packer around the Twin Cities area. To my delight she informed me that skydiving was indeed possible for persons with disabilities. Through her I found Skydive of Hutchinson where I would ultimately make my jump.

Later I found out that several people I knew, also with disabilities, had already experienced skydiving. It has become very popular among the disabled community, so nothing could stop me from making this dream a reality.

The trip from Minneapolis to Hutchinson was an anxious one for me and my friends who accompanied me. It was a very warm day for September 18. We arrived at the air field before 2 p.m.—the time I was scheduled to begin my brief education on "tandem" skydiving. Tandem skydiving is being harnessed and hooked to another jumper called a "tandem master." The individual who was to be my tandem master had done over 1,800 jumps.

After all the introductions were made I watched a video explaining the risks of tandem jumping, which is still deemed experimental by the U.S. government. Then, after literally signing my life away, it was time to suit up.

The owners of the facility and their staff were very experienced at helping jumpers with disabilities, having assisted over 50 in 1998. They placed me on the floor and equipped me with a flight suit and jump harness. Then it was back to my wheelchair and out to the plane.

At the plane the crew lifted me up to the step and the tandem master stood behind me and hooked the front of his harness to the back of mine with metal clips. He stepped into the plane and I was lifted in to sit on his lap.

The first time up we could not jump because the ground winds were gusting up to 25 miles an hour. It was only my second time up in an airplane; the first was in a DC-9, much larger than the six-seater we were using. Rapidly my fears melted away and the sights from two miles above the earth were breathtaking.

We traveled back to the hangar with my feelings of anxiety, anticipation and disappointment mounting. I was placed back on the floor and taken out of the harness as my friends and I waited impatiently for the crew to give us the go-ahead to attempt the jump.

Close to 5 p.m., to my delight, I was told to go back in the training room and suit up. We repeated the earlier process and I was again on my way up to 12,000 feet. This time I would get back to earth the easy way—without the airplane.

They opened the door to incredible wind and noise and the cameraman stepped out on the wing. It was then my turn. The tandem master stepped one leg out on the wing and I was lifted out. Hanging out on the wing with nothing holding me to him but the harness, the tandem master counted to three and off we went—free falling for over a mile at speeds in excess of 120 miles an hour. It was not like falling—it felt more like flying.

After the free fall the parachute—called a canopy (which allows navigation) opened. We floated gently to the earth, circling around and taking in all the beauty of Minnesota from the bird's-eye view.

The landing was amazingly soft. With the ground crew waiting to catch me, my feet never touched the ground before I was taken right back to my waiting wheelchair. I had accomplished my goal.

Making this jump was the most exhilarating, liberating, inspiring and empowering experience of my life. It was definitely the most free I've felt in the 20 years since my accident.

It was always instilled in me by my family and friends that I can accomplish anything I set my mind to. Skydiving has confirmed that fact and will serve as a constant reminder when faced with life's day-to-day challenges. I am hooked on skydiving and will definitely do it again.

My life will never be the same since "the day I touched the sky."

(Editor's Note: Kevin invites anyone interested in viewing the video of his jump or who would like to join him on his next jump in the spring of 1999 to contact his parents, Eddie and Marcy Nelson, at Strandquist, phone 218-597-2686.)

Skydiving was recently experienced by Kevin Nelson, son of Eddie and Marcy Nelson of Strandquist, in tandem with an experienced skydiver. Nelson was paralyzed in a diving accident at a drainage ditch near Strandquist 20 years ago. The photos above show him ready to leave the wing of the plane and in freefall with his "tandem master."

Holiday variety show planned at Northland

"A World of Good Wishes" is the theme for a holiday variety show and dinner to be presented by the drama, music and art department of Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls on Tuesday and Wednesday, December 1 and 2, in the NCTC cafeteria and theater.

Janet Hauk Aarness, theater director at the college, is directing the event with Les Torgerson as music director and John Leopold as art director. Lon and Joyce Gobell will cater the event which begins with hors d'oeuvres at 6:15 p.m., follows with the ham dinner and entertainment at 6:45 p.m. in the cafeteria, continues with the show at 8 p.m. in the theater and concludes with cookies and wassail in the theater lobby following the show.

Tickets for the dinner and show are $12 each with show-only tickets available for $3 each. Ticket purchasers are asked to bring one non-perishable item for the Thief River Falls Area Food Shelf.

The all-new variety show will focus on Christmas around the world, using story, song, slapstick, spoof and sentiment to express the spirit of the holiday. Student actors will share the stage with the Northland Choir and Jazz Ensemble and NCTC faculty and staff providing some special surprises, Aarness said. The evening also will include Christmas trivia and door prizes.

Seating for the dinner is limited to 100 people for each of the two nights and tickets go quickly so early reservations are suggested. All seats for the dinner and show-only ticket holders are reserved.

For more information or to make reservations call 681-0728.

Pioneers short on numbers

Mike Zachow accepted the dual role as Northland Community and Technical College head volleyball and women's basketball coach late last summer. He knew full well numbers would be a problem in volleyball. There was no time to recruit and the shorthanded Pioneers struggled through a recently completed 2-19 fall schedule.

What Zachow didn't anticipate, however, was having to deal with the same situation in basketball. But just eight players showed up for the start of practice - the same number that were on the volleyball team. And with an off-court shoulder separation suffered recently by Lori Hagen, the number of available bodies in practice is down to seven as the Pioneers prepare for the 1998-99 season opener at Minot State University-Bottineau on Monday, Nov. 23.

When Rick Nikunen left the Northland women's basketball coaching job last spring to head the men's program, he had already put in a full recruiting effort for the women to complement the four freshmen who were on last year's 10-12 team. A ready-to-play squad was expected to be on hand for Zachow.

"There are some athletes in school who decided for one reason or another not to play basketball," explained Zachow. "That's their choice. I'm not going to beg people to play for us. We'll work with the players we have."

Zachow was quick to compliment the players that were on hand. "The seven players I have are good athletes," he said. "They have good basketball knowledge. I'm still expecting to have a good season."

The roster has two returning sophomores in 5-10 Amber Berg, who played high school ball at Badger/Greenbush-Middle River, and 5-7 Jenny Johnson, who is a product of the Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke program. Berg played in a reserve role last winter; Johnson was the team's point guard and averaged 9.2 points per game - second best figure in a very balanced attack.

Freshmen who reported include 5-4 Rachel Blazejewski, Tri-County; 5-8 Jessica Johnson, Warroad; 5-10 Shanna Keskitalo, New York Mills; 5-6 Becky Perreault, Red Lake Falls; 5-10 Miki Waterworth, Marshall County Central; and the 5-6 Hagen, Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, who is expected to be sidelined up to a month.

"We're not the quickest team around, but we still have some pretty good quickness, and we've got some pretty good height," noted Zachow who, despite the low numbers, still looks to play an up-tempo game. "We hope to press and run it the opportunity is there," he explained.

"What we're missing is a point guard," said Zachow. "Jenny Johnson played there last year, but we had hoped to move her to a No. 2 (shooting) guard this year. Now we may have to put her back at the point."

Nikunen swaps NCTC jobs

Rick Nikunen enters his seventh year as Northland Community and Technical College head basketball coach this winter, but this year his team will be playing the second half of the doubleheaders on the 1998-99 schedule. That because after six years, Nikunen swapped jobs. He left the women's team last spring to take over the men's program following the resignation of Ted Krize after just one year at the post. The women's game always precedes the men's game in the Pioneers' twinbill scheduling.

"It's fun to coach the men again," said Nikunen, who ran men's programs elsewhere before arriving at Northland to coach the women's basketball and softball teams.

He will be directing a team that has big numbers, but no big players. There were 22 players who reported for the start of drills, and 17 of them are still around. Four of them are 6-5 - the tallest members of the team.

"We're not very big, but we have a pretty good group of athletes," pointed out Nikunen. "We've got good quickness, but we'll have trouble with the bigger teams."

Northland won just one game last winter, and the lone sophomore back from that squad is 6-3 Dwight Goodwin of Milwaukee, WI. He averaged 15.3 points and 5 rebounds per game as a freshman - second best figures on the team in both categories.

Only other sophomores on hand is 6-2 Jesse Lunsetter, Grygla.

The freshmen include 6-5 Matt Moen, Fosston; 5-10 Kris Peterson, Karlstad; 5-10 Jeremy Vacura, Badger; 5-9 Ricardo Vidarte and 6-0 Roy Smiley, Ft. Lauderdale, FL; 6-0 Prentiss Joseph, Benton Harbor, MI; 6-1 Erik Forsberg, Sartell; 5-11 Alex Anderson, Grygla; 6-3 Kirk Beebout, Gary, SD; 6-1 Tristan Sjaaheim, Roseau; 6-3 Jim Scheef, Goodridge; 6-3 Jeremy Hostrup, Lancaster; 6-5 Jason Pinkney, Pompano Beach, FL; 6-5 Derek Wheeler, Newark, NJ; and 6-5 Jon Donarski, Newfolden.

"We've got adequate size," said Nikunen. "We've got 3-4 kids who can play inside, and we have some depth. We hope to play an up-tempo style, but you can't do that all the time."

First three Northland games will be against North Dakota schools - Friday, Nov. 20, at Valley State (JV); Monday, Nov. 23, at Minot State University-Bottineau; and Tuesday, Dec. 1, at home against North Dakota State College of Science.

Grygla pair take bull during second 1998 Minnesota elk hunt

The 1998 Minnesota elk season ended Oct. 18 with two of three permits for bull elk being filled during two separate hunts - Sept. 12-20 and Oct. 10-18.

First hunt started out with early success. At 7 a.m. on opening day, a pair of hunters from Center City dropped a mature 6X6 bull. A second pair of hunters from Sebeka hunted hard for seven of the nine-day season without taking an elk.

"They reported seeing a total of ten elk, all bulls, but didn't get a clear shot at any of them," explained Joel Huener, assistant manager at the Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area.

A pre-selected alternate hunting party from the Twin Cities area was then notified and given the chance to fill the permit during the October season, sharing time afield with Steve and James Sparby of Grygla, who were selected to fill a third bull elk permit in the separate lottery reserved for agricultural landowners and tenants living in the elk management area.

The second season was marked by several days of windy weather, interspersed with rain, which may have been responsible for less movement of the herd. On Wednesday, Oct. 14, the Sparbys were able to shoot a young bull with a 2X2 rack. The alternate party hunted for seven days, and both party members reported seeing elk, including bulls, but none were within range.

Both of the elk taken this season came from the same general area in Veldt Township of Marshall County that has produced most of the 13 elk harvested during the last three seasons. Eight of the 13 were shot on private land, including the large bull shot this year. The Sparby's bull was taken on state land in a wooded area on the Grygla Wildlife Management Area, near a 40-acre wildlife food plot of alfalfa and winter wheat planted by the Department of Natural Resources plants food plot.

Officials will announce at a later date if there be a 1999 elk season. "A season next year will all depend on how well the elk herd survives the winter, and the size and specific make-up of the population next spring," said Huener.

Minnesota's elk management plan calls for maintaining a pre-calving population of 20 to 30 animals. The pre-calving population last spring was estimated at 33.

Mahnomen wins 8AA football title...

Gators fall one-point short in finals, 31-30

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and Mahnomen combined for 61 points, 38 first downs and 806 yards worth of offense Thursday in their Section 8AA high school football playoff championship game at the Fargodome. But both sides had a devil of a time on their conversion attempts, which proved to be the deciding factor in the 31-30 Mahnomen victory.

The winners were just 1-for-5 in the extra-point department, but a kick by Sonny Accobee broke an 18-18 tie early in the third quarter and wound up being the difference in the back-and-forth offensive show.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River got a 28-yard field goal from Gustav Grauers on the first series of the game, but the foreign exchange student from Sweden was never given the chance to tie it when the Gators pulled within 31-30 with 3:02 remaining in the game.

A 1-yard Kagen Waage touchdown made it a one-point game, but an earlier injury had left Badger/Greenbush-Middle River without a long snapper for the conversion kick. That prompted a try for a go-ahead two-point attempt by hard-running Richard Wockenfuss. The 6-2, 235-pound senior carried 34 times for 170 yards and two touchdowns in the game, but was stopped short of the goal line on the conversion.

It was the second straight extra-point failure by the Gators, who chopped a 25-18 third quarter deficit to 25-24 on a 31-yard David Truscinski touchdown pass to Wockenfuss. Grauers made the kick for the tie, but a Badger/Greenbush-Middle River penalty took the point off the scoreboard and moved the Gators back five yards. A high snap then sabotaged the second kick attempt.

The see-saw match-up between the top two Section 8AA seeds lived up to its pre-game billing. The Gators took an 18-12 lead into halftime when Wockenfuss scored on a four-yard run in the final minute of the second quarter. Quentin Teeman broke away on a 63-yard touchdown run early in the third quarter and Nathan DeVries added a 13-yard scoring run midway through the period to produce the 25-18 Mahnomen lead.

Next series, a 76-yard drive, led to the Truscinski-to-Wockenfuss touchdown pass.

Led by Wockenfuss' running and an 8-for-14, 110-pound passing performance by Truscinski, the Gators netted 360 yards. But they gave up 446 yards, with Teeman gaining 170 yards on 15 carries and DeVries picking up 104 yards on 17 attempts to lead the Mahnomen attack. Quarterback Ben Baumann added 163 yards on 6-for-8 passing.

The loss ended a 7-3 season for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River. It also snapped a six-game win streak and a two-year championship reign for the Gators who won an 8C title in 1996 and an 8AA crown in 1997.

Mahnomen will take a 9-1 record into the Class AA state quarterfinals against the Section 7AA champion, either East Central or Brahman.

New identity requirements for driver's license

Minnesota Department of Public Safety, Division of Driver and Vehicle Services, has announced that new identity requirements for state driver's licenses, permits or identification cards go into effect on November 1.

The change means that first time applicants and those applying for replacement cards will be asked to present two forms of identification unless they have a current license or ID card issued by a U.S. state or territory or a Canadian province.

The most common forms of acceptable identification include U.S. and Canadian birth certificates or passports and certain Department of Justice Immigration and Naturalization Service documents.

A list of acceptable documents is posted at all driver's license application and examination sites and may be viewed by Public Safety's web site at www.dps.state.mn.us. Driver's manual supplements describing the new requirements will be available until revised manuals are printed.

James Connolly, program supervisor in Driver and Vehicle Services, said the changes in Minnesota's identification rules were necessary to protect the integrity of state-issued licenses and identification cards. "Driver's licenses in particular are no longer simply an identification that the individual is qualified to operate a motor vehicle," Connolly said. "They are increasingly relied upon to prove age and identity for everything from securing employment to purchasing alcohol, tobacco and other consumer goods. We think these new requirements will help Minnesota citizens protect themselves against identity fraud."

In his home county of Kittson, Tunheim beat Webb by more than two-to-one with 1,610 votes to 738. In Webb's home county of Roseau (he is a former Northwest Angle resident who now has a home in Warroad), however, Webb pulled off a narrow win (3,042 to 2,929). In Lake of the Woods county the vote was 1,186 for Tunheim and 818 for Webb while in the District 1A precincts of Marshall county Tunheim won big with 2,131 votes to Webb's 962.

Representative In Congress Seventh District

Congressman Collin Peterson of Detroit Lakes, a Democrat, had a cakewalk over Republican Aleta Edin in District 7, which for many years provided races tighter than a cork in a champagne bottle. With 1,020 (99.7%) of the 1,023 precincts reporting, Congressman Peterson had 167,569 votes (71.8%) to Edin's 65,360 votes (26.3%).

Amendments All Pass

All three amendments to the state constitution were passed by the voters, with the only close call being Amendment No. 3, abolishing the office of State Treasurer in the year 2003. In actual vote, there were 56 per cent yes votes and 44 percent no votes on that question, but voters not voting on the question were also counted as voting no.

As of 10 a.m. Thursday, the Secretary of State's office did not have a counting of total votes cast in the election. However, with 99.95 percent of the precincts reporting, yes votes on Amendment No. 3 totaled 1,086,847. Total votes cast for governor were 2,090,419—close to the total votes cast in the election. Half of that vote total would be 1,045,210, indicating a cushion of 41,237 votes for yes votes over half of the votes cast.

Amendment No. 1, to extend use of at least 40 percent of the state lottery funds for the state environment and natural resources trust fund, and Amendment No. 2, to preserve the state's hunting and fishing heritage, had the same percentage of 77.2 yes votes and 22.8 percent no votes.

Other State Offices

In other state office races, Mary Kiffmeyer, a Republican, won the Secretary of State race over DFL candidate Edwina Garcia with 46.7 percent of the vote to Garcia's 41.2 percent. Alan Shilepsky of the Reform Party had 9.7 percent of the vote.

Republican Judi Dutcher was reelected State Auditor with 48.9 percent of the vote to 41.1 percent for DFL challenger Nancy A. Larson.

DFL candidate Carol Johnson was elected State Treasurer with 45.4 percent of the vote over Republican Kevin Knight who had 40.5 percent.

Mike Hatch collected 47.9 percent of the vote to keep the Attorney General's office in DFL hands. Republican Charlie Weaver had 43.8 percent of the vote.

(Voting tabulations by precinct for the general election in Pennington county will be included in the November 11 edition of the Thief River Falls Times.)

Mike Hruby

Lee of Fosston who collected 1,294 votes.

In Kittson county, incumbent county commissioner Randy Swenson in District 5 was unseated by Betty Younggren who polled 243 votes to 212 for Swenson.

Another veteran county commissioner was defeated in Roseau county where Doran Horner of Warroad, who had served for 28 years on the county board, was defeated by Alan Johnston, also of Warroad. Johnston received 569 votes while Horner received 450 votes.

In the District 3 commissioner race in Roseau county, Horace Rasmussen of rural Roseau retained his office with 818 votes to 392 for challenger Daryl Mickelson of Salol.

TAKE A POWER TRIP.

The Arctic Cat 500 4x4 was designed to dominate the competition in every category of performance. It features a powerful four-stroke, 493cc liquid-cooled engine that has more torque than the Yamaha Grizzly. So for ride comfort and superior handling, nothing tops its fully independent double A-arm front and semi-independent rear suspension. After all, just because the 500 is big doesn't mean it can't be sensitive.

Grandma Gertie sews fur bears

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Attics across America contain the keepsake clothing articles of the generations which preceded us — the wedding suits and gowns of our parents, our fathers' military uniforms and the fur coats worn by our mothers and grandmothers. What do we do with them? While each has a story to tell, most remain silent while stowed away in boxes and trunks.

When Gertie Carter's brother sent her the fur coat that their mother had worn, she decided to make bears from the coat, one for her brother and one for herself. That was around 1980. Little did Gertie know at that time that bears like her first "memory" bears would be bringing her calls from all over the country nearly 20 years later.

The sewing skills Gertie uses to make bears are the skills she's had all of her life — as a young woman growing up in the Wannaska area and as the owner of Amco, a commercial sewing business.

Already an experienced upholsterer, Gertie made seat cushions for Polaris snowmobiles in the early 1970's at the commission of her husband, snowmobile pioneer Allan Hetteen. She says that her company "mushroomed" into a number of divisions, some of which still exist today.

The death of her husband led to the eventual sale of the various branches of her company. Gertie later married Roseau attorney Robert Carter whose wife had died the same month as Mr. Hetteen.

Gertie and Bob lived in Florida for about ten years before returning to their beautiful home near Wannaska. The Carters each came to the marriage with a large collection of antiques, and the couple purchased an old log cabin which they moved to their land and renovated to house their massive collection. They believe it to be the oldest building in Roseau county.

The couple's many interests are also apparent in and around their lovely home. Their yard is like a massive park with gardens and wide groomed paths that lead to the cabin, a pond and other points of interest on the large property. Their home contains the mementos of their lives. Gertie is a doll collector, and old and new collectible dolls can be found in interesting groupings throughout the house. Bob retired from the law office now occupied by his son about ten years ago. He stays busy outdoors and collects first edition books. He also displays the many medals and souvenirs from his days as a World War II fighter pilot, each having a fascinating story. Golfing, too, is included among the couple's many hobbies and is just one more of the things that makes them such interesting individuals.

Gertie continued to sew throughout the years, often making clothing and toys for her grandchildren. She also made dolls, and while she gave many of them away, her hobby reached the point of obsession. "I couldn't stop. The house was overrun with dolls!" she says.

Gertie needed an outlet for the pastime that would otherwise have to end, and once again her entrepreneurial spirit kicked in.

Because Gertie wanted to spend her time in the home that means so much to her, the Carters renovated an office in the house into a shop. A sign near the driveway announces "Grandma Gertie's." Precious grandchildren, of course, are responsible for the business' name.

While Gertie has kept her advertising to a small ad in the weekly Roseau Times-Region, her business has once again mushroomed or could if she wanted it to. She would rather, however, work at her own pace.

Memory Bears resembling the first bear she made and fittingly named "Mama" have become intensely popular, so much so that she is only taking phone calls and names. Word of mouth has spread her story across the country with Gertie receiving calls from both coasts and everywhere in between. The bears themselves tell the reason why.

While each bear is unique with a face and personality all of its own, all of the bears are jointed and all are completely child-safe.

Gertie has created her own patterns. The arms and legs of all of her bears are jointed, and some have heads that swivel. She makes the joints that she uses from the plastic of purchased paint pails. Until the weight and quality of the plastic changed, she used empty ice cream pails. Gertie cuts the plastic into a circular shape and punches two small holes into the center of each joint. Two joint pieces are used for each limb.

Gertie disassembles the fur coats and lays out the pattern pieces, carefully aware of the nap of the fur. She uses every scrap of fur that she can, and the number of bears each coat yields depends on the size of the coat and quality of the fur. Tiny bears are made from fur collars.

Once the head, ear, arm and leg pieces are cut out, she sews them together using an old commercial sewing machine. The machine is one she kept from her commercial sewing days, and while its is "so ugly" she keeps it in the basement, the heavy-duty machine has a walking foot that doesn't pull the fur against the nap the way a lighter domestic machine would. If the fur is fragile, the pieces are reinforced with a fabric backing.

Once the various body parts are sewn together, they are turned right side out, and the joint pieces are placed in the arms, legs and bodies. Carefully matching them, Gertie hand sews the joints together with a strong button thread.

The bear is then stuffed with a polyester stuffing, and the openings are sewn closed by hand. Often, Gertie must use a plier to pull every stitch through the leather.

The eyes and noses she uses are purchased from a doll supply company and are secured in place before the head is stuffed.

Once the bear is stuffed and the openings are closed, Gertie uses a long soft sculpture needle to bring the bear to life. Tapestry yarn creates the mouth, and the tension of the stitches create facial expressions.

While the technique used is the same on every bear, each takes on a life of its own and is different from the one that preceded it. While Gertie enjoys making "happy" bears, some customers have requested "grumpy" bears, and she's found that a more pointed nose will give a bear a more serious look.

Sometimes the ears are all fur, and other times she lines them with the same material she uses to make the pads of the bear's paws. Depending on the type of fur used, the pads are made of coordinating suede or satin.

Gertie also sews or knits the scarves or vests worn by some of the bears.

Once the bears are done, they are named. Customers sometimes provide the names, naming the bear for the person who owned the coat or the person who will receive the bear. Other times, Gertie chooses a name she feels suits the bear's personality. She gets help from her spouse, too. "Bob is a great one to name bears," she says. The bear's name is embroidered to the pad of one foot while the date the bear is completed is stitched to the other. A tag on the bear's back identifies it as having been "Lovingly made by Grandma Gertie."

Gertie Carter made this bear named "Mama" in about 1980 from a fur coat that her mother had worn. Little did she know that nearly 20 years later her memory bears would bring her calls from all over the United States as others seek her talents to create keepsakes from vintage clothing.

Fur is not the only material Gertie has used to make memory bears. She's made them from old military uniforms with patches and medals added to the finished bears. She has also made bears from wedding gowns or suits worn by grooms. Whatever the fabric, Gertie uses what she calls her "trial and error" method to create a keepsake bear.

Gertie makes some bears from fake fur, too, and adds music boxes which play where their paws are squeezed. She also makes rag dolls and clowns as well as assembles and dresses porcelain dolls. A delightful display of her creations can be found in her shop which she advertises as "open by appointment or chance." Grandma Gertie's telephone number is (218) 425-7490.

Her clientele comes from the Roseau area, Thief River Falls, Crookston and Grand Forks. As word about the memory bears has spread, however, the calls are coming from everywhere. "I would love to know all of the people I've talked to on the phone," Gertie says.

Currently the wide closet in Gertie's sewing room is full of fur coats, hanging and waiting to be made into bears, and the names of those who call are added to a list.

She spends several hours most mornings cutting and machine sewing. Her sewing room is right off the living room where she enjoys the evenings with her husband as she finishes the bears she started earlier in the day.

While the unique memory bears have become enormously popular, Gertie isn't planning to expand her business. Instead, she finds the relaxed pace of her bear-making to be just right, and she enjoys the time she has just to be "Grandma Gertie."

Centenarians vie for rare distinction

Fosston - Two Fosston area women are vying for a rare distinction — having lived in three centuries.

Nellie Clementson who currently resides at First Care Nursing Home was born in 1896. Rose Rinkenberger, who was born in 1897, lives in her home on the family farm in rural Fosston.

Coincidently, Nellie once lived in the home that Rose occupies today. The house was sold to the Rinkenbergers by the Clementsons in 1941.

The Thirteen Towns plans to provide updates on the women's remarkable race to the new millennium — less than 14 months away. The Thirteen Towns

RLF students whistle with artist

Red Lake Falls - Visiting artist Leo Lara helped Red Lake Falls students compose music with the clay whistles they made last week in Ann Perrsoi's art class. A free whistle concert was held November 12.

Lara's visit was made possible by a grant applied for by the Comprehensive Arts Planning Program (CAPP) and Red Lake Falls Clayworks. Lara is an Ecuadorian musician living and working in Minnesota. He and his wife have been actively involved as performers and educators of Latin American folkloric music, playing professionally since 1971. The Gazette

Ventura No. 1 among Douglas county kids

Alexandria - While adults were busy voting in Douglas county, approximately 700 District 206 students voted in the new Kid's Voting program.

Students from grades 4, 9 and 12 participated in the program with the results showing that except for the school tax levy referendum, which students voted in favor of, the results of the kids' election were very similar to the results of the actual election.

In the governor's race, 44 percent of the students participating voted for Jesse Ventura, compared to 41 percent for Norm Coleman and 15 percent for Skip Humphrey. Echo Press

Country recording artist spends days as pipeliner

Stephen - For the past two months country singing artist Tommy Mercer has been in the Stephen area. Mercer and his brother own and operate Mercer Construction of Fort Worth, TX which has been doing work for Lakehead Pipeline Company.

Mercer has spent a big part of his life in the recording profession with several singles released across the country. He has opened shows for such artists as George Straight, Merle Haggart, Larry Oatlin, Tanya Tucker and others. He also writes some of his songs.

He is scheduled to perform in Las Vegas in December before going to Fort Worth, TX and Branson, MO. Tapes of Mercer's music are available at several Stephen businesses. The Messenger

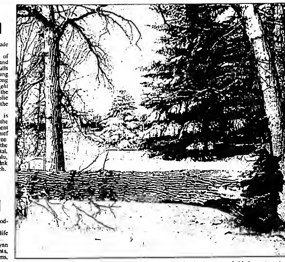
Christmas tree lighting ceremony November 21

Annual lighting of the community Christmas tree in Floyd B. Olson Park in Thief River Falls will take place Saturday, November 21, at 6 p.m. Kent Fritze, chairman of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce board, will serve as master of ceremonies. Public attendance is encouraged.



Opening music will be provided by the Resonance quartet with the welcome to be given by Mayor Mark Borsheim.

Heidi Hoks, manager of the Thief River Falls public library, will read the Christmas story and more music will be presented by Lincoln high school carolers under the direction of Daicy Reese, vocal music instructor at Lincoln.

Dr. Jerry Robicheau, superintendent of schools for School District 564, will officially light the tree and a special appearance will be made by Santa Claus.

Rev. George Davis, pastor of Faith Lutheran Brethren Church and president of the Thief River Falls Ministerium, will give the closing prayer. A community sing-along will include singing of Silent Night as the group makes its way from the park to St. Bernard's Catholic Church for refreshments in the church hall.

The tree lighting program is cooperatively sponsored by the Community Education Department of School District 564 and the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. Donations toward the success of the event were provided by Ace Rental, Hugo's, Bridgeman's, SuperValu, Norwest Bank, Northern State Bank and St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Beautiful to behold, but dangerous nonetheless. The region's first winter storm on Tuesday turned out to be a blizzard. Slippery conditions contributed to many accidents on Tuesday and Wednesday. It also caused this large tree to fall in Eddy Savorson's yard at 1212 East Greenwood.

More than 50 crafters at shows November 21

More than 50 crafters will display and sell their wares at three locations in Thief River Falls on Saturday, November 21.

First storm of the season brings blizzard conditions

by David Hill
Associate Editor

The first storm of the season arrived a little later than usual, but contributed to a number of problems including several power outages in the region, and accidents in the Thief River Falls State Patrol district Tuesday, November 10.

Tuesday morning residents of Northern Minnesota awoke to a blanket of heavy, slushy snow. In many areas, only a few inches of snow had accumulated on the ground, but cooling temperatures and strong winds then created blizzard conditions. With the announcement of blizzard conditions and a "No travel" recommendation from the State Patrol, area schools closed.

Coincidentally, Minnesota Governor Arne Carlson had proclaimed the week of November 9-13 as Winter Hazard Awareness Week in Minnesota. The goal of the 1997 Winter Hazard Awareness Week was "to increase awareness of winter hazards and to encourage citizens to take appropriate actions to eliminate or reduce their vulnerability to winter dangers, while enjoying the pleasures of the winter season."

Also coincidentally on Monday, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety initiated their winter safety campaign called "Stay Back, Stay Alive". They provided such tips as: assume snowplow drivers do not see you; reduce speeds because snowplows travel 30 to 50 mph slower than other vehicles; be patient, never drive into a snowcloud caused by plowing; keep gas tanks full; turn on headlights; plan ahead, include winter safety items in your vehicles; pay attention to weather forecasts; watch bridges because they may be slick; avoid using cruise control when driving on snow or ice-covered roadways; and give the snowplow driver room to work safely.

Accidents

The icy conditions in the area resulted in a number of accidents. Under sunny skies Wednesday morning, the Minnesota State Patrol in Thief River Falls was still receiving reports of vehicles going in the ditch because of icy conditions. They reported that they had received dozens of reports of vehicles, perhaps over 50, going in the ditch. Very few of the accidents, however, were serious.

On November 10 at 7:44 a.m. State Patrol received a report of a three car accident about one mile south of Thief River Falls on Highway 59. According to the accident report, Rosaline Groven, 28, Goodridge, was driving a car south on Highway 59 when her car began to fishtale and then slide into the northbound lane. Her car collided head-on with a car driven by Karen Delage, 51, Brooks. The Delage vehicle then went off the road, but the Groven vehicle then collided with a Chevrolet Blazer driven by Mary Martell, 42, Thief River Falls. The State Patrol reported that there were no injuries, but extensive damage to the Martell and Delage vehicle, and moderate damage to the Groven vehicle.

After 23 years, Janelle Laymon Fick of rural Newfolden was reunited with her birth mother in Conyers, Georgia on September 21. The women discovered that not only do they look alike but often think and say the same thing at that same time.

Adopted daughter, mother reunited after 23 years

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

From the time she was kindergarten age Janelle Laymon Fick knew that she was adopted. When she felt her daughter was old enough to understand, Mary Laymon shared the letter that her adopted daughter's birth mother had written to her two months before she was born.

The letter was penned by a 20-year-old unmarried Twin Cities woman, explaining that her baby had been conceived out of love, but she and the baby's birth father were not able to work out their differences and raising their child together would be impossible.

The young woman went on to say that as a single parent she did not feel she would be able to provide her baby with the kind of life she wanted him or her to have. She wanted her child to have two parents and siblings and to live on a farm surrounded by wide open spaces and animals.

The young woman's dreams for her baby came true. Janelle was born in Minneapolis on June 20, 1973, and at the age of three months she was adopted by Mary and Larry Laymon of rural Warren.

Janelle grew up in a loving farm home with two doting parents and a brother David who is five years older and was also adopted.

Janelle was diagnosed with juvenile diabetes at the age of 12 after diabetic ketocidosis and the resulting coma threatened her life.

Once the diabetes was managed, Janelle's normal happy childhood continued. She graduated from high school in Warren and in 1995 married Jason Fick, her childhood sweetheart.

The couple lives in rural Newfolden. Janelle has worked as a bank teller, and Jason is employed as a truck driver and laborer for Davidson Construction of Holt.

While Janelle's diabetes did not complicate her pregnancy, a bout with preeclampsia caused the couple's daughter Elizabeth to arrive four weeks early on October 13, 1996.

Because Mary Laymon had shared the letter from her daughter's birth mother with her, Janelle didn't grow up with the nagging questions and doubts that many adopted children have. She knew that her birth mother had given her up for adoption because she loved her and wanted her baby to have a better life than she felt she could provide.

Still, it was always Janelle's dream to meet and know the woman who gave birth to her.

Her parents tried to fulfill Janelle's wish before their daughter's high school graduation and wedding only to find that opening the adoption records was very costly and might require the services of a private investigator.

Of course, neither the Laymons nor their daughter knew what the feelings of Janelle's birth mother might be after so many years had gone by. Would she want to be found?

At the same time, a woman in Conyers, Georgia was asking questions too. Would the baby she gave up 23 years ago want to know her? How would her daughter's adoptive parents feel?

However, she was plagued with a number of health problems and believed that the daughter she had given up had a right to know her health history. She convinced Lutheran Social Services to forward the information to her daughter.

It was August 24 when Janelle received a call at work from Lutheran Social Services. She was told that her birth mother wanted to talk to her and was given her name and number. "I froze," Janelle says of her reaction to the call.

Janelle left work early that day to accompany Jason to a doctor's appointment in Grand Forks. Her parents were in Grand Forks that day also. She and Jason joined them for supper where they discussed the phone call and what it meant. Her parents and husband shared her happiness.

Janelle's joy was mixed with feelings of terror, however, and

Martha Stewart features Becker county craftsman

Snellman - It was the simple fish design of Bridgewater Scrollworks that caught the eye of celebrity crafts connoisseur Martha Stewart. The fish, she decided would make the perfect drawer pull for a child's chest of drawers

The Becker county business was prominently featured on Martha Stewart Living on Monday, November 9 as Stewart showed how to replace common drower pulls with the half-inch pine fish pulls.

Terry and Judy LeFleur have operated Bridgewater Scrollworks for 21 years, producing quality wood cutouts of just about anything for craft workers from Minnesota to Saudi Arabia.

They were contacted by five Stewart staffers regarding both the show and their production capacity. Stewart, it seems, would like to feature the LeFleur's work in her Martha by Mail catalog during next year's holiday season. The LeFleurs plan to cut, sand and ship as many as 10,000 pieces for the catalog. Detroit Lakes Tribune

Dana McGeary has role in BSU comic operetta

Dana McGeary of Oklee, a graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, was a cast member of the Bemidji State University Theater and Department of Music production of the comic operetta The Mikado in late October.

A senior social work major, McGeary played Yum-Yum, the lead role of the three sisters who were school maids and wards of Ko-Ko, the "Lord High Executioner." The operetta was directed by Dr. Rhonda Fisher and Robert Seriba, BSU faculty members.

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

Today we have some recipes that will keep you and your family going in the cold fall weather.

Here's a spicy dish that can be made ahead and ready for lunch or supper in minutes:

PAN BURRITOS

2 packages (1 1/2 ounces each) enchilada sauce mix
3 cups water
1 (12 ounce) can tomato paste
1 garlic clove, minced
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Salt to taste
2 pounds ground beef
9 large flour tortillas (9 inch)
4 cups shredded cheddar cheese or taco cheese (16 ounces)
1 (16 ounce) can refried beans, warmed
Taco sauce, sour cream, chili peppers, chopped onion and/or guacamole (optional)

In saucepan, combine enchilada sauce mix, water, tomato paste, garlic, salt and pepper. Simmer for 15-20 minutes.

In skillet, brown beef. Drain. Stir in 1/3 of the above sauce mixture.

Spread another 1/3 of the sauce in bottom of greased 9x13 inch pan. Place 3 tortillas over sauce, tearing to fit bottom of pan. Spoon half of meat mixture over tortillas and sprinkle with 1 1/2 cups of the cheese. Add 3 more tortillas.

Spread refried beans over tortillas. Top with remaining meat and then 1 1/2 cups more cheese. Layer remaining tortillas and top with remaining sauce. Sprinkle with remaining cheese.

Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting. Serve with any of the optional items that you desire.

Here is another recipe to use for Thanksgiving, or for those left-over Thanksgiving potatoes:

CHEESE POTATO PUFF

12 medium potatoes, peeled (about 5 pounds)
1 teaspoon salt, divided
3/4 cup butter or margarine
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup milk
2 eggs, beaten
Fresh or dried chives if desired

Cook potatoes, adding 1/2 teaspoon salt. Mash potatoes until smooth.

In saucepan, cook and stir butter, cheese, milk and remaining salt until smooth. Stir into potatoes. Fold in eggs. Pour into greased 3 quart baking dish.

Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until puffy and golden. Sprinkle with chives, if desired. (Serves 8-10.)

Like waffles? You'll love this sunny orange-flavored whole wheat version:

WHOLE WHEAT WAFFLES

1 egg, separated
3/4 cup milk
1/3 cup oil
1/4 cup orange juice
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 to 1 1/2 teaspoons groted orange rind
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

In small bowl, beat egg white until stiff peaks form. Set aside.

In another small bowl, beat egg yolk, milk, oil and orange juice.

Combine flour, sugar, orange rind, baking powder and salt and stir into milk mixture. Fold in egg white.

Bake in preheated waffle iron until golden.

If hubby got his deer this year, you may tire of plain venison. When you do, try this tasty sweet and sour version:

VENISON MEATBALLS

1 pound ground venison
1 egg, lightly beaten
4 tablespoons cornstarch, divided
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon oil
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 (8 ounce) can pineapple chunks
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
Egg noodles

In bowl, combine meat, egg, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, salt, pepper and onion. Shape into 1 1/2 inch meatballs and brown in oil. Cover and cook over low heat until done (about 10 minutes).

In saucepan, stir vinegar and remaining cornstarch until smooth. Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add enough water to juice to equal 1 1/2 cups and stir into vinegar mixture. Add sugar and soy sauce and cook and stir over medium heat until thickened.

Add meatballs, pineapple and green pepper to sauce. Cook until heated through and green pepper is tender. Serve over noodles.

(Ground beef can be substituted for venison.)

And here's a pretty fancy bread that would be great to make ahead and freeze for the holidays:

CHEESE TWIST BREAD

3 1/4 cups flour
2 packages active dry yeast
1 1/2 cups buttermilk
3/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
5 eggs
3 1/2 to 4 cups whole wheat flour, divided
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese

In large bowl, combine flour and yeast.

In saucepan, heat buttermilk, butter, sugar and salt to 120 to 130 degrees. Add to flour mixture. Blend on low speed until moistened. Add eggs and beat on low for 30 seconds. Beat on high for 3 minutes. Stir in enough whole wheat flour to make a soft dough.

Turn onto floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, 6-8 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm place until nearly doubled, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down and divide in half. On lightly floured board, roll each into a 12x9 inch rectangle. Cut each into three 12x 3 inch strips.

Combine cheese with 2 tablespoons of remaining whole wheat flour. Sprinkle 1/3 cup of mixture down the center of each strip. Bring long edges over cheese and pinch to seal.

Place the 3 strips, seam side down, on greased baking sheet. Braid strips together, securing ends. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until golden. Immediately remove from baking sheets to wire racks. Cool.

Zion Lutheran sponsors blood drive November 24

Leisure Fellowship of Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls will sponsor a blood drive for the Thief River Falls community Tuesday, November 24, from 1 to 7 p.m. and Wednesday, November 25, from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the church located at 505 Main Avenue North.

Gladys Hallstrom, blood drive coordinator, encourages residents of the community and surrounding area to make a commitment to donate blood at this important holiday drive.

Blood drawn in the drive will be made into three different components, the most important of which is platelets, which help control bleeding. Many leukemia and other cancer patients use platelets on a regular basis. Since they are usable for only five days, they are difficult to keep in plentiful supply.

United Blood Services, which draws the blood during the drive, typically sees an increase in platelet use during the holidays, so the need could be critical.

Blood drives held around holidays are especially important because United Blood Services will be closed Thanksgiving Day and extra blood will be needed to build up the supply before the holiday and bring the supply back to normal after the holiday.

The demand for blood products is constantly increasing and the need for blood doesn't take a holiday. Blood is needed every day by someone. Although many people say they are too busy to donate blood, patients are betting their lives that not everyone is too busy to spare an hour a few times a year.

Leisure Fellowship of Zion is conducting the calling campaign to schedule donors with appointments. Persons who are interested in donating blood should contact Gladys Hallstrom at 964-5539.

Blood drive at Goodridge set for Thursday, Nov. 19

Goodridge Lioness club's next blood drive has been scheduled for Thursday, November 19, from 7:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at St. Anne's Catholic Church in Goodridge.

Generally, most healthy people from 19 through 79 years of age and who weigh at least 110 pounds may donate, according to Cindy Kotrba, blood drive coordinator. This includes people who are taking vitamins, hormones, birth control pills, diet pills or antibiotics for acne.

Donors who are otherwise eligible can not be accepted for this drive under the following circumstances:

• They have received a blood transfusion within the past 12 months;

• On November 19, three days have not passed after the last dosage of antibiotics for an infection;

• They are not symptom-free of colds and flu on the day of donation;

• Within the past 12 months they have had tattoos or ear piercing done at an unlicensed establishment;

• They do not know the name of their medications and the condition for which it is taken.

"These qualifications may have some affect on persons who plan on donating blood at this blood drive," Kotrba said. "We encourage other citizens to take the place of donors unable to give at this time."

Every donor must bring to the drive a form of identification that includes the person's legal name plus one of the following: date of birth, social security number, United Blood Services assigned number of photo.

People who have questions on donor qualifications or who wish to schedule an appointment may call Sylvia Wiseth at 378-4117 or Deb Swanson at 378-4570.

Time To Think

I like to see deer when I'm sitting in the deer stand during deer season. That's kind of a no-brainer. Any hunter who tells you that he or she doesn't care about seeing deer during the hunting season would probably lie about other things, too.

If the goal is truly to just sit introspectively in the woods for five or six days, there are a lot of other weeks available to sit out there and think when it's not so cold and there aren't a bunch of yahoos running around the countryside with loaded guns. I expect to see deer and enjoy entertaining the notion that I might actually kill one.

Having said that, I must point out that more often than not I don't see deer and even less frequently do I shoot them. Therefore, I enjoy the time that I spend in the woods just sitting and thinking and if I didn't I wouldn't enjoy hunting.

This year, like most of the others before it, provided ample opportunity for rumination. Here are a few of the hunting thoughts that wedged themselves into some cranial cracks between naps. Perhaps you performed similar mental feats.

Apparently baiting for deer is legal this year. I thought last year's regulations were pretty clear: "No person may place or use bait for the purpose of taking deer." I guess there's a little gray in that statement, because a clarification of the baiting rules in this year's handbook (page 45) suggests I can hunt the trails leading to a feeding spot, provided I can't see the bait.

This looks like a DNR enforcement nightmare—the backsliding must be the result of some recent legal challenge. I'm curious if the fact that I flinch every time I pull the trigger, momentarily blocking from view not only what creature it is I might be hunting, but also whatever it is I might be "hunting over," allows me to legally shoot next to any bait I might place.

The hunting public is developing a fascination for more and more primitive weapons. Recurve bows are replacing compounds. Atlatls (spear throwing devices) have reappeared on the hunting scene. Spears themselves are becoming popular bear hunting weapons. Who among us has not wistfully considered pulling out a Swiss Army Knife and dropping 10 feet onto the back of that unwitting "spike" below as he so ignorantly rubs against the base of our tree stand? The more primitive the weapon, the more challenging the hunt.

A recent Rhode Island court conviction sent a young cat burglar to jail for murder. Apparently his standard practice of duct taping his victims' mouths closed while he ransacked the house didn't take into account the runny nose of one particular home owner. The duct tape combined with the plugged nostrils to suffocate the man.

Ignore the grisly nature of the account and pick up on the primitive. Why not combine two Minnesota infatuations to create the most primitive hunting experience possible.

As northern Minnesotans, we've used duct tape for literally everything else in our lives, so I'm just a little embarrassed that an urban, East Coast criminal had to point out its practical applications for hunting. Dropping from that branch with a four-foot-long, sticky silver strip in hand, ready to administer the killing wraps around the quarry's snout should certainly satisfy any primal blood lust we might possess.

I see hunting mannequins out on the market now. According to the advertising, these "fakes" are intended to go in the deer stand when the real me is not around. Aside from the obvious problems of deciding on what attire and scent to apply to the "stand-in" (do I have to dress and smell like Myles Keller?), how does such a notion fit with the time honored tradition of scarecrows? I'm either being duped as a hunter or gardener. Or, perhaps, crows are a far worthier opponent than deer and the hunting challenge has been misdirected.

Besides, my wife wonders, with all the time, effort and passion that I apply to the sport of deer hunting, why would I be interested in having some other "dummy" use my stand anyway?

Jesse Minces No Words On Stadium Question

Governor-elect Jesse Ventura dropped down out of Minnesota Vikings owner Red McCombs' private box at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis last Sunday for a television interview. He was asked about his view on a new stadium for Twin Cities professional sports teams.

"This building is only 16 years old," he said candidly. "We don't replace schools after 16 years. I think this building is just fine."

If the Reform Party governor keeps talking common sense like that, he may be in for a tough time gaining comprehension from the traditional major parties which haven't seemed to understand that type of talk for a long, long time.

"Who Is A Real Hero?"

Wednesday, November 11, was Veterans Day and it did not go without attention from military veterans and others who appreciate the sacrifices made by American men and women in a number of wars to preserve freedom for the people of this nation.

To every resident of the United States of America, the observance of Veterans Day has a different meaning. Lucille (Lucy) Aasland of Thief River Falls was asked a year ago about her thoughts on what Veterans Day means to her. Following is her response as one person who remembers:

WHAT VETERANS DAY MEANS TO ME
by Lucille Aasland

Who is a "Real Hero?"

Who Is a "Veteran?"

Veterans are those who have served in the military to protect us and keep us free....right? How could we possibly know what it is like not to be free? We, who have always enjoyed all the freedoms of living in this wonderful, imperfect country of America! I, like most of us, just take it for granted!

Arnold Bockset, World War II survivor of a Japanese prison camp in Mukden, Manchuria, and author of Rice, Men and Barbed Wire, believes that the real heroes are those who have given the supreme sacrifice.

In his book, he says, "To my fallen comrades who did not come home, I say, you are not forsaken, nor forgotten, and you will always live on in memories of love and affection. You are the true heroes of this episode in history, you are the men who gave up your tomorrows so we could have our todays....."

To me, the 'real hero" is the man or woman who has donned a uniform, endured basic training and obeyed his or her call to duty! As a sister of one who fought, was captured, mistreated, starved, forced to march more than 100 miles in blistering heat without food or drink; and saw his friends starved, beaten to death, beheaded, raped, or shot by a firing squad ....one who died in a prison camp because of the dreadful, inhuman and horrific treatment of his captors... I am thankful that not all who have served our country have had to fight for it!

I am thankful for the peace keepers! I am thankful for each man or woman who answers the call to duty, whether it takes him or her to the battle field or not. To me, that person who is willing to protect you and me and preserve our freedoms... that person is a "VETERAN"....that person is a "REAL HERO!"

McGwire's Homers Rely On Contact(s)

Baseball slugger Mark McGwire, who smashed Roger Maris' home run record of 61 by slugging 70 round-trippers this season, relies on solid contact between bat and ball to propel the ball over the outfield fence. You can't talk to a baseball person for more than a few minutes before the subject of "making contact" come up.

Much was made during the season of the big right-handed hitter openly using steroids banned in track and field to enhance his performance. Now it is being made known that he is more dependent on another aid to performance to be successful at his job—contact lenses.

According to information provided by the Contact Lens Council with offices in Landover, MD, "very few know that without his contact lenses, Mark McGwire can't see the pitcher—let alone the ball—when he's standing at home plate ready to swing."

According to McGwire's optometrist, C. Stephen Johnson, OD, McGwire can't see anything unless he's wearing his contact lenses. Dr. Johnson designed special contact lenses to correct McGwire's 20/500 vision to better than 20/10. McGwire once told Dr. Johnson, "when everything is on visually, I cannot miss the ball; it's like a beach ball coming in there."

McGwire's contacts were designed to help his conditions of astigmatism and dry eye—a lens that wouldn't dry out and would stay stable in the eye. They were also designed with a yellow tint—such as those on glasses worn by trap and skeet shooters—to make things stand out crisper and sharper....like the figures on his paycheck. The lenses also improved his depth perception.

Will those situations cause the Commissioner of Baseball to have an asterisk placed behind McGwire's name in major league baseball's record book? "*70 home runs may have been aided by use of steroids and customized contact lenses."

A Christmas 2nd to Nun slated Dec. 13, 14, 16, 17

Tickets are now available for this season's That's Entertainment production written and directed by Kari Frisch. This year's show is entitled A Christmas 2nd to Nun and continues the tradition-in-the-making of The Little Sisters of Thief River Falls.

Each evening starts with a 6 p.m. social, followed by dinner at 6:30 p.m. and the show at approximately 7:30 p.m. Dates for the show are December 13, 14, 16 and 17 and it will be presented at the Best Western Inn.

Frisch launched That's Entertainment in the spring of 1995 with the production of Nunsense. That was followed by an encore production in the fall; by Nunsense II. The Second Coming the next year; and by A Christmas Like Nun-Other last year.

The success of last year's production fueled the interest of both the patrons and the cast, Frisch said.

Cast member Deb Jacobson, who plays the quirky Reverend Mother, explains that "we had quite a few people ask us about our next production—ask for the dates so they could mark it on their calendars. It was as if doing another show wasn't even an option. So we decided on A Christmas 2nd to Nun."

Frisch wrote the new two-hour show around the now familiar characters played by Sally Erickson, Diane Haven, Marilyn Wigness, Jacobson and Frisch. It has many great songs as well as jokes and laughs, sometimes with the help of audience participation, as well as tender moments that touch the heart.

"I was amazed at how well Kari was able to make the transition between the comic and true meaning of Christmas," commended Marilyn Wigness, pianist for the cast. "It was just all-around enjoyable, and this year's show is going go be another good one."

Last year "the kids" didn't make it back to the convent in time to perform the annual pageant. Who knows what trouble the Little Sisters of TRF will get into this year.

Ticket price of $18 includes the show and dinner. For more information and reservations call 681-6604 or 681-4051.

Efforts by Kiwanis International, including the club located in Thief River Falls, will have raised and expended $75 million by the year 2000 to virtually eliminate iodine deficiency disorders throughout the world.

By early 1998 the Kiwanis contributions had resulted in preventing more than six million children from mental retardation annually.

Effects of iodine deficiency in children include lowered IQ, impaired learning and preschool performance, mental retardation, delayed motor development, growth failure or stunting, lack of energy, muscular disorders, paralysis, speech and/or hearing defects.

All of the problems can be prevented with a simple inexpensive commodity—iodized salt.

In Bolivia, where more than 60 percent of the school children were iodine deficient, the Kiwanis project helped increase the production of iodized salt from less than 10 percent of the human demand at the beginning of the project to 100 percent. Number of iodization plants increased from two to 42 and the price of iodized salt decreased from 75 cents per kilo to eight cents, making it accessible to low income groups.

First storm of the season brings blizzard conditions

the State Patrol received a report of an accident at Highway 59 and the junction of County road 61, two miles south of Thief River Falls. According to the accident report, Michael Foster, 20, Cass Lake, was driving a Toyota pickup south on Highway 59 and slowing to turn onto County road 61, when a Thief River Falls School District 564 school bus driven by Shirley McCray, 42, Thief River Falls, could not stop on the ice and collided with the rear of the Foster vehicle. Foster and McCray were both taken to Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. They were both released following treatment for neck and back injuries. There were no children on the bus at the time of the accident. There was extensive damage to the Foster pickup and moderate damage to the school bus.

Law enforcement personnel* in Thief River Falls and Pennington county reported relatively few accidents. Most of the accidents that did happen involved combined damages of less than $1,000.

Marshall County Sheriff's department reported that they didn't have any serious accidents. They received reports, however, of dozens of vehicles in ditches.

Red Lake County Sheriff's department reported that they were fortunate. They didn't have any serious accidents and only a few reports of vehicles in ditches.

Power outages

Residents of Thief River Falls experienced fluctuations in power Tuesday. Some area residents, however, were without power for longer periods of time. Bob Guillemette of Red Lake Electric reported that customers in the Goodridge-Highlanding area, Oklee, and Terrebonne were without power on Tuesday. Some were without power for about 26 hours.

Guillemette explained that power outages were caused primarily by wires bouncing together and causing the breakers to short out. There were four power poles down because of the storm, however.

Red Lake Electric employees put in long hours restoring power to customers. By Wednesday afternoon, power had been restored to most of their customers.

Thief River Falls Utilities Superintendent Arlo Rude said there were no power outages within the City of Thief River Falls. He said crews were dispatched to deal with some lines that were slapping together, and at another location northeast of town. There were some power fluctuations, he said, but they were coming over the MinnKota system.

Mel Nelson of MinnKota Power explained that there were momentary outages throughout northwest Minnesota. Those momentary outages or "breaker operations" were due to conductors slapping together, which was caused by wind and ice.

Don Burnell, line superintendent for Roseau Electric, reported that heavy snow on trees caused four line outages. He estimated that a little over 100 customers were affected by the outages. By early Wednesday afternoon, service had been restored.

Paul Wrolstad, director of office services, for Beltrami Electric reported that for the first time in their history, the entire system was hit by power outages. Wrolstad said the office received over 1,100 calls by 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. The next morning, they had another 1,500 calls from customers. After a lot of hard work and long hours, service had been restored to all but 200 customers as of Thursday morning. He expected to receive more calls from individuals Thursday and Friday who had discovered they were still out of power. He said he would encourage customers who are without power to call the office.

In reviewing damage reports, he said their southern area including areas around LaPorte and Guthrie were hardest hit. In those areas tall pine trees fell on lines and poles. He estimated that they lost between 20 and 30 poles due to the storm.

Power was restored on all of the main lines in the Clearwater-Polk Electric Co-op distribution area by 2 a.m. on Wednesday. Allen Theis, line superintendent, said he wasn't sure how many customers were without power. The whole system was affected, off and on, by the storm. The most heavily affected areas were around Lake Alice and Gully-Clearbrook. Cause of the power outages was due to trees and wind.

Theis urges anyone still without power to contact the main office.

Areas from East Grand Forks to Crookston and as far north as Angus and across the Red River Valley in the PKM distribution area were without power for a short period of time. Bob Baird, line superintendent, said about 400 customers were affected by the outages. Those outages occurred during Tuesday and by Tuesday night power had been restored to those areas.

Baird reported that damage was due to wind and ice. A few poles were damaged, but most of the damage was to wire breaks.

George Miller of Wild Rice Electric Co-op said they had a half dozen poles down and many wire breaks. Between 600 and 800 customers were without power. By 11:30 p.m. on Wednesday, power had been restored to the areas they knew were without power.

Calendar Parking

While Calendar Parking in Thief River Falls doesn't go into effect, by law until November 15, residents of Thief River Falls were being asked to move their cars from streets on Thursday, and avenues on Fridays, so that local street crews could remove snow.

Warning tickets will be issued at least once so residents can get used to the fact that Calendar Parking will be enforced. On Monday, November 16, officers officially begin enforcing Calendar Parking. According to the ordinance, there will be no parking between 6 and 9 a.m. on avenues Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and on streets Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The purpose of the ordinance is to give street crews an opportunity to clear streets and avenues of snow. Residents are asked to inform their visitors of the ordinance, as well.

Welcome to winter Thief River Falls. The first storm of the year on Tuesday, November 10, turned out to be the season's first blizzard. While it didn't deliver lots of snow. The blizzard did deliver lots of ice.

First snowmobile accident of year recorded in TRF

First snowmobile accident of the year for Thief River Falls was recorded Thursday. Nineteen-year-old Matt Tupa of Thief River Falls, was taken to Northwest Medical Center following an accident south of Thief River Falls along Highway 59.

Tupa was treated and released in the emergency room at Northwest Medical Center. A Minnesota Department of Natural Resource Conservation officer reported that Tupa was driving in a ditch along Highway 59 on the south edge of Thief River Falls when his snowmobile hit an approach. Tupa was unfamiliar with the steep approach and combined with a lack of snow, was thrown from the snowmobile and injured. The 1995 Polaris XLT 580 he was driving was considered a total loss.

The Conservation officer said speed was not a factor in this accident, which was reported at about 12:40 p.m. He added that with a lack of significant snow, snowmobilers should be alert to hidden objects under the surface of the snow, and the lack of forgiveness apparent when there isn't much snow.

Thursday, November 19th
1 p.m. to 7 p.m.
As part of American Diebetes Month, Dr. Mark Yuska, a podiatrist and American Diebetes Association Member, will be providing a free foot screening.
As part of this event, there will be available free literature on diabetes and its relationship to foot care. A drawing for those receiving a screening will also be held. Prizes include home glucose monitor and gift baskets.
For the estimated 8 million people in the U.S. who have been identified with this disease it is critical to be aware of its deadly complications. In the foot common problems include infection, ulceration of the skin, or gangrene that may lead, in severe cases, to amputations.
Most of these problems are preventable through proper food care and blood sugar control under the management of your physician team including a podiatrist.
Persons wishing to have a foot screening may preferably call for a scheduled "screening time" at 218-681-4747 but walk-ins are welcome.

PRACTICAL MAGIC

Freshmen filled most spots on 1998 football squad...

Young Northland team is 2-6

Freshman-dominated Northland Community and Technical College football team took its lumps on the field this fall with a 2-6 record. But in the process, the Pioneers put themselves in position for a major turnaround in 1998.

First-year Northland head coach Dan Willoughby began the 1997 season with just 14 sophomores on his 60-man roster. As the year progressed, only five second-year players were listed among the 22 offensive/defensive starters.

Lack of experience was a major reason why Northland began the year with an 0-4 swing through the Minnesota Community College Conference Southern Division with loses to Central Lakes 39-6, Fergus Falls 20-12, Ridgewater 42-18 and Minnesota West 21-12. With a half a season under their belt, the Pioneers became a playoff contender by starting the four-game Northern Division portion of their schedule with wins over Hibbing 24-20 and Vermilion 19-12.

Past-season dreams were shattered, however, with back-to-back losses to Itasca 29-19 and Mesabi 16-13 in overtime to close the schedule.

"We looked to be better than 2-6," admitted Willoughby. "But we played a lot of freshmen right away, and that's why we got off to a slow start, and that's why we did better at the end of the season than we did at the beginning. Hopefully we'll have 25-to-30 kids coming back next year and we won't have to go through that (learning experience) again."

Willooghby wasn't discouraged by the Pioneers' performance this fall. "In six of the eight games, we had a chance to win," he explained. "We went 2-4 in those six games, but we could have easily been 4-2. I'm not disappointed in the team. I thought the players played hard, and they gave it everything they had."

Northland's strength was its running game. The Pioneers led the state in rushing with 1,750 yards, and their 218.8 yards per game average ranked them No. 6 on the national level. But the problem, offensively, rested in the passing game. With 602 yards in the air, Northland finished ahead of only Mesabi (497) in MCCC passing.

Defensively, Northland gave up more yards than anybody else in either division – an average of 365.4 yards per game.

"I was really happy with our running game," said Willaughby. "Our offensive line did a nice job, and our backs ran hard. Defensively we came a long way over the course of the season. I thought our defensive line really came along, and we had some good linebackers. But we just didn't have enough of them. We didn't have a lot of depth at linebacker or in the defensive backfield."

Willoughby and his staff are busy contacting high school seniors in an effort to bring in a strong freshman class to complement the returning sophomores next fall. "We should have a good mix with sophomores and freshmen next year," said Willoughby. "I knew when I took the job last November that we would be playing a lot of freshmen this year. That won't happen again. Now we have a pretty good idea what we have coming back, and we can recruit to fill positions instead of an entire roster."

While freshmen took the center stage, Willoughby was quick to praise the efforts of the players who completed their Northland football careers this year. "We didn't have a lot of sophomores," he acknowledged, "but I was really proud of them. I know it was tough on them coming back to play for a new coach. That put them back on level with the incoming players, and some of them had to play different positions to help the team. They did a great job for us."

Annual NCTC football clinic achaduled to be held Saturday, Jan. 23

Northland Community and Technical College athletic director Rick Nelson and head football coach Dan Willoughby have announced plans for the 16th annual Midwinter Northwest Minnesota Football Coaches Clinic Saturday, Jan. 23, at the Thief River Falls campus.

"This event has been a great opportunity for coaches in northwest Minnesota and eastern North Dakota to get together and share ideas to help plan for the next football season," said Nelson. "We have been able to bring in featured speakers from the Twin Cities and as well as some of the top coaches in the area over the past 16 years to speak at our clinic."

Cost of the clinic remains at $15 per coach, which includes lunch and a social, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club and the Eagles Club. An entire coaching staff can attend for $50 if they pre-register by Jan. 14. Registration material will be available later this month.

Thousands of individual components make up a vehicle's operating systems. With normal use, these components are subject to wear, deterioration and corrosion.
Lubricants, fluids and filters are just part of these components which are vital to keeping a vehicle running smoothly and are also subject to deterioration and contamination over time.
Manufacturers recommend regular vehicle maintenance to inspect components that are particularly subject to wear and to replace the lubricants, fluids and filters that have reached the end of their service life.
All vehicle manufacturers have recommended maintenance intervals. Maintenance is recommended based on three factors: 1. Odometer reading (mileage), 2. Elapsed time (number of months since the last scheduled maintenance), 3. The condition under which the vehicle is regularly driven. Most vehicle owners should follow the mileage recommendations for maintenance. However, people whose driving consists primarily of short trips and who accumulate mileage slowly should follow the recommended time periods. Service intervals also depend upon whether the vehicle is driven under "normal" or "severe" conditions as listed in the owners manual. An item not listed in most owners manuals is severe cold. When a vehicle's engine and transmission temperature can range from -30 degrees up to 210 degrees (some vehicles several times a day) it can lead to premature wear on many of the components designed to help your vehicle run at its peak performance. In these extreme conditions it's best to follow the service maintenance schedule.
Whether it's called vehicle maintenance or preventative maintenance, the key purpose is to maintain a vehicle's performance. Contributing to longer life, better driving economy and more reliable operation.
Maintenance also prevents small problems from becoming bigger ones and ensures the vehicle is as safe as possible and conforms with safety and emissions laws and regulations.
Call or stop in and talk to Mark or Barry to discuss your vehicles recommended maintenance.

SWCD needs volunteers to record moisture

Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) takes part in a rain gauge reading program where rain gauges are located about every 12 square miles across the State of Minnesota. Local volunteers record rainfall and snow amounts and send records in to the SWCD who, in turn sends them into the State Climatology Department.

The SWCD provides cylinder rain gauges (like Dewey rain gauges), forms for recording rain and snow amounts, and stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the rain gauge volunteers in the district.

Current rain gauge volunteers are Larry Vigen, Cheryl Sistad, Harold Klamar, Palmer Holte, Gordon Foss, Carol Anderson and Peter Aune (who would like to be replaced). The SWCD is also looking for others to fill in the gaps and give the district more complete coverage.

If you are interested in becoming a rain gauge volunteer, contact the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD office.

Adopted daughter, mother reunited making the initial call was difficult. "I didn't know what to say," she says. Finally, she made the call simply telling the woman named Lynette who she was. Lynette responded with elated tears which were matched by Janelle's.

During that initial call, Janelle learned that her birth mother had named her Stacy Lynn in the hospital, a fact that was not shared with the Laymons when they adopted and renamed Janelle.

Janelle's birth father was a serviceman from Pennsylvania, a loving boyfriend whose attitude changed when Lynette became pregnant. It was obvious to Lynette that they had no future together even though he sent her flowers when her baby was born and refused to sign the adoption papers — the reason Janelle spent three months in foster care.

Lynette told Janelle how the adoption agency provided her with files of prospective parents. The Laymon's file was the first and last one she read. Touched by the fact that five-year-old David wanted a baby sister, she was convinced that he would watch over her baby. Her own brother had provided support to her through her pregnancy.

Janelle also learned that she has three half sisters, ages 16, 15 and 12, grandparents in Bloomington, an aunt in Mound and an uncle in Ohio.

Lynette was told that she had a granddaughter and was touched to find out that not only had Mary used the blanket and booties Lynette had knit and sent with her baby but that the items had been saved for and used by Janelle's daughter Elizabeth.

On September 21 Janelle and Lynette were reunited when Janelle, Jason and Elizabeth along with Mary and Larry Laymon traveled to Georgia. Janelle's brother David, who now lives in Florida, joined them there also, and what had been two families became one.

Janelle describes the initial meeting as "quite the moment ... wonderful ... a dream come true."

Over the course of nine days Janelle got to know her birth mother and her family. Lynette's husband's career in sales has taken the family to several locations over the years. For the past four years they have lived in Georgia.

Janelle describes Lynette's husband as a "nice guy" but learned that he was, at first, uncomfortable with his wife's search for Janelle. His feelings changed when he witnessed the joy both women derived from the reunion, and he welcomed Janelle with open arms.

Piles of photographs reveal a joyful occasion. Janelle, Lynette and Janelle's new sisters enjoyed a slumber party. Mary and Lynette shared stories, tears and laughter. Little Elizabeth was doted on and "spoiled rotten" by all of the attention from new and old grandparents, her uncle David and three new aunts. She was showered with gifts at an early birthday party. Family photographs were taken in front of the fireplace that was decorated to welcome the Ficks and Laymons.

Only an inch separate Lynette and Janelle in height, and although she has brown eyes like her birth father, Janelle resembles her birth mother with the same teeth and smile, similar facial structure and voices that sound alike.

Janelle's diabetes can be traced back in Lynette's family. Both Lynette and Janelle have suffered from clinical depression. Lynette has also been treated for endometriosis and suffers from osteoporosis and arthritis. Recently she had knee replacement surgery. Janelle may or may not be affected by these maladies in the future.

The reunion story did not go without notice, featured by a Georgia newspaper and television station. Footage that was sent to Fargo aired on KXJB-Channel 4.

Janelle also met her grandparents at the airport in the Twin Cities and learned that they were present at the hospital when she was born. Because she was being given up for adoption, they weren't allowed to see her. Their only memory of their first grandchild was seeing her whisked down the corridor wrapped in a blanket. Elizabeth is their first great-grandchild, and according to Janelle, the couple delights in being great-grandparents.

Janelle is overwhelmed by the events and emotions she's experienced in the past ten weeks. With the love of two mothers she feels very fortunate.

She's thankful for the woman she calls "Lynette" and sometimes "ma" — the woman who gave birth to her. Lynette told Janelle that two of her friends who became pregnant around the same time as she did opted to abort their babies and didn't support Lynette's choice to go through with her pregnancy.

Lynette held, fed and changed the baby she named "Stacy Lynn" while they were hospitalized during the days after the birth. A mother herself, Janellep realizes how much strength it must have taken to say good-bye.

Janelle marvels too at the love and support she's received from her parents. While many adoptive parents would have dreaded such a reunion, the Laymons welcomed and participated in it. Mary has told her daughter how grateful she is to Lynette.

Ironically, Janelle's parents and grandparents are the same ages, 66 and 67. Realizing that she and Larry "won't be around forever," Mary has told Janelle that she wants her to have "someone to call 'mom' after I'm gone."

Janelle has added a lot of new names to her family tree and is struggling to remember birthdays and other special occasions. She's invited her grandparents to join her family for Thanksgiving.

Except for the nine days that they were together, Lynette has called Janelle nearly every day since the day of that first telephone call, and they never run out of things to say to each other. In fact, sometimes they think and say the same thing at the same time. Almost simultaneously each woman described how finding the other again had made her life's circle complete.

Janelle has two mothers — Lynette who loved her enough to give her away and Mary who loved her enough to share in her joy as her dreams came true. The recipient of so much love, Janelle Laymon Fick is a lucky young woman.

The Laymon family includes, from left, David, who lives in Florida, Mary Laymon, Janelle Laymon Fick holding her daughter, Elizabeth, and Larry Laymon. The Laymons of rural Warren accompanied their daughter to Conyers, Georgia where Janelle was reunited with her birth mother. Janelle's husband, Jason, also made the trip.

Pvt. Dobmeier completes basic Marine training

Marine Pvt Chad W. Dobmeier, son of Gene A. and Jackie M. Dobmeier of Grygla, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Dobmeier successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Dobmeier and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m., by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Dobmeier spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Dobmeier and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values — honor, courage and commitment, and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Dobmeier and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour team effort, problem solving evolution which culminated with an emotional ceremony in which the recruits were presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and were addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

Dobmeier is a 1998 graduate of Grygla High School.

CHS treats area seniors to a meal and matinee

Crookston - Seniors living in the Crookston school district received a special Thanksgiving gift Wednesday as they were treated to lunch and a special matinee of Crookston High School's all-school play, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat."

Crookston High School principal Al Zenor said, "We're just doing something nice for them in return for all they've done and continue to do for us."

Hurricane leaves Honduran girl far from home

Alexandria - Six-year-old Cinthia Caceres came to the United States in August with plans to return home in a couple of months.

Through Healing the Children, the youngster was brought to Minnesota to receive an eye prosthesis to replace the underdeveloped eye she was born with. The organization is based in Litchfield and includes medical professionals and others who volunteer to help children from Third World countries. Foster parents Barb and Scott Fischer of Alexandria are among the volunteers who have provided care for Cinthia.

Since the time Cinthia came to Minnesota Hurricane Mitch has wiped out much of her country and the fate of her parents is yet unknown. As she remains with the Fischers, she attends kindergarten and says the best thing about being here is her amigos (friends).

After nearly 50 years Oklee native returns for hunt

Oklee - It took almost 50 years, but Orlando Hofstad finally made it back to the Oklee-Plummer area for deer hunting.

While Hofstad didn't fill his deer tag, he returned to sunny Florida with memories of shivering in a deer stand and stomping through the woods.

A 1949 graduate of Oklee High School, Hofstad spent 26-1/2 years in the Air Force before retiring to Florida where he owned and operated a small engine business for 21 years.

Hofstad will hunt during deer season in Florida where the season runs from Thanksgiving Day until January 15. Deer are smaller in Florida, however. A 90 pound buck is considered a good specimen.

Chief of police ousted as city reorganizes

Fertile - The Fertile City Council announces its plan to reorganize at a recent council meeting, and the elimination of the position of chief of police is part of that reorganization plan.

Pat Tuseth has been Fertile's chief of police for over eight years and was not at the meeting that announced the elimination of his position. Instead he was spending the evening with his daughter, celebrating his birthday. Tuseth found out that he was out of a job from friends on the street. He calls the situation "pretty crummy." The Fertile Journal

On Wednesday, November 18, residents of Northwest Minnesota experienced their second major storm of the season in as many weeks. Although sustained winds fall short of defining the event as a blizzard, it dumped 16 to 18 inches of snow on the Thief River Falls area, and created what many described as blizzard conditions. Many motorists were stranded or stuck in deep snow, but there were no serious accidents or injuries to report as a result of the storm.

Second storm of season dumps 16 to 18 inches of snow on TRF area

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Sustained winds may not have been enough to classify the second storm of the season as a blizzard, but it certainly was strong enough to shut down much of this area.

Like last week's storm, this storm shut down schools, and closed schools and businesses early. Unlike last week's storm, there were no serious accidents or injuries to report, and no reports of significant power outages.

The first storm of the year produced relatively little snow in the region. The second storm, however, produced 16 to 18 inches of snow in the Thief River Falls area. Slightly less totals were reported in area communities.

Thief River Falls Fire Department did receive one call Wednesday during the storm. A fire department spokesperson said a carbon monoxide detector alerted a family to a possible problem. Upon investigation by the fire department, they did register a problem in the house. A fire department spokesperson urges residents to check their vents and fireplaces. Vents and chimneys could be clogged with ice and snow.

Thursday morning, November 19, Minnesota State Patrol was still recommending no travel until late morning. Plows were clearing main highways but there was ice on many of the roads.

Red Lake County Sheriff's department was reporting that plows were slowly clearing the roads, but roads were very icy. Prior to the start of the snow Wednesday, they reported receiving significant rain. As of Thursday morning, many of the gravel roads had not been plowed. According to a dispatcher for the sheriff's department, the roads were so icy that county plows had difficulty.

There hadn't been any accidents involving significant damages in Red Lake county. One person reported missing Wednesday, was located soon after the missing report was broadcast.

In Pennington county on Thursday, many roads were considered passable, but no travel was being recommended until later in the day. There weren't any accidents involving significant damages reported to law enforcement. From the number of vehicles stuck in ditches and in the middle of the city streets in many cases, it was obvious Wednesday that many drivers were having a difficult time.

Kittson County Sheriff's department reported that roads were passable, but travel, unless absolutely necessary, was not recommended. "If" motorists traveled on roads Thursday morning, the dispatcher said they traveled at their own risk. They reported that motorists seemed to be listening to advice not to travel. There were no reports of accidents involving significant damages or injuries.

Roseau County Sheriff's department reports were pretty much the same. Roads were opening as plows got to them. The main highways were open as of Thursday morning; and there had been no reports of accidents involving significant damages or injuries.

CORRECTION:

A description of a three-car accident in the November 14 edition of the Northern Watch was incorrect. The story, which was included in a story about the first storm of the season, should have stated the following: Mary Martell, 42, Thief River Falls was traveling south on Highway 59 when her Chevrolet Blazer began to fishtale. It slid into the northbound lane where it collided with a Chevrolet Cavallier driven by Karen Delage, 51, Brooks. The Delage vehicle left the road. A car driven north by Rosaline Groven, 27, Goodridge, which was also northbound, collided with the Martell vehicle. There was moderate damage to the Groven vehicle, moderate damage to the Martell vehicle, and extensive damage to the Delage vehicle. The Times regrets the error and any embarrassment or inconvenience caused by the error.

Plummer phone customers approve EAS rates

With approximately two-thirds of the eligible customers returning their ballots, Plummer telephone exchange customers approved rate increases to permit toll-free calling to Thief River Falls/St. Hilaire and Brooks/Red Lake Falls exchanges, according to the Minnesota Public Utilities Commission.

The commission certified results of the election Tuesday. The poll was conducted from September 30 to November 10 with residential and business customers receiving one ballot for every line to which they subscribe.

Garden Valley Telephone Company of Erskine provides local telephone service in Plummer. The commission ordered Garden Valley to file an implementation schedule within the next 60 days. The new Extended Area Service (EAS) is expected to be available in about a year.

The EAS will permit local instead of long distance calling among customers in the Plummer, Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire exchanges and the Plummer, Brooks and Red Lake Falls exchanges.

For Thief River Falls/St. Hilaire telephone customers, Plummer will become the sixth area community which can be called toll-free. This service is presently available to Goodridge, Holt, Middle River, Newfolden and Viking.

The extended service to the other exchanges for Plummer customers will cost an additional $11.09 per month for one party residential service and $18.14 per month for one party business service. Residential increases will be $6.98 for EAS to Thief River Falls/St. Hilaire and $4.11 for EAS to Red Lake Falls/Brooks. Business increases will be $11.42 and $6.72, respectively.

Customers in the Thief River Falls/St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls/Brooks exchanges will also have modestly increased rates due to the EAS to Plummer. Increases on the monthly bills in Thief River Falls will be 17 cents for residential customers and 42 cents for business customers. In St. Hilaire the cost increases will be 22 cents and 31 cents. In Red Lake Falls/Brooks the respective increases will be 60 cents and 92 cents.

According to the Public Utilities Commission, 69.9 percent of the eligible customers in the Plummer exchange returned their ballots in the vote for EAS to Thief River

Joppru wins world Forage Superbowl

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

For most of his life Don Joppru has been making hay on the family farm, and recently his efforts were recognized when he discovered that his hay had been selected for the grand champion prize in the commercial division of the World's Forage Analysis Superbowl.

The competition is an annual event, and the 1998 sponsors included Holstein World, World Dairy Expo, Inc., AgSource Cooperative, Inc., the University of Wisconsin-Madison, Hay and Forage Grower and Midwest DairyBusiness.

This was the first time Joppru had entered the competition, doing so at the suggestion of a representative of Harvest States. "I couldn't believe it," Don says in response to winning the award.

In addition to a grand champion ribbon and engraved plaque, Don won one season's use of a bi-fold wheel rake. The rake is manufactured by H & S Manufacturing Company, Inc. in Marshfield, WI, and after Joppru chooses the model that will best suit his needs, the implement will be made available to him through Anderson Power & Equipment.

Don also won four bags of alfalfa seed from DEKALB Genetics Corp., a value of about $800.

With his brother Dean and sons Wade and Noel, Don Joppru manages about 4,000 acres of family land. The family also owns Joppru's Meats, a brisk processing business that has been part of the Thief River Falls business community since 1952.

The Jopprus currently have 2,000 acres in production. Canola was added in 1997 to the traditional wheat, corn and alfalfa crops.

Alfalfa occupies about 450 acres of Joppru land, and while crops are usually rotated every four to five years, Don has successfully raised hay on the same acreage for up to 10 years.

Traditionally, hay has always been a labor intensive crop, and the shortage of available workers necessitated the switch from small square bales to large round bales in 1993. In 1997 the Jopprus purchased a Case-IH baler to make 1,000-pound medium square bales. Even though the baler cost about the same as a house, Don says, "They're the only way to go. You've got to get

Accident kills Marshall Co. man Thursday

Doyle Martin of East Valley township, Marshall County, (near Holt) was killed Thursday, when a large metal overhead shop door fell on him.

Marshall County Sheriff's department received a 9-1-1 call at 1:18 p.m. Great Plains EMS was summoned to the residence and Martin, 39, was taken to Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls. He was pronounced dead from his injuries.

Two children drown in thin ice accident

Arla Kleppe, 4, and Andrew Kleppe, 2, were pronounced dead at Clearwater County Memorial Hospital after attempts to revive them were unsuccessful. The two children had fallen through thin ice near the Erma Carlson residence in rural Clearwater County Wednesday, November 18.

At 11:59 a.m. the Clearwater County Sheriff's department received a 9-1-1 call that two children had fallen through the ice near a rural Clearwater County residence. Units from the Clearbrook and Gonvick Fire/Rescue, Ambulance, First Responders, Sheriff's office and DNR responded.

The children were recovered from the water after approximately 10 minutes. Neither child was breathing. CPR was initiated at the scene by members of the Clearbrook Fire Department, and continued on route to Clearwater County Memorial Hospital. The efforts to revive the children were unsuccessful.

The parents of the children are Arne and Carol Kleppe of rural Gonvick.

Green ribbons call attention to farm, food

Green ribbons with business cards attached will be distributed on Sunday at churches in Thief River Falls, Oklee, Plummer, Brooks and Viking to call attention to the difficulties being faced by area farmers.

Sponsoring the ribbon campaign is the Penn-Mar-Red chapter of Minnesota Agri-Women. A similar ribbon effort was utilized at the national convention of American Agri-Women recently in Fargo, ND, and also conducted by the Penn-Mar-Red chapter at the Minnesota Senate Agriculture and Rural Development Committee meeting at Northland Community and Technical College earlier this fall.

"We Care In Prayer," states the card to which the ribbon is pinned. "Please wear this ribbon to thank those who produce your food."

The local Agri-Women chapter is preparing 4,000 cards and ribbons for this Sunday's distribution, according to Ginny Armstrong of rural Thief River Falls, who is heading the committee for Arlene Novak of St. Hilaire, chapter president.

In addition to Armstrong and Novak, committee members working on the project are Glenice Johnson and Rhonda Amundson of Thief River Falls, Deb Whalen of Oklee and Jan Freitag of Plummer. The project involves cutting the sections of green ribbon, pinning them to the cards and distributing them to churches in the communities mentioned in time for this Sunday's services.

The green ribbon effort to make people aware of farm problems and remind them of the source of their food products originated in North Dakota with the Grafton Ministerial Association and the Agri-Women chapter in that area. Ribbons were distributed in church parishes there in mid-May.

"We thought that we had to do something in our town to alert people to what's occurring with many farmers in the region facing tough financial conditions," Rev. Bert Miller of St. John's Catholic Church in Grafton said at that time.

Enthusiasm for the effort at the Senate committee meeting here and at the national convention in Fargo encouraged the Penn-Mar-Red chapter to extend its effort to area churches.

"We had hoped to involve more churches in more communities," Ginny Armstrong said on Thursday, "but with the 18 inches of snow we

I bought a new cookbook at the craft sale last weekend and I'd like to share some recipes with you. The cookbook is from the St. Pauli church of TRF and I've put in the names of the people who submitted them. I tried to pick some Thanksgiving-type recipes that sounded good, although everything in the cookbook sounded good to me.

This recipe sounds a lot like mine, only quicker. Since Thanksgiving just isn't Thanksgiving without scalloped corn, I think I'll try this one this year:

GRANDMA RAAEN'S SCALLOPED CORN
by Stacy Davidson

1 can creamed corn
1 can whole kernel corn, drained
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup milk
2 cups crushed soda crackers
Salt and pepper to taste

Mix corn in large casserole. Add eggs, milk, salt and pepper. Stir in cracker crumbs. Bake 1 hour or more (until set) at 350 degrees.

Here's a way to have your sweet potatoes and cranberries in one dish - It sounds wonderful and I bet it tastes great with turkey sandwiches, too:

SWEET POTATO BAKE
by Sue Kotz

1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup oatmeal (uncooked)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/3 cup margarine
2 (17 ounce) cans yams
2 cups fresh cranberries

Combine flour, brown sugar, oatmeal and cinnamon. Cut in margarine until it resembles coarse crumbs.

Combine yams and cranberries and add 1 cup of the crumb mixture.

Place in 2 quart casserole or 9x13 inch pan. Top with remaining crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

Sprinkle 1 1/2 cups miniature marshmallows over baked yams. Broil until lightly browned. (Serves 6-8 people.)

Here's a delicious pumpkin pie for you to try:

PUMPKIN PIE
by Elaine Lendobeja

1 1/2 cups pumpkin
3/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup cream
2 eggs
1/2 cup cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon salt

Mix above together and pour into raw pie crust.

Make mock pecan pie with walnuts, or use real pecans in this rich dessert - either way, it is a traditional end to the feast:

MOCK PECAN PIE
by Virginia Hallstrom

6 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup dark Karo syrup
2 tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/3 cup walnuts

Slightly beat eggs (don't over-beat).

Mix sugar, syrup, butter and vanilla. Add eggs and walnuts. Pour into unbaked single pie shell.

Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes, then bake at 300 degrees for 30 minutes.

Since I can't seem to make lefse, I might try this treat if I get the chance - It would be something special this year and maybe it would be easier than lefse. I think I need a good lefse iron, so if anybody has a really good one they don't want any more, let me know:

FLAT BREAD
by Corine Bjorge

3/4 cup melted shortening
2 cups quick oatmeal
3 cups white flour
1/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 1/2 cups buttermilk

Mix dry ingredients, then mix in melted shortening until crumbly.

Add soda to buttermilk and then add to above mixture.

Roll out thin on flour board with grooved rolling pin. Bake on cookie sheet at 375 to 400 degrees until done, but do not brown.

(Conne says that Butter flavored Crisco is good in this recipe. Cut with pizza cutter before baking. Makes about 1 dozen.)

Cattle Feeders Day set at Northwest Experiment Station

Thirty-first annual Minnesota Cattle Feeders Day has been set for Monday, December 7, beginning at 8:45 a.m. with registration and refreshments in Youngquist Auditorium of the Agricultural Research Center at the University of Minnesota's Northwest Experiment Station near Crookston.

Registration cost is $15 per person and includes refreshments, handouts and lunch at 12:15 p.m. at Sahlstrom Conference Center on the University of Minnesota-Crookston campus.

Morning speakers and topics include Don Bliss, Mid America Ag Research of Verona, WI, "Feedlot Deworming Problems;" Brad Johnson, South Dakota State University at Brookings, "Use of Alternative Corn Hybrids in Feedlot Diets;" and Alfredo DiCostanzo, assistant professor and extension animal scientist in beef cattle nutrition at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul, "Economics of Feeding Corn Silage in Feedlot Diets."

Minnesota research reports will complete the morning program.

Speakers at the afternoon session are Tom Peters, Dekalb Feeds in Oregon, IL, "Management and Nutrition Consequences in Professional Feedyards" and Ron Eustice, executive director of the Minnesota Beef Council, Minneapolis, "Quality Assurance and Beef Checkoff Update."

Minnesota Cattle Feeders Day is an opportunity for beef producers, vocational agriculture instructors, county extension educators, supporting industries, businesses and others interested in beef to get an update on research and trends in the beef industry, according to Dr. Larry Smith of the Northwest Experiment Station at Crookston.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The THIEF RIVER FALLS Water Department announces that the maximum limit for Turbidity in drinking water was exceeded on October 2, 3 and 4, 1998.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. It is and indicator of filtration efficiency for removal of pathogens. Turbidity also indicates the treatability of a water by disinfection and can be a problem if it interferes with the disinfection process. However, the high turbidity levels did not create a health hazard because the Water Department maintained effective levels of chlorine disinfection.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking waters standards and has determined that the presence of microbiological contaminants are a health concern at certain levels of exposure. If water is inadequately treated, microbiological contaminants in that water may cause disease. Disease symptoms may include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, and possibly jaundice, and any associated headaches and fatigue. These symptoms, however, are not just associated with disease-causing organisms in drinking water. EPA has set enforceable requirements for treating drinking water to reduce the risk of these adverse health effects. Treatment such as filtering and disinfecting the water removes or destroys microbiological contaminants. Drinking water which is treated to meet EPA requirements is associated with little to none of this risk and should be considered safe.

The turbidity ranged from a high of 1.2 Nephelometric Turbidity Units (NTU) to 0.56 units. The Safe Drinking Water Act Standards effective in June of 1993 set a maximum contaminant level (mcl) for finished water turbidity. Finished water turbidity must be less than or equal to 0.5 NTU in 95 percent of all samples taken and can not exceed 5 NTU at any time.

The turbidity violation was caused by plugging of the aluminum sulfate chemical feed system. Aluminum Sulfate is a coagulant used in the treatment process to lower turbidity before final filtration.

Please be assured that the water was safe for drinking during this period of turbidity exceedance. Routine microbiological tests of the finished water in the distribution system found no bacteria present. For additional information please contact Allen J. Lamm, at the Water Purification Plant, phone number 681-3809.

For All Its Aesthetics, Art Should Have Value

"All across America," writes F. R. Duplantier of America's Future, "dilettantes of every description warn of dire consequences if funding for the National Endowment for the Arts is reduced by even one dime....They wax poetic over the wonders that NEA grants make possible and predict the end of all things beautiful and profound if the money dries up."

Duplantier goes on as follows:

"In a guest editorial in a major midwestern daily, a local community college professor offered an emotion-filled account of how the loss of a $5,000 NEA grant nearly led to the untimely death of the superb literary journal to which he contributes his own outstanding work. That $5,000 had paid for the printing of a reputedly much-acclaimed periodical that you probably never heard of. Without that grant, the professor recalled with horror, the periodical faced the prospect of suspending publication.

"The professor displayed masterful use of pathos, but his logic was lacking. If this particular publication is so worthy of support, why can't its publishers raise the necessary funds from the private sector? If it's really all that good, why don't they finance its publication themselves and recoup their investment with sales of the magazine? If insufficient demand exists to justify the number of copies that can be printed for $5,000, why not print fewer?"

Duplantier goes on to suggest that there is not a large investment to be made in being a writer and that there is a living to be made in writing, with plenty of room for creativity. If he cannot get his work published without the tax-supported magazine available, Duplantier notes, perhaps writing isn't the professor's line after all.

"No matter how frustrated he may become, however," Duplantier says, "he has no right to have his creative endeavors subsidized by the earnings of other Americans. Some of them are working day jobs too, and they'd like to use their hard-earned money to finance their own dreams."

Feeling Deprived Without The NBA?

Days continue to roll by as the owner lock-out of players continues in the National Basketball Association. As a result, games originally on the schedule are not being played and all sports fans have to watch on television is just about every other sport in existence.

Consider that the baseball season just ended, the National Football League has many weeks to its concluding Super Bowl, the National Hockey League has been grinding away for awhile and has months before nearly every team starts the interminable playoffs, and college basketball games—indistinguishable from the pros except for the team logos—can be found almost any evening on at least several channels.

Who needs the NBA?

The only thing the nation needs less than a full schedule of NBA games is the Monica Lewinsky tapes.

Still feeling deprived?

Governor-Elect Seems To Stay The Course

While he is still weeks away from actually serving as Governor of Minnesota, Jesse Ventura seems to be staying the course he has projected as best for the people of the state. His recent appointment of a transition advisory panel appears to touch most bases and—if the members of the committee can themselves reach consensus —could offer valuable and timely assistance.

In fact, given the varied background and experience of the committee members, its ability to reach agreement should be a powerful incentive to politicians schooled in partisanship to re-educate in cooperation.

Announced Tuesday, the committee is chaired by Dean Barkley, Ventura's campaign manager and early post-election advisor. Also named to serve are Democrats Tim Penny, a former U.S. Congressman from District 1; former Hennepin County Commissioner Emily Ann Staples Tuttle; and former Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm, who later challenged Ross Perot for the Reform Party Presidential nomination in 1996.

Republicans on the committee are Joanne Benson, currently serving as Minnesota's Lieutenant Governor; Charlie Weaver, a State Representative from Anoka who was defeated by Mike Hatch in his bid for Minnesota Attorney General; and Peter Bell, vice president of TCF Financial Corporation. Listed as a political independent is Reatha Clark King, president of General Mills Foundation.

In these first couple of weeks following the election, the governor-elect is being generally well received and accepted by the media, the public, special interests and legislators. His spontaneous comments and replies to questions have shown some depth as well as a sense of humor. He has been quite open and available, although that is likely to change when he actually assumes office.

Amidst all the accolades and acceptance, however, Ventura has not escaped his critics. In a news release Tuesday, Taxpayers League of Minnesota president Darrell McKigney accused the governor-elect of "backing off his campaign promise to return $1,000 per person in tax cuts to Minnesota taxpayers."

Ventura said in post-election talks that he made no campaign promises, but McKigney says that as a candidate Ventura "ran radio ads saying he was the only candidate who would return the $1,000 per Minnesotan the state ran up in budget surpluses over the last biennium....Now that he is Governor-elect, Ventura is singing a different tune: politics as usual."

Certainly it is too early to determine what abilities or lack thereof that Ventura will bring to the governor's office. He has yet to develop a program and budget, much less present and promote them to the legislature. And he has not been pressed to show how he will respond to confrontation on policy or program. He is still talking the talk without having to walk the walk.

Cut your own Christmas tree at Rydell Refuge

Rydell National Wildlife Refuge (NWR) will be hosting its first annual Christmas tree harvest on December 5, 1998. Bring your saw and cut your own tree at a cost of $10 per tree.

There are plenty of trees to choose from. It would be a good opportunity for the whole family to do something together in the great outdoors; hopefully it will be an experience similar to days of old. Hours for tree cutting will be from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. that Saturday.

The Visitor Center on the Refuge will be open to warm-up and have a hot cup of cocoa or coffee and cookie. Depending upon snow conditions the trails may be open for cross-country skiing and snow-shoeing.

Volunteers and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service staff will be on hand at the Visitor Center to register those who wish to cut a tree and orient them to the field where the trees will be harvested. The removal of the conifer stands is part of the management goal of the Refuge. Eventually these stands will be replaced by native tallgrass prairie and by a maple, basswood forest.

The money collected from the tree sale will go to the Friends of Rydell Refuge Assoc. (FRRA). The mission of the FRRA is to promote a better understanding and appreciation of the natural and cultural history, natural environment and wildlife management of the Rydell National Wildlife Refuge.

During the winter season volunteers open the Visitor Center on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. Trails are open for outdoor activities such as cross-country skiing and snow-shoeing. To get to Rydell NWR go three miles east of Mentor or three miles west of Erskine on U.S. Highway 2 and turn south on Polk County 210. Follow 210 about 2.5 miles south to the large entrance sign and main gate of the Refuge. If arriving from the south, turn north off Polk County 41 onto Polk County 210 and go about 3.5 miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign. Of Racks And Genes

I stood in Kleven Boat Tops one late fall afternoon about a decade ago, admiring the sets of deer antlers that adorned the walls around the work area. My wife was engrossed in conversation with another woman (Mrs Kleven?) on the subject of an aging chair of ours that needed recovering. I assumed that my opinion as to color and fabric would eventually be required and, having none, I wandered off a discreet distance hoping to innocuously blend into the background.

The impressive racks on the walls were an added bonus to my retreat—I didn't even have to feign interest. The gentleman cleaning and organizing the room at the end of the work day (Mr. Kleven?) pointed out a particularly monstrous set of tines and intimated:

"Got that one in that open field on the north bay of Oak Island. And see that one there, it came off of Flag. Big racks up there....BIG racks!"

His conspiratorial tone led me to believe that this information was not readily available to the public. I got goosebumps thinking what could be learned if I had a couch recovered here.

"It's the minerals in their diet up there," he continued, "it really increases the mass."

We discussed the specifics of island hunting a little longer and my invitation to the land of the "big bucks" was official. It is 10 years later and my own sense of personal sloth continues to haunt me. I have not pursued that island option and this hunting season a 16-year-old kid reinforced just what potential I have neglected.

Wilder Morey's 30-point buck was that big for several reasons. The unique combination of minerals surely has something to do with those massive antlers; everything else up there is a little different, why shouldn't what the deer eat follow suit?

A naturally-occurring deer population, too, accounts for much of the notorious island size. That is, a population that survives despite the presence of zero acres of farmland and a healthy concentration of wolves. The genetic cream of the crop here is allowed to rise to the surface. What few mateable does are available get hitched with the most imposing and dominant of bucks. Naturally, the genes that will determine future antler size are given first billing.

And consider the accessibility of these bucks for the average hunter. Open season is normally a partially iced event for the islands, making the vulnerable nature of a rutting buck a moot point. If two inches of poor ice on a lake stand between you and your trophy, a hunt elsewhere is the obvious choice. This deer herd feels little human pressure.

To summarize what logic I might be butchering—yes, the island bucks are big because of minerals, natural selection and genetics, but you can rarely hunt them because here's normally bad ice during rifle season.

Enter Wilder Morey. How could such a babe in the woods succeed in such a forbidding environment? Maybe he was just lucky, those of us with a penchant for shooting spikes might like to believe. Nothing could be further from the truth! He is as genetically predisposed for this occasion as the 30-pointer he shot.

Consider his dad, Tod, a Baudette local who has guided fishermen and hunters in the islands for years. Tod's bear-guiding success (only one unfilled client tag ever and that was because of a missed shot opportunity) actually prompted a change in the Canadian regulations regarding non-resident guides. Apparently his Canadian counterparts did not enjoy the same levels of success as Tod.

And Wilder's grandfather, Charlie McKeever, knows as much as anyone about ice and the islands and how the two interact. In fact, his legend is big enough that some will even claim it is Charlie who puts the ice there in the first place to keep the rest of the world away from his hunting domain.

And his aggressive efforts toward a "bucks only" management scheme for the Angle and Islands make it even more appropriate that it is his own flesh and blood that reaps the rewards.

There will be arguments. Flag Islanders will assert the deer was there for years. Those on Oak Island will claim that the buck swam onto Flag from there. Anglites will contend that the behemoth was a product of the mainland. Canadian officials, always pursuing the beat of a different drum, are even now insisting that this is merely a small bull moose that came from their side and are curious if the animal slept in a U.S. or Canadian bed the day before it was shot.

Arguments aside, there are two basic lessons to be learned here. First, there are big racks in the islands. Morey's deer is just the tip of the iceberg. A few more mild Novembers or the addition of another "puddle jumper" or two should let that secret out for good.

Second, the recent discussions about the importance of good genetics apply equally to hunter as well as hunted. It is not always a negative to be destined to follow in the footsteps of your forefathers.

Gas prices drop to 1990 levels for Thanksgiving

Minnesota motorists traveling this Thanksgiving will enjoy the lowest statewide gas prices since April of 1990 when the average price of unleaded self-serve gasoline was $1.02. The current average price of unleaded self-serve gasoline is $1.03 per gallon, two cents less than last month and 19 cents less than last Thanksgiving. The current national average is $1.05 per gallon. "Consumers continue to enjoy the benefits of an oversupply of crude oil and lower than expected demand," said Barb Buchholz, spokexperson, AAA Minnesota/Iowa.

According to AAA, the increase in gasoline production through the summer also has resulted in a huge inventory of heating oil. "Typically prices go up in winter because of the increased use of heating oil, but it doesn't look like that will happen this year," Buchholz said.

Travelers are expected to head out in record number. Estimates indicate that 33.6 million Americans will travel 100 miles or more from home during the holiday weekend, up two percent from last year.

According to estimates, 27.7 million motorists plan to travel by automobile, light truck or recreational vehicle, up two percent over the 27.2 million motorists who took a trip last Thanksgiving. In the Midwest, 5.3 million people will travel by automobile, light truck or recreational vehicle, up two percent from last year. (The "midwest" includes Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.)

Plan ahead when traveling. "When you take a holiday trip, add the threat of bad weather and throw in 25 to 35 million motorists, you get a recipe for frustration," said Buchholz. "With some advance planning, the season can be much more enjoyable."

These tips will help motorists have a safe and happy holiday: leave early, stay late. If possible, leave a day earlier than normal and return a day early or a day late. You can avoid wasting time in traffic and enjoy more time with family and friends.

Plan ahead. Know your route and have an alternate plan in case of heavy traffic. Also make sure your vehicle is in top condition. Carry a vehicle safety kit and a cellular phone in case you're stranded.

Take a 15- to 20-minutes break every few hours. Stop at a safe rest area and stretch your legs.

Don't eat and run. After the third helping of stuffing, take a walk to get the blood flowing again. Better yet, take a nap. Don't drive when you're feeling drowsy.

Jobs Incorporated has new avenue to attract companies

Jobs Incorporated of Thief River Falls has a new avenue for attracting companies in search of plants and facilities through participation in the new National Association of Manufacturers (NAM) Site Selection Network (SSN).

Thief River Falls is among a group of 300 communities given the opportunity to market to NAM's 14,000 members who utilize the association's free service to locate sites that match their project criteria, according to Calvin W. Clark, director of economic development for Northern Minnesota Utilities—a division of UtiliCorp United which serves 167,399 gas customers in Minnesota.

"Our involvement in this network represents a unique opportunity to expand our lead-generating capabilities," Clark said. "We will be marketing directly to real corporate projects instead of prospects—and that is certainly a plus."

Jobs Incorporated of Thief River Falls is participating in the SSN through UtiliCorp United's alliance with the National Association of Manufacturers.

This driver, like many drivers in Thief River Falls found themselves stuck in deep snow. On Wednesday, November 18, residents of Northwest Minnesota experienced their second major storm of the season in as many weeks. Although sustained winds fell short of defining the event as a blizzard, it dumped 16 to 18 inches of snow on the Thief River Falls area.

Gunderson likes Anderson for chancellor

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

For the past 15 months, Morrie Anderson—former chief operating officer for Governor Arne Carlson—has been interim chancellor for Minnesota State Colleges and Universities (MnSCU), the system which includes Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Now the business-savvy executive faces an evaluation by the MnSCU board of trustees with a potential full appointment on the line. Among Anderson's supporters is Dr. Orley Gunderson, president of Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC).

"I think he has done a great job," Gunderson said regarding an article about Anderson in the Minneapolis Star Tribune. "He believes that higher education should prepare students for employment and he has a no-nonsense business approach to operating the MnSCU system. In just over a year in the chancellor position he has established a lot of credibility and shown a real aptitude for the job."

Anderson will find that credibility put to the test with the 1999 session of the Minnesota legislature as he carries a budget request to the state's lawmakers for a two-year increase in funding of $230.6 million. Considering that the current budget for the 36-campus, 140,000-student MnSCU system is already over a billion dollars for 1998-99, the budget increase will likely be a hard sell, even in a pro-education legislative atmosphere.

"If anyone can convince the legislature of the need for the increase, it would probably be Morrie," Gunderson said. "He has gained a lot of support from business and industry and he has a proven track record with the legislature. He showed those abilities last year."

Gunderson referred to the 1998 legislative session when Anderson spearheaded an effort which resulted in MnSCU receiving more than $140 million for building projects—including several million dollars for extensive remodeling and building at NCTC—in the state bonding bill.

He also secured $36 million in supplemental funding for partnerships between MnSCU member colleges and the taconite and computer software industries, among others.

In Anderson's favor for the full-time appointment should be the board's concern for stability in the administration of MnSCU. It was Anderson who stepped up to the role when Judith Eaton, whose background was in academics, left the post after less than two years and singular lack of success in fulfilling the expectations of legislators. In fact, the Eaton experience should help Anderson counter the concerns of state university professors lamenting not having an "educator" as chancellor.

"There are certainly questions about the budget increase request when system-wide enrollment is down," Gunderson admitted,"but that it where Anderson's vision should make an impact. He wants to use the system to further train people already in the workforce, helping both the employees and their employers.

"He would offer new skills training through two-year colleges such as Northland," Gunderson added, "and we are especially well positioned with our technical college departments and experience. And he believes the system should emphasize assistance to the academic lower third of high school graduating classes, providing learning opportunities for those who want to improve their situations."

Interim chancellor Anderson said that approximately $85 million of the budget increase request would be to fund cost-of-living increases and "competitive" salaries for about 20,000 faculty and staff. "We want to pay salaries that will retain our best teachers and attract the best new teachers to fill positions in highly competitive disciplines," the chancellor said.

Part of the enrollment drop this year is attributed to the mandated switch from quarters to semesters throughout the MnSCU system. The budget request includes $25.5 million to offset a loss in tuition revenue from a 4.3 percent drop in enrollment.

Also included in the request will be:

- $10 million to institutions that are spending significantly less per student to equalize funding levels among institutions;
- 12.5 million to help students stay in school by providing counseling and other support services;
- $1 million to expand K-12 partnerships involving state graduation standards and urban teaching;
- $20 million to expand partnerships with high-growth industries such as telecommunications; and
- 14 million to maintain and repair campus buildings.

Green ribbons to call attention to farm, food received yesterday I don't thin that is going to be possible."

Armstrong said the distribution this Sunday is intended to remind people of food producers prior to the Thanksgiving holiday when a big meal is a tradition for many families.

American farmers have been proud of their capability to feed the nation's people and more, but find themselves victims of their own abilities as abundant harvests have resulted in prices below cost of production.

Arlene Novak said that a group from the Penn-Mar-Red chapter met with the Thief River Falls Ministerium recently with the idea which was favorably received. It is expected that most churches in Thief River Falls will be participating in the ribbon distribution this Sunday.

With three-way split in state, Moe will work with Ventura

Sen. Roger Moe of Erskine, who continues as Senate Majority Leader despite his defeat as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor November 3, says he intends to work with the new governor "and act in the best interests of all Minnesotans. That is what Minnesota's voters expect and deserve."

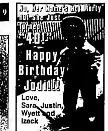
Moe said he has met with Reform party candidate and Governor-elect Jesse Ventura and promised him his full cooperation.

"In that meeting," Sen. Moe said, "it was heartening for me to hear the Governor-elect stress the need for [illegible] public schools and smaller class sizes. We also agreed to strive for efficient delivery of public services. The new leaders in the House have also indicated their willingness to help assure a smooth transition process for the Governor-elect."

"A new challenge" is the term used by Sen. Moe to describe the coming legislative term when there will be a three-way split in the state power structure.

For the past eight years the DFL has had a majority in both the House of Representatives and Senate and the state has had a Republican Governor in Arne Carlson. Now Republicans have gained a majority in the House, the DFL continues its majority in the Senate and the new Governor is affiliated with the Reform party—which has no representation among the state's 201 legislators.

Although unusual, the situation has a precedent, even in Minnesota, Sen. Moe says.



"We have a strong tradition of rocking the boat when the two major parties have failed to meet expectations," he said. "The populist Farmer-Labor party was a major factor in state politics for a quarter century between the two world wars. Out of that period of great change came many important policy ideas that had a national impact, and great Minnesota leaders who had national and international influence."

Eventually the Farmer-Labor party merged with the Democrats to form the DFL party. Sen. Moe says that it is his opinion that Democrats "have historically been more receptive to new ideas and more willing to respond when voters have sent the message that the status quo is not acceptable. It is my hope," Moe said, "that DFLers will respond in a positive way once again."

The Erskine Senator said that he recognizes this is an extremely busy time for the incoming Governor as he prepares to take over the state's executive branch. In addition to selecting his policy advisors and transition team, he will have to appoint dozens of department and agency heads who will make up his cabinet, set a course for public policies and develop a state budget for the next two years.

He said he hoped Gov. Carlson would assist the new administration to the fullest extent with the transition—something which Carlson [illegible] ago. The present governor said he and his team received no help from the Perpich administration eight years ago and he vowed he would not allow that to happen to his own successor.

"Although it is certain that Senate and House leaders will have disagreements on a number of public policy issues, it is my hope that we will work out our differences in good faith and find common ground resulting in innovative compromises," Sen. Moe said.

TRF cross country award winners are announced for '98

Seth Harlow and Jacki Mooney were named most valuable runners on the Thief River Falls boys and girls high school cross country teams when the Prowlers handed out post-season awards Tuesday.

Other special honors went to Jesse Sich, hardest worker, Lisa McKercher, Teammate of the Year, Jonathan Walrath, most improved, Matt Koehmstedt, Rookie of the Year, and Diana Hofstad, Coaches Award.

Winners of the Prowlers' Super Teams competition were also recognized – a squad captained by Zach Bosh that also included Walrath, Janae Harlow, Chad Borneman, and Nick Nelson.

Athletic letters went to seniors Colin Browning, Jill Panek, Stephanie Wiseth, Hofstad, and Koehmstedt; juniors Zach Bosh, Seth Harlow, Emily Mugaas, and McKercher; sophomores Dewey Worker, Borneman and Nelson; freshmen Tyler Bosh, Janae Harlow, Rebekah Solem, Andre Thibodeau, and Mooney, along with Sich, a seventh grader.

Hofstad and Panek served as captains of the girls this fall; Zach Bosh and Seth Harlow were captains of the boys.

Thief River Falls runners did not challenge for team or individual honors at area meets in 1998, but it wasn't for a lack of effort, pointed out second-year head coach Terri Ueland. The girls were short numbers, and a promising season for the boys was sabotaged by injuries, illness and absences that kept the Prowlers from reaching their full potential.

"We didn't have the kind of season I anticipated," admitted Ueland. "We never had the chance to run our whole boys team in a meet to see what they could do. But I couldn't ask for any more from the kids. They worked hard."

Ueland is hoping to increase interest in the sport by offering a summer running camp. "We'll try to show kids that running can be fun," she explained. "We'll do some different things and try to have fun."

Prowlers open against Rams

■ High school hockey season starts Tuesday

The schedule-maker did Thief River Falls no favor. The Prowlers, who are looking to turn last year's 5-18 record around and put themselves into Section 8A contender status, open the 1998-99 high school hockey season Tuesday with a trip to Roseau. The Rams figure to be one of the premiere teams in Minnesota and a top contender for Class AA state honors this winter.

"Roseau may be the best team in the state," noted Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "They're going to be one of the best Class AA teams and the state, and there's certainly no Class A teams around here that are going to be as good as they are. But that's okay. It'll be a good test for us. We'll find out in a hurry where we're at."

Bergland starts his second year as Thief River Falls head coach confident the Prowlers can be a title contender. "I think Section 8A is wide open," he said. "I think we'll be in it. A lot depends on how our young kids come along, and if we can put the puck in the net. If we score on our opportunities, we'll be fine. But if we revert back to last year when we couldn't put the puck in a soccer net, then we'll have trouble."

Thief River Falls returns 14 lettermen off last year's team, led by senior Wade Chiodo, an All-Section 8A pick as a junior when he led the Prowlers in scoring with 13 goals, 18 assists and 31 points.

Seniors Jeff Rislov (2-10–12), Jarod Reierson (7-3–10) and Treavor Peterson (3-7–10) also hit double figures in the scoring column last winter.

Other senior lettermen on hand include Jayme Holmes, Tom Fogarty, Nathan Dicken, Dustin Melby, and Matt Winjum.

A big part of the Prowlers' defense comes out of the junior class, including goalie Mike Dowers and defensemen Brady Anderson and Brett Johnson. All three have been playing varsity hockey since the ninth grade.

Matt Trantvet and Casey Enge are also returning junior letter winners.

Dowers will be in goal at Roseau. Johnson and Anderson provide experience on defense and will be joined by Enge, Worker and Barron.

Forward lines will include Chiodo, Peterson and Melby; Rislov, Reierson and Winjum; Holmes, Dicken and Fogarty, with Wiseth also expected to fill in on occasion.

The opener at Roseau will be followed by three home games the following week against another trio of traditional powers – Warroad, Blake and St. Paul Johnson.

Preseason scrimmages have given Bergland an idea of what to expect in early-season games. "I'd give us a B-minus in the scrimmages," he said. "We did some good things. I was very impressed with the young kids. They played well."

NCTC starts year vs. North Dakota teams

North Dakota schools provide the season-opening competition for the men's and women's basketball teams at Northland Community and Technical College.

Northland men were scheduled to start the year on the road Friday against the Valley City State University junior varsity.

Monday will feature a Northland doubleheader against Minot State University-Bottineau, beginning with a 5:30 p.m. season debut for the women, followed by a 7:30 p.m. tip-off for the men. Those games will be played in Bottineau.

The Pioneers' Dec. 1 home opener against the North Dakota State College of Science will also be a 5:30 p.m. twinbill.

Rick Nikunen, who gave up his women's basketball coaching job to take over the men's program this winter, has been happy with his team's preseason work. "I'm cautiously optimistic," he said. "We have 10-11 guys who are pretty evenly matched. It's hard to pick out the top 7 or 8. But that's why we play the nonconference games. It's a chance to find out what they can do and what the right combinations are."

The men's first-game starting line-up was expected to include 5-9 Ricky Vidarte (Ft. Lauderdale, FL) and 6-3 Dwight Goodwin (Milwaukee, WI) at the guards; 6-5 Matt Moen (Fosston) and 6-5 Jason Pinkney (Pompano Beach, FL) at the forwards, and 6-5 Derek Wheeler (Newark, NJ) at center. Goodwin is the lone sophomore in the group.

While depth is a plus for the Northland men, the seven-member women's team has invited football players to be part of their practice sessions so they would have enough players to run a scrimmage.

"The seven I have are working really hard," said Zachow. "We've got some good basketball players. We're missing a real good point guard and we're a little weak in the post, but I think we'll still be okay."

Zachow's roster includes two sophomores – 5-7 Jenny Johnson (Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke) and 5-10 Amber Berg (Badger/Greenbush-Middle River). The freshmen on hand are 5-4 Rachel Blazejewicz (Tri-County), 5-8 Jessica Johnson (Warroad), 5-10 Shannan Keskitalo (New York Mills), 5-6 Becky Perreault (Red Lake Falls), and 5-10 Miki Waterworth (Marshall County Central).

A sixth freshman, 5-6 Lori Hagen (Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke) is sidelined until after the holidays because of a shoulder injury.

It'll be a challenging start for the Northland women, pointed out Zachow, since MSU-Bottineau, NDSCS and third game foe Anoka-Ramsey are all top ten teams in NJCAA preseason polls.

Pairings listed for NCTC Invitational

Defending champion Red Lake Falls heads an eight-team field for the eighth annual Northland Community and Technical College Invitational boys high school basketball tournament, scheduled to be played Dec. 3-5.

The Eagles will be joined by Grygla-Gatzke, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, Bug-O-Nay-Ge-Shig, Red Lake County Central, Fisher/Climax, Goodridge, and Kittson County North. Only change in the tournament line-up from last year is Fisher/Climax, replacing Circle of Life.

Games will be played at 3, 4:30, 6:15 and 8 p.m. each day. Daily admission passes will be $4 for adults and $3 for students.

Red Lake Falls beat East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 47-40 in last year's championship game. The tournament made its debut in 1991 when Goodridge went home with the title. Red Lake County Central won four straight championships from 1992 through 1995. Grygla-Gatzke ended the Mustangs' championship reign in 1996.

Boys tournament will be followed by the fourth annual Northland Community and Technical College Invitational girls high school basketball tournament Dec. 14, 15 and 17.

Tournament sponsors are Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, KTRF Radio, Thief River Falls Sports Boosters, Northland Community and Technical College, Boen Car Care, Universal Screenprint, and Norwest Investments.

Seniors lead TRF girls team

■ Prowlers open basketball season Tuesday

A balanced attack will be the key to the success of the Thief River Falls girls high school basketball team in 1998-99, according to head coach Jeff Loe.

The Prowlers have a 1,000-point scorer in Nicole Kopari, who averaged 18.8 points per game last year. They also have a half-dozen other returning letter winners. But those six combined to score just 17 points per game during a 6-17 season.

"We look for Nicole to score her 18 to 20 points," said Loe. "The problem we had last year is that nobody else was in double figures. If we're going to be successful, we have to have somebody else consistently scoring in double figures, and we need the rest of them to raise their averages."

A senior class that features Kopari, Taya Hunt, Laura Follett, and Katie Harbott, along with transfer student Shelly Tvedt, will be the core of the team, according to Loe. "We have a pretty good nucleus to work with," he said. "We're looking for good things from them."

Other returning letter winners include juniors Rachel Mathson and Erika Hudson, and sophomore Sara Jensen, who could be a strong contributor around the basket and team with Kopari to give the Prowlers a solid inside game.

Juniors Kim Almquist, Keli Waterworth and Nicole Wiseth, along with sophomore Ayla Donlin, could also be part of the varsity rotation.

Rest of the sophomores on hand include Katy Hook, Teri Krogstad, Katy Olson, Kylie Fogelle, Elizabeth Trontvet, Carissa Ptacek, Samantha Rose, and Amanda Strutz.

"Practices are going pretty well," noted Loe. "We're ahead of where we were last year at this time. We're looking for some good things. Our defense should be pretty solid. We'll have to work hard on the offensive boards."

The Prowlers open the 1998-99 season Tuesday at home against Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

4-H youth asked to consider trip to Washington

Pennington county 4-H youths who have completed ninth grade or more are encouraged to consider attending Citizenship Washington Focus, a leadership program for high school youth scheduled July 3-10, 1999.

Cost of the program is $1,085, but the county 4-H leader's council has $650 in its budget to help with the costs for up to two individuals. Deadline for application is Jan. 15, 1999, and a $100 fee is due with the application.

"Citizenship Washington Focus teaches young people to be active responsible citizens and leaders," notes Van Swanson, Pennington county extension educator. "The program is based on the premise that democracy requires skills and strategies which can be learned and practiced."

Application forms and more information are available at the county extension office.

Pennington 4-H grads invited to seek scholarships

Graduates of the Pennington county 4-H club program are invited to apply for scholarships through the county extension office in Thief River Falls, according to Van Swanson, Pennington county extension educator.

"The scholarships are usually $150 so they are well worth your effort," Swanson said.

Applications for scholarships are available at the extension office. To be eligible, any former member of a Pennington county 4-H club who has graduated from high school and is a freshman in a college or technical college must have a 2.0 or higher grade point average (GPA).

Application deadline is December 31. If a student has not received his or her college grades by that time, they may be submitted later and the application will still be considered.

The Blenders will appear in concert for the third time at the Lincoln high school auditorium Thursday, December 3, at 7:30 p.m. under sponsorship by the Lincoln high school choirs. Tickets are $10 in advance from Kezar Music or choir members and will be $12 at the door on the night of the concert.

The Blenders insist that "the truth is in the mix"

A group which arranges and produces all of its music while lending a unique style to everything its members do, The Blenders will appear in concert for the third time at the Lincoln high school auditorium on Thursday, December 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Originally formed in Fargo, ND, the professional group including Tim Kasper, Ryan Lance and Darren and Allan Rust now has its home base in Minneapolis. The members have spent the past eight years bringing their unique style of a cappella-based music to 46 of the 50 United States.

All of the members grew up in musical families which nurtured their love of song. Their tight harmonies and up-beat arrangements range from rhythm and blues and jazz to pop and rock tunes and much of their growing popularity comes from colleges and universities they have visited throughout the nation.

Among their hundreds of appearances have been a number of opening performances for national and international headliners. While lending their unique musical style to everything they do, they insist that "the truth is in the mix."

Sponsorship of The Blenders in concert is again by the Lincoln high school choirs and director Darcy Reese. Tickets at $10 in advance may be purchased at Kezar Music and from Lincoln choir members. Admission at the door will be $12.

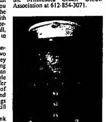
Leaders council makes change in meeting plans

To accommodate those who have family and friends involved with the Lincoln high school choir concert on December 7, the Pennington county 4-H leaders council meeting has been advanced to Monday, November 30, at 8 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room.

Electronic transfers no need for alarm

Many senior citizens, federal employees, and other people receive monthly benefits or wages from the federal government — including programs like Social Security, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), and Veterans' benefits. Recently, people have been worried that they would be forced to get their money through electronic transfer instead of through paper checks.

If you have been worried, here is some good news. No one is going to force you to use electronic transfer. If you feel that electronic transfer would cause you a hardship, then you may still get your money by check. It will be up to you and no one else to decide whether you qualify for a hardship waiver. The government may ask, but they must leave the decision up to you. If you say you qualify for a waiver, the government will not disagree with you or check to see if you are correct. If you do not respond at all, then the payments will continue to come by check.



If you are interested in electronic transfer, you will have two choices. You can have your money directly deposited into a checking or savings account. Or, you can wait until the banks make available a new kind of "Electronic Transfer Account." This new kind of account may be even simpler and cheaper than a checking or savings account. The government is still working out the details.

For most people, opening a bank account is a good idea that will save you money. For example, if you get $500 a month, and you use a check cashing service that charges three percent, you are paying $180 per year just to cash your checks. Most banks and credit unions offer free or low-cost accounts that would be much less expansive.

If you are comfortable balancing a check-book, then a free or low-cost checking account may make the most sense for you. If you are worried about bouncing checks, then you might want to open a savings account or an "electronic transfer account" instead. Then you would still have to buy money orders to pay your bills, but you could save money by having your government check electronically transferred instead of using check cashing services.

If you have unpaid debts, you may be worried about having your benefits garnished from a bank account. No public benefits can be garnished for at least 60 days from a bank account, and SSI or Social Security Benefits can never be garnished. It is possible, though, that someone would try to garnish them, and you would find your money frozen until you filled out the paperwork showing that your benefits could not be garnished. Garnishment should be even less of a problem with the new electronic transfer accounts, once they become available.

Marine Pfc. Seth Martell

Seth Martell completes basic training

Marine Pfc. Seth F. Martell, son of Doug P. and Mary J. Martell of Thief River Falls, recently completed basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Martell successfully completed 12 weeks of training designed to challenge new Marine recruits both physically and mentally.

Martell is a 1998 graduate of Lincoln High School.

Federal ruling gives more eye donation options

A rule recently published in the Federal Register makes organ donation easier by requiring hospitals to report every death to the local donation agencies that coordinate sight-saving and life-saving transplants. The rule was issued by the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), the division of the Department of Health and Human Services that oversees Medicare and Medicaid. Its goal is to give every family of a potential donor the option of eye, organ and tissue donation.

Minnesota hospitals will work with the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank (located at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis), LifeSource (the state's organ procurement organization) and American Red Cross Tissue Services to ensure that the family of every potential donor knows of their option to donate a loved one's eyes, organs and tissues.

"Since we mailed letters to hospital administrators advising them of the HCFA rule, we have received donor referrals from hospitals that have never referred to us before," said Carol Engel, executive director of the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank. "We believe this is directly attributable to the HCFA ruling."

The cornea is the clear, contact lens-shaped window of tissue in the front of the eye. It is the only part of the eye that is regularly transplanted. But transplant will not occur simply because a person carries a donor card or has "donor" printed on the driver's license; the deceased's family must give permission at the time of death, according to the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank.

Since 1960 more than 500,000 corneal transplants have been performed nationally. The Minnesota Lions Eye Bank provides more than 600 patients in the state with restored vision each year through corneal transplantation, and this year the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank will provide tissue for its 10,000th corneal transplant. For more information about eye, organ and tissue donation, call 1-888-536-5-DONATE.

rid of the labor."

Seventy-five percent of the Joppru's hay is shipped to Stearns county in central Minnesota where it is used to feed dairy cattle. Some of the hay is used to feed the cattle Jopprus raise for processing.

Like all forms of farming the commercial hay business is not without its frustrations.

While hay commanded $115 per ton last year, it's bringing in $40 per ton this year. Although the 1997 alfalfa crop yielded three cuttings, poor prices were a factor in the decision to leave part of the third crop uncut.

For the past couple of years dandelions have caused problems in the alfalfa fields, and thus far, Joppru has found that spraying the weed has only thinned the alfalfa. He plans to continue to experiment with chemical weed control and, until the problem is solved, rotate the crop more frequently.

Don's prize winning hay was taken from the first crop of 1998 from a field in its second year of production. The high-quality alfalfa was grown from Land O'Lakes Crop Land 740 seed.

Don bagged a 50-pound-sample of his hay and sent it to AgSource Cooperative Services along with the entry form. The form required such information as variety, date of harvest and drying agent and preservative used, if any. Entrants in the dairy division were required to provide herd production information.

Samples had to have been grown in the 1997 growing season and from a regular forage production field. The hay could come from any type of bale and moisture content over 18 percent was penalized. Additives which affected fiber content or any other adulteration disqualified the sample.

Twenty finalists were chosen in each class with relative feed value being the determining factor in the commercial hay division.

To determine placement, forage analysis made up 70 percent of the score while visual accounted for the remaining 30 percent.

The finalists' hay was analyzed for dry matter, crude protein, acid detergent fiber (ADF), neutral detergent fiber (NDF), insoluble crude protein, estimated digestible dry matter intake potential and relative feed value (RFV).

In late September Don was notified of his finalist status by telephone. At first he thought it was a joke. He didn't know that he was the grand prize winner until he attended a dinner honoring the finalists in Madison, WI in October.

While the second place winner in the commercial hay division came from neighboring Manitoba, the other finalists came Arizona, Nebraska (3), Missouri, Wisconsin (3), Minnesota, Utah (2), New Mexico, Idaho, South Dakota, Ohio, Illinois and Nevada.

While Don was both surprised and pleased with the award, he hasn't had time to let it go to his head. He's too busy. Joppru's Meats will occupy his time until spring when he'll once again do what he knows and enjoys best — Don Joppru will be back in the fields raising crops and making hay.

Early Detection Can Minimize Foot Problems

by Mark Yuska, DPM

If your feet constantly feel cold and you're experiencing reduced sensation or recurrent, persistent infections that are slow to heal, it could be an early indicator of diabetes. More than 16 million people in the U.S. have the disorder and almost half are unaware of their condition, according to studies by the American Diabetes Association.

While there are other factors and signs of diabetes, including (but not limited to) unusual thirst, fatigue, irritability, or frequent urination, experts say it's imperative that diabetic patients seek help for chronic foot conditions to avoid long-term complications.

"The three major foot problems found in persons with diabetes work in unfortunate unison, magnifying and escalating the impact of each other," says Mark Yuska, a podiatric surgeon in Thief River Falls. "Neuropathy, the diminished sensation of the nerves in the foot, makes patients unaware of pain, the primary warning sign of an ulceration or infection. Poor circulation or ischemia, coupled with a compromised immune system increases the risk of infection and the severity of the problem. The delivery of oxygen and other nutrients to the affected area is restricted," he said.

Treatment options for all these diabetes-related foot conditions are enhanced by early detection of the problems. For instance, a regular and thorough inspection of the feet, best conducted by both the patent at home and by a professional in a podiatric surgeon's office, greatly improves the chances of identifying a problem before it becomes severe. Local wound care, dressings and antibiotics can help accelerate the healing process. To relieve pressure on the affected area, your foot and ankle specialist may recommend wearing different shoes (even several different pairs during the course of the day). Healing sandals or custom orthoses may be required to protect the foot as it heals. In severe cases, the use of crutches, wheelchair, braces or casts is prescribed to remove pressure and aid proper healing.

When such foot deformities as hammertoes, bunions, or metatarsal disorders threaten the diabetic patient's health and mobility, corrective surgery may be required. These deformities will worsen over time without intervention, as will conditions related to nerve, infection and circulatory problems. Podiatric surgery is usually an outpatient procedure performed under local anesthesia.

Maintaining foot health is critical to the overall health and well-being of diabetic patients. Each year more than 50,000 diabetics, according to studies by the American Diabetes Association, must have a foot or a leg amputated due to diabetic complications. Dr Yuska stresses that many of these amputations may have been prevented with early detection and prompt treatment of conditions.

Dr Yuska is a member of the American College of Foot and Ankle Surgeons. His office is located at 1720 Hwy. 59 SE. You may contact him at 218-681-4747.

Multi-Events Center ready for inspection

Substantial completion of the Multi-Events Center building could be announced next week. Wednesday, members of the joint powers board learned that the building would be inspected by a state architect on the following Tuesday. If all goes well, substantial completion could be announced.

Although the building is nearly completed, site work has been halted for the season. Work on the press box, fencing, and bleachers will be held off until next spring. Some site work remains to be done on the softball/baseball diamond complex as well.

Because some of the site work could not be completed due to wet and then freezing temperatures, the permanent fencing around the facility could not be installed. Because of liability issues involved, the board agreed to have a temporary fence installed around the site at a cost of about $5,000.

One of the important site issues completed before the bad weather set in was drainage improvements. The board's architect thought the site was prepared to handle spring thaw.

Tuesday, the board awarded the bid on the press box to Schmidt's Builders at a cost of $39,367 on condition that funds pledged for the Multi-Events Center are received.

Darla Twomey, the school district representative on the joint powers board, presented an update on fund-raising for the remaining elements of Phase 1 of the project. Twomey said $397,700 had been pledged over a three-year period. The board had $271,000 in hand and had a little over $126,000 left.

Numerous individuals from the community have made financial contributions to the project. All major contributors will be recognized at the dedication ceremony tentatively planned for September 25, 1999.

Twomey has met with considerable success in her fund-raising efforts, but Twomey did not run for re-election during the last election and will not be on the board after January 1.

Twomey is very pleased with the project and said that it is "Really our project". It benefits all of us in the community, she added.

Estimates of how much the board needs to raise to complete phase 1 of the project seem to fluctuate with estimates on in-kind contributions, but basically, they need to raise at least $200,000.

Board members are beginning to focus on future operations at the complex. An operations committee has met and is in the process of reviewing and making adjustments to the operations agreement. Some changes became necessary when wellness center element of the project was removed, and the board held off on construction of the concession and storage facility.

The next meeting of the board will be held at 4 p.m. on Friday, December 18.

Plummer phone customers approve extended service

Falls/St. Hilaire. These customers approved the service by 130 votes (58.6%) to 92 votes (41.4%).

In the vote on EAS to Red Lake Falls/Brooks, 65.2 percent of the customers returned their ballots and the vote was much closer—106 (51%) to 102 (49%).

The commission informed Plummer customers of the monthly rate increases that they would pay for EAS in the information they received with their ballots. The rate increases allow the local telephone companies to remain income neutral after an EAS route is implemented.

The commission determined the rate increases according to requirements contained in its Feb. 23, 1996 Order in the Local Calling Scope case. That Order also provides that only customers in the exchange that petitions for EAS have the opportunity to vote.

Fosston hospital receives grant for telemedicine

Fosston - First Care, Fosston, is one of eight Minnesota rural hospitals receiving recent grants from the Rural Hospital Planning and Transition Grant program. The amount of the grant is $25,000 to be used to support a telemedicine program.

The standard Telemedicine unit is useful for a variety of applications. It will allow the transmission of x-ray and CT images as well as other data to a consulting physician. The unit will enable care providers to consult with physicians at other facilities. The Telemedicine unit will improve communications between the ambulance and the emergency room, and video conferencing will provide for continued education for medical staff.

The goal of the grant program through the Department of Health is "to preserve and improve access to health care in rural areas." Other northern Minnesota medical facilities to receive grants are Lakewood Health Center in Baudette and Northern Itasca Hospital District in Big Fork. The Thirteen Towns

Bemidji - Discarded jewelry was the object of attention recently at the Bemidji Senior Center during the sixth annual jewelry fund-raising sale.

The event was sponsored by the Retired and Senior Voluoteer Program. Money from the sale is used for mileage reimbursement and to fund volunteers' insurance. The Pioneer

Roseau PD recognized by MN Safe & Sober

Roseau - Roseau's Police Department was awarded a $1,000 check and high praise recently for its efforts to curb alcohol related traffic accidents. The acclaim came from Minnesota Safe & Sober, part of a nationally funded program by the National Highway Transporta-tion Safety Administration.

The Roseau Police Department participated in the Safe & Sober Challenge program. Resource materials are provided to law enforcement agencies and are used by the agencies to design their own programs.

Roseau's $1,000 award was based on the report they sent outlining their activities to make people aware of the dangers of unsafe driving. Roseau Times-Region

Cross-wind runway at airport studied

Tuesday, Thief River Falls City Council appmved a recommendation calling for proposals for engineering services covering the airport apron reconstruction project, and an environmental assessment, which is a necessary step in plans for a cross-wind runway at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport.

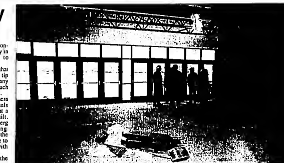
Ron Lindberg, public works director, said that according to the Minnesota Office of Aeronautics, the FAA may have discretionary funds available for the project so the city needs to get the project ready. Lindberg said preparing the necessary paperwork is a lengthy process.

City Council Representative, Dale Wennberg, although not necessarily against the project, said that a cross-wind runway would cost the city $200,000 and he believes those who benefit should be assessed. Wennberg noted that the city has been struggling to balance its budget and pay for the projects it has underway now. He also noted that when the city conducts a street or utility project, property owners benefiting from the project are assessed. More to the point, Wennberg said that if this project benefits Digi-Key or Arctic Cat, they should be expected to contribute to the cost of the project.

The entire project would cost an estimated $2 million, however, under a 90-10 arrangement with the FAA, a cross-wind runway would cost the city approximately $200,000. (The city's capital improvement plan calls for construction of a cross-wind runway in the year 2001, according to Lindberg.)

Mayor Mark Borsheim said that the cost to the city was just the tip of the iceberg. There are many other costs associated with such projects and future maintenance.

The city has met with business representatives and individuals who are interested in seeing that a cross-wind runway is built. Lindberg said he wished Wennberg would have been at that meeting. He said that he did mention at the meeting that the city would have to look at landing fees to help with costs.



The recommendation before the council was just one step in a long process, and it does make way for reconstruction of the airport runway. The city has set aside $18,000 for the project, which is its share of the $180,000 project cost. The city's share of the $75,000 cost for the environmental assessment is $7,500.

The recommendation was approved unanimously.

Fallout from the Storm

Mayor Borsheim said he had received some complaints about snow removal following the last storm. Borsheim said most the complaints had to do with the city crews not removing snow fast enough. Borsheim was of the opinion that city crews did a good job under the circumstances.

Several officials conducted an inspection of the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls Tuesday, November 24. The view is of the front of the building toward the football field.

Multi-Events Center has inspection conducted Tues.

In anticipation of declaring "substantial completion," an inspection of the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls was conducted on Tuesday, November 24.

Jim Whipkey, architect for the Division of Building Construction under the Minnesota Department of Administration, and several other officials conducted an inspection of the facility. During the inspection he said he would have liked to see the building a little further along, but said he was able to get a good look at the quality of work and what has been completed. He added that obviously, quite a bit remains to be done next spring when the weather improves.

A declaration of "substantial completion," a purely technical footnote in the completion of the project, would be conditioned upon completion of many items next spring. Some of those items include work on the track, bleachers and press box.

Whipkey explained that on Tuesday a punch list of things that need to be completed was being prepared. The punch list will be given to the contractor and architect for completion, generally within 45 to 60 days.

"They're getting close," said another inspector, who was inspecting the mechanical system and also developing a punch list.

Realization of a project that has taken years of work and dedication is particularly rewarding to Dr. Orley Gunderson of Northland Community and Technical College. Gunderson, who serves as chair of the joint powers board which is responsible for the project and coordination of the four public entities sponsoring the project, said it's a real asset to the community.

While on one hand it represents a "technical" completion, to Gunderson it represents completion of just part of Phase I. Though much of the field was under more than a foot of snow, Gunderson looked out at the field and could envision green grass and football. "It'll be great next fall," he said. And even though there's nothing but empty field and construction vehicles to look at in other directions, Gunderson pointed in one direction and said that a swimming pool will be over there someday, and turning in another direction, said an indoor track and stadium will be there. (Both of those projects are scheduled in Phases II and III.)

September 25, 1999, has been declared as the tentative date for a dedication ceremony. On that date, the High School and College are expected to have football games at the new field.

The track and field are not expected to be ready for competitive events next spring, but teams will probably be able to use the track for practices.

Plummer pot grower enters guilty plea

Steven Surcliff of Oregon pled guilty in a United States District Court Tuesday, November 24, to growing marijuana. Surcliff entered his plea before Judge David Doty in Minneapolis.

Surcliff and a co-defendant, William Daggatt, also from Oregon, were indicted by a federal grand jury in September. Daggatt pled guilty last week to growing marijuana and awaits sentencing.

During the plea hearings, both Surcliff and Daggatt admitted that they purchased approximately 80 acres of land in Gervais township in Red Lake county.

A search warrant was executed on the land on August 11, 1998. During the course of the search, officers recovered approximately 900 live marijuana plants and approximately 600 additional marijuana plants that had recently been harvested. Officers also recovered numerous firearms including three pistols, two long rifles and two shotguns.

Surcliff faces a mandatory minimum of five years in prison. The actual sentence will be determined by Judge Doty based on the federal sentencing guidelines. A sentencing date is expected in eight to 10 weeks.

The case is the result of an investigation by the Drug Enforcement Administration Task Force, Red Lake County Sheriff's department, Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, Paul Bunyan Drug Task Force, Pennington County Sheriff's department, Minnesota State Patrol, and Thief River Falls Police department. It is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Eric Johnson.

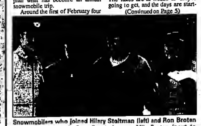
Snowmobiling buddies bond on adventures

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

While the season's first snowfall fills some of us as with dread as we anticipate the short cold days and long more frigid nights, others greet the onset of winter with glee — boys like Hilary Stoltman and Ron Broten.

Did we say boys? They're actually grown men — retirees. Hilary, 64, retired after a 42-year career with the railroad, and Ron is 56 and retired from the railroad after 25 years. Regardless of age, they're energetic adventuresome boys at heart — avid outdoorsmen who know how to enjoy themselves during every season of the year.

Weeks before those first snowflakes fell, Hilary, Ron and their buddy Omer Olson gathered around Hilary's dining room table to plan what has become an annual snowmobile trip.



Around the first of February four men leave the Stoltman home in Thief River Falls on a 10 to 12-day Canadian snowmobiling adventure.

Hilary and Ron have made the trip every year. Others who have made the trip at least once with Ron and Hilary in the past four years are Omer Olson, Edward Stucy, Al Kimble and Sherman Johnson, all of Thief River Falls, and Milo Broten of Roseau, Jim Howard of Bemidji and Virgil Erickson of rural Holt.

The men have found that four is the ideal number of people for the trip — the most practical and economical way to go. Hotel rooms usually accommodate four adults comfortably, and if there are more than four, additional rooms are needed.

Early February has been determined as the best time to make the trip. The weather is usually milder. The lakes are as frozen as they're going to get, and the days are start-

Snowmobilers who joined Hilary Stoltman (left) and Ron Broten (right) on last year's Canadian trek were Milo Broten (next to Hilary) and Omer Olson. Hilary, Ron and Omer are all Thief River Falls men and Soo Line retirees. Milo lives in Roseau and is retired from Polaris Industries, Inc. The average age of the four men is 63 years.

Robotic welder installed for program at Northland

Responding to the industry need for operators of robotic welding equipment, Northland Community and Technical College recently completed installation of a robotic welder in its welding department. Plans are to have an instructional program in place for the spring semester.

In cooperation with Arctic Cat, Inc., the program will be developed to provide students with the appropriate workforce skills necessary to utilize this technology as an essential factor for productivity improvement. Over the past several years, Arctic Cat has experienced difficulty in locating technically skilled employees for robotic welding positions.

Installed at Northland is the Motoman SK6 robotic welder from Motoman, Inc., of Carrollton, OH. According to Zane Michaci, manager of product development engineering at the company, robotic welding adds capability and flexibility to the automatic welding method.

"An industrial robot is a programmable manipulator that can move material, parts, tools or special devices through variable programmed motions to do a variety of tasks," he explained.

"The key word is 'programmable.' Robots can weld complex parts and perform multiple welds. When product configurations or part volume and mix change, reprogram the robot without modifying the hardware."

With the new equipment in place, NCTC will work with Arctic Cat to develop and implement the customized training program for robotic technicians and operators. The customized robotic training curriculum will further be utilized in the creation of a credit-based, robotic welding certificate at NCTC.

[illegible] of custom training and continuing education at Northland, the college and Arctic Cat view this partnership project as an opportunity to expand and recruit employees to northwest Minnesota.

Purchase and installation of the new equipment was provided with $193,600 in grant funds from legislative set-aside monies under the Business and Industry Local and Regional Partnerships Grant administered by Minnesota State Colleges [illegible] of the project is scheduled to be 18 months.

According to Dennis Wilkens, welding instructor at Northland, there are several long-term goals for the cooperative project. He listed some of these goals to include:

(1) Return work positions for people with technical skills to Thief River Falls;

(2) Develop a premier robotic welding training program in northwest Minnesota;

(3) [illegible] through the customized welding program to develop customized training programs for other automated processes such as fiberglass lay-up, painting, injection molding, packaging and others, and

(4) Develop internship programs that will benefit NCTC, Arctic Cat and students from other local higher education institutions.

Robotic welding equipment has now been received and installed in the welding department at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls for use in a cooperative program involving NCTC and Arctic Cat, Inc. Pictured with the equipment (from left) are Robin Foster, welding manager at Arctic Cat, Inc.; Dennis Wilkens, welding instructor at NCTC; Sheri Olson, dean of custom training and continuing education at NCTC; and Chad Coauette, manufacturing specialist at NCTC.

Stork delivers 19 pounds of joy to Osakis couple

Osakis - The Myrins of Osakis say their twins are a "double blessing."

The babies, Bailey and Micah, were born on their due date, October 12, which is unusual for twins. Micah weighed 9 pounds, 7 ounces, and Bailey weighed 9 pounds, 5 ounces.

Cassie Myrin said that the pregnancy was much the same as with her other three children except that she had to have a C-section to deliver them. Echo Press

The Duttons show rescheduled for Bemidji Nov. 29

The Duttons performance of "A Branson Christmas"—postponed due to a vehicle accident in which the group was involved—has been rescheduled for Sunday, November 29, at 2 p.m. at the high school auditorium in Bemidji.

Tickets are $10 in advance (call the box office at 218-751-7270) or $12 at the door.

The Duttons perform at the Barbara Fairchild theater in Branson, MD. They were enroute to Bemidji for a November 15 concert when their tour bus swerved to avoid an abandoned vehicle on I-35 north of Ames, IA, and came to rest in a corn field. The bus left the highway between a sign supported by heavy steel I-beams and a cement culvert, narrowly missing both.

The Bemidji appearance was the first show missed by the group in more than 2,000 scheduled.

SOUPÇON

Sherry LaCoursiere

More recipes today from my St. Paull cookbook. Those church members are GOOD cooks! I tried to find some ideas for those Thanksgiving leftovers today, if you should have any left by now.

Here's what to do with that turkey and some of the leftover vegetables - serve with crusty bread and a little leftover salad and it will be a yummy meal:

TURKEY BISCUIT PIE
by Sharon Bugge

1/2 cup milk
1 cup cooked turkey (or chicken)
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 can cream of chicken soup
1/2 cup cooked vegetables
1 can refrigerated biscuits

Mix milk, turkey, onion, soup and vegetables and place in 9 inch pie pan. Bake 10 minutes.

Top with refrigerator biscuits and bake 15 minutes more, until biscuits are risen and golden.

Here's another delicious meal to make from that little dab of turkey that is left. It can even be stretched with another type of meat if you don't have 2 cups of turkey left:

CHOW MEIN
by Virginia Hallstrom

1/4 cup butter
1 cup sliced onion
2 cups sliced celery
1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
2 cups turkey or chicken broth
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon molasses
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 can chow mein vegetables
1 can bean sprouts
2 cups cooked turkey, chicken or pork, cut up

Sauté onion, celery and mushrooms in butter. Add to broth in cooking pot. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

Add cornstarch mixed with 1/4 cup water, then add molasses, soy sauce, chow mein vegetables, bean sprouts and meat. Simmer until thickened.

Serve over rice and/or chow mein noodles with a dash of soy sauce.

Here's another main dish meal that even utilizes that leftover gravy - what a treat:

TURKEY PEKING
by Geraldine Guerard

3 tablespoons oil
1 cup green pepper
1 cup onion
1 cup celery
1 can mushrooms
1 can bean sprouts
2 cups cooked turkey
1 cup turkey gravy
1 cup sliced peaches
1 cup water chestnuts

Coarsely chop green pepper and onions. Slice celery diagonally. Drain mushrooms, bean sprouts, water chestnuts and peaches.

Heat oil in skillet. Add peppers, onion and celery. Cook until vegetables are wilted, about 5 minutes.

Add mushrooms and sprouts and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add turkey and turkey gravy and heat. Add peach slices and heat.

Serve as is or over chow mein noodles or rice.

What to do with all those raw veggies and that dip that didn't get eaten? Try this dish for lunch:

VEGETABLE PIZZA
by Damita (Johnson) Underwood

1 can crescent rolls
1 package Hidden Valley Ranch party dip
16 ounce container sour cream
Favorite vegetables, such as carrots, celery, green peppers, etc.

Spread rolls flat on a round or rectangular pizza pan. Bake as directed on can.

Prepare dip (or use your leftover dip) as directed on package and spread on cooled crust. Top with vegetables.

Here's another luncheon dish that utilizes cooked turkey or chicken - serve with crusty rolls for a delicious meal:

WILD RICE SALAD
by Cay Donlin

1 cup wild rice
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 2 1/2 cups cooked, cubed turkey or chicken
2/3 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup milk
1/2 small onion, grated
2 cups grapes, halved
1 cup cashews
1 cup sliced water chestnuts, drained
Salt and pepper to taste

Soak rice in water overnight. Drain. Simmer 45 minutes in 2 cups water until tender.

Blend all ingredients but grapes and cashews after rice is cooled. Add grapes and cashews just before serving.

And here's a tasty salad that will use some of those leftover cranberries, as well as dress up any casserole:

CRANBERRY-RASPBERRY SALAD
by Shirley Johnson and Sue Kotz

1 (6 ounce) package raspberry gelatin
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 pint raspberry sherbet
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 (16 ounce) can whole cranberry sauce (or your own leftover cranberry sauce)

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and add sherbet and lemon juice. Break up cranberry sauce and add to cooled gelatin mixture. Refrigerate until set.

Looking In The Mirror

Okay now, a show of hands for anyone who is actually surprised by the recent Ontario threats to apply the Lake of the Woods and Rainy Lake restrictions to all border waters east of here.

Yes, you with the arm raised in the back row... weren't you also one of those convinced the recent impositions were actually conservation-inspired? I think a little less television might do you good. Somebody get him out of here.

As for the rest of you, congratulations. This was anything but a surprising move. In fact, rather than a despicably negative act, it's a step which renews my faith in the assumption that Canadians and I are made of similar fabric. This was not, as the Star-Tribune termed it, a "grenade" tossed to rekindle the border war, but a simply logical progression of human nature. It was something I certainly would have done.

Consider only the most recent history of this fishing mess. In 1994 Rainy Lake is reduced to a zero walleye take for Minnesota-based fishermen. Fishing times are tough on Rainy in '94 and as disagreeable as the locals find the new regulations, the Minnesota public elsewhere is quick to accept this as a legitimate "conservation necessity" and little support for the International Falls clan can be found.

At the same time, Ontario's Lake of the Woods limits are reduced to two fish for border-crossing anglers there, the MNR publicly proclaiming a need to avert a Rainy Lake-like collapse of that fishery, too.

Similarly, the locals are unhappy, but a collective, quiet sigh of relief is breathed—two is certainly better than zero—let's take what we have and be happy. No changes are imposed on lakes further to the east (Namakan, Sand Point, et al) and residents there turn a conspicuously blind eye to the plight of their western neighbors. The State of Minnesota gets involved on a highly political level and fails.

Four years pass and Lake of the Woods takes the full hit to zero fish. The locals whine loudly but to little avail. Rainy Lake keeps quiet on the fishing subject this time, unwilling to jeopardize a tattered but now recovering tourist trade with another big public brouhaha. Once again, nothing is heard from the east, as the restrictions are aimed at the western Minnesota/Ontario border waters. The State of Minnesota gets involved on a highly political level and fails.

1999 approaches quickly, and Ontario makes out its "Wish List." Whether or not they have a legal right to do what they have done is no longer the issue. Like a six-year-old kid who actually gets the pony he requests for Christmas, the northwestern Ontario public demands more. And why shouldn't they? To this point they've met with little or no opposition to any scheme they might concoct, so it is only natural that more is requested. If I'd been given such free rein during my adolescence, I guarantee that I wouldn't have gone to bed at 8 p.m. on school nights.

So let's look at this latest suggestion, to assign a catch and release only status to Minnesota-based fishermen from eastern border lakes, in a nutshell. If I'm a member of the Ontario public, I'm happy. I've got someone to blame for my personal economic woes—it's them damn Yanks taking our resource!

And if I'm an appointed or elected official from southwestern Ontario, I'm happy because I also have a third party, the Americans, to blame for my region's general social problems. I merely have to apply the whip of misery upon that internationally defenseless group about once a year, forcing them to scream loudly enough that my Canadian constituents will most certainly approve of my heinous ways and assure me another term in the bureaucracy.

I just have to take care not to enrage too large a segment of the Minnesota population at any one time, because a unified voice could blossom into legitimate Minnesota opposition and drag those city boys from Ottawa into the fracas. Like the daunting task of eating an elephant, a small bite at a time is sufficient and will keep us from choking on more than we can chew.

If I were put in a similar position, I can't see myself acting any differently. The restrictions on Namakan, Sand Point and others are not the result of cultural distinctions between the U.S. and Canada; rather, they are a direct product of the likenesses found in our human nature.

The basest roots of the problem may have a different source, but that's a discussion for another time, when you've made a lot of coffee and I'm feeling even more talkative than usual. For now, simply admit that you're not surprised at the progressions involved here and try to think just what it is you'd do next if you lived in Thunder Bay or Kenora. Because that's exactly what is going to happen.

Community Bible class in Newfolden starts December 2

An adult Bible class open to the public and free of charge will be conducted by Rev. Gary Barrett of the Evangelical Free Church each Wednesday evening from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. at the Newfolden elementary school, beginning December 2.

Rev. Barrett said the class will be based on the Gospel of Matthew as presented in The Visual Bible, an audio-visual, word-for-word rendition of the New International Version of the Bible. The first session will begin with the birth of Jesus.

"As a class intended for the entire community, it will be non-denominational in its orientation," Rev. Barrett said. "The discussions will be intellectually challenging but personally non-threatening. It will be good for someone who wants to know more abut the Bible but doesn't know where to begin, and stimulating for those who do not attend church regularly."

ing to get longer.

The men all ride longer, trail sleds with racks and saddlebags, carefully loaded with the supplies they will need for the expedition. The snowmobilers carry seven gallons of gasoline, six gallons of oil, two tow ropes, tools, an ax and saw, freeze dried and instant food items, eating utensils, four metal insulated beverage containers, each man's clothes and toiletries, and four sleeping bags with pads and plastic to lay beneath them.

Packed and ready to go, the foursome leaves the Stoltman home and travels from Thief River Falls to Roseau where they follow the Can-Am highway to Manitoba. They cross the Lake of the Woods, and from there the destination varies from year to year.

While they have a general idea of where they are going, plans often change from day to day during the course of the trip.

A typical day begins with a hearty breakfast before straddling their snowmobiles for a day of traveling at about 9 a.m. Around midday they search for a scenic spot to stop, build a fire and make themselves some instant soup with the hot water they carry in the insulated bottles. Ideally, they reach their daily destination by about 5 p.m. — just before dark.

They check into whatever accommodations the town they're in has to offer, preferably a resort-type motel. The evening is spent relaxing — eating supper, playing cards, and if offered, enjoying the pool and/or sauna at the motel.

The men also spend a lot of time visiting with local residents. "We're snoopers," Hilary says. That's how they find out about the area and interesting local sights. Those conversations often help them determine how they will spend the following day.

Of course, not all days are typical or ideal when Mother nature is in charge. Over the years, Hilary, Ron and their traveling companions have run into all kinds of weather conditions — from mild to bitterly cold. They've found themselves on slushy lakes and in the middle of snowstorms. Nature also provides a variety of interesting and sometimes scary wildlife.

While their late model Minnesota-made snowmobiles are in top running condition when they leave Thief River Falls, the foursome has experienced breakdowns. And even though they carry what should be an adequate supply of gasoline and oil, they have found themselves in situations where they don't know if they'll make it to their destination before running out of fuel.

Not every night is spent in a top notch motel either. Some are endured in tiny, crude cabins along the route where a supply of wood piled beside the door is the only amenity.

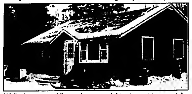
Manitoba does not have a connecting snowmobile trail system the way Minnesota does, and not all of the trails are found on the map. Sometimes trails are closed due to weather or snow conditions, and time is lost when the snowmobilers have to break their own trails. At times they've gone off course and have had to stop to study their maps and try to figure out their location. Hilary describes some of the situations they've encountered as "hairy."

These gentlemen could write volumes about their various adventures as well as the interesting places they've visited and amazing people they've met.

They've deemed Ann Dunlop of the Dunlop Hotel in Seven Sisters, as the "best cook in Manitoba."

Trapper John Bartley, they claim, is the most interesting person they've met and the "guy to know in case you have problems." The foursome has shared a meal of moose meat and spent the night with Bartley in his cabin near Rennie, Manitoba.

They discovered the best motel they've stayed in so far last year in Gimli, Manitoba. Accommodations include a sauna, pool and whirlpool and the "second best" restaurant in the province.



Ron and Hilary agree that Helela Island on Lake Winnipeg has provided the most interesting sights. The island offers the province-owned Gull Harbour Resort.

In addition to colorful local residents, the men have met and shared stories with other snowmobilers along the way. Regardless of where you're from, friendships are immediate when you're "in the same boat" exploring the Canadian wilderness.

For others considering making such a trip, the men advise careful planning. Information about snow conditions, weather and lodging can be obtained by calling 1-800-766-6000 in Minnesota, 1-800-665-0040 in Manitoba, 1-800-668-2756 in Ontario and Mr. Snowman in Manitoba at 1-204-255-7533.

Certainly, with a well-planned adventure to look forward to, winter won't seem quite so long for these retired gents. Traveling between 125 and 140 miles on an average day, Ron Broten describes their leisurely pace as the "ultimate way of using snowmobiles."

The men's spouses also enjoy snowmobiling and join them on various expeditions, but when wives were mentioned with regard to the trip, it was quickly made clear that this particular trip is a "males only" affair. And obviously, regardless of their ages, boys will be boys.

While the snowmobilers enjoy some nights at resort-type motels, other nights are spent in cabins found along the trail as the foursome travels about Canada.

Cross-wind runway at airport studied

Dale Wennberg explained that those circumstances also included the fact that the two city plows had been damaged during clean up operations.

Borsheim said that people have to realize that 17-inches of snow is not normal, and people have to be a little patient.

Milt Burstad, city council representative, also thought city crews did a good job and noted that ice under the snow made it even more difficult to get around.

Don Barron, city council representative, gave cudos to city crews, including the park and recreation employees responsible for clearing alleys of snow.

Lindberg said the city has a lot to be proud of. He said the city crews accomplished in 24 hours what normally would have taken three days. Lindberg said he had received many calls. Only a couple, he said, were really overbearing. Many were calling to inform them of areas that had been overlooked. Many of those callers called back to express their appreciation for city crews coming back to clear snow from those areas.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said that part of the problem was that they were only two days into calendar parking when the storm hit. Warning tickets had been issued during those two days and tickets could have been written after those two days Froshheiser said that instead, officers were not hard on people, and in many cases knocked in doors or called individuals to ask them to move their vehicles from streets, alleys and parking lots.

Froschheiser had some harsh words for people who had no reason for being out in the storm. Many of the people driving cars in the storm got stuck and made it difficult for city crews to clear streets. His own officers were unable to get around in vehicles and borrowed some four-wheel drives to perform their job. In the future, Froschheiser suggested that the city council consider adopting an ordinance that would allow officers to issue tickets that would carry some serious fines for individuals who were out just joy riding during major storms.

Lindberg noted that many city employees worked long overtime hours trying to keep the streets clear.

The city council approved a recommendation from the administrative services committee to approve a city-wide comp time accrual policy. The new policy will take effect on January 1, 1999.

Balanced Budget?

The council is closing in on a balanced budget for 1999. In September the council was looking at a budget deficit for 1999 of $524,000. Since then they have had numerous meetings including three of four budget committee meetings to specifically address budget issues. As of November 24, the city had a budget deficit of $163,926, which includes an operating deficit request from Summerfield Housing in the amount of $143,265.

The city is not required by law to have a balanced budget but they always have had a balanced budget. City Administrator Roger DeLap said they do use reserves, but generally for one-time expenditures only. It's critical, he said, that they don't get into using reserves for operating funds. (The last audit of city funds indicated that the city did have adequate reserves.)

Individuals interested in getting some answers to their budget questions or who want to learn more about the budget process are encouraged to attend the Truth-In-Taxation hearing scheduled for 5 p.m. Monday, December 7, in council chambers at the depot.

Let's Protect Ourselves And Others On Highways During The Holidays

We would really like to make a liar out of Anne Beers. Col. Beers is chief of the Minnesota State patrol, and she projects that at least 60 traffic fatalities and 3,500 injuries will occur over the next six weeks of holiday celebrations. We would like to have her projection of deaths and injuries be much too high.

Unfortunately, she has a good basis for projections—past history. Minnesotans and visitors to our state will have to change their driving ways or they—make that "we"—will be doomed to more of the same unnecessary grief and misery from highway accidents that has struck our state's families in the past.

Col. Beers is just as concerned as anyone — and perhaps moreso—about the potential for deaths and injuries from Thanksgiving through New Year's holidays.

"We do not want to lose 60 people in avoidable traffic crashes over this holiday celebration time," she said. "Traffic crashes are not inevitable, they are preventable. I'm going to ask Minnesotans to be aware that the risks that accompany holiday driving are not just confined to the Thanksgiving, Christmas and New year's weekends. The next six weeks are a time of increased risks for drivers and their families."

There is always risk when venturing out onto the streets and highways, but three additional risk factors are identified with holidays, Chief Beers points out.

First, there are more people on the road. Higher traffic volume means higher risk. The tendency is to bunch up when there are a lot of vehicles on the road. Just the opposite is what is needed. Allow more space between vehicles when there is heavy traffic. Chain reaction crashes can involve a number of vehicles if one has to stop or make another sudden movement change.

Second, there will be a higher percentage of drivers on the road who have been drinking alcohol. Even a little alcohol impairs driving ability and the adverse effects increase with the level of alcohol use.

Third risk factor is driver distraction and inattention. Dperation of a motor vehicle requires the driver to be constantly aware of surroundings and adjust his or her driving accordingly in order to be able to react quickly and properly if the unexpected happens.

Beers adds that awareness includes watching road and weather conditions carefully. Although people in this part of the state have received a rough introduction to winter, drivers in most of the state to the south have still been enjoying near summer-like driving conditions. It always takes at least the first good ice or snow storm to rekindle a realization among drivers that factors outside their vehicles can affect the performance of their vehicles. Dn the other hand, some never seem to learn.

Despite too many drivers' willingness to ignore them, the following winter driving rules are issued as a reminder by the state patrol chief:

• When you first start driving in snow or icy conditions, get a feel for the road. Carefully accelerate and then brake lightly to test road conditions and check out how fast you can safely travel, but be alert for changes which may have occurred "down the road."

• Be gentle with both accelerator and brakes. A light foot on the gas is less likely to produce wheel spinning, which is unsafe on the road and unproductive in snow.

• Make turns slowly and gradually, especially at heavily-traveled intersections. Brake before you come to a curve, not while you're in it.

• If the rear of your car starts to slide, steer in the direction of the skid.

• Increase your following distance. Ice or snow can increase your stopping distance from three to 10 times.

• Before you take the wheel or turn a wheel, make sure all passengers are properly restrained in child safety seats or seat belts—and your own seat belt is adjusted and fastened. Then drive alertly and defensively.

Give yourself and your family the best gift you can this season—an accident-free holiday that lets you enjoy the season. And let's all do our part to make a liar out of Anne Beers. Somehow, we don't think she would mind one little bit.

State DFL Chair Urges Learning From Defeats

"We must remember that our ultimate goals and values center on the improvement of the quality of life of all Minnesotans, not on the sacredness of party process and insider politics," states Dick Senese, chairman of the Minnesota Democratic-Farmer-Labor (DFL) party.

"Make no mistake," he says, "the Minnesota DFL party has heard the message of the 1998 election. This year Minnesota voters embraced our values but they did not support our candidates. Two-thirds of Minnesota citizens voted for basic human rights, for strong public education and for adequate health care for all citizens. Our message prevailed but we failed to connect with our core constituencies.

"Most young people, working women and the economically disadvantaged—the people who normally respond to our message of strengthening public education, creating opportunity and building strong communities—did not vote for our candidates this year and we must understand why," Senese says.

The DFL state chairman said he has talked to many citizens following the election and "found it clear that the Minnesota DFL party has to re-connect with our core supporters. We must examine the reasons for our failure to gain their support and we have to learn to listen to what the electorate wants from its leaders."

Senese says he believes it is a mistake to look at this election as an aberration and is convinced the party must reject the attitude of party leaders who choose to assign blame rather than take responsibility for failure to connect with core constituencies. The party must start with a blank piece of paper and make a fresh start that will welcome suggestions and practices to make the party more innovative, open and responsive, he said.

It isn't going to happen, Dick; not with the same people holding the same jobs and everyone looking for a slice of the DFL power pie. It isn't going to happen in the state DFL party and probably not in the Republican party either. Both of these "established" parties are too top heavy with old line partisans to smell the roses, much less cultivate the plants.

But we wish Senese well in trying to make the party responsive to the electorate. The people don't really want leaders as much as they want responders, and that hasn't been accepted in the DFL upper echelons for decades.

Six managers from watershed district to attend meeting

Six members of the Red Lake Watershed District board of managers, along with administrator Lowell Enerson, will attend the annual meeting of the Minnesota Association of Watershed Districts December 3-5 at the Radisson Arrowwood in Alexandria.

Managers attending will be Vernon Johnson, Clearwater county; Richard Dougherty, Beltrami county; Wally Jorgenson, West Polk county; Dennis Nikolayson, East Polk county; George Dailey, Red Lake county; and Dale Nelson, Pennington county.

They will be among approximately 300 people expected to attend the 1998 annual meeting. The keynote address at the convention will be given by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls.

Participants will be able to attend training sessions on topics such as watershed management, wetland permitting, storm water infiltration and animal waste management. The meeting also includes a general business session, election of board members and officers, discussion of resolutions and a trade show.

"This meeting gives us the chance to learn about the latest techniques for water management and how we can use those techniques in this area," Enerson said. "It's very helpful to learn about what has worked in other parts of the state and what has not."

Watersheds are local units of government based upon the boundaries of natural watersheds. The Red Lake Watershed District includes all or part of Beltrami, Clearwater, Red Lake, Pennington and Polk counties.

Tree Walk for Hospice will take place Saturday and Sunday, December 5 and 6, at Jim and Robin Bitzegaio's Pine Tree Farm three miles northwest of Thief River Falls. Trees donated by the Bitzegaios are decorated by sponsoring groups and the public is invited to view the trees during the tree walk and make a donation to Hospice in a container by the tree of their choice. The trees themselves, along with their decorations, will be donated to needy families in Pennington county. Sister Kathy Kucheris shown with students from St. Bernard's school during a recent visit to decorate a tree.

Pine Tree Farm will host Tree Walk for Hospice

Pine Tree Farm, owned and operated by the Jim and Robin Bitzegaio family northwest of Thief River Falls, will host its fourth annual Tree Walk for Hospice Saturday and Sunday, December 5 and 6. Groups from the area have come to the farm and donated decorations and time to decorate the trees along the walk.

Eighteen trees were donated by the Bitzegaios and are arranged along a walkway built in one of the farm's buildings. Containers with the name of the decorating group have been placed by each tree. As people stroll along the walkway, they are encouraged to place a donation in the container by the tree of their choice. A "winner" is selected on the basis of donations received.

All money collected in the effort is donated to Hospice of the Red River Valley. All of the trees themselves, along with their decorations, will be transported to the homes of needy families in Pennington county.

Trees may be viewed and monetary votes cast from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, December 5 and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, December 6, during Pine Tree Farm's annual open house weekend. Refreshments will be served and there will be a fire "to cozy-up to," according to Mrs. Bitzegaio.

Groups participating in the decorating of trees this year include Pennington Main and Pennington Square, Key Club and Kiwanis, National Honor Society chapter at Lincoln high school, Rose Wold's daycare, the John Krankkala family, Headstart and Early Childhood Family Education, Redeemer Lutheran Church Life Applications Project and Youth of First Baptist church;

Also Evangelical Free Church Senior High Ministry Team, Hospice, St. Bernard's school, Lori's Hallmark, Redeemer Lutheran Church sixth grade youth, Lions club, Hardware Hank, the Tim Numedahl family, Franklin middle school Respect Team and Pine Tree Farm.

Pine Tree Farm welcomes the public to come to the tree walk and support these fine groups and their community service project for Hospice.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The THIEF RIVER FALLS Water Department announces that the maximum limit for Turbidity in drinking water was exceeded on October 2, 3 and 4, 1998.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. It is and indicator of filtration efficiency for removal of pathogens. Turbidity also indicates the treatability of a water by disinfection and can be a problem if it interferes with the disinfection process. However, the high turbidity levels did not create a health hazard because the Water Department maintained effective levels of chlorine disinfection.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking waters standards and has determined that the presence of microbiological contaminants are a health concern at certain levels of exposure. If water is inadequately treated, microbiological contaminants in that water may cause disease. Disease symptoms may include diarrhea, cramps, nausea, and possibly jaundice, and any associated headaches and fatigue. These symptoms, however, are not just associated with disease-causing organisms in drinking water. EPA has set enforceable requirements for treating drinking water to reduce the risk of these adverse health effects. Treatment such as filtering and disinfecting the water removes or destroys microbiological contaminants. Drinking water which is treated to meet EPA requirements is associated with little to none of this risk and should be considered safe.

The turbidity ranged from a high of 1.2 Nephelometric Turbidity Units (NTU) to 0.56 units. The Safe Drinking Water Act Standards effective in June of 1993 set a maximum contaminant level (mcl) for finished water turbidity. Finished water turbidity must be less than or equal to 0.5 NTU in 95 percent of all samples taken and can not exceed 5 NTU at any time.

The turbidity violation was caused by plugging of the aluminum sulfate chemical feed system. Aluminum Sulfate is a coagulant used in the treatment process to lower turbidity before final filtration.

Please be assured that the water was safe for drinking during this period of turbidity exceedance. Routine microbiological tests of the finished water in the distribution system found no bacteria present. For additional information please contact Allen J. Lamm, at the Water Purification Plant, phone number 681-3809.

Trash research, also known as "garbageology," is part of the marketing research training taught by Ginger Kaufmann at Northland Community and Technical College. Students are given "loaded" bags of trash and asked to make deductions about the use of products and families using them by studying the items which have been discarded.

"Garbageology' studied in NCTC marketing program

College students are rarely reluctant to refer to one or more of their classes as a "garbage course." In the case of Ginger Kaufmann's Marketing 2220 01 Market Research Class, part of the instruction really is a garbage course.

Kaufmann uses the analysis of discarded materials as one of a number of "in-class experiential exercises" during the semester. In her effort to involve students in instruction, "garbageology" is a real "hands on" (with gloves on!) experience. Examination of garbage is used as an introduction to observational techniques.

In her own words, Kaufmann describes how the procedure works and what it is intended to do:

We first talk about what observational research is, and some of its advantages and disadvantages. I describe several observational methods, including use of scanner data and pantry audits to find out what people are actually purchasing.

The students are usually rather disgusted by the idea of a researcher looking through a consumer's pantry, particularly when I mention the can of soup that's been there since 1968. This also brings home the idea that knowing what people buy does not mean you know what they actually use.

Next, I introduce the idea of using physical trace evidence to find out what people actually do, based on where they leave their footprints (literally, in some cases). I tell them about the study at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago, where tile wear was analyzed to discover that the most popular exhibit by far is the baby chick hatching area.

I mention that librarians can see which reference books are being used based on wear of the binding. I tell them that restaurants can figure out what people are eating based on what they leave on their plates. Then I ask them how we might use physical trace evidence to overcome the limitations of scanner data and pantry audits in determining what people actually use. They will eventually come up with the idea of looking at garbage.

I tell them where the idea for "garbageology" studies came from and briefly describe some results from Tucson. Then, I divide the class in half and present each team with a bag of garbage and rubber gloves. I give them 15 minutes to go through their garbage, list what they find and characterize the household it came from.

As each group presents its findings, I ask the students "why do you think this person is single?" or "why do you believe this is a male?" or "do you think the person is a blue collar or white collar worker?"

They always have interesting reasons for saying what they do. Of course, I never answer any questions about the garbage because no interaction is possible in an observational study.

Where does the garbage to be analyzed come from? I usually collect it for two to three weeks prior to the class period, and have some idea what I want each of the two households to look like.

One time, I made the two bags identical except that one contained Classic Coke cans and the other Diet Coke cans. I thought this would lead to characterizations which differed in that one household would be perceived as "healthy" and the other "unhealthy," similar to the results obtained with the nearly-identical shopping lists by Haire (1950).

However, I was surprised when both groups had identical characterizations, including "they don't care about the environment because they don't recycle." I typically include frozen pizza boxes and other quick preparation items. These often lead to conclusions that the household includes a couple, both of whom work full-time.

The characterizations are usually quite carefully thought out and are based on the observations. I never tell them whether or not they are "right"—I will say "your guess is as good as mine." This tends to increase the impression they are doing something "real." I do tell them some of the findings from other garbage studies, including Campbell's findings that blue collar neighborhoods use more canned soup, and that people report using more healthy items and fewer unhealthy items than they actually do.

My "garbage days" are so vivid in the students' minds that they occasionally mention the activity in the semester evaluations two to three months later.

Deer feeding programs topic for meeting December 10 at NCTC

To discuss how emergency deer feeding programs should be conducted this winter and in future years, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has scheduled a meeting on Thursday, December 10, at 7 p.m. in the fine arts auditorium at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Similar meetings are being scheduled elsewhere across the northern part of the state.

A work group that was established by the DNR under the direction of the state legislature has produced a report that shifts many of the responsibilities for conducting feeding programs from the DNR to private, non-profit organizations, according to John Williams, area wildlife manager for the DNR in Thief River Falls.

Purpose of the meeting will be to review the report's recommendations and to begin identifying and organizing groups wishing to conduct a feeding program later this winter if severe winter conditions exist.

Williams said that in 1997 the legislature dedicated 50 cents from the sale of each deer license for deer feeding. These funds can only be used for purchase of feed, and unused funds are available in future years for the same purpose. Eventually money from this fund will be used to re-pay the $750,000 cost of the 1995-96 emergency feeding program to the state's game and fish fund.

This work group, which consisted of representatives from DNR and the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association (MDHA), developed recommendations on how these funds should be used in the future.

The report recommends that the DNR continue to purchase feed, but that local non-profit organizations (such as sportsman's groups, civic organizations and MDHA chapters) should be responsible for establishing feed distribution depots, defining where and when they will distribute feed, and determining how they will distribute feed to deer.

Areas with severe winter conditions would be announced by the DNR by February 1 based on the Winter Severity index (which measures the sum of days with at least 15 inches of snow and days with temperatures of 0 degrees or below. Feed would be available to organizations after February 15 in areas with severe winter conditions.

For copies of the work group report or more information on the meeting Thursday evening, contact John Williams at 218-681-0946 or Paul Telander at Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area headquarters, phone 218-222-3747.

Public input sought as state DNR heads study rule changes

As part of a periodic rulemaking process, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is proposing changes in wildlife regulations and is requesting public comments.

Most of the changes would simply make permanent rules that were temporarily in effect for the 1997 and 1998 hunting seasons through the expedited rule process.

Expedited rules in effect for 1997 and/or 1998 that are proposed to be made permanent include:

■ Modify general and special provisions for state game refuges, waterfowl refuges, wildlife management ages, and controlled waterfowl hunting zones.

■ Change deer, bear, moose and wild turkey quota area boundaries.

■ Change procedures for bear tagging.

■ Modify provisions related to bucks-only restrictions for deer hunting in permit areas with no antlerless permits.

■ Reduce woodcock season and bag limits.

■ Modify falconry hunting seasons.

■ Modify fisher, marten and bobcat zones and limits.

■ Modify goose zones and seasons.

New provisions that have not previously been in place, but that have already been the subject of public notices and meetings to obtain input and comment include:

■ Allow electronic listening devices for wild turkey hunting.

■ Split the season for taking crows to provide for a late winter season.

Additional proposed changes or technical corrections include:

■ Modify nontoxic shot provisions for taking migratory waterfowl to conform with federal regulations.

■ Modify authorization procedures for taking bears causing damage or nuisance problems.

■ Modify wild rice harvest provisions in wildlife management areas.

■ Reinstate the restitution value for wolves that was eliminated when wolves were removed from the state threatened species list.

■ Modify provisions for wildlife rehabilitation permits.

This is an initial request for comments on rules that are currently under consideration, but for which drafting is not yet completed. Public comments on these planned rules will be considered through at least Jan. 8, 1999. After that date, specific rule changes will be drafted and a formal public comment period on the actual proposed rules will follow.

Written or oral comments, questions, requests to receive a draft of the rules when it has been prepared, and requests for more information on the planned rules should be addressed to Ed Boggess, DNR Section of Wildlife, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155; telephone 651-297-4960.

Delmer Rux of Thief River Falls took this unusual buck with a crossbow from a tree stand at a distance of about 30 feet Monday. Rux, who has a special permit to use a crossbow due to a disabling neck injury received at work a number of years ago, bagged the buck on land he owns northwest of Thief River Falls. The rack of antlers is unusual in that one side appears normal while the other has a heavy, forked main beam with small points.

Robotic welder installed for program at Northland

Internship Opportunities

Arctic Cat and NCTC will cooperate with the University of North Dakota Industrial Technology Department and other local MnSCU higher education institutions to give students the opportunity to go through robotic welding training. After this training is successfully completed, Arctic Cat will create internship positions in its welding department to give these students the opportunity to work in an actual industrial setting.

Arctic Cat and NCTC are looking for students to fill internship positions who are interested in welding, electronics, automation, production and other related fields. Students will be recruited from NCTC, University of North Dakota, North Dakota State School of Science at Wahpeton, Central Lakes College at Staples and Northwest Technical Colleges at East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Detroit Lakes campuses.

Technology Training Needed

In a report to the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Manufacturing and Competitiveness, chairman and CEO Eric Mittelstadt of FANUC Robotics North America, Inc., made some key points in regard to the need for increased technical training of the American workforce.

While automation has increased, he pointed out, manufacturing jobs have also increased and unemployment rates have declined. Automation has created a new demand for workers with a higher order of skills and knowledge that enable them to keep pace with technology.

For example, he noted the following:

- In 1950, roughly 60 percent of manufacturing jobs were unskilled. Today that figure is 30 percent and by the year 2005, the number of unskilled manufacturing jobs is expected to shrink to 15 percent.
- The big three auto makers are predicting that in 2005 they will need to fill approximately 250,000 jobs that require high technical skills.
- More than one million new information technology workers will be needed by 2005.
- 40,000 new semi-conductor manufacturing skilled technicians will be required over the next five years.
- Demand for skilled technical workers far exceeds supply and current prospects for meeting this shortage are not promising.
- While sound monetary policy has contributed to the nation's strong economy, the key to long-term, non-inflationary economic growth is increased productivity.

"Technology and related workforce skills are the 'twin pillars' of productivity improvement," said Mittelstadt. "The nation's schools are simply not preparing enough individuals with the skills and knowledge they need to work in the new world of technology-driven manufacturing and other technology-based Industries.

"As a nation, we must take care to provide effective incentives and investments to nurture both technological leadership and related workforce skills development. The task of increasing national productivity through investment in these two areas lies principally with industry and with government—at the local, state and federal levels.

Santa Lucia Fest held December 12 in Grand Forks

"Santa Lucia, thy light is glowing through the darkest winter night." Agassiz Swedish Heritage Society will sponsor its 12th Santa Lucia Festival Saturday, December 12 at Augustana Lutheran Church in Grand Forks at 2 p.m.

Highlight of the ancient Swedish festival of light will be the Santa Lucia pageant with Ricky Olson, daughter of the Richard Olsons of Lancaster, being the Santa Lucia queen. Her attendants will be Grand Forks girls. They will wear white gowns and carry lighted candles as they enter, singing the Santa Lucia song.

ASHS is honored that its oldest member, Hugo Magnusson of Grand Forks will again sing "Jar ar sa glad". Omer Larson of Grand Forks will read the Christmas story from the book of Luke in Swedish and Oscar Manz of Alvarado will read in English. Special music will be provided by Augustana's choir. Dorothy Manz of Alvarado, former organist at the church, will be the organist.

Scandinavian goodies provided by ASHS members will follow the program. President Matthew Edman of Alvarado extends a welcome to everyone, whether or not of Swedish descent.

Lucia Day is celebrated annually in Sweden and is carried on today in many Swedish-American homes and by Swedish organizations. According to folk legend, during a time of famine in medieval days, St. Lucia was said to be seen crossing a lake in the province of Varmland, Sweden. She had a crown of light around her head and brought gifts of food to starving Swedes. Legends about her vary, but Lucia shines as a symbol of light and hope in each of them. It is joyously celebrated as a prelude to Christmas.

Augustana Lutheran is located at 520 University Avenue. Mae Marie Blackmore is chair-person for this first time event for ASHS in Grand Forks.

Red Lake County Central shades Tri-County 58-56

Blitzed in the second quarter by the outside sharpshooting of Afton Hanson of Tri-County, Red Lake County Central made some defensive changes at halftime and pulled out a come-from-behind 58-56 win Tuesday in Plummer.

It was the first game of the season for Red Lake County Central which will meet Fosston next Tuesday, December 1, in the Oklee school gymnasium.

The RLCC Mustangs used a fast start to gain a 20-12 first quarter lead before guard Afton Hanson of the Tri-County Wildcats caught fire. Hanson drained six three-point shots in the first half as the Wildcats used a 28-point second quarter to carry a 40-33 lead into the locker room at halftime.

Mustangs coach Rick Koivisto made some defensive adjustments during the intermission and his team responded, outscoring Tri-County 15-4 in the third quarter and leading by four after three quarters. The Wildcats battled back with a 12-10 effort in the final period but could get no closer than two points with a free throw in the closing seconds.

Hanson led all scorers with 35 points while Sarah Quick had 10 for Tri-County. Emily Fisher tossed in 19 points for the Mustangs and Tracy Rosten joined her in double figures with 10.

Red Lake County Central pulled down 44 rebounds in the game, including 10 each by Rosten and Heather Schiefert, and hit on 24 of 60 field goal attempts. The Wildcats were good on 18 of 52 from the field and hit half of their free throws—11 of 22. The Mustangs made the most of their gift toss attempts with 9 of 11 from the line.

Scoring by quarters: RLCC: 20, 13, 15, 10—58; Tri-County: 12, 28, 4, 12—56.

Individual scoring: RLCC: Emily Fisher, 19; Tracy Rosten, 10; Sylvia Hilgeman, 9; Heather Schiefert, 7; Emily Rustad, 6; Kelsey Lundeen, 6; Erica Vettleson, 2; Tri-County: Afton Hanson, 35; Sarah Quick, 10; Jenny Johnson, 6; Joni Anderson, 3; Tracy Johnson, 2.

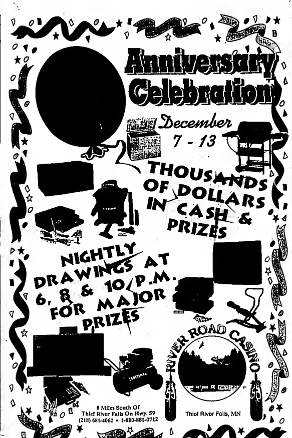
From the entrance of the Multi-Events Center down a long hallway, visitors will find the trainer's room, referee's room and locker rooms. An inspection of the facility was conducted by state officials Tuesday, November 24, in anticipation of declaring "substantial completion."

The new Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls has two large bathrooms for public use. The potentially large number of people attending events, dictated that large bathrooms be built at the facility. In this instance, the women's bathroom is equipped with 17 stalls. An inspection of the facility was conducted Tuesday, November 24.



Thief River Falls Multi-Events Center is more than just plans on paper now. Phase I of the facility is nearing completion. Jim Whipkey, architect for the Division of Building Construction under the Minnesota Department of Administration, conducted an inspection of the building Tuesday, November 24, in preparation for declaring "substantial completion." Whipkey and other individuals participating in the inspection created a punch list of items that needed to be completed. Whipkey said he would have liked to see the facility further along, but said he was able to get a good look at the quality of work and what has been completed. He added that obviously, quite a bit remains to be done next spring when the weather improves. He doesn't expect the building and grounds to be ready for official activities this spring, but anticipates that it will be ready by next fall.

A checklist of items to be completed was developed by individuals inspecting the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls. The inspection was conducted Tuesday, November 24, and prior to declaring "substantial completion."

Semi collides with horses

Fosston - A Peterbilt tractor trailer loaded with wheat collided with two horses Thanksgiving evening on Polk County Road No. 1 near Fosston.

Driver Chad Strom, 32, of Fosston was taking a load of wheat to Alexandria at the time of the accident.

It was the second accident in two weeks that Strom was involved in. A week earlier he was in Thief River Falls when a Canadian trucker was unable to stop and hit him, totaling another truck. The Thirteen Towns

New Alexandria pastor awaits visa for children

Alexandria - Pastor Cyril and MaryLinda Fayose love Alexandria even though its vastly different from their home in Ghana, West Africa.

However, their two young daughters, ages 4-1/2 and 2-1/2, remain with relatives in Ghana, tied up in the quota system that limits the number of immigrants allowed each year. While their visas have been approved, the average wait is three to five years — too long for the couple to be away from their young daughters.

They are in the United States with permanent residency status while Cyril finishes his doctoral degree at Luther Seminary in St. Paul. He's also serving as pastor at First Lutheran Church in Alexandria and MaryLinda is working as a home health aide.

The couple has appealed to legislators and government agencies with no favorable results so far. Echo Press

Hunter bags very unusual deer

Waubun - When Frank Paul went to put his buck tag on the antlered deer he shot near his home, he turned it over and received quite a surprise. The 12-point animal had female anatomy.

The doe weighed about 220 pounds, and the antlers were full sized with 12 points. There was no velvet on them as is sometimes found on other antlered deer. Generally, such antlers are in the form of spikes rather than being a full rack.

The animal has generated a lot of attention and both the White Earth Tribal Game Warden and the DNR officials took a look at the doe. The DNR reports that the chances of a doe having a set of antlers like this is 1 in 200,000, and that Paul's doe had the highest number of points that they have on record. The Mahnomen Pioneer

Shelter's first litter is large

Crookston - Ellie Mae, a four-year-old boxer cross, gave birth to the first litter ever born at the Crookston Animal Shelter since it opened its doors on December 12, 1993. Ellie Mae gave birth to 11 puppies on November 3 and 4.

Normally, the shelter refuses to accept people's pregnant pets. Most of the animals taken in are abandoned, abused or surrendered because the owners are unable to care for them. Ellie Mae's owners were moving across the country and were unable to take the pregnant animal with them. Crookston Daily Times

Lincoln choirs present "Season of Peace" concert

Keli Waterworth

Rachel Mathson

Darin Bjerknes

Paul Heys

Lincoln High School choirs under the direction of Darcy Reese, will be presenting their December concert entitled "Season of Peace" 7 p.m. on Monday, December 7, in the Lincoln High School auditorium.

The concert will feature the 71-voice Concert Choir, Varsity Singers, Choraliers, Swingsations, and Carolers. The finale will feature all 130 voices performing the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah. The Lincoln High School Symphonic Orchestra and Cathy Hagen will accompany the choir.

The carolers will welcome the guests as they enter the building by serenading various Christmas carols — some even in French! The six carolers will be dressed in all the holiday colors and warm the hearts of listeners.

Swingsations will perform various jazz charts including a 1938 piece entitled "Flat Foot Floogie," and soloist Rachel Mathson, will perform a tongue twister from 1943 called "Tico Tico". Cool Jazz, with Brenda Bjornstad on piano, John Danielson on drums, and Colin Browning on bass, will accompany Swingsations. The Swingsations will also perform a beautiful jazz arrangement of some very familiar Christmas songs.

Varsity Singers will be featuring two 20th Century poetry pieces entitled "Snowflakes" and "The Poet Sings". The words in "Snowflakes" beautifully describe the details of the snowflake and how they melt when their flight is done. "The Poet Sings" describes how loneliness and misery are silenced by a melody and how you can change the world no matter where you are. Taryn Pream, a young poet and singer from Lincoln High School, will be reading two of her poems.

Varsity Singers also will perform "Climbing Over Rocky Mountain," a chorus piece from the operetta "The Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan. The singers have had a lot of fun with this one and are eager to perform the piece.

The Choraliers will be performing four selections with accompanist Beth Nelson. Two of the selections are in Latin with rich harmonies that really show off these young voices. Their featured selection will include various soloists on a new arrangement of "This Light", a lively spiritual that should be familiar to many.

Other than the three mass pieces, the 71 voices in Concert Choir will perform a Mozart selection featuring Katie Christensen, Beth Nelson and Dusty Melby with Cathy Hagen on the piano. "Daniel, Daniel," another challenging spiritual splits the voices into eight parts and features soloists Dusty Melby and Leif Spears.

The evening promises to be a holiday show that will bring peace and joy to all that attend. The Lincoln High School auditorium doors open at 6:15 p.m. with the concert beginning at 7 p.m. on Monday, December 7.

NWMC nursing history being compiled

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Several weeks ago, Gail Bergland, a registered nurse at Northwest Medical Center, visited with a friend, telling her of a plan to establish a nursing history at Northwest Medical Center.

Gail's friend immediately began to reflect on her own experiences as a nurse at Northwest Medical Center. As her friend excitedly told story after story, Gail's enthusiasm for the project rose.

At a meeting on Wednesday, December 2, Gail, dressed in a nurse's uniform worn long before her time, shared her plan with other Northwest Medical Center nurses.

While some form of nursing care has probably been practiced for thousands of years, nursing as we know it began in the 1850's with the work of English nurse Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern professional nursing. She established the first school of nursing, the Nightingale Home for Nurses, in London in 1860. Graduates of this school traveled to all parts of the world, including the United States, to teach nursing.

The first hospital in Thief River Falls dates back to 1907. Bethany Hospital was located on Red Lake Boulevard, a private facility operated by a Mrs. Boen. The hospital provided five to six beds and one room as an operating room. Mrs. Boen acted as both superintendent and staff.

In 1918, the flu epidemic hit the area hard. Hundreds were dying as Dr. Melby worked around the clock for 15 days and nights caring for the sick. Finally, he collapsed and ended up spending 15 days in bed. That year the city rented a three story building at the corner of 4th Street and Knight Avenue and began the city's first emergency hospital. That building still stands.

World War I retarded the growth of the community and progress remained slow through the post war era of bank failures, foreclosures and bankruptcies. It wasn't until 1929 and 1930 that growth slowly resumed.

Northwestern Hospital was located at a number of sites before building on the land it occupies today where its name was eventually changed to Northwest Medical Center.

While the history of the Thief River Falls medical community, its hospitals and physicians, is well documented, the history of nursing in the community is, for the most part, nonexistent. It was with this knowledge that Gail developed her plan to establish a recorded nurses history at Northwest Medical Center.

Nurses who attended Wednesday's meeting were given a form which asked for information about their educations and work experience at NWMC.

To inspire them to share their stories, registered nurse Patricia Wangsnes made a presentation entitled "My Years at Northwest Medical Center."

Wangsnes began her career in 1960 when the hospital was still Northwestern Hospital. Prior to coming to Thief River Falls, she had worked in Roseau and Greenbush. Wangsnes was thankful for her experience as her orientation as a night nurse in the obstetrics ward consisted of only two nights with another nurse before she was left on her own.

While located where it is now, Northwestern Hospital was a much smaller facility in 1960. The Christian Science Church stood next to the hospital on the corner of 1st Street and LaBree Avenue. A large house used as a nurses' residence was located across the street. In 1964, the church was moved and the nurses' residence was torn down to make room for an addition to the hospital and a parking lot.

The 1964 addition to the hospital included an intensive care unit (ICU), and it was noted that due to the lack of registered nurses the ICU was closed during the summer.

Staffing was very different in those earlier days. Each unit was staffed with one registered nurse, one or two licensed practical nurses and a few nurse's aids. Only occasionally was a registered nurse on duty in pediatrics at night. Wangsnes added that registered nurses were hard to come by in those days.

The patient load at that time, however, was heavier. With no fetal monitors, the vital signs and fetal heart tones of laboring mothers had to be checked very often. New babies were plentiful, and Wangsnes

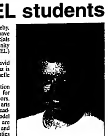
TRF man faces charges after high speed chase

Jared Alan Johnson, 19, Thief River Falls, was taken into custody by law enforcement officials after a lengthy high-speed pursuit through several northwest Minnesota counties.

Charges are pending against Johnson for three felony counts of fleeing a police officer, driving while intoxicated, and auto theft. When taken into custody he was also wanted on three outstanding felony warrants.



At 7:09 a.m. Tuesday, December 1, police in Thief River Falls received a report of a grey S-10 pickup spinning around in a parking lot in Thief River Falls and knocking over Christmas trees. An officer responding to the report observed a vehicle matching the description provided by a witness, and signaled for the vehicle to pull over. The vehicle sped away and the officer followed until it became apparent to the officer that he had to back off for safety reasons.

Law enforcement were notified at about 7:26 a.m. by a school bus driver who reported a small pickup truck being driven in a careless manner without its lights on along State Aid 17 (the airport road). Pennington County Sheriff's deputies, who located the vehicle south of Thief River Falls, tried unsuccessfully to stop it. The driver led authorities on a high-speed pursuit for more than an hour traveling about 75 miles through both Pennington and Marshall counties. The State Patrol finally forced the pickup to stop on Marshall County road 48 one mile north of Middle River. Both the suspect and one state trooper received minor injuries.

Captain Dick Wittenberg, commander of the Thief River Falls State Patrol District, said the suspect drove around, and later drove over stop sticks, which were placed in the roadway at least four times during the pursuit. Stop sticks are a tool used by law enforcement officers to safely end pursuits.

Agencies involved in the incident include: the Minnesota State Patrol, the Thief River Falls Police Department and the Pennington, Marshall and Roseau county sheriff's departments.

Nicholas Smeby

Renae Saurdiff

Renae Saurdiff and Nick Smeby, juniors at Grygla high school, have been nominated by school officials for the Excellence in Community Education and Leadership (ExCEL) Award.

Renae is the daughter of David and Gwen Saurdiff and Nicholas is the son of Lowell and Rochelle Smeby.

ExCEL is a unique recognition program designed exclusively for Minnesota high school juniors. Students who are active in fine arts or athletics, who demonstrate leadership qualities and who are model citizens in their community are nominated by school officials and recognized weekly on a Twin Cities radio station. The program is co-sponsored by the radio station, the Minnesota State High School League and Minnesota's Private Colleges.

"The ExCEL Award program is an excellent opportunity for high school juniors who have excelled to receive statewide recognition for their leadership and community contributions," stated Loren Lusignan, school principal.

Renae Saurdiff ranks fourth in her class of 18 students with a scholastic average of 3.488. She has been involved with Grygla Wolverines girls basketball since seventh grade and a member of the Letterpersons club for three years. She was a choir member for three years, participated in Knowledge Bowl as a freshman and was cited for outstanding achievement in physical education last year.

A peer helper, junior class representative and freshman class treasurer, Renae was part of the homecoming court as a sophomore, is a German club member, has been on the honor roll since seventh grade and is a member of the school newspaper staff as well as an officer of the Letterpersons club.

A youth organization member at Grace Lutheran church for five years, she is also a Sunday school teacher and acolyte, has helped organize community events and helps family and friends with yard work and baby sitting.

CHRISTMAS COOKING BOOK

Sherry LaCoursiere

email: gabriel@northernnet.com

Today's recipes can be baked ahead and frozen for Christmas eating or giving. Make some for you and some for your lucky friends.

This is one of my favorite breads. I make it in little pans and it is delicious any time:

CRANBERRY ORANGE BREAD

2 cups flour
3/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/4 cup butter, softened
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
3/4 cup orange juice
1 egg
1 cup fresh or frozen cranberries, chopped
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease bottom only of loaf pan.

Mix flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and soda in large bowl. Stir in margarine until crumbly. Stir in orange peel, orange juice and egg just until moistened. Stir in cranberries and nuts.

Spread in pan. Bake 1 1/4 hours or until pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 5 minutes before removing from pan. Loosen from sides before turning over pan. Cool completely before slicing.

I wonder if these couldn't be made in a doughnut maker, too. They sound a lot like my doughnut recipe. My doughnut recipe follows this one - I don't know how to roll them, so I use one of those silly doughnut makers - sometimes they look like old-fashioned car tires, but they taste good and nobody cares how they look:

BUTTERMILK DROP DOUGHNUTS

2 cups flour
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/4 cup vegetable oil
3/4 cup buttermilk
1 egg

Heat 2-3 inches of oil in Dutch oven to 375 degrees.

Mix flour, 1/4 cup of the sugar, baking powder, nutmeg, salt and soda in large bowl. Add oil, buttermilk and egg. Beat with fork until smooth.

Drop batter by teaspoonfuls into hot oil. Fry about 3 minutes, or until golden brown on both sides. Drain on paper towel. Roll in sugar immediately.

(Makes about 3 1/2 dozen drop doughnuts.)

This sounds like a good cake to make any time, but it would make an especially nice Christmas treat:

OLD TIME COFFEE CAKE

2 1/4 cups flour
1 1/4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/2 teaspoon allspice
3/4 cup firm butter or margarine
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup buttermilk
1 egg, slightly beaten

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 9x9 inch square pan.

Mix flour, sugar, soda, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, cloves and allspice in large bowl. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Reserve 1 cup of mixture for topping.

Stir walnuts, buttermilk and egg into mixture in large bowl just until moistened. (Batter will be thick and lumpy.)

Pour into prepared pan and sprinkle with reserved crumbs. Bake 40-45 minutes or until pick inserted in center comes out clean. Drizzle with glaze, if desired (recipe below)

Glaze

1 cup powdered sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
3-4 teaspoons hot water

Mix until of drizzling consistency.

What better gift or tasty snack just out of the oven than this treat:

CINNAMON SWIRL RAISIN BREAD

6 to 6 1/2 cups flour
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
2 cups very warm water (120 to 130 degrees)
1/4 cup oil
2 eggs
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cinnamon

Mix 3 cups of the flour, 1/2 cup sugar, salt and yeast in large bowl. Add water, 1/4 cup oil and eggs. Beat 1 minute on low speed, scraping bowl frequently. Beat on medium speed 1 minute, scraping bowl frequently. Stir in raisins and enough remaining flour, 1 cup at a time, to make dough easy to handle.

Turn dough onto lightly flour surface and knead 8-10 minutes or until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl, then turn greased side up. Cover and let rise in warm place about 1 hour or until double. Dough is ready if indentation remains when touched.

Grease 2 loaf pans. Mix 1/2 cup sugar and the cinnamon. Punch down dough, then divide in half. Flatten each half into rectangle 18x 9 inches.

Brush with oil, then sprinkle with half of the cinnamon mixture. Roll up tightly from 9 inch side. Press each end with side of hand to seal, then fold ends under loaf.

Place loaf, seam side down, in pan. Brush with oil. Let rise about 1 hour or until double.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until loaves are deep golden brown and sound hollow when tapped. Remove from pans. Cool on wire rack.

Tour of Alfalfa pelleting plant scheduled

Interest in added value processing of alfalfa has been high in the area over the past couple of years. One project, which has been moving ahead in this area, is the alfalfa processing plant, operated by Minnesota Valley Alfalfa Producers headquartered out of Granite Falls.

A tour of their existing alfalfa processing plant west of Willmar has been scheduled for Thursday, December 17. A bus transportation from Thief River Falls to Willmar will be provided at $25 per person. Meals are not included. The tour will be considered full at 35 people.

Anyone interested in joining the tour group should call the Pennington County Extension office at 218-683-7030 to make a reservation by December 10. Individuals interested in going on the tour are encouraged to make their reservation before December 10 because bus transportation can not be guaranteed after December 10.

The MnVAP processing plant currently removes the alfalfa leaves from the stems and then re-blends the two in proper proportion to provide the customer with whatever standard protein meal pellet they wish to purchase. Future plans also include construction of an electrical generating plant, which would use alfalfa stems as a fuel source.

Remembering "Ted"

Persons from throughout the area who have had occasion to visit the office of the Northern Watch and Thief River Falls Times in the last decade or so probably took note of the black Labrador Retriever that was an office fixture. On a rare occasion "Ted" would give a canine greeting to a visitor, but for the most part— especially in the last few years—he was just here.

Now he is no longer here. As with all living things there is a time of termination, and "Ted" reached that point last week. His health had failed, his once strong body deteriorated rapidly and his official owner—publisher John P. Mattson—reluctantly but mercifully took him for his last visit to the vet and an end to his discomfort.

As John pointed out when moved to write a rare publisher's column in the December 2 issue of the Thief River Falls Times, it wasn't an easy thing to do. It never is. Good dogs have a way of becoming attached whether you really want them to or not. It's not a decision you consciously make; it just happens. "Ted" was a good dog; a dog with a disposition that could be trusted and a gift of common sense that more people should emulate.

While "Ted" was owned by John, he was shared by and attached to virtually everyone employed at The Times—Northern Watch. You couldn't step over him, walk around him or have him stop by without at least pausing to give him a pat, a rub or a scratch of recognition—which was always acknowledged with the courtesy of a tail wag or a nose nudge. He liked attention when offered, but rarely imposed himself on others—another trait that more humans could adopt.

A business office is not a conventional place for a dog, but "Ted" didn't know that. He thought he belonged, and few told him any differently. For every customer whose words or demeanor asked "what is that dog doing in your office!?" there were a dozen delighted youngsters eager to lavish their affection on him—all of which he tolerated with good nature. For many visiting Cub Scout or Girl Scout groups, a chance to pet "Ted" was the highlight of their tour.

He was a dog which may not have been universally loved, especially by those whose car tires he anointed on his trips outdoors, but he was a people dog whose happiest days seemed to be those he spent as a guest of office staff members who cared for him when his owner had to be out of town.

The demise of "Ted" created a hole in the lives of just about everyone who knew him very well—and that included a lot of us. And it serves as a reminder to this writer, who owns a littermate of "Ted" that is also showing her age, that another canine relationship will probably come to a close in the not too distant future. The "Duchess of Rocksbury," like others before her and like "Ted" himself, has been good at creating memories. Those of us privileged to be owned by a good dog should cherish that ability.

Today we remember "Ted" and what he was able to teach us about patience and citizenship and devotion and selfless attitude.

Good boy, "Ted!"

Good dog!

Agricultural Education On Upswing In State

When School District 564 announced that it would use part of special levy funds to establish an agricultural education program, it was more than a ploy to persuade the farm population to vote for the special levy. It was a recognition that there was an important piece missing in the effort to prepare School District 564 students for future livelihoods.

Reinstituting the agricultural education program is not an easy task, but the challenge has been handed to ADawn McLean, who is short in stature but long on enthusiasm. Our bet is that she will prove to be visionary but realistic and will be well into revitalizing the program by the end of the current school year.

We will also wager that the new agriculture program will be substantially different from the one many graduates of Lincoln high school will remember. Production agriculture may take a back seat to many other agricultural aspects, including agri-business and the many employment opportunities that exist in marketing, distributing, processing and handling farm products.

Given the difficulties of farming lately, one of the best ways to earn a living in the field of agriculture is to leave the farm and work with farm products. It might not be the first choice of people reared on the farm and hoping to continue in that area of agriculture, but it is an option that maintains a contact with farming while offering a living.

As local school district students and their parents consider how the students' education will be directed, here are a couple of things to keep in mind.

- 16 to 25 percent of the Minnesota economy is dependent upon agriculture;
- The Twin Cities rank with Chicago as the center of America's food and agricultural trade;
- It has been estimated that the top 50 food and agricultural firms in Minnesota provide annual revenue, service fees and loan assets of more than $250 billion;
- There are currently more than 440,000 people employed in agriculture and agri-business in Minnesota, and it is anticipated that job growth in agriculture and related areas will be at least seven percent annually over the next two decades;
- Employment in Minnesota's food and kindred products industry has grown at a rate that is more than three times faster than the national average;
- Teachers of agricultural education are so in demand in Minnesota high schools that experts estimate that starting in the year 2000 there will be at least 40 new openings for agriculture teachers each year.

School District 564 is certainly in tune with the rest of Minnesota and ahead of the parade in many schools by getting its agriculture program up and running again. A strong student response should be expected.

Blood drive in Grygla Thursday, December 17

Grygla Lions and Lioness will sponsor a blood drive for residents of the Grygla-Gatzke area beginning at 11:30 a.m. on Thursday, December 17 at the Grygla Community Center.

Blood drive coordinator Ralph Rundell hopes that area residents will make a commitment to donate blood at this very important holiday blood drive.

The blood drawn on December 17 will be separated into three different components. The most important of these components is platelets which help control bleeding. Many leukemia and cancer patients use platelets on a regular basis. Because they are only usable for five days, platelets are very difficult to keep in plentiful supply. Typically, United Blood Services sees an increase in platelet usage during the holiday season.

The Lions and Lioness will organize a calling campaign to schedule appointments for donors. Persons who are interested in donating blood should contact Ralph Rundell, (218) 294-6177; Roy Aune, (218) 294-6122; or Hazel Aune, (218) 294-6323.

DFL party to host open forum

The DFL party has announced that it will hold an "Open Forum," on Saturday, December 12, in room D-61 and 62 at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

The forum, according to spokesperson, Rick Nelson, will address issues that not only affect the DFL, but the overall electoral process that takes place in Minnesota.

"It is our intention," Nelson stated, "to look at the endorsement process and primary process leading up to the general election in November. We will also attempt to look at what we can do to get people involved in the political process and what we need to do to change or re-organize our party to make it more viable for people to be involved in."

Nelson stated that Norma Hanson, Senate District 1 chair, will be the moderator, and that the party has invited other elected officials from Northwest Minnesota to take part in this brainstorming session on the 12th of December.

NW Community Action board to meet

The board of directors of Northwest Community Action, Inc. will hold its monthly meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, December 17 at the Badger office. The meeting is open to the public.

Swim team awards presented

Class A state high school diving champion Chelsea Haviland was named the most valuable member of the 1998 Thief River Falls girls swim team at the Prowlers' Nov. 30 awards banquet.

Haviland was also presented with awards as hardest worker and most spirited.

Other varsity awards went to Jenny Sorvig, Coaches Award; Lindsay Ehrenstrom, most versatile; Kendra Mooney, Rookie of the Year; Micheile Johnson, most improved, and Andrea Olin, best personality.

Olin and Andi Sorvig also received captains plaques.

Junior varsity awards went to Jenny Heaton, most valuable and most spirited; Carli Cota, most improved and most versatile; Allison Rominski, Rookie of the Year; Christine Stumpf, hardest worker; and Danielle Sorvig, best personality.

Athletic letters were earned by juniors Julie Chrzanowski, Kristin Naplin, Andi Sorvig, Jenny Sorvig, Ehrenstrom, and Olin; sophomores Ashley Hammer and Danica Schroeder, freshmen Chelsea Haviland and Jenny Lindquist; eighth graders Brittany Haviland, Tiffany Sorenson and Johnson; seventh graders Cami Hendrickson and Mooney; along with student manager Sam Kezar.

Thief River Falls finished with a 6-7 dual meet record this fall and wound up seventh in the Section 8A meet with 15 sectional qualifiers. Chelsea Haviland was the Section 8A diving champion and the Prowlers' first-ever state champion.

"All of the girls should be proud of what they have accomplished over the past three months," said Thief River Falls head coach Shon Thompson. "They have all worked very hard and put in many long hours. I'm proud of every one of them."

Thompson announced that because of family commitments which required a weekly commute from Sioux Falls, SD, where his wife lives and works, to Thief River Falls to fill a coaching vacancy, he would be leaving the Prowlers' program after having served four years as either an assistant, co-head coach or head coach.

"There are many people I need to thank," said Thompson, a former diver in the Thief River Falls boys' swim program and the 1998 Section 8A Diving Coach of the Year. "I need to thank my wife, Jennifer, for giving me the chance to come back to coach this year. And I would like to thank my coaching staff – Keith Olson and Wendy Lindquist – for a job well done. A big thanks, also, to The Times, KTRF, KKAQ, the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters, and to all those who helped support the team and myself. A very big thanks go to all the swimmers and divers and the parents for the efforts they put in, not only this year, but for the past four years. It has been a great honor for me."

Warroad 3-2 winner over TRF

Long range dividends instead of short term benefits have been stressed in practice, according to Thief River Falls head high school hockey coach Scott Bergland. Demanding workouts left little energy, he said, for Tuesday's 1998-99 home debut against Warroad, and had a lot to do with the Prowlers' 3-2 loss.

"We were leg-weary," explained Bergland. "We worked them awfully hard in practice. We were a little sluggish tonight. I think we're on par with them at the talent level, but we just didn't have that extra bit of go."

It was the season opener for Warroad. Thief River Falls began the year a week earlier with a 7-2 loss at Roseau.

"We played better in Roseau than we did tonight," admitted Bergland. "We just didn't have the energy. All the mistakes we made in Roseau were mental mistakes. Tonight we didn't make many mental mistakes, but we just didn't have it physically."

Only goal of the first period came at 4:19 when Thief River Falls goalie Mike Dowers made a point-blank save on Joe Ulwelling, but didn't get the needed help covering people in front of the net and Donny DeMars was there for the rebound.

Albert Hasbargen was left standing unattended on the edge of the goal crease during a sustained stretch of Warroad pressure and he scored at 4:22 of the second period to make it 2-0.

A quick shot by Wade Chiodo from the bottom of the face-off circle to the left to Warroad goalie Jered Woidtke put the Prowlers on the board at 9:16 of the middle period.

Warroad regained another two-goal edge when Aaron Pederson came from behind the net with the puck and scored from close range at 12:25 of the third period.

But just 32 seconds later it was back to 3-2 when Treavor Peterson swiped the puck from Woidtke, took it behind the net and fed Chiodo out front.

Dowers was pulled in favor of an extra attacker with 48 seconds remaining, but the Prowlers could not pick up the equalizer.

"It was a gutty performance," noted Bergland. "We could have folded when it was 3-1, but we got it back to one, and at that point, anything can happen."

Thief River Falls girls win 58-47 ball game...

Prowlers beat Green Wave

Sara Jensen scored 23 points and pulled down 13 rebounds, while Nicole Kopari was a single assist away from a triple-double Tuesday as Thief River Falls beat host East Grand Forks 58-47 in girls high school basketball.

It was the second win in as many starts for the Prowlers, who handled Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 63-23 in their home opener the previous Tuesday.

"It was a pretty good performance," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "East Grand Forks has a good team. They've got size, they've got some good guards, and they're aggressive. But I think our pressure got to them. It was a good test for us to see where we're at right now. We're happy with the effort."

The Prowlers got a strong inside game from Jensen, who was 9-for-11 from the field, and Kopari, who had 14 points, 12 rebounds and 9 assists. "Sara and Nicole played well, and Katie Harbott did a nice job at point guard," noted Loe.

Thief River Falls led at the quarter stops 21-10, 36-21 and 44-31.

"The key was the third quarter," explained Loe. "Nicole picked up her fourth foul, but the other girls kept their poise and did a nice job keeping things going while she was on the bench."

With Laura Follett joining Kopari in foul trouble and Taya Hunt missing the game due to a family commitment, the Prowlers' depth was tested down the stretch, pointed out Loe. He gave them all passing grades.

Katie Rasch led East Grand Forks with 13 points.

Thief River Falls was 23-for-42 from the field (55 percent) and 12-for-19 at the free throw line. East Grand Forks was just 17-for-52 from the floor (32 percent) and 11-for-20 at the line. The Prowlers outrebounded the Green Wave 31-28, but also had more turnovers, 26-16.

MCC boys rally, top Warroad in season opener

A second half Marshall County Central rally carried the Nordics to a 79-61 season-opening boys high school basketball win at Warroad Tuesday.

David Wilcox, a part-time starter on last year's 12-13 Marshall County Central team and the only letterman on hand this winter, scored 22 of his game-high 29 points after intermission to spark the Nordics' comeback against a Warroad team that returns five of its top seven players and figures to be one of the favorites in North Border Conference play this year.

Warroad led 43-34 at halftime, but was out-scored 45-18 in the second half.

"We were incredibly pleased," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland after the first-game victory. "We never anticipated we could play as well as we did in the second half. We're pretty much starting over, and Warroad has a veteran team. To win up there is big for us."

Intermission adjustments helped the Nordics turn the tide in the second half, explained Ueland. "They hurt us on the transition game in the first half," he said. "I thought we played well, but we couldn't stay with them. In the second half, we stressed better shot selection, and we did a better job rebounding. They were leaving so fast on the break they had nobody left underneath. We took better shots, and made them. And if we missed, we got the rebound."

The Nordics' success on offense also aided their defense. "They (Warroad) did not get one fast break basket in the second half," said Ueland. "When we scored, that forced them to set up offensively, and we were able to get back defensively."

Joining David Wilcox, who also had 10 assists and five steals, in double figures for the winners were Kyle Metzel with 20 points and Nick Wilcox with 13.

"This is a pretty athletic group," noted Ueland. "If they can get some experience and learn to fill their roles, I think we'll be competitive."

Marshall County Central was 29-for-65 from the field (45 percent) and a productive 18-for-24 at the free throw line. Warroad went 25-for-65 from the floor (38 percent) and 11-for-17 at the line. Warroad had a 35-33 rebound edge. Turnovers were event at 16-apiece.

Scoring

Rams rally to win...

B/G-MR girls lose opener to Roseau in overtime, 54-49

A second half Roseau rally carried into overtime Monday as the Rams beat Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 54-49 in girls high school basketball.

It was the 1998-99 season opener for the visiting Gators, who led 11-10 at the end of the first quarter and had a 29-18 halftime advantage.

Roseau chopped the difference to 35-29 by the end of the third quarter and had a 41-39 lead before Melissa Smith scored at the buzzer for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River to force overtime.

A 3-for-4 effort at the free throw line by Kristi Glassman helped supply the Rams with the extra session edge.

"We had a real good first half," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "Our young kids played an exceptional first half. But they got impatient with their passes in the second half. Roseau is tough. They have a region final team back intact, and they're a lot quicker than our kids."

That quickness played a major part in 16 second half turnovers by the Gators, who had an acceptable nine turnovers in the first half, pointed out Neibauer. "We just threw the ball away too many times in the second half," he said.

Smith tried to keep the Gators in the game by scoring 18 of her game-high 26 points in the second half. Glassman led Roseau with 21 points.

The Gators were 19-for-45 from the floor (42 percent) and 11-for-19 at the free throw line. The Rams made 8 of 16 free throw attempts.

Two road wins in two starts wasn't enough to put a smile on the face of Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke girls high school basketball coach Mike Gast.

The Wolvennes began the year with a Tuesday (Nov. 24) 67-65 overtime win at Marshall County Central and added a 56-48 Monday (Nov. 3) victory at Lake of the Woods.

"I wasn't happy with it," said Gast after the win over the Bears. "We missed a lot of close-in shots. We got the rebounds and got a lot of good inside shots, but we just could not put the ball in the basket. It was ridiculous."

The Wolvennes, who were 12-12 last winter, could be a factor in the Sub-Section 32A race this year. "I think we're going to be all right. We can hit the boards and play good defense. But we're not a very good outside shooting team yet."

Kathryn Stanley scored 26 points against Marshall County Central and added a 17-point, 16-rebound performance against Lake of the Woods. Angie Gast had a 20-point game vs. the Nordics and Dana Wiseth began the year with a pair of 11-point outings.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke trailed Lake of the Woods 9-8 and 22-21 at the first two quarter stops, but went ahead 39-34 in the third quarter.

The Wolverines shot just 26 percent from the field (18/68) and were a busy 20-for-33 at the free throw line. The Bears shot 32 percent from the floor (19/60) and were 7-for-17 at the line. Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke finished with a 43-39 rebound advantage.

"We haven't played real well yet," admitted Gast, "but I think we'll get better. I guess you should be happy to play the way we have and still win."

Northland men go 0-3 vs. N.D. teams

A North Dakota State College of Science rebound advantage showed up on the scoreboard Tuesday as the Wildcats posted a 94-73 men's basketball win over Northland Community and Technical College.

The winners beat the Pioneers on the boards 42-28. Eighteen of those rebounds came on the offensive end, and 11 of them resulted in put-back baskets.

"They were more aggressive and a little more salty than we were," said Northland coach Rick Nikunen.

Dwight Goodwin of Northland led all scorers with 34 points, but the Pioneers still trailed 44-25 at halftime. Eric Bronaugh scored 23 points and 6-10 center Jason Andell had 20 for NDSCS.

The Pioneers shot 44 percent from the field (26/59) and made 16 of 25 free throw attempts. The Wildcats shot 54 percent from the floor (41/76) and went 10-for-18 at the line. In addition to getting beat on the boards, Northland also had more turnovers, 21-16.

It was the third straight loss to a North Dakota team to start the year for the Pioneers, who fell to Minot State University-Bottineau 100-80 in their last outing (Nov. 23).

"I saw some good things," said Nikunen after the Northland home opener. "We're really young, but I think we're improving. We're taking steps forward. Unfortunately, they are baby steps."

NDSCS runs past Northland women

Close and not-so-close results have been featured in the first two starts for the 1998-99 Northland Community and Technical College women's basketball team.

The Pioneers lost them both, by a 71-69 margin on the road to Minot State University-Bottineau (Nov. 23) and 64-33 at home to North Dakota State College of Science Tuesday.

"It's hard to compare our performances," said Northland coach Mike Zachow. "They are two distinctly different basketball teams. Defensively, I thought we played pretty well both games. Offensively, we did a great job in the first half against Bottineau, but we haven't done anything since then."

Northland had a 10-point lead with 10 minutes to play against Bottineau, but went 3-for-15 from the floor and turned the ball over seven times down the stretch.

"We had the lead and just kind of ran out of gas," noted Zachow.

The Pioneers were never in the game against the Wildcats, trailing 33-13 at halftime.

"They were bigger, more aggressive and more physical than we were," explained Zachow, who wasn't happy to see the Wildcats' full court press still in place with 20 seconds to play in a 30-point game.

Mustangs fall behind early in 58-46 loss to Fosston on Tuesday

Red Lake County Central spotted Fosston a 9-0 head start Tuesday and lost a 58-46 girls high school basketball decision at Oklee.

The Mustangs could never catch the Greyhounds, trailing at the quarter stops 13-11, 27-23 and 42-34.

"We couldn't buy a basket at the start, and they hit a couple of early three-pointers on us," explained Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "We got within four points three-four times in the fourth quarter, but we couldn't get over the hump."

The Mustangs, who opened the year with a come-from-behind 58-56 win over Tri-County, shot 43 percent from the field (17/40) and made 12 of 22 free throw attempts. The Greyhounds won while shooting just 39 percent from the floor (20/52). They cashed in on 14 of 22 free throw opportunities. Red Lake County Central had a 31-30 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover charts, 18-15.

TRF beats Warroad JV

Robbie Anderson scored two goals Tuesday as Thief River Falls doubled Warroad 6-3 in junior varsity high school hockey.

John Marben had a goal and two assists for the winners, while Dane Jensen, Shane Peterson and Tyler Stinson also picked up goals.

Goalie John Sylvester had 23 saves for Thief River Falls, beaten 5-3 by Roseau to start the year a week earlier.

TRF boys win JV opener

Four Thief River Falls scorers hit double figures Thursday in a season-opening 59-41 junior varsity boys high school basketball win at Crookston.

The attack featured Nick Drees with 13 points, Brian Loe 12, Zach Bosh 10, and Jon Lofgren 10.

Thief River Falls had quarter leads of 13-11, 29-19 and 39-29.

Freshmen boys lose debut

Crookston was a 70-47 winner over Thief River Falls Thursday in season-opening freshman boys high school basketball.

Matt Dimich scored 12 points to lead the Thief River Falls scoring.

Crookston led at the quarter stops 24-16, 30-19 and 53-31.

Crookston 43-point basketball winner over Prowler boys

An extended football season that carried Crookston into the Class AAA state semifinals didn't slow the Pirates' high school basketball season preparations judging by a lopsided 78-35 win over visiting Thief River Falls Thursday. It was the 1998-99 opener for both sides.

Crookston jumped out to a 19-8 first quarter lead, had a 40-22 halftime cushion, maintained a 48-30 third quarter spread, then made it an official rout by out-scoring Thief River Falls 30-5 over the final eight minutes.

"We had 38 turnovers and 35 points," noted Thief River Falls coach Bob Johnson. "We did a terrible job handling their press. I was very disappointed in our kids' performance. I never expected anything like that. We expect a lot more from our kids than what they showed."

B/G-MR boys debut with loss to Ponies on Thursday, 76-52

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River boys high school basketball coach Eldon Sparby expects more than what he saw Thursday when his team opened the 1998-99 season with a 76-52 loss to visiting Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

"I don't think we'll be too bad," said Sparby, "but we ran into a buzz saw. Outside of Richard Wockenfuss, everybody else played JV for us last year. I'm thinking we'll be over .500, but Warren is one of the better teams in the area."

Complicating matters was early foul trouble for Wockenfuss that robbed the Gators of the little varsity experience they had and their go-to player on the inside.

"We've got three pretty good outside shooters (TJ Super, David Truscinski, Chauncey Hanson), but we need an inside game to open things up for them," explained Sparby. "With Richard out, they were able to take away our perimeter shooters."

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was 21-for-54 from the field (38 percent) and 7-for-11 at the free throw line. A strong shooting performance by Warren-Alvarado-Oslo included 29-for-48 from the floor (60 percent) and 14-for-19 at the line. The Ponies had a 28-19 rebound advantage and topped the turnover charts 17-16.

Hilgeman leads RLCC to high-scoring 73-62 win over Wolverines

Sylvia Hilgeman scored 26 points Thursday to lead Red Lake County Central to a high-scoring 73-62 girls high school basketball win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke.

The Wolverines had problems when Kathryn Stanley ran into early foul trouble and was later joined in that category by Angie Gast and Dana Wiseth. All three still reached double figures despite spending time on the bench.

"The fouls hurt," acknowledged Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast, "but they (Mustangs) played better than we did, and they shot better."

The Mustangs, who survived foul trouble themselves, shot 49 percent from the field (26/53), while the Wolverines shot 33 percent (23/69). A busy night at the free throw line included a 20-for-33 showing by Red Lake County Central and a 13-for-29 effort by Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke.

"It was a good one for us," said Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "Our press gave them trouble, and we beat them on the boards (41-28)."

Both teams are 2-1.

NWMC nursing history being compiled

recalled five deliveries in a single night.

There were as many as 12 to 15 babies in the nursery, and in addition to caring for them and their mothers, the nurses had to make the infant formula and sterilize it and fold the cloth diapers that were used in those days.

In early 60's, Wangsnes worked the evening shift in the pediatric unit. At times there were as many as 20 to 22 children with only one registered nurse or one licensed practical nurse and a nurse's aid on duty. The nurses and aids from third floor came to help out at feeding time if they weren't too busy in their own unit.

During that time, no one manned the front desk after 9 p.m. The front door was left open, and a large sign instructed incoming patients to dial for a nurse in an emergency. The first floor nurses answered the calls and tried to locate the supervisor. There were no pagers then and the use of the intercom was forbidden at night.

The increase in drug and marijuana use in the early 1970's necessitated a psychiatric unit at the hospital. At first, those patients were put with the medical patients on third floor, and it didn't work out very well. With the completion of the C&NC unit, other units were moved around leaving the third floor for psychiatric patients.

It was during the 1970's, too, that it became necessary to lock the front door.

During Wangsnes' career there have been vast changes in technology also, and those changes, along with numerous humorous stories, were part of her fascinating presentation. Her words were filled with pride and revealed her passion for her long career.

Still trim, Patricia Wangsnes wore a uniform and cap from her early days of nursing as did Jan Milender who shared a few of her experiences and closed the program with the old, but still meaningful, Nightingale Pledge.

Gail Bergland encouraged her peers to view the many interesting old medical artifacts that were displayed in the room. While some were on loan from the Pennington County Historical Society, others were from private collections.

Nurses in the room responded to the program with enthusiasm and, at times, laughter. One could see that they were brimming with stories themselves — the stories that Gail Bergland seeks to compile a nursing history.

Last week the friend that Gail originally shared her idea and plans with showed Gail an old newspaper clipping, a picture of herself and the first set of triplets born in Thief River Falls.

Sadly, Gail Bergland can no longer share her enthusiasm for the project with her friend. On November 27, Janet Haider died unexpectedly at the age of 59. She worked at Northwest Medical Center for 40 years. Still grieving, it was difficult for Jan's friends to speak of her, but it was clear that she will be remembered for her devotion to nursing and quiet sense of humor.

It was with all the courage she could muster that Gail Bergland told the story of her conversations with Jan to her peers. She ended with, "So, Jan Haider, today I dedicate to you, with honor, the beginning of the nursing history of Northwest Medical Center."

Former and retired NWMC nurses in the Northern Watch area are encouraged to send their names, education information and recollections to Gail Bergland, c/o Northwest Medical Center, 120 LaBree Ave. S., Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Soon, the documented history of the Thief River Falls medical community will be complete with information about its facilities, physicians and dedicated nurses.

The Thrill Is Gone

This week we're going to discuss limits. Not, not "fish limits" like the ones that are wisely being revamped on the Rainy River. And no, not "term limits" like the ones that need to be invoked to revamp a lot of the old guard in our political arenas. Today we're going to discuss my personal limits, like the limits to my social patience.

Specifically, I'm really tired of the same old jokes. Whether in a boat or a Bombardier, it seems I've become a captive audience to a standard set of humorous tales that, by virtue of sheer repetition, are just no longer funny.

Now, don't get me wrong, these are good jokes, but they tend to pale in humor on the seventh or eighth telling and get downright tedious on recitation number 268.

It's kind of like that cute parrot that sits on the pirate's shoulder and demands a cracker every 30 seconds. It may be endearing to the casual observer, but I can bet you that after a hundred demands for a Saltine, that pirate is ready to make dinner out of Polly before the sun hits the yard-arm.

To this point I've been polite and chuckled amiably each time one of these tawdry tales is retold. It's part of my job to convince clients that everything before us is a new and fresh experience. The conversation, whether initiated by them or by me, must mimic that freshness.

But, as a human who possesses a memory that barely allows me to remember to zip my fly, the fact that I can even recall these jokes at all is a testament to the fact that they have been drilled into my head like some Communist propaganda. It's time for the truth. After all, a good Chevy Chase movie can only stand up to a dozen or so viewings—likewise quality outdoor humor.

I canvassed a number of my guiding peers and came up with quite a bit of consistency for the five most overtold launch/fishhouse jokes. I will relate them vaguely, so anyone who has not actually heard one can crawl out from under their rock and find a good comic buddy to give them one last hurrah before we lay them in mothballs for a generation hence to drag out and chortle over again.

(5) This one has been a staple of shore lunches and deer camps for decades—anywhere that gamey cooking is the norm. Carp, woodcock or burbot are affixed to a pine board of unusually high quality and placed in a roasting pot. Potatoes, carrots and spices are added, ad infinitum, until the whole thing boils over into a mouthful of gut-wrenching laughter.

(4) The Fugowi Indians. This joke paled on the second or third telling, but manages to surface recurrently on any lengthy a trip across the lake. Somehow, the tacky side of human nature has allowed the notion to find its way to caps and t-shirts around the world, making it a visual, as well as aural, nuisance.

(3) Sven and Ole, in general, are a tad trite, but their fly-in moose hunting tale that ends "100 yards further than last year" is triter than most. This particular account got some high ratings because of its ability to annoy on several mediums. I included a couple of seaplane pilots in my survey and this topped all their charts. Most launch drivers mentioned it somewhere, too, although usually a little further down the list.

(2) Game warden jokes hold the top two spots, perhaps because of our inherent dislike for authority and the constant need to express that unhappiness, no matter how subtly, to others. All psychobabble aside, seldom is a full day of fishing complete without someone offering up the good ol' "dynamite and warden" parable. Each time I hear this one, I think of a new spot for the dynamite.

(1) And the overwhelmingly number one choice for the most overtold joke is (and I'll simply offer the punchline to emphasize its redundant familiarity) ... "tastes a lot like eagle." This one gets related so often that you can actually see it coming in someone's eyes and smell it on their breath before one word is belched out of their mouth! My right eye starts to twitch just writing about it here. If I had a nickel for every time, well, I'd, uh, well, I'd have a big pile of nickels, that's for sure.

Yes, there are certainly some out there who will be offended. I've either cut drastically into a successful repertoire or left one of your most disliked favorites off the list. Apologies either way, but it's my sanity that's at stake. Remember, time will heal all wounds, just as time will resurrect the kernel of humor that made these jokes so popular in the first place, offering new generations a chance to chuckle. But, like a bottle of fine wine, it's time to let these age.

Speaking of wine, that reminds me of a good one...,

Marshall county FSA office hours will be reduced

Office hours for the U.S. Farm Service Agency in Marshall county will be reduced to 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily for the period from December 14 through Jan. 31, 1999.

The authorized action is expected to allow employees the time to process a backlog of paperwork and continue to provide service to farmers with as little disruption as possible.

CRP deadline nears

December 11 is the deadline date for the 18th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up and area Farm Service Agency directors are reminding landowners of the closing date.

"I am delighted at the response we've been getting from producers," states JoDell Poolman, executive director of the Marshall county FSA office in Warren. "But I don't want to see people missing their chance because they weren't aware that time had run out, so I'm encouraging them to come in and sign up for the new CRP before something else comes up and they miss the deadline."

All land that is enrolled in the program must compete for acceptance based on an environmental benefits index intended to ensure fair and equal consideration for all types of land. The current sign-up period began October 26.

Interested producers and landowners should contact their local FSA office for an appointment prior to the December 11 deadline.

Angel trees help children in Pennington Co.

Angel trees have been put up at Pamida, Lori's Hallmark and Arctic Cat in Thief River Falls. Each angel decoration on the tree represents a child in Pennington county who might not otherwise receive a Christmas gift this year. Last year, the Christmas for Pennington County organization, received donations and presents to give to over 300 children.

Organizers say they are receiving a great deal of assistance for various organizations, clubs and businesses. Nevertheless there is always need for more help. Anyone interested in volunteering some of their time to help wrap presents, or who want to donate funds to purchase presents should contact Wendy or Craig at 681-6161.

Individuals interested in purchasing presents for the children in Pennington county may do so by taking an angel decoration from an Angel tree. Each decoration lists whether the child is a boy or girl, their age and their gift preference.

The gifts must be collected prior to December 18. On December 18, the gifts will be distributed by Santa to the children at the Law Enforcement Center in Thief River Falls between 4 and 7 p.m.

If you know of a child who might benefit from this program, forms can be obtained from Wendy at the law enforcement center, Inter-County Community Council, Violence Intervention Program, Early Childhood Family Education, or Social Services.

Recipe book is included with December 9 Times

Containing more than 100 recipes submitted by readers, a recipe book entitled Palatable Pleasures will be included in the Wednesday, December 9 issue of the Thief River Falls Times.

The 24-page book will also be provided to anyone purchasing a new subscription during the month of December.

The Times expresses thanks to those who submitted recipes to be included in the publication—the first of what is expected to be an annual project—and to the advertisers who supported the initial effort.

Winners of a free one-year subscription to the Times were selected from those who submitted recipes for inclusion in the book. Those winners will be listed in an advertisement in that issue.

Rep. Finseth to chair House Agriculture Committee

Speaker of the House Steve Sviggum says appointment was based on merit and experience

Rep. Tim Finseth of Angus listens and responds to questions during an interview

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

It is with mixed emotions that Rep Tim Finseth of Angus will return to the Minnesota Legislature in January as the new chairman of the Agriculture and Rural Development Committee. Finseth received official appointment by Speaker of the House Steve Sviggum of Kenyon on November 24

While it is considered a special acknowledgement of ability to be selected to chair a legislative committee, Rep. Finseth also recognizes that he will serve during a period when agriculture in Minnesota is in dire condition and that farmers are being forced out of business in near epidemic proportions

"Thanks A Lot!

"When the Speaker called and offered the appointment I had to say 'Thanks a lot!'" Finseth said, his expression of gratitude dripping with sarcasm. "Twenty-five percent of the state's farmers are going out of business and you want me to chair the agriculture committee..... thanks a lot!" Finseth said his overreaction to the offer was received with good humor by Sviggum, who is a farmer and well knows the state's farm situation.

Despite the perilous times for agriculture, however, Finseth does appreciate the confidence placed in him by the Speaker of the House. And the Speaker didn't just draw Finseth's name out of a hat nor look at seniority status.

Appointment On Merit

"I didn't make my appointments based on seniority," Rep. Sviggum told this writer when asked about his selection of Finseth for the ag committee chairmanship. "I was seeking people who I felt would be successful in chairmanships. Naturally, I wasn't going to appoint someone from the metro area to head the ag committee.

"Tim Finseth earned the position on merit by his previous work... and by his experience."
–Steve Sviggum, Speaker of the House

"Tim Finseth earned the position on merit by his previous work in agriculture and rural development and by his experience," Sviggum continued. "I couldn't feel more comfortable than I do in having made this appointment. I know he will distinguish himself in the chairmanship."

Sviggum also noted that there were only 27 committee chairmanships to be awarded this year since the House Republican majority reduced the number of committees in this session by five. That added even more credit to Finseth and his selection as chairman.

Finseth was asked for his own opinion on why he was selected.

"First of all, I represent one of the top agricultural production districts in the state," he said. "I have purposely been a low key legislator, but I think I have been a good listener. If I'm talking I don't learn anything from someone else. I try to be fair and use common sense. And I think the Speaker knows, when push comes to shove, that I can be as tough as anybody."

Other Appointments

The Agriculture and Rural Development Committee chairmanship wasn't the only plum to fall in Finseth's basket for the coming biennium. He will also serve on the newly-created Ag Finance Committee, Environment Committee, Environment Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee. Committee appointments were just completed Thursday, December 10.

Rep. Finseth is beginning his third full term in the legislature. He was first elected in a special election, filling the vacancy created when Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls resigned the office to accept appointment as director of the Minnesota Farm Service Agency. He was reelected in 1994, 1996 and again this November.

He served on the Agriculture and Rural Development Committee in his first full term but did not serve on that committee in 1997-1998. He did, however, serve on the Environment Committee in the last session, which also heard much of the agricultural legislation. He was also on the Ways and Means Committee in the past session.

Comment sought on Angus area impoundment

by David Hill
Associate Editor

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is soliciting comments from the public regarding the proposed construction of the Angus-Oslo impoundment. The impoundment would be located about two miles west of the Polk-Pennington county line in Brandt township. It is about 14 miles southeast of Warren, and about seven miles east of Trunk Highway 75 and Angus.

Ronald Adrian, engineer for the Middle River-Snake River Watershed District, said since the project was initiated by resolution from the board of managers some time ago an informational meeting and two public hearings have been held regarding the project. Adrian said many of the neighbors appear to be receptive. Some, he said, have expressed concerns about who controls the project now and in the future.

Adrian said the property included in the project will remain on the tax rolls. He said the watershed has owned all but eight and one-half acres of the property included in the project for some time. The watershed, he said, hopes to continue to get rent off of the property to pay for the taxes. Condemnation proceedings on the other eight and one-half acres are nearly complete. The permit process should be resolved by February 1. After February 1 the watershed hopes to call for bids.

At one time, there was some thought that they might have to keep a permanent pool of water in the impoundment because of wetland mitigation. But, Adrian said, they plan to keep the impoundment dry.

The project cost estimate of $2.3 million will be picked up by the Red River Watershed Management Board, and the Middle River - Snake River Watershed board. The Red River Watershed Management board is particularly interested in the project because it should help reduce flooding problems in the spring.

Flood control is the object of the impoundment. It would provide about 4,500 acre-feet of gate-controlled storage plus about 1,920 acre-feet of non-gated storage.

The embankment for the project would be about five miles long, surrounding the impoundment. It would be constructed to an elevation of 958 feet above mean sea level on the south, west, and north sides. This elevation is 1.7 feet higher than the freeboard flood elevation of 956.3 feet. Although the embankment would be about five miles long, average pool depth would be less than three feet, and the project, including the embankment, would cover about 1.5 square miles (960 acres). It would incorporate use of a gate control structure and emergency spillway.

According to the notice of application for permit, flood peaks on the Red River of the North are expected to be reduced by this project. According to the applicant (Middle River-Snake River Watershed District), spring runoff from the project area consistently enters the Red River at or near the time when the river is peaking. The impoundment gates would be closed whenever flood conditions exist on the Red River and would remain closed, up to the design capacity of the impoundment, for the duration of the flood. According to the application, unless modified to provide wetland mitigation, this proposal would be a dry dam impoundment. No permanent pool would be held within the impoundment.

A smaller version of the project was studied, but this alternative provides more flood control benefits.

Individuals interested in submitting facts, arguments or objects have until December 28 to do so. These statements should bear upon the suitability of the location and the adequacy of the project and should, if appropriate, suggest changes. Comments should be sent to the following address: Department of the Army, St. Paul District, Crops of Engineers, Regulatory Branch (Attention: 97-03358-JJY), 190 Fifth Street East, St. Paul, MN 55101-1638.

Red Lake native wins book award

St. Paul - What started out as an interest in the effect of government boarding schools on American Indian families between 1900 and the 1940s has resulted in Red Lake native Brenda J. Child winning the North American Indian Prose Award for her book, Boarding School Seasons.

The boarding schools were created to try to assimilate American Indian children in to the white culture. Attendance laws were passed giving the government power to remove children from their homes and place them in boarding homes.

Child, who grew up in Red Lake, is a professor of American Indian history at the University of Minnesota. The Pioneer

Minnesota football legend dies

St. Paul - Minnesota football legend Ed Widseth died Thursday, December 3 at his home in St. Paul.

Widseth was born near Gonvick and grew up on a farm at Berner. He attended the Northwest School of Agriculture in Crookston where he was active in sports and many other school activities.

At the University of Minnesota the quick 220 pound Gopher tackle dominated the scrimmage line and was a key force as the Golden Gophers won two national championships in 1935 and 1936. Ed was named All-American both years and captain in 1936. He then played for the New York Giants where, in 1938, he was selected All-Pro and also Best Player in the National Football League. The Leader-Record

Truancy Tracking at area schools

Greenbush - Warroad, Roseau, Greenbush-Middle River and Badger schools have signed up to participate in a county-wide "truancy tracker" program to encourage and enforce good school attendance. According to state law students must be in school every day unless they are ill.

Working with Roseau County Judge James Wilson, school officials will notify parents when their child has four unexcused absences or truancies. At this time a meeting will be called to sign a school attendance contract.

School officials in Beltrami county saw an improvement in school attendance when this program was implemented in that county. The Tribune

Waubun couple enjoys tiger cruise

Waubun - Marge and Jack Holl of Waubun had the opportunity to be part of a tiger cruise and travel on the Tarawa, an amphibious assault ship, from Honolulu, HI to the base in San Diego, CA. It was the last eight-day leg of the homeward bound journey for the crew, who had been away from their families for six months.

The "Tigers" is a Navy and Marine program for civilians to see what it would be like to be in the military.

The Holls were sponsored by CPO. Ken Mendiola who serves as assistant chaplain on the Tarawa. Tigers pay a fee, based on the rank of their sponsor, to go on the cruise. They stay in the crew quarters. The Mahnomen Pioneer

Lincoln ninth graders 'Adopt a Friend'

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

"You give but little when you give of your possessions. . .It is when you give of yourself that you truly give."

That quote was written at the bottom of a letter Lincoln High School health and physical education teacher Helen Anderson sent to the parents of her ninth grade students.

It is also a valuable life lesson that Helen hopes her students will learn as they develop friendships with senior citizens in a pilot program she has named "Adopt a Friend."

Helen discovered the saying in Barb Drees' office at Skylite Apartments. Many of the seniors participating in the project live at the apartment complex where Drees helped Helen coordinate the project.

In its friendship/family unit Helen's class discusses the importance of friendship and families and how self-esteem plays a big part in how people feel about themselves and others.

In our mobile society, grandparents and grandchildren are often separated by many miles. Young people sometimes do not have the opportunity to have relationships with older people. Many elderly folks, too, are separated from their families and experience loneliness. It was with these things in mind that Helen thought of pairing her students with older citizens and encouraging them to form friendships.

At the end of October Helen sent a letter to the parents of her students explaining the program and its purpose. With the holiday season students would be encouraged to make cards, and there would be no cost involved. The only requirement was that the students visit their "friends" once a month and keep a log of the visits.

Barb Drees was excited about the program and eager to help Helen promote it at the apartment complex. Notices were posted in the atriums explaining the program and instructing residents to contact Drees if they didn't want a student to visit them on November 4, the date that had been selected for the first visit.

Students Brittany Larson and Jason Blakely made a door poster and delivered it to Agnes Kujenson at Skylite Apartments during their monthly visit. The three have been brought together by the "Adopt a Friend" project, a pilot project which encourages friendships between students and seniors. Brittany and Jason are the ninth grade students of Lincoln High School health and physical education teacher Helen Anderson.

Rep. Finseth to chair House Agriculture Committee

Speaker of the House Steve Sviggum says appointment was based on merit and experience

Rep. Tim Finseth of Angus listens and responds to questions during an interview

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

It is with mixed emotions that Rep. Tim Finseth of Angus will return to the Minnesota Legislature as chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development Committee. Finseth received official appointment by Speaker of the House Steve Sviggum of Kenyon on November 24.

While it is considered a "promotion" to chair a committee, Finseth is reluctant to chair a legislative committee. Rep. Finseth also recognizes that he will serve during a period when agriculture in Minnesota is in dire condition and that farmers are losing thousands of bushels in near negative prices.

"Thanks A Lot!

"When the Speaker called and offered the appointment I had to say "Thanks a lot!" Finseth said, his expression of gratitude dripping with sarcasm. "Everyone is going out of business, farmers are going out of business and you want me to chair the agriculture committee… thanks a lot!" Finseth was overconsolation to the office was escorted to the basement by officials who took him to the Capitol Tunnels to the State Office Building.

Despite the problems for agriculture, however, Finseth does appreciate the confidence placed in him by the Speaker of the House. Finseth knows that he has a lot of work to do to get a lot of bad rot look at sensitivity issues.

Agriculture

"I didn't realize my appointment was based on seniority. Rep. Sviggum told this writer when asked about the appointment. Sviggum said that he considers chairmanship as "not seeking people who I felt would be successful in chairmanships. Seniority alone. I wasn't going to appoint someone because the name area to head the up committees.

"Tim Finseth earned the position on merit by his previous work… and by his experience."
–Steve Sviggum
Speaker of the House

"Tim Finseth earned the position on merit by his previous work in agriculture and rural development and by his experience," Sviggum continued. "I wouldn't feel more comfortable with any one else. I think this appointment, I know he will distinguish himself to the understanding.

Sviggum also noted that there were only 27 committee chairmanships to be awarded this year since the Republicans had successfully reduced the number of committees in this session by five. That added even more credit to Finseth and his selection as chairman.

Finseth was asked for his own opinion on why he was selected.

"I've been in the House for one of my agricultural productive districts in the state," he said. "I have reputedly been a low key legislator, but I think I have been a good listener. I've been willing to work with people and I've learned that I may be fair and not common sense. And I think the Speaker knows when push comes to shove, that I can be as tough as anybody.

Other Appointments

The Agriculture and Rural Development Committee chairmanship wasn't the only place to fall in Finseth's lexicon for the coming biennium. He will also serve on the newly-created Jobs, Energy and Economic Development Committee. The Jobs, Energy and Economic Development Committee replaces the Economic Committee. Committee responsibilities were just established Thursday, December 10.

Finseth will be beginning his third full term in the Legislature. He was first elected in a special election in 1994 when Gene Waldenberger resigned when Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls resigned to accept an appointment as director of Minnesota Department of Agriculture. He was reelected in 1994, 1996 and again this November.

He serves on the Agriculture and Rural Development Committee in his first full term but did not serve on that committee in 1995-1996. He also served on the Jobs and Economic Development in the last session, which also heard much of the agricultural legislation. He was also on the Ways and Means Committee in the past session.

Comment sought on Angus area impoundment

by David Hill
Northern Watch Editor

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is soliciting comments from the public regarding the proposed construction of the Angus-Oslo impoundment. The impoundment would be located in Polk County just west of the Polk-Pennington county line in Brandt township. It is about 4 miles southwest of Warren and about seven miles east of Trunk Highway 75 and Angus.

Project Engineer for the Middle River-Snyder's River Watershed District, said that the project was initiated by resolution of the board of managers some time ago on informational meeting held in Angus. Comments made at that meeting by landowners in the area said many of the neighbors appear to favor the project, but a few have expressed concerns about who controls the project now and in the future.

Hanson said the property excluded in the project will remain under private control.

The watershed has developed all the necessary data and information for the project, Hanson said. The project was written in the form of a letter Lincoln High School health and physical education teacher Helen Anderson sent to the parents of her ninth grade students.

It is also a valuable life lesson for the kids, Anderson said, because they directly deal with someone different in a pilot program she has named "Adopt a Friend."

Anderson discovered the scoring at Buffalo Bowl Valley Million Entertainment Center at the suggestion of participating in the project. She is the apartment complex where Dawn Myhre Holen coordinates the program.

In this friendship/partnership with Holen's class, Anderson's hope is the interaction of friendships and families and other self-esteem plays a big part in how people feel about themselves and others.

In our mobile society, grandparents often live far away from their grandchildren and don't have the opportunity to have relationships with older citizens, and Anderson's class is now in form friendships.

At the end of October Helen sent a letter to parents of her students explaining the program and as participants in the program, the students would be encouraged to make a phone call, write a letter or become involved. The only requirement was that the students be willing to participate in a minimum of two of the activities.

Ruth Dreer was excited about the program and eager to help Helen promote it at the apartment complex. Notices were posted in the laundry room and in the mailboxes and a meeting was held in Dreer's apartment. Dreer, if they didn't want a student to visit them on November 4, the date they had been selected for the first visit.

Cruise takes unusual turn for LaPorte couple

LaPorte - A normal cruise for Margo and Darrell Magnussen took an unusual turn after their ship stopped in its port in Athens, Greece.

As the couple ate Thanksgiving dinner, the captain announced that the ship would be detained because of a customs problem.

The next morning the captain made the announcement that two crew members had been arrested for smuggling heroin onto the ship.

Acting on a tip, Athens police were waiting for the ship but didn't know who they were looking for. To prevent the ship from leaving port, police and customs boats blocked it in. Officials came on board with dogs and eventually found 56 pounds of heroin.

After waiting for seven days, Princess Cruise Lines decided to cancel the tour and send its passengers home with full refunds. The two crew members arrested where sentenced within a week to 30 years in prison with no parole. The Pioneer

Sherry LaCoursiere - [illegible]

The weekends this December seem to be fewer than normal. We only have this and one more weekend to prepare for the holiday, so today's recipes are for, what else, Christmas cookies.

I found this recipe in my new "Taste of Home" magazine and I'm going to make it for Christmas, but I'll use dates instead of cherries. It sounds a lot like a cookie I used to buy back when we had more than one bakery in town:

CHERRY MACAROONS

1 1/3 cups shortening
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon almond extract
3 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups flaked coconut
1 cup maraschino cherries, chopped

In mixing bowl, cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and almond, mixing well.

Combine flour, baking powder, soda and salt and gradually add to creamed mixture. Stir in coconut and cherries (dough will be stiff).

Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls two inches apart on greased baking sheets. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on racks. (Makes about 6 dozen cookies.)

Here's another recipe from that same magazine - and won't these be a pretty addition to your cookie tray:

WHITE CHOCOLATE TRUFFLES

18 ounces white almond bark, cut into pieces
9 tablespoons butter (not margarine)
2 tablespoons whipping cream
1/4 cup confectioner's sugar
Additional confectioner's sugar for rolling

In microwave or double boiler, melt almond bark, butter and cream over low heat until smooth, stirring frequently. Stir in sugar. If mixture separates, beat with mixer for 30 seconds.

Pour into an 8 inch square pan and chill for 20 minutes or until slightly hardened.

Using a melon baller or spoon, scoop out and shape into 1 inch balls. Roll in additional confectioner's sugar.

Store in airtight container in refrigerator. (Recipe makes 5 dozen truffles.)

Buttery shortbreads are good enough alone, but these have a chocolate treat to make them even better:

CHOCOLATE DIPPED SHORTBREAD

1 1/4 cups flour
1/2 cup powdered sugar
2/3 cup butter, softened
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 cup semi sweet real chocolate chips
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup finely chopped almonds (or walnuts)

Heat oven to 325 degrees

In large mixer bowl, combine flour, sugar, butter and almond extract. Beat at medium speed, scraping often, until mixture leaves sides of bowl and forms a ball (3-4 minutes).

With floured fingers, press dough into bottom of 9 inch square baking pan. Score dough in 16 squares, then each square into two triangles. Prick each triangle twice with a fork. Bake 18 to 22 minutes or until set and edges are very lightly browned. Let cool 5 minutes, then cut along score lines. Cool completely in pan.

In saucepan, combine chocolate chips and vegetable oil. Cook over medium low heat, stirring constantly, until chocolate is melted (4-5 minutes). Remove from heat.

Dip one cut edge of each triangle 1/4 inch into melted chocolate, scraping against side of pan to remove excess chocolate. Dip coated edge into chopped almonds or walnuts. Cool on rack until chocolate is firm. (Recipe makes 32 cookies.)

Sugar and spice and everything nice are what these cookies are made of:

OLD-FASHIONED CHEWY MOLASSES COOKIES

4 1/2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1 cup butter, softened
1 cup light molasses
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
Sugar for rolling

In large mixing bowl, combine all ingredients except sugar for rolling. Beat at low speed, scraping often, until well mixed (2-3 minutes). Cover and refrigerate until firm, at least 2 hours.

When ready to bake, heat oven to 350 degrees. Shape rounded tablespoonfuls of dough into balls, then roll in sugar. Place 2 inches apart on cookie sheets. Bake 14-16 minutes or until slightly firm to the touch. (Makes 4 1/2 dozen cookies.)

Call them Russian Teacakes, Mexican Wedding Cakes, or anything else, these are still a "must have" on the Christmas cookie tray:

SNOWBALL COOKIES

2 cups flour
2 cups finely chopped pecans
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup butter, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla
Powdered sugar for rolling

Heat oven to 325 degrees.

In large mixer bowl combine all ingredients except powdered sugar. Beat at low speed, scraping often, until well mixed (3-4 minutes).

Shape rounded teaspoonfuls of dough into 1 inch balls. Place 1 inch apart on cookie sheets and bake 18-25 minutes or until very lightly browned. Roll in powdered sugar while still warm and again when cool. (Makes 3 dozen cookies.)

These special-tasting frosted butter cookies will become a holiday favorite:

BRANDIED BUTTER WREATHS

2 1/2 cups flour
1/3 cup sugar
2/3 cup butter, softened
1 egg
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons grated orange peel
2 tablespoons brandy (or 1 teaspoon brandy extract and 2 tablespoons water)
1/3 cup chopped maraschino cherries, drained

Glaze

1 1/4 cups powdered sugar
1-2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon brandy (or 1/4 teaspoon brandy extract and 1 tablespoon water)
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
Red and green maraschino cherries, drained and halved

Heat oven to 350 degrees.

In large mixer bowl, combine all cookie ingredients except cherries. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl often, until well mixed (1-2 minutes).

By hand, stir in cherries. Shape rounded teaspoonfuls of dough into 1 inch balls, then into 5 inch long strips. Shape strips into circles to make wreaths or candy cane shapes.

Place 2 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake 8-12 minutes or until edges are lightly browned.

Meanwhile, in small bowl, stir together all glaze ingredients. Dip or frost warm cookies with glaze. Decorate with colored maraschino cherries, if desired. (Recipe makes 2 dozen cookies.)

Comparison Made Of Municipal Utilities And Family Heirlooms

Through Truth in Taxation hearings held recently the realization of local tax increases for the coming year were emphasized. Complaints about the plans for increases and where they will be placed have been heard. No one likes taxes very well and everyone likes tax increases even less.

For the City of Thief River Falls, the tax load on the individual taxpayer would be greater were it not for contributions made to the general fund from revenues of the city's municipal utilities department. The argument could be made that utilities rates are therefore higher than necessary, but truth is that the city's rates are well within bounds and competitive with other suppliers in northwest Minnesota.

We believe in free enterprise and tend to favor the private sector in business. It is rare that government can do a better job of operating a business than private industry—but municipal utilities may well be one of those rarities.

The following article was supplied to us in support of municipal utilities, and it makes good points. As always, we invite comment for our public opinion column with views in agreement or disagreement with the expressed viewpoint. The article originally appeared in the Iowa Association of Municipal Utilities Newsletter:

Maybe it happened in your family—or to someone you know. Back 20 or 30 years ago, the old folks died and left a houseful of goods that no one particularly wanted. The solid round oak table, the handsome walnut bedroom set and the old china—all seemed sadly worn and out-of-date. In spite of their history of long and reliable service, these possessions were wanted by none of the family because they were out of style. What was "in" was anything new and modern— anything easy.

So one warm afternoon, everything was moved out from the old farm house onto the yard and sold at auction to the highest bidder. Everyone in the family was relieved to be unburdened by the remnants of old days and old ways.

But now the scene changes. It's 1998 and those same family members walk past exclusive antique shops where in the window, priceless heirlooms shine with dazzling price tags. And a shudder of regret goes through each of those people standing at the window—on the outside looking in.

As citizens, we have to ask ourselves this question: Are we destined to be those same people, standing on the outside looking in, as private companies take over our precious community assets? Are we willing, for the sake of finding the easy way out, to sell that commodity on which so much of our future rests?

This is the dilemma confronting us as some in our midst seek to interject politics into utility operations—and shop this valuable community asset to outside companies motivated solely by profit.

"Just sign on the line," they say, "and we'll trade you our money for your problems."

But how many of us have the foresight to see what's ahead? To look down the road to a time when promises of service and reasonable rates may be pushed aside with one justification after another? All too often, our locally-owned utilities are regarded much like those old pieces of furniture. They may need work, they might be a burden, they need people to run them and, even worse, they bring an unending, ongoing, ever-present series of management decisions which have to be confronted at every meeting. How much easier it would be to just have someone else take over.

But take over what? Take over the economic future of our community? Take over an important negotiating tool in any industry recruitment? Take over the one protection you have against inflated utility rates resulting from corporate costs that you have no control over? Even take over the dollars that your city currently receives each year in lieu of tax payments?

Are you willing to trade all this and more for convenience... ...the easy way out? I hope not.

Any comparison of rate or efficiency between investor-owned utilities and cooperatives with municipals should tell you there's no way for a city to win in this trade. Municipally-owned utilities operate at lower cost, with greater efficiency and bring greater concern for community interests than other companies. Because, let's face it, no other utility exists to serve a city the way a municipal does.

So when someone seeks to start down the road toward giving away our utility, stop and think. Where do their interests lie? What are their priorities? Where are their loyalties? We think you'll find the three answers are always the same: money, money, money.

Don't be like the family members who let their precious heritage slip away for the sake of convenience. Protect your local utility by investing the time and dollars necessary to keep it viable and productive for your community. Determination will help you meet operational problems and competitive challenges.

I guarantee it's an investment that will pay you back many times over. And down the road somewhere, you'll be the one smiling as your municipal utility becomes more valuable each year.

Only In America....

Following item from the Nebraska Press Association expresses the opinion that "Only in America...

....can a pizza get to your house faster than an ambulance;

....do people order double cheeseburgers, large fries and a diet soda;

....do banks leave both doors open and then chain the pens to the counters;

....do we leave cars worth thousands of dollars in the driveway and store useless things and junk in boxes in the garage;

....do we use answering machines to screen calls and then have call waiting so we won't miss a call from someone we didn't want to talk to in the first place;

....do we buy hotdogs in packages of 10 and buns in packages of eight;

....do we use the word "politics" to describe the process so well: "Poli" in Latin means "many" and "tics" means "bloodsucking creatures."

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Action is needed immediately! DNR Commissioner Rod Sando, in an 11th hour gift to the radical environmental agenda, is quietly attempting to make new rules to eliminate OHV's (off highway vehicles—4-wheelers) from 4.1 million acres of state forest lands.

Sando received many petitions to open up the rule-making process for public review. The DNR decided to hold two public meetings, one in St. Paul and one in Brainerd. The problem was that most of the public never received notification of the meetings, so attendance was low. (Editor's Note: The Times/Northern Watch did not print a news item about the hearing since it was being held far out of our circulation area at Brainerd.) The attendees at these two meetings heard about them by word of mouth.

Administrative Law Judge Kline took verbal comments from the public at these two meetings. Kline also encouraged that written comment addressed to him will be looked at until Jan. 5, 1999. After that he will inform the commissioner of DNR of his legal findings by July 12 about the new rules for state forests. At that time the DNR commissioner may adopt, change or scrap the new rules.

Sando is trying to confuse the public and legislators into believing that severely limiting access to state forests is good. In the "need for reason" statement in the new rules it states: ATVs cover more miles per day than a hiker." ....WHAT????? That is not a legitimate reason to lock up 4.1 million acres of land.

Pounding in two signs, limiting access to public lands, starving out the wildlife and then calling this a "managed wildlife area" is not going to fly with the public any more.

If problems occur in dense population areas, then deal with those problems in those areas and do not paint the entire state with new rules. If it is believed OHVs are degrading the forests, then where is the study to prove the theory—and environmental impact statement or an environmental assessment worksheet? Without studies and a good reason, these rules will be thrown out faster than the short-lived stud ban for snowmobiles (which the DNR still endorses).

Write your comments to Judge Kline at: Office of Administrative Hearings, Suite 1700, Washington Square, Minneapolis, MN 55401-2138.

Also send comments to our soon-to-be Governor at: Governor-Elect Jesse Ventura, B5—Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call the Ventura office at 651-297-9700 or FAX to 651-297-9531.

Sincerely,

Hoerner receives award for support of ethanol fuel

JoAnne Hoerner of Warroad was among eight recipients of a Certificate of Appreciation Award from the American Coalition for Ethanol recently at the organization's 11th annual meeting and conference in Sioux Falls, SD.

Six of the other recipients were from South Dakota and the seventh from Virginia.

"JoAnne has been a true supporter of ethanol and the American Coalition for Ethanol for many years," noted coalition president Scot Parsley. "She always takes every opportunity available to her to spread the word about ethanol."

The coalition is a non-profit membership association that unites a wide variety of organizations in support of increased ethanol production and use.

The activity was made into a "Scavenger Hunt" and the students went door to door in St. Hilaire collecting items from a list. The bags of items were donated to the Violence Intervention Program (VIP), and then given to children who go into safe houses on short notice. The After School Enrichment program in St. Hilaire is directed by Sean and Stacy Myhrer and is held in the old St. Hilaire school. Misperception Isn't perspective wonderful? The different ways that people look at the same situation and arrive at totally contradictory conclusions is what makes being a part of the human race so intriguing.

For example, isn't it neat the way you can watch the kid next door pummel the tar out of your own child with a tire iron during a neighborhood picnic while the other Mom just smiles and remarks about "Johnny's playful nature?"

And the "isn't he cute" comments made by your sister-in-law while her Boston Terrier butt-drags his way across your new carpeting during Christmas dinner always amuse me.

The recent weather has lent itself to a good study in perspective, to. An unseasonably mild fall, followed by as toothless a start to winter as even the "old timers" can remember, has made discussions about the climate more than just a weatherman's issue. Rarely has a day passed this month when someone hasn't offered me an overwhelmingly cheery assessment of the latest warm stretch.

"Isn't this fabulous?" they gush. "Can you believe our luck?"

"You can tell there's a God in Heaven when you get weather like this," has been offered on several occasions.

Well, if religious proof exists in this meteorological pudding, I'll have to take a firm and committed stand here. I've been balancing on an agnostic fence-rail for many years now, and I'm ready to climb down and let a little religion into my life. I was pushed toward the pew during the tepid days of last winter, and as an individual whose livelihood is based on the thickness of the December ice, I will now acknowledge that I'm officially waiting for Hell to Freeze Over.

Perhaps I've begun to take things a little too personally, but I'm not interested in "nice day" comments any more. Yes, I know it's a standard line, full of common courtesy and little else, but it lacks the politically correct tone that any process of thought would provide.

What such comments say to me is that you have invested no time into pondering my existence—rather, you're happy to throw me standardized drivel to fill up the dead air space at our meetings—never mind that the cliches stick like melting icicles in my wallet.

I would never, for instance, start a conversation with a blind person by saying something bone-headed like "Good to see you again." I might just as well be making funny faces at them during my salutation with a callous attitude like that. Our human ability to avoid such obviously unfeeling, compassionless interaction is exactly what separates us from the rest of the animal kingdom.

There are many starting points from which to choose without accessing the weather. Some of the recent slippage on Wall Street, for example, would work well. Once again, I'm a resort type who lives "hand to mouth." Investment extras do not exist in any large quantity and a Dow decline is certainly inoffensive terrain.

Canadian issues have become so common and so universally agreed upon that they, too, offer good, neutral ground for innocuous conversation. Or simply beginning with something as basic as "What about that DNR..." is fine, as the phrase has become so hackneyed and overused that offering it is little more significant than tritely saying, "Nice day, huh?"

Now, the way you perceive the pleasantries exchanged by two resorters who meet on the street might confuse you, as they'll most assuredly be bemoaning the weather. In this instance, discussion about the miserably nice temperatures is a social prerequisite. Remember, we lake dwellers communicate through complaint and snivel, kind of like a Lake of the Woods Ebonics.

To the average grumbler, it might look like an easy dialect, but don't be fooled. Like telling blonde jokes to a blonde or trying to strut the street stuff in the back alleys of Trenton, it is a dicey undertaking, full of nuance and unlike any other Minnesota misery, accomplished only by those with years of self-pity under their belts. Hey, I'll readily admit I don't know the first thing about speaking "farmer."

The weather is bound to change, of that I'm certain. This is, after all, northern Minnesota. Sometime in the middle of January I'll be penning a piece that complains about the extreme cold and you'll remind me of my past unhappiness with the warmth of early December. You'll suggest that I'm a whiner and I'll contend that I'm a realist. Our disagreement will not strike any personal chords, however, as long as we both recognize that we're simply dealing with a difference in perspective.

RLCC has a poor shooting night in 60-47 loss to F-B

Red Lake County Central shot just 27 percent from the field (14/51) Tuesday in a 60-47 boys high school basketball loss to Fertile-Beltrami.

"You're not going to win many games shooting like that," said Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "Fertile-Beltrami has always been known for excellent defense, and nothing has changed this year. Give them (Falcons) credit. They did the things they needed to do to win."

Fertile-Beltrami led at the quarter stops 12-8, 26-21 and 43-37.

The Falcons shot 35 percent from the field (22/63) and made 14 of 26 free throw attempts. The Mustangs went 12-for-17 at the line, were outrebounded 30-28 and had more turnovers, 19-10.

Red Lake County Central is 2-2.

Pioneers lose pair to Twin Cities area basketball squads

Anoka-Ramsey and Minneapolis handed the Northland Community and Technical College men's basketball teams a pair of losses on a Dec. 4-5 trip to the Twin Cities area.

The Pioneers lost a 78-60 Friday night game to Anoka-Ramsey and dropped a 99-49 Saturday matinee match-up with Minneapolis.

"We played probably our best game of the season against Anoka-Ramsey, said Northland coach Rick Nikunen.

Northland shot 36 percent from the field (24/67) and went 9-for-14 at the free throw line, where Anoka-Ramsey was a busy 15-for-38.

"We played well when we were allowed to play," noted Nikunen. "The free throws made a significant difference. It's not that they made so many of them, but the fouls put some of our key people in trouble early."

A strong Minneapolis team overwhelmed Northland the next day.

"That's the only game so far where I thought we were outmatched," said Nikunen. "We're just not at that level yet."

Northland went 19-for-61 from the floor that day (31 percent) and 8-for-17 at the free throw line. Minneapolis was 36-for-67 from the field (53 percent) and 19-for-25 at the line.

Nine-Man all-state list includes area players

Five players from northwestern Minnesota were named to the 1998 Minnesota Nine-Man all-state high school football team announced this week.

The area selections include Mark Lorenson, punter-kicker, Red Lake County Central; Adam Stratton, runningback, Fisher/Climax; Aaron Stoltman, defensive lineman, Stephen-Argyle; Ross Homstad, linebacker, Kittson County North; and Aaron Schwenzfeier, linebacker, Kittson Central.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo defender Jerod Staar (left) blocked this third quarter shot by Thief River Falls' Matt Myers during Tuesday's boys high school basketball game in the Lincoln gym. The Ponies' Jerred Copp (24) was also in position to help out on the play.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo boys win 60-50 game...

Turnovers lead to TRF loss

A series of late-game Thief River Falls turnovers allowed Warren-Alvarado-Oslo to secure a 60-50 Tuesday night boys high school basketball win over the host Prowlers.

Thief River Falls had just chopped a 49-41 Warren-Alvarado-Oslo lead – which matched the biggest spread in the game to that point – to 49-47 with 3:22 remaining before the turnovers came into play. After two free throws by Nate Sorvig, a basket underneath by Matt Myers and a rebound basket by Myers made it a two-point game, the Prowlers proceeded to turn it over on four consecutive possessions.

The Ponies did not look a gift horse in the mouth. They scored off three of those turnovers, including a fast break lay-up by Brad Swanson, a drive by Jerod Steer and two free throws by Jerred Copp, to make it 55-47 with 50.7 seconds left. The final seven points scored by the winners came at the free throw line in the last minute.

It was the third loss in as many starts for the Prowlers, who were beaten by Crookston and Kittson Central earlier. "The kids put a heck of an effort on the court," said Thief River Falls coach Bob Johnson, "but we made some really poor decisions at the end. It's a case of not panicking and taking care of the ball when you have to."

After giving up 78 points to both the Pirates and Wolfpack, the Prowlers tightened things up defensively against the Ponies, partly by limiting them to one shot per trip on the basis of a 35-22 rebound advantage. "I thought defensively we played our best game of the year," noted Johnson. "We held a really good basketball team to 60 points. And if it wouldn't have been for the free throws at the end it would have been 55 points. You should be able to win a game when you hold somebody down like that. But I was disappointed on the offensive side. We didn't do a very good job with our offense."

Thief River Falls had a 12-10 edge at the end of the first quarter. A 3-point basket by Copp with 5.2 seconds left opened up a 27-21 Warren-Alvarado-Oslo lead at the half. A 3-pointer by Mitch Flaten in the final minute of the third quarter provided the Ponies with a 43-39 advantage.

Myers, a 6-8 senior, led all scorers with 18 points. Teammate Kelly Cota had 12. The Ponies were led by Steer, a 6-1 senior, with 14 points, and Swanson, a 5-8 senior, with 13.

Thief River Falls shot 40 percent from the floor (22/55) and struggled through a 5-for-14 night at the free throw line. Warren-Alvarado-Oslo shot 48 percent from the floor (23/48) and went 11-for-18 at the line. The Prowlers turned it over 25 times. The Ponies had 16 turnovers.

Scoring

	1	2	3	4	T
Warren-A-O	10	17	16	17	60
Thief River Falls	12	9	18	11	50

W-A-O - Brad Swanson 13, Mitch Flaten 8, Jerod Steer 14, Ross Howard 7, Tyler Solberg 6, Ken Soltvedt 4, Jerred Copp 8.

TRF - Matt Myers 18, Kelly Cota 12, Collin Schafer 4, Josh Gallagher 7, Nate Sorvig 4, Brian Loe 5.

TRF, RLF play to another tie

Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls played their fourth straight regular season overtime game Tuesday, and for the third time in that stretch the match-up failed to produce a winner. The 1-1 draw followed a 4-3 Thief River Falls win in 1997-98, a 2-2 tie in 1996-97 and a 3-3 deadlock in 1995-96.

The three previous contests were part of the now-defunct Thief River Falls/East Grand Forks/Crookston Holiday Classic. This was the Prowlers' first visit to Red Lake Falls since the 1972-73 season.

"The people down there were pretty excited," noted Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "It was almost like a Section 8A final atmosphere. Some of our younger kids got a little rattled. It was a good learning experience for them."

Only goals came from the Prowlers' Brett Johnson at the 14-minute mark of the first period and the Eagles' Matt Kennedy 10 seconds into the third period. Thief River Falls goalie Mike Dowers stopped 39 shots; Red Lake Falls netminder Clayton Schmitz finished with 35 saves.

"I think we pretty much dominated the end of the third period and overtime," said Bergland. "They took it to us in the second period, but Michael stood tall."

The tie put the Prowlers at 2-2-1 for the year, and enabled them to kept their record intact of never having lost to the Eagles. Barely.

Scoring

First period - TRF, Brett Johnson (un), 14:00

Second period - none.

Third period - RLF, Matt Kennedy (Andy Raymond-Bucky Cota), :19

Overtime - none

Goalie saves - TRF, Mike Dowers 8-16-12-3-39, RLF, Clayton Schmitz 8-8-10-9-35

Crookston girls stop Prowlers

Tiffany Hasbrouck (21) and Jenny Boll (20) combined for 41 points Monday to lead Crookston past visiting Thief River Falls 57-45 in girls high school basketball.

Thief River Falls had a 20-point scorer, too, in Sara Jensen (22), but she was the Prowlers' only double figure scorer. Nicole Kopari was held to eight points, but she did pick up eight assists.

The Pirates trailed 14-9 after one quarter, went ahead 22-20 at halftime, had a 36-28 third quarter advantage and iced it with 9-for-11 fourth quarter free throw shooting.

"Defensively I was pleased," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "We did okay there. Crookston is a good team, and we held them down pretty well. But Boll stepped it up in the third and fourth quarter. She took it to us."

Thief River Falls shot 36 percent from the field (18/50) and went 7-for-11 at the line.

"Offensively we had a couple of dry spells in the second and third quarter," pointed out Loe.

Crookston shot 47 percent from the floor (21/45) and wound up with a busy 14-for-27 game at the line. The Pirates out-rebounded the Prowlers 31-21. Thief River Falls topped the turnovers charts 24-21.

"We didn't do a very good job on the offensive boards," noted Loe. "We had only four offensive rebounds for the game, and our point guard got two of those. We have to be more aggressive around the basket."

Thief River Falls is 3-2.

Scoring

	1	2	3	4	T
Thief River Falls	14	6	8	17	45
Crookston	9	13	14	21	57

TRF - Nicole Wiseth 3, Katie Harbott 4, Laura Follett 2, Taya Hunt 4, Nicole Kopari 8, Erika Hudson 2, Sara Jensen 22.

Crookston - Angela Lindsay 4, Jamie Reese 6, Allison Lindsay 2, Kelly Reese 2, Jenny Boll 20, Tiffany Hasbrouck 21.

EGF games are added to TRF JV hockey schedule

Semifinals will be played Tuesday. After a Wednesday break, the tournament will resume with the finals on Thursday.

Tournament sponsors are Northland Community and Technical College, Boen Car Care, Thief River Falls Sports Boosters, University Screen Print, Pepsi-Cola Bottling, and KTRF Radio.

Daily passes are priced at $4 for adults and $3 for students.

Rebounds add up in RLCC girls win

A 41-26 rebound advantage helped carry the Red Lake County Central girls to a 69-54 high school basketball win over Fertile-Beltrami Tuesday. It was part of a double-header at Plummer that included a 60-47 Fertile-Beltrami victory over Red Lake County Central in the boys' game.

The Falcons started with a 14-10 first quarter lead, but the Mustangs went ahead 29-19 at halftime and opened up a 49-33 third quarter spread.

"We played really well in the second and third quarters," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "Our press was pretty effective, especially in the second quarter."

Sylvia Hilgeman scored 17 points and Heather Schiefert pulled down 14 rebounds to lead the 3-1 Mustangs. "We did a pretty good job on the boards," noted Koivisto. "We got a lot of second and third shots."

Fertile-Beltrami shot 51 percent from the field to a 48 percent Red Lake County Central figure, but the Falcons (23/45) got off 17 fewer shots than the Mustangs (30/62). Fertile-Beltrami topped the turnover charts 21-19.

Huskies defeated by Clearbrook-Gonvick

Goodridge boys high school basketball coach Eric Mickelson found some good in a loss Tuesday as the Huskies played well in a 61-54 defeat at the hands of Clearbrook-Gonvick.

"It's the best game we've played," said Mickelson, whose team was coming off a 1-2 season-opening showing at the Northland Community and Technical College Invitational. "We had kind of a haphazard tournament, and weren't very happy how we played. But I think we took a step in the right direction in this one. It was more like the basketball we want to play."

The Huskies had a 15-12 first quarter lead and stayed in from until turnover trouble late in the first half resulted in a 32-28 intermission deficit. The Bears carried a 46-40 edge into the final period.

"We played reasonably well, but our mistakes still helped them win the game," noted Mickelson.

Goodridge was 21-for-45 from the field (47 percent) and 9-for-17 at the free throw line. Clearbrook-Gonvick went 24-for-47 from the floor (51 percent) and 13-for-27 at the line. The bigger Bears had a 30-20 rebound advantage over the Huskies, who topped the turnover charts 15-11.

Wilcox leads MCC past Sacred Heart

David Wilcox scored 31 points and Marshall County Central shot 56 percent from the field (29/52) Tuesday as the Nordics posted a 73-61 boys high school basketball win over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart at Newfolden.

"We were lackadaisical and unemotional, but we shot the lights out of the basket," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "If you shoot like that, it really doesn't matter what else you do."

Wilcox led the assault by hitting 12 of 19 shots, including a 5-for-10 showing from 3-point range. "David just lit it up," offered Ueland. "Every time they (Eagles) made a run at us, he hit a big basket."

Marshall County Central led at the quarters 22-13, 43-31 and 59-46.

"They played a zone to counter our size," explained Ueland, "but we hit the outside shots. Our post players passed the ball very well."

Sacred Heart was 21-for-51 from the field and 9-for-14 at the free throw line, where Marshall County Central was 15-for-19. The Nordics out-rebounded the Eagles 26-17, but also had more turnovers, 19-13.

It was the third straight win to start the year for the Nordics.

Northland men are 0-6

Minot State University-Bottineau beat the Northland Community and Technical College men's basketball team for the second time this season Wednesday in a game that featured a 30-point scoreboard swing. The Lumberjacks, down 32-20 at one time in the first half, won 90-72.

The 18-point victory margin nearly duplicated the 20-point gap in their earlier meeting that ended 100-80.

It was a 41-41 tie at halftime, but an ever-increasing number of Northland turnovers wound up on the scoreboard. The Pioneers turned the ball over 26 times and Bottineau lost it only 12 times. "That was the difference right there," noted Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "They pressured us the whole game. We had a couple of lapses in the second half and they made a couple of six and eight-point runs on us."

Northland was 28-for-62 from the field (45 percent) and 13-for-21 at the free throw line. Bottineau went 31-for-81 from the floor (42 percent) and 17-for-26 at the line. The Pioneers had a 48-43 rebound edge.

The loss dropped Northland to 0-6. "We're getting better," said Nikunen. "We had some good individual performances from people like Alex Anderson (a freshman guard from Grygla-Gatzke), who has been improving every time out and has been our steadiest player."

Bottineau shooters produce 85-57 win over NCTC women

Shooting spelled the difference Wednesday as Minot State University-Bottineau beat Northland Community and Technical College 85-57 in a women's basketball game played in Thief River Falls.

Bottineau shot 51 percent from the field (36/70) while Northland shot just 30 percent (25/82), which included a 19 percent 7-for-36 first half.

"It wasn't very pretty," admitted Northland coach Mike Zachow. "They just shut the lights out, and we couldn't hit anything. We actually played well except for the shooting. We out-rebounded them, and our turnovers were down."

The 0-4 Pioneers, who trailed 34-20 at halftime, lost a 71-69 game at Bottineau to start the year.

Becky Perreault had a game-high 21 points for Northland, but she was the Pioneers' only double figure scorer. Six Bottineau scorers hit double digits.

Northland was 7-for-11 at the free throw line; Bottineau went 8-for-14.

David Johnson, Roseau, to enter Snowmobile Racing Hall of Fame

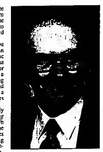
David Johnson of Roseau, who built the very first Sno-Traveler snowmobile, will be among three inductees into the International Snowmobile Racing Hall of Fame at St. Germain, WI, on Jan. 21, 1999.

Each year the Hall of Fame inducts three nominees. Others selected for induction this year are Brad Hulings of Rockford, MI and Tim Bender of Colden, NY.

A news release from the Hall of Fame states:

"David Johnson was one of three men who toiled in a tiny farm implement factory in Roseau in the early days of the sport, trying to develop the dream of motorized travel over snow.

"The builder of the very first 'Sno-Traveler,' Johnson was an early partner and key player in the development of many innovations at Polaris during the long and stellar career that saw Polaris become a racing powerhouse while growing steadily from obscure welding and repair shop roots in the 1950s to a snowmobile industry and sales leader in the 1990s."



Johnson is mentioned frequently in Edgar Hetteen's book Breaking Trail, as his partner in the shop in Roseau and as a member of the small group that proved the abilities of the early snow machines during an unprecedented grueling and dangerous cross-country trip in Alaska.

Induction ceremonies will take place Jan. 21, 1999, in Eagle River, WI, following the annual Woody's Ride With The Champs. Along with the inductees, celebrity riders this year will include two-time world champion Mike Trapp, Bob Eastman, Jim Bernat, Brian Nelson, Stan Hayes, Olav Aaen and others.

Ride fee is $80 which includes breakfast, lunch and dinner with separate dinner tickets for non-riders available at $20 each.

This is the 12th year of the Hall of Fame program with 43 prior inductees presently included on the "Walls of Fame." Induction is now limited to three people per year.

Inductee Hulings started racing Mercury Sno-Twisters in 1974 and became one of the most successful independent racers in snowmobile racing history. He later raced

David Johnson

Polaris, Scorpion and Ski-Doo sleds, winning several high point titles in Stock, Mod and Sno-Pro classes and winning the world championship in 1981 on a Scorpion and 1983 on a Ski-Doo.

Bender became a racing legend in the 1980s on Yamaha machines, establishing one of the greatest win records among Yamaha drivers. He also designed and built several Yamaha-based limited-build racing machines. He won four consecutive Formula III class championships at Eagle River in 1985-1988.

The Hall of Fame operates a racing museum and gift shop with more than 25 historic race sleds and other memorabilia on display. Video monitors depict history of the sport and the facility is open year around.

Farm Business program at NCTC receives grant

To expand services to the farm community of northwestern Minnesota, the Otto Bremer Foundation has awarded a $20,000 grant to the Farm Business Management program at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

According to Bob Bollesen, regional dean of management education at NCTC, the grant has given him the opportunity to provide an additional instructor in the Kittson and western Marshall county area.

"We are grateful to the Bremer Foundation for this award," Bollesen said. "The money has made it possible for us to hire Chad Anvinson of Oslo as an instructor and provide additional services to the extreme northwestern portion of our service area."

Anvinson is a 1990 graduate of Valley North high school in Oslo and graduated from North Dakota State University with a degree in agricultural economics. He is the son of Tim and Barb Anvinson and farms with his parents in the Oslo area.

Doug Safar, president of Bremer Bank in Warren, presented the grant funds to Bollesen November 30.

Persons in the Kittson and western Marshall county area who would like to contact Anvinson are encouraged to stop by his office in the Kittson county courthouse in Hallock or call 218-843-9191.

Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe received a gift from county employees during a retirement party for him last week. Kim Carlson (left), and Barb Baito (right) presented a framed print to him. Moe has been the sheriff of Pennington county for over five years. He became Pennington County Sheriff after serving as the sheriff of Pope county.

Rep. Finseth to chair House Ag Committee

No Bans On Agriculture

As chairman of the Ag Committee he will appoint subcommittees and their chairs as necessary. He will also be the gate through which proposed agricultural legislation will reach (or not reach) the House.

"There will probably be hundreds of bills presented to the committee," Finseth said. "It will be my obligation to read them and decide which ones will be given a hearing. I can tell you right now that there will be no bans on any type of agriculture coming out of this legislative session."

Finseth said he also wants to make the committee extremely open to citizen participation and he will encourage members of the public to testify at committee meetings.

"There will be time constraints, of course," he said, "because the state's business must get done. But if we have time for only one witness, and we have a state agency representative and a private citizen available to testify, the citizen will be heard. I also plan to ask for public testimony from the audience prior to any vote the committee takes."

Finseth said he also wants to find out directly from farmers and others which specific rules and regulations are standing in the way of their operations and potential for profitability so that his committee can work to eliminate them or make modifications that are acceptable.

No Politicking In Committee

The new chairman also said he will not stand for politicking in his committee.

"On the first day the committee meets," he said, "I am going to make it very clear that we are serving on the committee to do what we can to improve agriculture in Minnesota. If anyone, Republican or Democrat, wants to use the committee as a political stage, I will not hesitate to use the gavel and declare that behavior out of order. If they want to play politics they can call a news conference or go out in the hallway. It will not be tolerated in committee."

Focus will be a key word in the 1999 session, Finseth said. His intent is to keep his committee focused on its areas of agriculture and rural development in a non-partisan basis.

"Getting to the legislature and even getting on committees is a political process," he said. "Once you're there, however, you have to put politics aside and act in the best interests of the state."

Goals Being Considered

One of his goals is for his committee to serve as a catalyst for legislation to give agriculture an economic shot in the arm, perhaps in a way similar to the federal crop insurance reimbursement program adopted last spring. Another is for the committee to bring a unified message from Minnesota to federal officials in Washington on needs and programs deemed beneficial to agriculture.

"I'll be the first to admit that I don't know it all and that I have a whole lot to learn," Finseth said. "And it is absolutely amazing how many new friends I have," he laughed.

"A Lot Of Long Days..."

Asked how he has been able to combine his legislative service with his employment as manager of the Marshall County Soil and Water Conservation District in Warren, Finseth replied "a lot of long days."

His board gives him a leave of absence during the legislative session, but he frequently has worked on SWCD business in evenings when his legislative work has been completed for the day. And with proper planning during the remainder of the year he is able to somewhat prepare for his absence during the session.

Although he wouldn't classify himself as a farmer, his SWCD office has put him in a unique position to learn and understand a great deal about the problems and needs of agriculture. He said he is also willing to listen to lobbyists and others with information to provide because he can learn from them. But he has learned who he can and can't trust, and that experience will be valuable.

Respect Is Earned

"Serving in the legislature is a lot about respect," he said. "I have worked hard over the past five years to build credibility with other legislators and officials. I feel that I have earned the respect of many of them and that will help in serving as committee chairman."

Regarding the new governor and the legislature's relationship with him, Finseth said a lot more will be known when the session starts and Governor Ventura has to start making difficult decisions that will displease some constituents.

"I certainly hope he succeeds," Finseth said. "If the governor fails, the state of Minnesota fails. I'm hoping for the best and looking forward to working with him."

Finseth's wife, Ruth, works with developmentally disabled adults through the Polk county social services department in Crookston. They have one son, Cameron, who is in pre-school. The family does not move to St Paul when the legislature is in session.

Lincoln ninth graders 'Adopt a Friend'

While some of the residents welcomed the idea whole-heartedly, others were apprehensive, and some refused. Today's youth have received a lot of negative media attention. Not all of the older folks were comfortable being alone with what might be a young hoodlum.

Many of the students were equally nervous and not at all excited about spending their time with some old person. "What will we talk about?" was the most common question asked.

The original plan was to match one student to one senior, but when there weren't enough willing apartment dwellers to accommodate the number of youth, Helen assigned two or three students to each senior. Another flyer was posted at the complex stating that if anyone who had declined wished to reconsider, they could contact Barb in the office. Helen also spent part of a day at the complex walking about the atriums of Skylite Apartments, making herself available to answer questions.

Six more senior citizens from Riverside Terrace were recruited to participate in the project.

In November students made Thanksgiving posters for the doors of the senior apartment dwellers and delivered them on their first visit.

"I was really nervous," said Brittany Larson of how she felt before she and Jason Blakely visited Agnes Kujanson for the first time.

Robbie Anderson said he thought the idea was "kind of good" while his partner, Rebekah Solem was a bit more enthusiastic and said, "I thought it would be really fun to visit with older people." Rebekah and Robbie were matched up with Henry Molskness.

The three students who visit Esther Hesse had varying thoughts before calling on her for the first time. "I was nervous at first," said Beth Johnsrud. "I didn't know what to talk about." When asked what he thought of the program, Jason Klaven said, "I don't mind it." Jered LeMoine already knew Esther. "She's my grandma's best friend," he said.

Once the visits actually took place, the misgivings of the students and seniors quickly disappeared and were replaced by feelings of warmth.

"It was cool," said Barbara Cote, who, with Natasha Hicks, visited Ruth Hagen. Natasha described the experience as "pretty fun."

Henry Molskness didn't disappoint Robbie Anderson and Rebekah Solem. "He told us lots of stories about his family and stuff," Rebekah said.

"She's really nice," said Beth Johnsrud of her visit with Esther Hesse. And evidently Esther kept the conversation going as Jered LeMoine added, "She talks a lot."

In early December the 9th graders spent classroom time making door posters with Christmas greetings on them for their new friends, and they looked forward to delivering them and visiting again.

When Brittany Larson and Jason Blakely placed the new poster on Agnes Kujanson's door, Agnes asked if she could keep the November greeting. "I want to show it to my kids," she said. "I think this is so nice."

Nice is what almost everyone involved in the "Adopt a Friend" program thinks about it, and the word was used over and over again as seniors and youth decribed their sentiments about the project.

However, big lessons can be learned from a concept as simple as the word "nice." As friendships are formed, the gap that separates the generations narrows. Fear and mistrust disappears and is replaced by genuine human compassion. Young and old alike are learning how meaningful the gift of time can be.

Using the logs they have kept, the students will write papers at the conclusion of the program. If the "Adopt a Friend" project is deemed successful, Helen would like to see it continue at Lincoln High School. So far, it looks like it's a hit.

Financial help being offered for businesses hurt by farm crisis

Northwest Regional Development Commission is focusing its Disaster Relief Loan Fund on the economic distress and injury felt by main street businesses impacted by the farm crisis and weather-related disasters over the past few years.

It is anticipated that the loan funds will be used to assist businesses with their cash flow needs and with debt management. Debt burden of businesses, for example, may be reduced by refinancing a portion of existing debt at a lower interest rate (currently 4.5 percent). The loans have flexible terms and the regular loan fee may be waived.

Businesses in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties can apply for loans ranging from $5,000 to $150,000 at an interest rate four points below the prime lending rate, to a minimum of four percent.

To be eligible, the business must show that it is viable and that a loss in sales or financial damage was suffered. Applicants must also show that no other financing is available or feasible for the business at affordable terms.

A loan from the Disaster Revolving Loan Fund must be matched on a one-to-one basis by a bank or other private financing source.

Area residents at DAV party held in Crookston

Area guests in addition to those mentioned above were Leonard Yonke, Harvey and Fay Ness and Floyd and Frances Johnson, Thief River Falls, Nina Bakke, Gary and Terry Weiss and Alvis Wieland, Red Lake Falls; and Ray Benoit, Gentilly.

Grygla man offers "Unique Prescription"

Grygla - Vocalist and guitarist Scotty Torgerson of Grygla has recently released his fourth album of all-original songs. The album is entitled "Unique Prescription," and in the lead song a man prescribes a cure for his friend with a broken heart.

The new album, like the others, was recorded at the Gary Burger recording studio at Turtle River near Bemidji. Most of the background instrumentalists are from the Bemidji area.

While his heart is in his music, Torgerson makes a living at Machinewell, Inc. in Grygla.

His new CD is available in Grygla, Thief River Falls, Roseau and St. Hilaire. His music can also be heard in a number of juke boxes around the area and on KKAQ radio. Tri County Canary

Sheriff needs a dog? Rent one

Red Lake Falls - When Red Lake County Sheriff Al Morken asked the county Board of Commissioners to consider purchasing a dog trained to sniff for drugs, it was suggested that he rent one.

The cost of a drug-sniffing dog is $5,000, and a deputy would be required to work and train with the dog at the dog training school for two weeks.

The Board of Commissioners suggested that Morken contract the use of a dog from another county for a year to see how he and the department like working with a dog and if the animal really helps. The Gazette

Jenny Taggart and her 20-year-old registered Appaloosa "She's A Foxy Lady" are shown with Jenny's parents, Jim and Marlene Taggart, at the World Championship Appaloosa Horse Show held recently in Ft. Worth, TX. Jenny and "Lady" earned a seventh place ribbon in the Keyhole competition among 35 entries from throughout the U.S. and other countries.

Jenny Taggart earns placing at World Appaloosa show

by Marvin Lundin
Northern Watch Editor

She did it partly for herself but mostly she did it for Lady. Jenny Taggart of rural Newfolden thought she owed it to her 20-year-old horse to give it an opportunity to compete in world competition.

So earlier this fall, Jenny and her registered Appaloosa She's A Foxy Lady traveled to Ft. Worth, Texas to compete in the World Championship Appaloosa Horse Show. And Lady was foxy enough to squeeze out a seventh place among 35 qualifying horses in the keyhole competition, one of four events she was qualified to enter.

"You figure it out," Jenny said of the world placing. "Keyhole was our worst event all year long and it was the first event in games competition at the world championships. It was a one-shot, timed event and Lady ran it really well."

It was an encouraging start, but in the later events of barrels, poles and Figure 8 stakes, Jenny and Lady fell victim to younger, faster horses.

"I had been running good times in winning events up here," Jenny said, "and Lady had good time down there, too. We ran a 23.2 in poles in Texas, but there were about 40 horses entered and the winner ran a 21.4."

Actually, there were a whole lot of horses at the world championships. An entry sheet indicates there were 928 participants at this year's event, from all over the United States as well as Canada and even Europe. And all had to be good enough to qualify for entry.

To qualify for the world championships, horses must earn at least 10 points in their events at registered Appaloosa shows. Jenny was able to qualify Lady in the four events entered at the world championships by competing in only four shows—Valley City, ND; Des Moines, IA; Windom and Wadena.

To get to the world championships, Jenny arranged for Lady to catch a ride to Ft. Worth in a trailer pulled by Fisher area horse trainer Joey Jorgenson. Jenny and her parents, Jim and Marlene Taggart, left a day earlier to be ready to meet the Jorgenson contingent when it arrived. Jorgenson also showed horses at the championships.

Jenny said her horse came through the 22-hour trip in good shape, but got sick for each event in which it competed. That condition wasn't unexpected because it has happened frequently in prior years. The horse gets nervous, its insides tighten up and it is unable to relieve itself. When walked after the event it relaxes and suffers no ill effects.

"I would have liked to qualify in another event or two," Jenny said, "but the competition is really tough and I'm happy we were able to place in one of the classes."

Jenny said she was glad she made the trip once and experienced the excitement and pressure of the world championships. And she is glad she was able to take her aging mare to such an event.

TRF Post Office among few open December 24

Thief River Falls Post Office will be among the few post offices open on Christmas Eve day, December 24. Many Post Offices throughout North Dakota (zip code areas 580-588), South Dakota (zip code areas 570-577) and Northwestern Minnesota (zip code areas 565 and 567) will close their retail window operations early on Christmas Eve, December 24. The decision will be dictated by the community's needs, and hours of retail window operation will be posted in the lobby of local post offices.

The Post Office in Thief River Falls will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on December 24.

Customers should know by now, however, that the earlier they get their packages mailed the better.

All collection and transportation routes will be adjusted to run two hours early. Last minute package pickup and shipping via overnight Express Mail service will be available prior to the early closing.

The Christmas Eve schedule will not impact the delivery of mail on December 24. All incoming packages, cards and letters received in local post offices on Christmas Eve will be delivered. Throughout much of the United States, postal employees will continue to deliver Express Mail packages on Christmas Day.

Newfolden One Appeal distributes $1,924.25

Following fund-raising activities Newfolden One Appeal has distributed $1,924.25 to various charities.

Donna Mae Hogberg and the GFWC Newfolden Women's Club thanked the many donors who gave to the One Appeal Drive. Hogberg noted that it was a very successful drive.

Solicitors this year included: Dolores Mesick, Mary Anderson, Kathy Rokke, Susan Pederson, Vernette Stokke, Lucille Tunheim, Bev Flickinger, Ginnie Kiviaho, and Donna Mae Hogberg.

TRF Council requests bridge study proposals

Tuesday, December 8, Thief River Falls City Council approved a recommendation calling for proposals from architects interested in conducting a formal study of the Greenwood Street Bridge and railroad crossing underpass. The projects are included in the city's 1998-2003 capital improvement plan.

Conducting the study doesn't necessarily mean the council intends to proceed with the projects. They are seeking answers to many questions they have about the projects — answers to such questions as whether the city needs both, either, or which one first; alternate locations, grade crossing or underpass, and traffic studies.

A Greenwood bridge has been discussed for many years. Discussion of a railroad underpass is a more recent topic especially in light of the fact that newer fire trucks cannot fit under the emergency underpass. (The emergency vehicle underpass is located near Third Street and is necessary when trains block the three major east-west thoroughfares.)

Tuesday night, members of the public safety committee said they had discussed putting a garage on the east side of the railroad tracks in Elk's park. That idea, however, was dismissed because the park is located in the flood plain and the current structure in the park is on CP Rail property. The idea of a garage on the east side for a fire truck was not entirely dismissed. It's still an option.

Boardings at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport continue to climb. It was announced Tuesday night that airport boardings in November were 622 even with seven storm related canceled flights. That compares with 315 for November of 1997.

Several on-sale liquor licenses were approved by the city council. On-sale intoxicating liquor licenses costing $2,800 each were approved for the Best Western, Evergreen Eating Emporium, Family Bowl, Black Cat Sports Bar and Grill, Lantern Restaurant and Lounge, the Rusty Nail, and The Hayloft.

Club on-sale intoxicating liquor licenses, at $500 each, were approved for the Elk's Lodge, Eagles, and VFW.

On-sale wine licenses, at $100 each, were approved for the Best Western, and Danny's Pizza.

A public hearing regarding the completion of the Commercial and Residential Rental Rehabilitation Projects will be held on February 9. Don Stewart, community development director, explained that a project summary will be presented at that meeting.

In other business, the council: approved a loan extension request by Behavioral Dynamics Inc., to make interest only payments; approved a lease of office space in the city auditorium to Inter County Community Council; approved payment for six days of unused vacation for Mark Josephson, airport supervisor; approved the appointment of Dan Thorstad, Rick Beiers and Greg Harder as volunteer firefighters to fill three vacant positions; extended an agreement with Northern State Bank to handle the city's checking account services until Y2K problems are resolved in 1999; approved renewal of the animal disposal contract with Dan and Janece Trontvet for 1999; approved the quote from Tunberg Motors of $20,669 for a 1999 Crown Victoria Police Patrol vehicle.

Dupree donates Furby to brighten child's Christmas

Kurt Dupree has an unusual plan for his Furby—this Christmas season's hottest child's toy. He wants to give it away to make some child's Christmas a little more special.

Selection of the child to receive the toy will be on the basis of a short letter from his or her parent(s). The letter is to be 100 words or less and address the topic "My child is special to me because...."

Letters must also contain the name of the parent(s), age of the child, address and a telephone number where the winner can be notified.

Entries must be postmarked by Monday, December 21, and mailed to Furby Contest, c/o TRF Times, P.O. Box 100, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Judging will take place Wednesday, December 23, and the winner will be notified December 24, Christmas Eve day. Entries will also be accepted at the Times office before 5 p.m. Tuesday, December 22, and included in the judging.

Dupree said he decided to give away the toy he purchased at regular price when he saw a notice of Furbys being offered for sale for hundreds of dollars. He said he doesn't like the idea of individuals trying to make an exorbitant profit from the popularity of a toy that a child could enjoy.

A part-time employee at Kmart, Dupree was an early entry months ago on a list for the Furby dolls the local store would receive. He was

Police concerns brought to council

Fertile - After concluding the regular business of its December meeting, the Fertile City Council heard from the People for the City of Fertile committee regarding the elimination of its chief of police position.

Because of the size of the group - about 175 people - the meeting was held at the auditorium. After a prepared statement was read, committee members questioned city council members about their decision to eliminate the police chief's position.

At the end of the meeting the committee requested that the council rescind its November 9 decision and that an independent police commission be established and voted on at the soonest possible election. The Fertile Journal

Sherry LaCoursiere

Only one more weekend to bake for Christmas. Today I'm giving you cookie and bar recipes from some of the ones I made this year. Hope you like them.

These cookies are mixed and then refrigerated until you are ready to bake, so they are easy besides being a tasty addition to your cookie tray:

COFFEE CRISPS
1/3 cup shortening
1/3 cup butter
1/3 cup sugar
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon rum extract
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/8 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons instant coffee granules
Pecan halves

Cream shortening and butter in large mixing bowl. Gradually add sugar, beating until light and fluffy.

Add egg and beat until blended. Add rum, blending well.

Combine flour, baking powder, soda, salt and coffee in bowl. Stir well. Add to creamed mixture, mixing well.

Shape dough into 2 rolls, 2 inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill 8 hours or overnight. Remove waxed paper and cut into 1/8 inch slices. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Gently press pecan half in center of each cookie.

Bake at 400 degrees for 8-10 minutes. Cool on racks. (Makes 6 dozen.)

And here's another refrigerator cookie - one that is so good you'll never make plain chocolate and white pinwheels again:

BUTTERSCOTCH PINWHEELS
Butterscotch Layer
1/4 cup shortening
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 egg
3/4 cup butterscotch chips, melted
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
Chocolate Layer
1/4 cup shortening
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 (1 ounce) square unsweetened baking chocolate, melted
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

To make butterscotch layer, cream shortening and brown sugar, beating light and fluffy. Add egg, beating well. Stir in melted chips and vanilla, beating well.

Sift together flour, soda and salt and add to creamed mixture, stirring until well blended. Set aside.

To make chocolate layer, cream shortening and granulated sugar, beating light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir in melted chocolate and vanilla, beating well.

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt and add to creamed mixture, blending. Set aside.

Roll each dough between 2 sheets of waxed paper to a 10x7 inch rectangle so you have two rectangles. Remove paper from one side of chocolate layer and invert over butterscotch layer (this can't be moved after joining, so try to get it as even as possible - uneven ends can be trimmed).

Roll up in jelly roll fashion from long side. Cover and chill 1 hour, then cut into 1/4 inch slices. Place 2 inches apart on lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 degrees for 6 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on racks. (Makes 5 1/2 dozen.)

Since we're getting down to the last minutes of baking here, these cookies are fairly simple and can be changed somewhat to suit your taste. The recipe calls for dipping in nuts, then and topping with M&M candies, but they could just as easily be dipped in nuts or coconut and topped with candied cherries or jelly to make an entirely different-looking cookie:

SITTING PRETTIES
1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 egg, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
Chopped nuts

Blend butter and sugar. Stir in egg yolk and vanilla.

Sift flour and salt and mix well. Add to butter mixture, mixing well.

Chill 1 hour, then roll in 1 inch balls. Dip into slightly beaten egg white and then roll in chopped nuts. Place 1 inch apart on greased cookie sheets.

Bake at 350 degrees for 5 minutes, then press thumb gently into center of each cookie. Bake 5 minutes more, then put red and green M&M candies into indentation.

(Indentation can also be filled with frosting and then topped with candies.)

I've given you the following two very favorite bar recipes before, but they bear repeating because they are so good and so rich that you only make them for special celebrations. These "Turtle Bars" MUST be made for Christmas at our house - I one and one-half times the recipe to make a 9x12 inch pan, but the following recipe makes a 9x9 inch pan:

OATMEAL CARMELITAS
1 cup flour
1 cup oats
3/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup melted butter
3/4 cup caramel ice cream topping
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 cup semi sweet chocolate morsels
1/2 cup chopped pecans

In large bowl, combine flour, oats, brown sugar, soda, salt and melted butter. Press half of mixture in 9 inch square pan (greased), reserving remainder.

Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes only.

Mix caramel topping with flour. Immediately after crust is removed from oven, sprinkle with chocolate morsels and nuts and then pour caramel mixture over top. Sprinkle remainder of oat mixture over caramel and return to oven for an additional 15-20 minutes - don't overbake, rather underbake. Cool before cutting (recipe says to refrigerate for 2 hours, but it gets really hard to cut then - I let stand overnight before cutting into small squares).

This is a recent (last 10 years) addition to my Christmas "must haves." It is absolutely delicious and terribly rich - what else for Christmas?

CARAMEL WALNUT BARS
2 cups flour
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 egg, beaten
3/4 cup cold butter
3/4 cup walnuts, chopped
24 caramels, unwrapped
1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

In large bowl, combine flour, sugar and egg. Cut in 1/2 cup of the butter until crumbly. Stir in walnuts. Reserve 2 cups of crumb mixture and press remainder on bottom of greased 9x13 inch pan. Bake 15 minutes only.

Meanwhile, in heavy saucepan over low heat, melt caramels with condensed milk and remaining 1/4 cup butter. Pour over prepared crust and top with reserved crumb mixture.

Bake 20 minutes more or until bubbly. Cool before cutting. Store at room temperature. (Makes 24-36 bars.)

Lights on for Life campaign noted by Minn. State Patrol

Minnesota State Patrol is encouraging all drivers in the state to join law enforcement officers in support of "National Holiday Lifesavers Weekend 1998" and "National Lights on for Life Day" during the December 18-20 weekend.

"The lights are meant to raise public awareness of the tragedies resulting from impaired driving and to commemorate the lives lost in alcohol-related crashes," states Capt. Dick Wittenberg of the State Patrol office in Thief River Falls.

"The pre-Christmas period is a time of increased travel and alcohol consumption," Capt. Wittenberg noted. "Our goal is to improve public safety on the highways by reducing the incidence of impaired driving, increasing the use of occupant restraints and vigorously pursuing enforcement activities for speeding and other hazardous violations."

Col. Anne Beers, commander of the State Patrol, said patrol officers want every person in Minnesota to enjoy the holiday and Arrive Alive. "Remember to buckle up and drive sober to ensure a safe and enjoyable holiday," Col. Beers said.

MN State Patrol investigates accident Wed.

A van driven by Brenden James Wilde, 33, Thief River Falls, collided with the rear of the Distel vehicle. Charges are under investigation. There were no injuries. Both drivers were wearing seat belts.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

It really bothers me that it is the position of our Representative in [illegible] that it is OK to lie to a federal grand jury as long as the lie is about sex. It really bothers me that he would vote on an issue based on reelection rather than his constituents.

[illegible] many people have been convicted and are currently serving time for this very crime to convince me it's OK for the President. This would have been our Representative's opportunity to show his constituents we all have the same rights. Now I understand it is the position of our Representative that we are not all subject to the rule of law. The privileged few need not worry.

I guess if you have a lot of responsibility you must not have time to comply with the very laws you've been sworn to uphold. Now with this information in hand, I'll not bother to worry about important issues in the future. Decisions will be made based on polls not laws. It'll be easier for me to just follow along.

Sincerely,
Tom Morrissey

Abuse victim thanks Violence Intervention Project for use of Umbrella Tree

Recently the Violence Intervention Project (VIP) in Thief River Falls received a letter from a client which tells another side of the Christmas holiday season. Because it carries a tale of success and hope and words of encouragement to others, the Northern Watch has agreed to publish much of the letter.

"During this holiday season, we often take time to reflect on our many blessings," the letter stated. "We look at the Christmas season as a time to reflect on the Christ Child, gather with family and celebrate. For a short time all is at peace and joy as we unwrap gifts, eat too much turkey and take Christmas naps.

"For us this was not always so. Several Christmases ago the word violence took on a new meaning for me. Devastated, I turned to a local Violence Intervention Project for help. Ultimately, after several years of efforts to get the abuser into counseling, court battles and soul-searching, I divorced him and was awarded physical and legal custody of my child."

The writer notes that the court felt it in the child's best interest to continue the child/father relationship, but abuse of the child continued during even the supervised visitation. The Umbrella Tree at VIP, which provides a "neutral zone" for supervised visitation, then became involved in the process.

"Over time I have learned to trust the staff at the Umbrella Tree," the letter writer continued. "Not only will they keep my child safe, they will remain neutral in negotiating visits, times, etc.

"During this time of peace on earth, good will to men, I pray that all abusers will seek the help they need to give their families the gift of unconditional love and peace.

"To the wife, husband or friend of someone who is being abused, take the step this Christmas season to become free of fear, control and violence. Set yourself and your loved ones on a path of peace and wholeness. If your abuser will not seek help with you, God will see that you do not go it alone.

"This Christmas as we look forward with excitement to the holiday, I realize the healing cycle is complete. With the help of God, a loving pastor and his family, the Umbrella Tree and its staff and volunteers, we are no longer victims of abuse but overcomers.

"I commend your community for the support that is so evident. To all who support VIP and Umbrella Tree, you have touched us and many others. Thank you. May there be peace in your heart and home this Christmas."

Voice Of Democracy: "My Service To America"

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 in Thief River Falls has announced the winners in its annual Voice of Democracy contest, open to all public and private school students in grades 10-12 who are not over the age of 19. Winners were Mike Hanson, grade 11, first place and Sarah Hagge, grade 10, second place. Both are students at Pershing high school in Plummer.

The audio essays, not less than three nor more than five minutes in length, were judged by local VFW members. Judging didn't take a lot of time this year: Mike and Sarah were the only entrants.

We share our disappointment in the lack of response with that of the VFW Voice of Democracy committee. They sent out a lot of information to quite a few schools in plenty of time to allow students to prepare entries. We can't help but feel that more students would enter if the entry information was made available to them and they were given a little nudge. Creative writing should be encouraged throughout school years, and the sponsoring VFW Post offers opportunity and cash prizes to winners in each school. Mike received a $50 first place award and Sarah received $35 for second place.

"My Service to America" was the theme this year. It provided ample opportunity for creativity in writing and could have been used in English and communications classes in any high school in the area. We think Voice of Democracy and other similar competitions should receive more support from school administration, faculty and students throughout the area. It would be a great way for schools to show they mean it when they say they want to involve the community in education.

Following are Mike Hanson's winning entry and Sarah Hagge's second place entry:

MY SERVICE TO AMERICA
by Mike Hanson

The strength of the Constitution lies entirely in the determination of each citizen to defend it. Only if every single citizen feels duty bound to do their share in this defense are the Constitutional rights secure.

In other words, the Constitutional rights and laws of America reflect upon what each citizen does for his or her country. The nation can only be safe if we as citizens make it safe and do our duties and not complain about what has already been done.

First of all, I will start with what I have done to serve America. My services to America thus far have been incomplete. One of the few things that I have done is learn in our civics class about the Amendments, the bodies of legislature and how bills become laws. The only other thing that I can truly say that I have done is obey laws and regulations wherever I go, whether at school, home or wherever. I don't think that I can do much until I get older, but certainly not the least thing I do is encourage people to vote.

Next, I will explain what I could do, or do more of, as I get older. I could learn more about the way that America is set up and managed. As an upper grade student, I have the responsibility to set good examples for those students younger and older than I am. Setting good examples shows others good citizenship. After graduation I could join the armed services, just as one of my best friends did this past summer. And I could campaign for federal, state or local government offices.

Finally, (here are) some things that all citizens should do, but unfortunately not enough people take their responsibilities seriously. One of the most important of these is voting. Voting affects the outcomes of elections and affects the citizens of the nation. A lot of people complain about what is being done with the nation and who is elected to what office. This complaining will always be around unless more people vote. Only about 40 percent of the population, if even that, vote during the elections. This is why there are so many complaints about the nation.

Another thing that more citizens should do is give blood at blood drives or whenever possible. Giving blood will not only save lives, it makes friendships and makes the donor feel good knowing that he or she has helped someone else.

Several other responsibilities that too many people take for granted are taking the time to be an informed citizen on local and national issues and taking the time to learn about our country's history and what it stands for. Without doing these a person isn't a true American citizen.

Another obligation that we as American citizens have is to teach others to love and respect the country and serving in or at least supporting the armed forces. Besides these duties already mentioned, people can serve on jury duty and recycle. Recycling is a big duty that we citizens have. If no one recycled, our country would end up becoming a pile of junk. Just the thought of this makes me sick, so let's encourage recycling, along with everything else.

In conclusion, if we citizens do our duties, what would there be to regret? If we do what is expected of us the nation would be a whole lot better off. To put everything in perspective, American citizens have many responsibilities that should be done without any questions asked. If these responsibilities are not taken care of, the nation's structure will crumble. As a result, the laws, regulations and government will dwindle away bit by bit. You can't get much done by starting tomorrow, so let's start today.

MY SERVICE TO AMERICA
by Sarah Hagge

Journey back to the beginning of our country. Travel to the time when people were fleeing Europe to come to America. Why were they fleeing? They were fleeing to escape religious persecution. Most of the people determined to reach America refused to compromise their passionately held religious convictions.

Our country was founded on strong religious beliefs and freedoms. It is our duty as citizens to preserve that.

"Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensible supports. It is impossible to rightly govern the world without God and the Bible," states George Washington, first President of the United States of America.

How can we preserve something if we do not know anything about it? How can people spread the freedom of religion if they are not shown the love of God, the reason why religious freedom exists?

It will take more than one person to show the citizens of our country why people were leaving their homes to worship God! Although it will take more than one person, it can begin with one. I, as a citizen, can be that one person. I can show people the extraordinary powers of the God people began to worship so long ago.

It all begins with one simple word: love. Everyone wants to be loved, and that is what God is. He loves each and every one of us no matter who we are or what we've done. He cares about us and wants us to come to Him with all of our problems.

I can only show people a fraction of the love God provides, but if I love them, my hope is that they would wonder where that love comes from. Once people begin to ask questions about God, it shows that something truly incredible has been started in their hearts. It is something that only God can give them!

As people ask, I can tell. I can tell how God works in my life and how he desires to work in theirs. I can share with them that He bestows hope when all we can see is pain. They can hear that He gives us the strength to carry on when we feel as through we can't move another step.

I can read to them out of the Bible, God's Word, all of the magnificent stories. I can read first hand what God means. They will see what He can do for them and what they can do for Him. I dream that every person who hears will desire to have the Lord God in their hearts and to live their life for Him.

My hope through this is that by sharing that first word, love, that I could spread the Gospel. I could show a few people and they would show a few people. Soon, the entire country would know God.

I strongly believe that once people hear this great news, they will begin to understand. They will understand the reasons why many people traveled to this country. They will understand why it is so important to preserve the freedom of religion. They will work to preserve it, believe it, and live it as our ancestors once did.

The Leading Edge of Winter

Early ice is the best. The line has become more a mantra than merely sage advice for those of us interested in catching winter walleyes. Early ice is the best ice. It's been pounded through the density of our skulls like an unmerciful catechism, daring us to question its validity.

Early ice is the best ice. The relentless drums continue to beat along the hillsides of our fishing imagination. Early ice is the best ice. And on Lake of the Woods, the walleye Mecca of the Upper Midwest, one thing is certainly true—early ice is the best ice.

You can always catch fish in the winter here. Thanks to healthy sauger and perch populations that kick into high gear on those frigid, sub-zero February mornings, your bobber will always move. But it's the early days of December, when the snow has yet to find firm purchase on the recently frozen lake and ice depths must be checked with religious regularity, that bring lasting ice-fishing memories. Numbers and size blend at this time of the year for the kind of fishing that need not be exaggerated.

For a lake that prides itself on "Bankers Hours Action," early winter is somewhat of a blip in the standard pattern. Saugers are available as a midday, deep water diversion, but the early and late hours of the day are when you need to have lines down. In a traditional fashion not characteristic of this lake, walleyes move into shallow water during these low light conditions. Local wisdom will suggest this is due to three factors.

First, the water is as clear as you'll see it all year, now protected from the turbulent wave action of the open water months. A dramatic decrease in current, as tributaries and other drainages lock up from the cold, minimizes the influx of dissolved solids that darken the water during summer. And a lack of snow cover (winter has just begun) gives ample light to the already clearer picture. In short, you can actually see down more than a foot.

Second, the water is still relatively warm (jump in during late February and you'll see what I mean). These fish not only have to answer to a constant, albeit somewhat slow, dairy metabolism, they also have to acknowledge the seasonal shut-down that's right around the corner. Feeding must take into account present and future needs. Going occasionally six mid-winter weeks without feeding, opportunities at pre-winter feeding cannot be ignored.

And third, the food that is most readily available for that early December binge is the current-seeking shiner minnow that has just left the now sluggish river (Isn't it neat when everything comes together the way it's supposed to?). The shiners have moved back to the main body of the lake, but hang in the shallows of the basin rim for a time before dispersing into the anonymity of the deep. Restricted to a food base that has yet to come to them, walleyes are forced into as vulnerable a position as they'll encounter all year.

Tackle is pretty straightforward. Anything from a sixteenth-ounce jig to a clunker of a Swedish Pimple will work. Pick a color to start and change until a pattern is established. Far more important than terminal tackle, however, is the soft touch of a panfisherman at the other end. As one local put it, "you have to know you're about to get a bite before you actually get it." Don't use a bobber here; save it for the saugers while you're playing cribbage during the lunch hour. This is a sensitivity game—feel the bite, be the bite.

Shiners, obviously, are the bait of choice. More effective and less knuckle-numbing than any club chased out of six inches of water from the bottom of a coffee can, a frozen wad of shiners demands little upkeep (put them in your parka pocket and they'll thaw at just the right clip) and is quite portable.

The runs are predictable. Fish from first light until the fish stop hitting, then move out deeper in two-foot increments. The afternoon shot is generally a mirror image of the morning. Remember, these are shallow, spooky fish, and running an auger excessively when they're up in six feet of water can defeat the whole purpose for being there in the first place.

I actually have a fishing buddy who won't even allow me to whoop it up on the big ones or lift my feet when moving from hole to hole. Shuffling, he claims, is quieter.

With the onset of winter, the run becomes shorter and the bite softens. What might be a two-hour heyday now will become four soft nudges in a five-minute span after the first 20-below-zero cold snap.

By early January, (maybe later this delayed season), most of the fishhouses will have moved to 30 feet of water in search of predictable action. Walleyes will continue to pop up sporadically all winter, adding the occasional stripe of green to a five-gallon pail full of brownish-tan saugers. But the ability to target strong concentrations of hungry walleyes will have to wait for the warmer times of March or the chance freakish warm stretch in mid-February.

An extended warm pattern like this year's is unprecedented; take advantage of it! Rumors are that sub-zero temperatures are right around the corner. If you join winter and walleyes in the same thought, like a renewed heartbeat, the familiar chant will gain strength once again. The insistent, almost nagging nature of the repetition forces a reluctant nod. You know it's true. Early ice is the best ice....early ice is the best ice....

HOW TO REGISTER

Registration for spring semester classes is now underway.

If you are a currently enrolled student, you should meet with a counselor or advisor to register for classes. Students owing tuition from a previous term cannot register until tuition is paid.

ADD/DROP PROCEDURE

The last day to add or drop a class for spring semester is January 18, 1999. You are responsible for notifying the Registrar's Office of any and all changes in your registration. All requests for a schedule change must be submitted on the Drop/Add form.

You are financially responsible for the number of credits you are registered for as of the first day of the semester. Tuition and Fees will not be adjusted for a reduction in course load after January 11. The money lost due to dropping a class may be applied toward the addition of another class but there will be no refunds given.

A 100% refund of tuition for dropping a class is allowed in the following situations only: a student's schedule is reduced for the convenience of the college, the college made an error, or student injury or illness requiring extensive hospital and/or convalescent care. A doctor's statement may be required.

TUITION AND FEES

Tuition and fees are due by the first day of the semester, January 11, 1999, unless it is being paid by a third party such as financial aid, CEP DVR, VA, PSEO, etc. If you are receiving assistance from CEP or DVR, you need to make sure the Business Office is aware of this so your bill can be deferred.

THE LAST DAY TO ADD OR DROP A CLASS FOR SPRING SEMESTER IS MONDAY, JANUARY 18, 1999. THE LAST DAY TO WITHDRAW FROM A CLASS IS THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1999.

Students dropping/withdrawing totally from the college are required to see a counselor to complete the appropriate paperwork to be refunded according to the following schedule.

FINANCIAL AID DISBURSEMENT DATE

Spring semester financial aid disbursement will begin on Monday, January 25, 1999. Students may pick up their checks at the Business Office. Hours will be posted.

PURCHASING BOOKS

You may purchase books at any time; however, in order to avoid the long lines at the beginning of each semester, we recommend that you buy your books early.

Paper Chase, the college bookstore, is located on the east side of the campus. Regular hours are 8:00 AM to 4:00 PM Monday through Friday. On the first week of classes, the bookstore will be open from 6:30 PM to 7:30 PM.

For your convenience, you may write a personal check, use VISA or MasterCard, or you can pay by cash. Charging is allowed for eligible students who are registered for spring semester and who have received and returned financial aid award letters. This includes students who returned their award letters fall semester. Students may charge to the extent that they have financial aid available after tuition costs.

FLEX '99 CLASSES

Flex classes are regular for-credit classes that are offered on a flexible basis for students who are not able to adapt their schedules to the regular course offerings. These courses are available to the general public, as well as to students who are enrolled in other traditional classes. Students are not required to work toward a diploma or degree.

Flex classes are designed to provide an opportunity for updating skills, to enroll on a part time basis, provide a non-threatening learning environment, and an educational setting where students may attend at times convenient to individual schedules.

To register for flex classes, contact the Registrar's office at 218-681-0875. If you have questions about flex classes, contact instructor Kathy Olson at 218-681-0860.

1999 SPRING CLASS SCHEDULE

January 11 - May 14, 1999

1101 Highway 1 East • Thief River Falls, MN 56701 • 218-681-0701 • 1-800-959-6282

HOW TO REGISTER

Registration for spring semester classes is now underway.

If you are a currently enrolled student, you should meet with a counselor or advisor to register for classes. Students owing tuition from a previous term cannot register until tuition is paid.

ADD/DROP PROCEDURE

The last day to add or drop a class for spring semester is January 18, 1999. You are responsible for notifying the Registrar's Office of any and all changes in your registration. All requests for a schedule change must be submitted on the Drop/Add form.

You are financially responsible for the number of credits you are registered for as of the first day of the semester. Tuition and Fees will not be adjusted for a reduction in course load after January 11. The money lost due to dropping a class may be applied toward the addition of another class but there will be no refunds given.

A 100% refund of tuition for dropping a class is allowed in the following situations only: a student's schedule is reduced for the convenience of the college, the college made an error, or student injury or illness requiring extensive hospital and/or convalescent care. A doctor's statement may be required.

TUITION AND FEES

Tuition and fees are due by the first day of the semester, January 11, 1999, unless it is being paid by a third party such as financial aid, CEP, DVR, VA, PSEO, etc. If you are receiving assistance from CEP or DVR, you need to make sure the Business Office is aware of this so your bill can be deferred.

THE LAST DAY TO ADD OR DROP A CLASS FOR SPRING SEMESTER IS MONDAY, JANUARY 18, 1999. THE LAST DAY TO WITHDRAW FROM A CLASS IS THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1999.

Students dropping/withdrawing totally from the college are required to see a counselor to complete the appropriate paperwork to be refunded according to the following schedule:

Tuition (non-Residents)	$133.20 per credit

Student Life	$ 4.50 per credit
Technology Fee	$ 4.00 per credit

Northern Lights University Students: An off campus delivery fee is charged for classes delivered by an instructor in-person to off-campus sites. The fee is $102.60 per credit. This includes tuition and all fees.

FINANCIAL AID DISBURSEMENT DATE

Spring semester financial aid disbursement will begin on Monday, January 25, 1999. Students may pick up their checks at the Business Office. Hours will be posted.

PURCHASING BOOKS

You may purchase books at any time; however, in order to avoid the long lines at the beginning of each semester, we recommend that you buy your books early.

Paper Chase, the college bookstore, is located on the east side of the campus. Regular hours are 8:00 AM to 4:00 PM Monday through Friday. On the first week of classes, the bookstore will be open from 6:30 PM to 7:30 PM.

For your convenience, you may write a personal check, use VISA or MasterCard, or you can pay by cash. Charging is allowed for eligible students who are registered for spring semester and who have received and returned their award letters. This includes students who returned their award letters fall semester. Students may charge to the extent that they have financial aid available after tuition costs.

FLEX '99 CLASSES

Flex classes are regular for-credit classes that are offered on a flexible basis for students who are not able to adapt their schedules to the regular course offerings. These courses are available to the general public, as well as to students who are enrolled in other traditional classes. Students are not required to work toward a diploma or degree.

Flex classes are designed to provide an opportunity for updating skills, to enroll on a part time basis, provide a non-threatening learning environment, and an educational setting where students may attend at times convenient to individual schedules.

To register for flex classes, contact the Registrar's office at 218-681-0875. If you have questions about flex classes, contact instructor Kathy Olson at 218-681-0850.

Northland Invitational girls basketball tournament...

Storm, Prowlers reach finals

Stephen-Argyle and Thief River Falls were semifinal round winners Tuesday in the 1998 Northland Community and Technical College Invitational girls high school basketball tournament.

The Storm rallied to knock off Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 47-43 and the Prowlers pulled away in the fourth quarter en route to a 49-36 victory over Tri-County.

Red Lake County Central handled Kittson County North 56-25 and Marshall County Central got by Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 54-40 in the consolation semifinals.

It was the second come-from-behind victory of the tournament for Stephen-Argyle. Monday, the Storm trailed defending champion Red Lake County Central by seven points with two minutes to play before winning 51-50 on a length-of-the-court drive to the basket by junior guard Amy Kuznia with seven seconds left.

Kuznia was at it again Tuesday with a game-high 18-point effort. Her team, down by as many as 10 in the third quarter, trailed 33-25 heading into the final period. A 3-point shot by Kuznia tied it at 37-37 with 3:41 to play and moments later two free throws by Abbey Bergeron provided the Storm with a 39-37 lead they never relinquished.

A 3-pointer by Kuznia with 30 seconds left gave the winners with a 44-39 cushion.

Two free throws by the Gators' Tara Schonkey made it a two-point game at 45-43, but with just 30 seconds on the clock. A quick foul put Amber Kuznia at the line and she capped the Storm victory with a pair of free throws.

Tri-County trailed Thief River Falls just 39-34 through three quarters, but could come up with one basket over the final eight minutes.

The Wildcats' only fourth quarter points came on an inside move by Joni Gunderson with 2:51 remaining to make it 43-36.

Afton Hanson of Tri-County hit four 3-point shots and finished with a game-high 21 points. Thief River Falls countered with a strong inside game that netted 14 points each for Nicole Kopari and Sara Jensen. Kopari, after several near-misses this year, recorded a triple-double in the contest with 10 rebounds and 10 assists to go along with her 14 points.

Sylvia Hilgeman scored 23 points in the Red Lake County Central win over turnover-prone Kittson County North.

Marshall County Central was an eye-opening 18-for-20 at the free throw line in the win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke. The Nordics trailed 41-37 through three quarters. Katie Kilen led the Nordics with 15 points, while Dana Wiseth had 13 to lead the Wolverines.

Warroad pulls away in final period, tops B/G-MR boys 62-47

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River watched a two-point third quarter deficit turn into a 15-point, 62-47 boys high school basketball loss to Warroad Tuesday.

After a 10-10 first quarter tie, Warroad took a 31-28 edge into halftime and had a slim 42-40 lead at the start of the fourth quarter.

"We didn't play that bad for three quarters," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, "but we just did not generate any offense in the fourth quarter. I really can't explain what happened. They play good defense, and we just couldn't get anything going."

A 3-point basket helped Warroad quickly turned the two-point third quarter edge into a 47-40 advantage to start the fourth quarter, putting the host Gators on their heels down the stretch. "They hit a couple of quick shots and we started to panic," explained Sparby. "We quit doing the things that had been working for us."

Four Warroad scorers hit double figures, led by Mike Peterson with 19 points. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a balanced attack, too, but did not have a double figure point producer.

The Gators shot only 32 percent from the field (18-57) and went 9-for-16 at the free throw line. The winners went 24-for-54 from the floor (44 percent) and 11-for-19 at the line. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a 41-36 rebound advantage.

It was the third straight loss to open the season for the Gators.

Huskies' mistakes lead to loss

Roseau jumped out to a 19-9 first quarter lead and went on to beat visiting Goodridge 58-50 Tuesday in boys high school basketball.

It was the fourth loss in five starts for the Huskies, who played the Rams on even terms over the final three quarters. It was 33-22 at halftime and 44-37 at the end of the third quarter.

Mistakes, a common problem for the Huskies during the early portion of the season, cost them again, according to head coach Eric Mickelson. "We threw the ball away too many times – silly mistakes," he pointed out. "They weren't pressing and we still made bad choices. I hate to sound like a broken record, but once again we beat ourselves."

The Rams played without their best player, Isaac Lang, sidelined by a leg injury, but won with a balanced attack led by Aaron Anderson with 15 points. Dustin Marquis had a 14-point game to lead the Huskies.

"Roseau has a good team, but without Lang, I felt we had a good chance to win the game," noted Mickelson. "The kids are working hard, but I'm still looking for the right combinations to get the job done."

Goodridge was 19-for-51 from the field (37 percent), while Roseau went 19-for-44 (43 percent). The Rams had an edge at the free throw line, where they were 14-for-22, compared to a 6-for-13 showing by the Huskies.

Roseau out-rebounded Goodridge 34-25. "That's been a problem all year," pointed out Mickelson. "We're just not aggressive enough on the boards. We're not blocking out like we should. We're too tentative; too passive around the basket."

Goodridge turned it over 17 times. Roseau lost the ball 15 times.

Scoring

Roseau - Mike Salberg 6, Nathan Anderson 4, Adam Pevek 2, Justin Hendrickson 14, Dustin Martens 11, Aaron Anderson 15, Nick Harling 6.

The Prowlers' Sara Jensen went above Joni Gunderson of Tri-County for this rebound during Tuesday's semifinal match-up in the Northland Community and Technical College Invitational girls high school basketball tournament. Thief River Falls won the game 49-36.

High school wrestling...

Roseau squad pins 64-6 dual meet loss on Thief River Falls

Roseau handled Thief River Falls 64-6 Tuesday in a high school wrestling dual that dropped the host Prowlers' record to 1-5.

Only Thief River Falls wins came from eighth grader Jeremy Anderson with a 15-2 decision at 103 pounds and freshman Beau Abrahamson with an 8-6 overtime decision at 119 – up a weight from his normal 112 pound slot in the line-up.

According to Thief River Falls head coach Rick Yanke, his team's performance didn't match the efforts turned in during the Prowler Invitational Saturday, when they beat East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 58-0, lost to champion Walker-Hackensack-Akeley/Nevis 54-15 and dropped a close 39-35 decision to Red Lake County Central in the round-robin dual format.

"Roseau is stacked," pointed out Yanke, "and we were down from the weekend. There were four matches we could have won, but we were either gassed in the third period or we just didn't have that extra push to get it done."

Junior Josh Jensen, a recent addition to the team, wrestled well in a loss at 171 pounds, noted Yanke.

Jacks' depth beats Prowler swimmers

Both teams put strong swimmers in the pool Tuesday, but Bemidji had more of them and went on to out-score Thief River Falls 99-65 in a dual meet boys high school match-up at the Franklin Middle School pool.

It was the 1998-99 home opener for the Prowlers, who made their season debut the previous Saturday with a second place finish at the Fergus Falls Invitational.

"Finishing second at Fergus Falls was a good boost for our kids," said first-year Thief River Falls coach John Vukmanich. "They're doing a good job. Time-wise, we're fine. We just don't have the numbers to compete with the bigger schools like Bemidji. But we'll be okay."

The Prowlers' Zach Olson won the 100 butterfly and 500 freestyle races. Three other Thief River Falls wins came in events that Bemidji did not enter varsity competitors – diving and the final two races of the meet when the outcome had already been decided.

Thief River Falls won the junior varsity portion of the meet 62-55.

"The junior varsity kids are doing really great," noted Vukmanich. "Because of the numbers, we are using freshmen and eighth graders in the varsity races, so our junior varsity is really young."

RLCC boys are back in win column, 58-55

■ Mustangs beat Fisher/Climax

Red Lake County Central boys snapped a three-game losing streak Tuesday with a 58-55 high school basketball win over Fisher/Climax.

The 3-3 Mustangs had narrow quarter leads of 12-11, 30-26 and 43-42.

Mark Lorenson and Nick Waldal led the winners with 17 and 16 points, respectively, while Darren Vanek contributed 11 points. James Midboe scored a game-high 22 points for the host Knights.

It was a solid team effort, according to Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "I was real pleased with my role players off the bench," he said. "Cole Mickelson and Heath Rosten came in and did an excellent job. Nick and Mark will always be there. We're looking for others to step forward, and that's what they did."

Red Lake County Central shot 46 percent from the field (22/48) and went 8-for-11 at the free throw line. Fisher/Climax shot 49 percent from the floor (24/49) and had a 4-for-7 free throw night. The Knights had a 24-21 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 15-10.

Deer harvest figures listed by DNR show 12 percent increase

Results from the 1998 firearms deer season show that Minnesota hunters harvested 142,000 deer, a 12 percent increase from the 127,000 deer taken by firearms hunters in 1997, the Department of Natural Resources reported this week. The 1998 harvest was the seventh highest ever recorded in Minnesota.

The improved hunting was expected as a result of the very mild winter last year and the continuing recovery of northern deer herds from losses the previous two winters. Also, crop harvests were largely completed prior to the season in most areas. That provided less escape cover for deer in agricultural areas. There was generally favorable weather throughout the season, especially on weekends when most hunting activity takes place.

Harvest increases were highest in the northeast, where harvests were up 59 percent from 1997. Most of this area was restricted to bucks-only-hunting for the third consecutive year. Dave Schad, who oversees the DNR deer management program, said DNR wildlife managers were very encouraged by the number of deer that hunters were seeing and shooting this fall.

"While we certainly are not back to where we were prior to the two consecutive severe winters, the increase in buck harvest confirms that there has been significant recovery taking place," Schad said. He attributed this recovery to the restrictions on harvest of antlerless deer that DNR has implemented, and the remarkably mild and relatively snow-free winter last year. "The severity of last winter was the lowest we have ever recorded, and the northern deer herd obviously benefitted," added Schad. Harvests also increased in the east-central (22 percent) and northwest (10 percent) portions of Minnesota.

Deer harvest generally declined in the south. Twin Cities metro area harvest dropped 12 percent from last year, while the west and southwest showed a 5 percent drop, and the southeast a 1 percent decline. These declines likely reflect lingering effects of the severe blizzards two winters ago and aggressive antlerless permit quotas and harvests in recent years.

"Harvest in some areas of the southwest was actually higher than we expected or would have liked," Schad said. He indicated that antlerless permit quotas were reduced by 18 percent in this area of the state in an attempt to reduce harvest. "Deer populations have been reduced in much of this area. We will be taking a closer look at populations in this area of the state to determine the need for further harvest restrictions next year," Schad said.

Final harvest figures for the late-season archery and muzzleloader seasons should be available in early 1999.

Nels and Eva Nelson married 74 years

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

"For better or worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health..." Those are words from the traditional wedding vows Nels and Eva Nelson said to each other on December 17, 1924.

On Thursday afternoon the couple celebrated their 74th wedding anniversary in the first floor dining room of the C & NC unit at Northwest Medical Center.

Nels is 97 and was born on November 13, 1901 in Oslo, Norway. He came to the United States with his family when he was two years old. Eva is 94 and was born on November 29, 1904 in Rolette, North Dakota.

The couple met in a grain field in Michigan, North Dakota. "I was working in the cook car, and he was pitching bundles," Eva said.

Nels was from Baudette, and Eva was from Shevlin. They were married at the parsonage in Bagley. Eva's sister, Frances, and Nels' cousin, Leander, went along and witnessed the occasion.

When asked about the weather on December 17, 1924, Eva recalled the day like it was yesterday. "It started out as a nice day," Eva said. "But we got caught in a storm on the way home. Our car quit, and we had to walk eight miles!"

Nels and Eva made their home near Leonard for the first five years before moving to Rolette, North Dakota and then to Scobey, Montana. They returned to northwestern Minnesota in 1928 just nine days before their third son was born. For most of the last 60 years they've lived in the Middle River and Newfolden areas.

Nels and Eva had five children. Their oldest son, Kenny, died last year. Art and Ed live in Strandquist. Donnie resides in Apache Junction, Arizona, and their daughter, Delores Westerlund, makes her home in Middle River.

Through the years the family tree has grown to include 24 grandchildren, 50 great-grandchildren and 22 great-great-grandchildren.

Nels worked as a laborer, and there was always plenty of available work. During the warm months he worked on farms. Through the winter he cut wood and cleared brush along the roadsides for the contractors who built new roads throughout the area. "Dad was always working," Ed said. "He never sat around waiting for unemployment or someone else to take care of him."

"He mowed his own lawn up until a few years ago," Art added.

Eva worked at home taking care of her family. She raised a big garden, its bounty filling the pantry and feeding the family through the winter months.

Along the way, the couple also owned a restaurant in Newfolden and the Sportsmen's Club in Middle River.

Three of Nels and Eva's four sons served in the military.

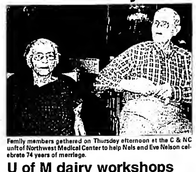
The boys nicknamed their dad "Rover." It seems Nels liked to chase deer while his sons posted. "I gave him a cap with 'Rover' printed on it a couple of years ago," Ed laughed. "He loved to hunt and fish." More tales revealed that Nels "started chewing (tobacco) when he was 12 and still does."

Three of the Nelson children, Art, Ed and Delores, attended the gathering on Thursday as did Kenny's wife, Annabelle who lives in Strathcona. Grandchildren and great-grandchildren were also on hand to share cake and ice cream and extend their congratulations.

While Nels' eyesight is poor, he was still able to reach down to pick up a cap. It had fallen to the floor after Art was told to take it off for a family photograph and had jokingly placed it on his mother's head.

Nels entertained the group with an occasional song, too. With a clear voice he sang in Norwegian and his favorite, "How Great Thou Art," in English. "Someone put an apple in his mouth," Eva jested. "He's just doing this because I told him not to."

The party included a lot of good-natured banter between the siblings and their parents and revealed more about the happy family than a detailed history could.



Up until a couple months ago, Nels and Eva lived and took care of each other in their own home. Eva moved to the C & NC unit on October 30, and Nels followed on November 2. Before their family surprised them with the party on Thursday, they had played Bingo with other C & NC residents. "I got skunked at Bingo," Eva said. "I usually win!"

During their 74-year union the couple has seen many changes. "We sure have . . . from Model-T Fords to snowmobiles!" Eva said. And while she doesn't remember much about their first Christmas together, she's mighty impressed with the small Christmas tree one of her granddaughters brought her this year. "It talks!" Eva exclaimed.

What did she have to say about their long marriage? "Well, I don't know," she began. "It was pretty hard sometimes. But, where there's a will, there's a way."

As guests began to leave the gathering, Nels said, "It was so nice to see all of you." Grandchildren assured him that they'd be back over the Christmas holiday. "I sure hope so," he said as he lovingly squeezed their hands.

When it came to words of wisdom for young couples today, Eva didn't think she had any advice. The old adage about perseverance she'd mentioned when talking about her own long marriage, however, can easily serve as counsel to others — "Where there's a will, there's a way."

Family members gathered on Thursday afternoon at the C & NC unit of Northwest Medical Center to help Nels and Eva Nelson celebrate 74 years of marriage.

U of M dairy workshops for family members

Balancing work and family and managing life changes are key issues affecting all dairy farm families. These issues are part of an array of dairy family, production, career and consumer topics that will receive attention at Saturday workshops in early 1999 at three Minnesota locations.

The workshops will have programming designed for producers and their spouses, as well as students, consumers, educators, public officials, dairy advisors and agribusinesses. The University of Minnesota Extension Service is planning the workshops in cooperation with several other units of the University.

"The Dairy Industry and the U" workshops will be January 9 at the University of Minnesota, Crookston; January 23 at Zumbrota-Mazeppa High School; and February 6 at Melrose High School.

Each workshop will contain four sets of three concurrent sessions lasting 45 minutes each. There will be a presentation on family issues during each session. Other presentations will center on dairy production, dairy products, and/or careers. Program content will vary somewhat with each location.

Additional family topics on the agenda at one or more locations include coping with stress, gender differences in problem solving, farm transfer and role of spouses on and off the farm. Sessions on production will cover such topics as dairy diagnostics, cow nutrition, monitoring the dairy barn environment and calving interval. Sessions for students will cover dairy industry opportunities and careers. Among the consumer topics are nutrition and health benefits of dairy foods, dairy food safety, new product development and dairy's economic impact.

Each site will have posters and booths on management of intensive grazing, alfalfa leaf meal, feeding sunflower products, parlor profiles, Johne's disease and Bovatec for growing heifers.

There is no charge for the workshops, which will begin with registration and refreshments at 9:45 a.m. and conclude at 2:45 p.m. Lunch will be provided at all locations. For additional information or a flyer with a list of topics and speakers for each location, contact your county extension office.

Reservations come slowly for Christmas Eve dinner

Reservations for the annual Thief River Falls community Christmas Eve dinner are coming in slowly with less than 100 received at the Chamber of Commerce office late this week. The dinner will be served at two seatings between 4 and 6 p.m. December 24 at the Evergreen Eating Emporium.

The total reservations received to date include those who will attend the dinner and those who have requested that meals be delivered.

Dinner, rides and delivered meals can be reserved until the end of the day on December 23 by calling the Chamber of Commerce at 681-3720 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Those planning to attend the dinner are asked to make their reservations for either the 4-4:30 p.m. seating or the 5-5:30 p.m. seating.

Donations are also being accepted to assist with costs of the dinner. They may be sent to the Chamber of Commerce at 2017 Highway 59 E, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Organizers of the dinner note that there are a number of areas where volunteers will be needed to serve and deliver meals to the approximately 500 people expected to participate. Many volunteers have assisted with the dinner for a number of years and include it as part of their Christmas observance.

Persons wishing to volunteer also are asked to call the Chamber of Commerce office. If they intend to eat dinner there they are asked to make a dinner reservation as well. Volunteers may sign up for only a portion of the time required for the tasks the committee has outlined.

Following are the volunteer needs and information regarding each area of work:

Drivers—Approximately 30 drivers will be needed to deliver meals to homes. Each person should bring a cooler that will hold approximately five hot dinner packs. The cooler should be filled with hot water until just before departing from the Evergreen Eating Emporium. Each person will be paired with another driver to deliver 10 dinners. Drivers will be needed from 3 p.m. until all meals are delivered.

Service Area—Approximately a dozen people will be needed to serve turkey, dressing, potatoes, gravy and beans and to cut pies and place the pieces on plates. Servers will be needed from 3:15 to 6 p.m.

Dishwashers—Three workers will be needed to wash dishes and pans using a commercial dishwasher and return clean dishes to the service area. Dishwashers will be needed from 3:30 until possibly 7:30 p.m.

Waiters and Waitresses: Thirty people will be needed from 3:45 to 6 p.m. to serve the dinner guests.

Clean-up—Five to 10 volunteers will be needed to clear and clean tables and re-set them for the next day. Duties will start at 6 p.m. and continue until the task is finished.

Special Needs—During the period from 3 to 6 p.m., two persons will be needed to serve coffee, two to serve bread and lefse, two to serve punch, one to make coffee and one to pour punch.

Number of people attending the dinner and/or receiving delivered meals has increased each year. The Chamber of Commerce and dinner planners would appreciate having reservations for the dinner made as soon as possible.

Over $400 was raised for the Christmas for Pennington County project by the Elk's Club in Thief River Falls. The funds for the donation were raised during the Elk's Club Annual Spaghetti Supper. In addition to the cash donation, the Elk's club was able to make a canned food donation of over 100 pounds to the Area Food Shelf. The canned food items were also raised during the supper. For a donation of one canned food item, a child could have his or her picture taken with Santa. Above, Steve Stone of the Elk's Club presents a donation to Wendy Mattson, a Christmas for Pennington County organizer.

"We got her when she was just a couple of years old," Jenny said. "In all my years of competition she has been the only horse I've ever ridden. Our high point was a few years ago when we won first place in pole weaving at the state 4-H horse show. It was the last event of the show, the last time I would ever ride in 4-H competition and the first time we had won a first place at the state show. That made it extra special."

While Jenny has not ruled out riding Lady in games competition at area shows next year, she will ride the veteran mare in no more Appaloosa shows and plans to retire her soon. "She will live out her life at home," Jenny said. "I'll never sell her."

If she hopes to go back to the world show again, Jenny will have to develop a younger horse. She has a four-year-old now named Revie which she has shown at halter and ridden in a couple of pleasure classes, but needs a lot of work to compete in games. And the Taggarts also have a yearling which has promise and may become Jenny's horse of the future.

"I won't go back (to the World Championship) unless I feel I have a horse that can compete," she said, "because it's so expensive. The entry fee is $85 a class and the stall fee was $150 for the show—not including shavings (which you had to buy there) and feed. And there is the cost of travel and motels."

To prepare for the world show, Jenny had to cram a lot of work with Lady into the weekends. She worked virtually full-time as a welder's helper at Arctic Cat—where she has been employed for four years on snowmobile and ATV assembly lines—then started classes at Northland Community and Technical college in late August, carrying 15 credits in sales, marketing and management while continuing to hold her job.

In addition to her Appaloosa success this year, Jenny earned a high point trophy from the Northern Riders Saddle Club at Roseau and another from the Glacial Ridge Appaloosa club. She was reserve high point winner in the pleasure class as well.

Trophies and ribbons are in abundant supply at the Taggart farm—but the ribbon from the world championships will rank right up there with the state 4-H first place trophy. Jenny and Lady got them the old fashioned way—they earned them.

MCC board to hold special organization meeting January 4

Special meeting of the Marshall County Central board of education will take place Monday, January 4, at 8 p.m. in the high school conference room in Newfolden. Other agenda items will also be considered at the meeting.

Regular January meeting has been changed from January 19 to January 21 at 7 p.m., also in the conference room.

Collection of trophies was earned by Jenny Taggart of rural Newfolden while competing in registered Appaloosa as well as open horse shows this summer. The ribbon at left in the photo was earned for seventh place at the Appaloosa World Championship Horse Show recently in Ft. Worth, TX. Jenny's trophy belt buckle from the World Championships is a gift from her parents, Jim and Marlene Taggart.

Ralph Engelstad gives $100 million to UND

Former Thief River Falls resident Ralph Engelstad, owner of the Imperial Palace Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, NV, and the Imperial Palace riverboat casino in Biloxi, MS, visited Grand Forks, ND, Thursday to announce his donation of $100 million to the University of North Dakota.

A goalie on the UND hockey team for several years prior to his graduation in 1954, Engelstad said $40 million to $50 million of his gift is to be used to build a new hockey arena. No specifics were announced for use of the remaining $50 to $60 million. The total donation is believed to be one of the largest private gifts ever given to a university in the United States.

In typical Ralph Engelstad fashion, the philanthropic businessman flew into Grand Forks in his private jet, announced the gift in a brief statement, then left for his Biloxi holdings without granting interviews.

Engelstad had previously granted funds to UND, including a pledge of $5 million in 1988 to set up the Ralph and Betty Engelstad Endowment—the same year the existing UND hockey facility was named the Ralph Engelstad Arena.

A preliminary design for the new arena was revealed and includes a regulation or slightly larger ice sheet, seating for up to 12,000 people in two decks, eight locker rooms, 12 luxury suites for 12 people each, four party boxes for 24 people each, lounge, kitchenette and executive and box offices.

The new arena is to be built near the intersection of Gateway Drive and Columbia Road on the UND campus.

Lincoln FFA enters several events at Ag Activities Day

Members of the newly-formed FFA chapter at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls participated recently in Ag Activities Day at the University of Minnesota in Crookston. About 1,200 students were in attendance at the event.

Representing the Lincoln FFA were Jenny Novak, floriculture; Greg Homme, Todd Christensen and Garrett Novak, ag mechanics; Andrew Solem, general livestock judging; and Melissa Clark and Miranda Nelson horse judging.

According to ADawn McLean, vocational agriculture instructor and FFA advisor for School District 564, agricultural education classes will begin on February 2 in room 141 at Lincoln. The room will be renovated over the Christmas break and part of January.

McLean said she met with the district's PER committee December 17 for curriculum review of classes in horticulture, plant science and animal science.

Frostbite Days at Roseau features snowmobile ride

Three days of events are being planned for the first Frostbite Days celebration at Roseau January 1-3. Included will be the "largest and longest snowmobile ride" from Roseau to the Canadian border and back on Friday, January 1, starting at 11 a.m.

Everyone is invited to participate in the snowmobile ride. On the return, riders will have options for various tours to Buffalo Point, ice fishing on Lake of the Woods or a visit to Beltrami Island State Forest.

Also on January 1 at 9 a.m. will be a race on skates at the fairgrounds to determine who is "the" fastest on ice. Competition will be by age or by hockey leagues.

Saturday, January 2, MPR Pro Ice hot laps will begin at 9 a.m. with David and Eleanor Johnson as grand marshall of the Parade on Ice. David is one of the founders of Polaris Industries and will be a 1999 inductee into the Snowmobile Racing Hall of Fame.

Other past racers will be introduced along with members of the Polaris Thrill Team. A total of 21 classes of racing will take place during the day on the flat track ice. The day will close with a snow dance at the Roseau city auditorium.

Sunday events January 3 will include the MPR Pro Ice finals at the fairgrounds beginning at 9 a.m. A racers' banquet will be held at 5 p.m. in the auditorium.

During all three days a display of Polaris snowmobiles of the past will be open to the public. Persons who have questions about Frostbite Days activities may call 1-800-815-1824.

Prowler Hall of Fame wants nominations

Nominations for the 1999 Prowler Hall of Fame are now being sought.

The following categories are considered in the selections process: Outstanding Musical Performer, Outstanding Artistic Performer, Outstanding Athlete, Outstanding Director, Advisor, Coach, or Outstanding Community Service.

For more information and a nomination form contact: Lincoln High School Activities Office, 101 South Knight Ave., Thief River Falls, MN 56701. The nomination deadline is March 1, 1999.

The Hall of Fame banquet is scheduled for Saturday, May 1, 1999, at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

District winners selected in Voice of Democracy

Ninth District winners have been selected in the annual Voice of Democracy contest, according to Roy Jorgenson, chairman of the Voice of Democracy project for Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 in Thief River Falls.

Bair Knorr of Moorhead was first, Sharon Altepeter of Crookston second, Lana Brensnan of Fergus Falls third and Missy Lien of Fergus Falls fourth.

In the contest sponsored by Post 2793, chairman Roy Jorgenson said two entries were received—both from Plummer. Mike Hanson, grade 11, was awarded $50 for first place and Sarah Hagge, grade 10, received $35 for second. Mike's taped speech was sent on for judging at the district level.

Jorgenson said that the district winner advances to state competition and the state winner moves on to the national event where $128,500 is available for college scholarships and the national winner receives a $20,000 scholarship.

The winning entries are published as guest editorials in today's issue of the Northern Watch.

Dupree donates Furby to brighten child's Christmas

able to buy one for the regular price of about $30 when the store's allotment of about three dozen dolls was received. Kurt said he had intended to give the furry little toy to his God-child for Christmas but, when he saw a notice posted offering to sell one Furby for $500 or two for $800, "it made me mad. I decided to give mine away."

He approached The Times/Northern Watch with the idea of a contest. Although the time before Christmas is short, it is anticipated enough entries will be received to conduct the contest.

Card of Thanks

THANK YOU

The family of Jerome "Joe" Skibicki would like to thank everyone who showed our family care, concern and thoughtfulness during this difficult time. A very special thank you to Deacon John Elsbrener for his heartfelt homily and his friendship to Joe, Father Dennis Wieland for his kind words and presiding at the Mass, Kristie, Judy and Cathy for their beautiful music, Al for reading and the alter servers who assisted with the Mass, the volunteers who prepared and served the delicious lunch, Sally Nelson for the prayer service at the Wake, and to those we failed to mention by name. Thanks to those who brought food to the house, said comforting words, and shared in our grief. It hasn't gone unnoticed. Joe was a wonderful father, grandfather, brother, and friend who will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

TAKE A POWER TRIP.

The Arctic Cat® 500 4x4 was designed to dominate the competition in every category of performance. It features a powerful four-stroke, 493cc liquid-cooled engine that has more torque than the Yamaha Grizzly™ 600. As for ride comfort and superior handling, nothing tops its fully independent double A-arm front and semi-independent rear suspension. After all, just because the 500 is big doesn't mean it can't be sensitive.

Area cities receive insurance dividends

Several area cities have received dividends from the League of Minnesota Cities Insurance Trust. The trust is a self-insurance risk pool made up of Minnesota cities.

Dividends to area cities were as follows: Alvarado $216, Argyle $7,696, Brooks $468, Goodridge $2,475, Goodridge Area Fire Department $1,333, Grygla $2,303, Middle River $1,576, Newfolden $3,570, Oklee $3,955, Oslo $3,881, Plummer $3,552, Red Lake Falls $11,773, Stephen $9,899, Strandquist $481, St Hilaire $2,910, Thief River Falls $73,579, Viking $766, and Warren $15,885.

Despite the worst run of storm losses in its history, the League of Minnesota Cities Insurance Trust (LMCIT) is still able to return a $10 million dividend and to provide coverage for risks associated with the Year 2000 (Y2k) problem. The insurance trust is a cooperative, self-insurance risk pool made up of Minnesota cities. Rather than paying premiums to insurance companies, cities instead, contribute funds to a joint pool and use those pooled funds to cover their losses. If the funds aren't needed for losses, cities get the money back as a dividend.

The tornadoes, straight-line winds, hail and other storm activity this past spring had a significant impact on Minnesota cities. Total storm losses incurred by LMCIT members since last March are around $19 million.

While there's no question this was a major hit to the LMCIT, the trust is still able to return a sizable dividend for two main reasons: 1) LMCIT's reinsurance covers the bulk of the property losses, and 2) liability is a much bigger percentage of total LMCIT claims and losses than property, so even significant swings in property losses don't have that great an impact overall.

DuWayne Heyd surprised by his musical success

by Kathi Carlson
Northern Watch Reporter

Breaking into the music industry is tough for most aspiring musicians. That hasn't been the case for singer/songwriter DuWayne Heyd of Grand Forks. It just "kind of happened" for Heyd, and no one is more surprised about it than he is.

Perhaps the message hit home in September when his third album, Goin' Country Style, was named Country Album of the Year by Air Play International, an independent record-charting system. While he had tickets to the September 26 banquet in Nashville, DuWayne didn't attend. "I could kick myself," he told the Grand Forks Herald.

Area country music enthusiasts will have the chance to hear him as DuWayne and his eight-member Opry Style Band perform at 7 p.m. on Friday, January 1 at the American Legion in Middle River.

DuWayne Heyd

The Road to Success

Through the years as he worked in his business and raised his family, song writing was what DuWayne refers to as a "private hobby." For nearly 27 years he has owned and operated Heyd Concrete and Fencing, a general contracting business in Grand Forks.

In 1996 DuWayne decided that he would like to make a tape of his original songs. "I just wanted it for my own use," he said. Song in My Heart was recorded at Maury Finney's Platinum Sound Studio in East Grand Forks and produced under the Slade Records label. Slade Records is owned by Gary Emerson, one of the musicians who provided back up music for the album. The recording project took an entire year and was completed in January of 1997.

When DuWayne evacuated from Grand Forks to Devils Lake during the flood of 1997 he took a copy of his recently completed CD with him. While there, he took it to a Devils Lake country music radio station, KZZY, to see if there was any interest in airing his music.

To DuWayne's surprise the station not only aired his songs, but a disc jockey put him in touch with a Nashville producer, Butch Paulson. Paulson handles artists on independent labels and contracted with DuWayne to promote his songs to radio stations throughout the country.

Locally, DuWayne gained notoriety when, while still evacuated, he

Public information meet on Vesledahl project January 7

Public information meeting to respond to issues related to the proposed Vesledahl wetland mitigation project in Winger and Garden townships of Polk county has been set for Thursday, January 7, from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Winger city hall.

Joining in hosting the information meeting are the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT), Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BOWSR) and Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (Mn/DNR).

The meeting will begin in an open house style format which will last until 5:30 p.m. This time period will give interested persons an opportunity to get a close look at detailed maps of the proposed project site.

Beginning at 5:30 p.m. a panel presentation will be given by representatives of Mn/DOT, BOWSR and Mn/DNR which will address concerns raised at a public meeting held August 12, also at the city hall in Winger. This panel portion of the meeting will be facilitated to provide feedback to design, social and land management issues surrounding the proposed project.

Some area residents attending the meeting on August 12 from 4 to 7 p.m. complained that attendance was low because of harvest which was in full swing on a warm and dry summer day. About 40 people were in attendance at that informal format meeting.

Minnesota Department of Transportation proposes to acquire 1,886 acres of farmland from Steve and Bob Vesledahl, primarily at a site two miles west of Winger, at a purchase price of approximately $1.2 million. Purpose of the acquisition is to develop a wetland restoration project that will be used by Mn/DOT and BOWSR to offset wetland impacts that cannot be mitigated on site for state, county and township road construction projects in northwest Minnesota.

Under Minnesota law, wetland areas lost to road construction projects must be mitigated (replaced) either on-site or in another location to achieve the state's goal of no net loss of wetlands. Depending on the type and location of wetland affected by construction, replacement may be on a one-for-one, two-for-one or greater number of acres per acre destroyed.

The Vesledahl project is being designed and would be constructed by the Board of Water and Soil Resources to restore approximately 600 acres of land to its pre-agricultural wetland status. This would be done by placing 117 ditch plugs to back up water into potholes on the property. The remaining non-wetland acreage in the nearly 1,900-acre project would be planted to native grasses.

Once the wetland restoration would be complete, control of the property would be turned over to the Mn/DNR and designated as a Wildlife Management Area.

At and following the August 12 public meeting in Winger, residents of the area expressed concern over the loss of privately-owned land in the two townships and the affect of that loss on school, county and township taxes. Concern was also expressed that ditch plugs on the property to restore wetlands could impede drainage from surrounding private lands. It is expected those issues will be addressed at the January 7 meeting.

The Winger city hall is accessible to the handicapped. For special accommodation needs or to request an auxiliary aid, contact Duane Hill, preliminary design engineer at 218-755-4521 by January 5 so that arrangements can be made.

Interested individuals who are unable to attend the meeting and have questions regarding the project are invited to contact Michael Kamnikar, Mn/DOT district wetlands coordinator, 39819 Highway 3 West, P.O. Box 490, Bemidji, MN 56619 or call 218-755-4521.

Krause greenhouse goal exceeded

Thanks to a second successful "Santa's Penny Wars" fund raiser at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls, a greenhouse which had been the dream of the late Al Krause is likely to become a reality at the school.

Krause, popular science teacher at Franklin, died of cancer about two years ago and a fund was established to raise the money to build a greenhouse. The fund-raising goal was set at $20,000.

A number of fund-raising projects have been conducted for the greenhouse, including the first Santa's Penny Wars a year ago. That promotion raised $3,021 which was matched dollar for dollar by the Franklin student council from money raised through other student activities and projects.

According to Diane Marshall, an eighth grade geography teacher who has headed the greenhouse project, the fund had risen to about $13,500 late this fall. The student council again pledged to match the amount raised through the second annual Santa's Penny Wars and a goal was set to raise $3,250. Combined with the matching donation from the student council, that amount would close the gap between the $13,500 on hand and the $20,000 goal.

Rural water project to serve users at Florian

Representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Marshall and Polk Rural Water System and the City of Florian met in Warren Monday, December 21, to complete financing of the second phase of the process of bringing a safe, adequate water supply to Florian area residents (located east of Stephen). Seventh District Congressman Collin Peterson, who has been involved with the project for more than four years, was also planning to attend.

Phase two will bring clean water to 72 additional Florian residences with USDA contributing a $1,025,000 grant and a $435,000 loan. A USDA grant of $1,105,000 and $445,000 loan went toward the first segment of the project that began last year. Phase one provided safe drinking water to 76 Florian households.

Phase I involves installation of about 80 miles of pipeline. Construction began about a month ago and is expected to end near the end of July 1999. Phase II is a continuation of Phase I, and involves providing water for residents from Florian north to Karlstad. It will include about 70 miles of pipeline, a reservoir and pump.

The Marshall and Polk Rural Water System serves nearly 1,200 rural customers, including the cities of Alvarado and Oslo, with 800 miles of pipelines. Water treatment will take place at the Marshall and Polk Rural Water plant east of Warren.

Gary DeCramer, who directs USDA's Rural Development office in Minnesota conceded the high cost of the project (a $14,539.47 grant per residence in phase I and a $14,236 grant per residence in phase II), but suggested: "The thousands of Red River Valley flood victims who have experienced temporary disruptions in their water supplies should understand that never having a supply of safe water is totally unacceptable."

He noted that without the new system, the new rural water customers have had to rely on "shallow wells contaminated to the point of being a health hazard" or supplies hauled in by truck. "It is the goal of the Clinton administration to ensure that all rural American residents have access to safe, reliable drinking water by the Year 2000," DeCramer added.

According to Larry Murphy of the Marshall and Polk Rural Water System, results of testing indicates the presence of bacteria and nitrates in the water. In some deep wells there was a high iron content, which is more a quality issue.

Francis "Butch" Kochmstedt, manager of the Thief River Falls Rural Development office added: "The Marshall and Polk Rural Water System offers the most economical approach and the financing method is necessary to make clean water affordable to area residents." He also said that by utilizing the system's water treatment facilities, additional savings are gained and further contamination avoided.

The federal funding for the Florian project comes from USDA Rural Development's Rural Utilities Service (RUS) which invests more than $25 million annually to improve rural Minnesota's infrastructure.

Honduran girl to go home soon

Alexandria - Six year old Cinthia Caceres from Honduras came to Minnesota in August and was given a prosthesis for her right eye through Healing for Children, a non-profit agency working with Third World Countries.

She should have been able to return home in October or November, but then Hurricane Mitch took its toll. No one knew if Cinthia's parents or any of her relatives were alive. She's been staying with foster parents, Barb and Scott Fischer of Alexandria.

Recently a representative from Healing for Children called and reported that Cinthia's parents had been found but asked if she could remain in the United States until after the holidays. Cinthia will return to Honduras sometime in January, accompanied by Barb Fischer who will spend a week there helping with relief efforts. Echo Press

Kevin Skjerven sentenced to 30 months

Kevin Scott Skjerven, 41, formerly Warren, was sentenced in U.S. District Court Monday, December 21, on a charge of felon in possession of a firearm.

Skjerven was sentenced to serve 30 months in prison and placed on supervised release for three years following his release from prison. He will begin serving his sentence on January 5.

The charge against Skjerven stems from the discovery of a weapon in his possession during an investigation into the disappearance of Voni Safranski. Safranski disappeared on October 27, 1996. The information about the weapon in his possession was turned over to federal investigators. Skjerven was charged in federal court in August of 1998. On October 2, 1998, Skjerven pled guilty to the charge.

Sentencing on Monday, December 21, was conducted by Federal Judge Richard Kyle of St. Paul.

Round two of WSA Snocross held at Grand Casino

The first severe cold of the season, and some long overdue snow, arrived along with the racers for the Grand Casino National, Round Two of the WSA's Snocross World Wide (SWW) international championship. For the first time this season there was plenty of snow, as WSA and Grand Casino officials took advantage of the near zero degree temps and had four snow making machines working overtime to create an excellent track. Some real snow arrived to help pad the reserves nicely, and actually have the surrounding grounds looking white and seasonal.

After claiming his first Pro final win the previous weekend at WSA's Regional in Brainerd, MN, second year pro Noel Kohanski followed up with his first National Pro finals victory with a flag to flag domination of Saturday's Pro 600 final. Perhaps the drive of the weekend came from Blair Morgan, as he was 10th off the line, yet fought back brilliantly to finish second.

Second wasn't enough for Morgan, however, as he won Sunday's Pro 440 final, but it too wasn't easy. He, Tim Maki and Maki's teammate Chris Vincent tied for top qualifier, never losing in the qualifying rounds. While Vincent broke, Maki led early and Morgan had to battle through the pack again. He caught Maki, but found him a tough nut to crack. Going into the last lap, Maki left a gap going into turn two and Morgan pounced, slicing through and taking the win.

Morgan and his crew finally solved his hole shot woes and he led at the end of lap one in the Pro Open final, never a good sign for the rest of the pack. He checked out, took the win, then to say thanks to the fans who braved the single digit temps and brisk winds, after his interviews he requested one quick pass over the huge finish line jump, and gave the crowd a monster heel clicker. Kohanski topped off a great weekend with a second, and a nervous Chris Vincent, who's sled threw a chain in the staging area and almost caused him to miss the race, babied his mount to claim third, with the chain rutcheting during the last few laps.

Amanda Johnson swept the Pro Women class, never losing a qualifying round and drawing away to a dominant win. Sister Sara outraced Michelle Pasch to second, making it a Johnson family Christmas sweep. Kirk Hibbert was equally dominant in Pro Vets qualifying and, although he won the final, he simply could not shake TJ Montgomery, who finished right on Kirk's bumper.

Young "Saint" Nick Hutchinson again won all three Semi-Pro classes he contested, and Junior Ryan Frank also claimed three wins, one in Junior 16-17 (years old), and two Sport classes.

Next up for the World Snowmobile Association is round three of the Snocross World Wide international tour, the Potowatomi Northern Lights National, January 2-3, 1999 at the legendary Crandon International Off-Road Raceway in Crandon, WI.

'TWAS THE NIGHT AFTER CHRISTMAS
(with apologies to C. C. Moore)

'Twas the night after Christmas,
when all through the house,
Not a creature was stirring, thanks to my spouse.
A feast she had made, complete with wild game,
And our waistlines, we moaned,
would ne'er be the same.

You see, the night prior, the roof gave such a clatter,
I'd begged my wife sweetly to see what was the matter.
She cursed me quite loudly,
grabbing her gun,
"You're a sniveling coward!" and to the window she'd run.

When what to her wondering eyes should appear,
but a man dressed in red and eight trophy-racked deer.
"That robber is back," my wife
smilingly said,
"Let's hear him 'Ho, Ho!' with his pants full of lead!"

She took careful aim at the yearly intruder;
For eleven long years he'd managed to elude her.
As he bent o'er our chimney, fire burned in her eyes.
Her strong suit was vengeance, to that I was wise.

The deer seemed to sense something wrong on the roof
As they nervously pawed with each tiny hoof.
My wife fired once, she cared not for talk,
And as BBs hit butt, I heard the man squawk.

As leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
The deer sprang from the roof
when the "Red-Man" did cry.
But the moon on the crest of the new-fallen snow made them easier targets on the ground down below.

More seared than injured, the elf urged their retreat,
Clasping his behind and windmilling his feet.
"Run Dasher, run Dancer, run Prancer, run Blitzen!"
But my wife still nailed two—I was proud of that vixen.

"And now," grinned the huntress,
"we'll have food on the shelf."
And I laughed right out loud, in spite of myself.
"Now get out of bed!" she barked with a shout,
"And grab a sharp knife to gut
those things out!"

So pulling the finger from inside of my nose,
I gave a meek nod and from my bed arose.
I could hear the bells ring on the last-gasping deer,
And I thought to myself, "I like living here."

Our food for the winter was once more secured, and that crime had been routed for now was assured.
For Mama in her kerchief and I in my cap, had settled up here to avoid city crap.

We watched as the prowler, like a big blob of jelly, slithered away through the snow on his knees and his belly.
But I heard him exclaim, as he slunk out of sight,
"You northern Minnesotans just aren't quite right!"

Just a little more time to make some treats for the holiday. Some of the following recipes are my own candy recipes and some aren't. I usually try to make my candy as close to Christmas as possible, so none of them are too difficult. Most of them just take cooking and then patience for the cooling time before cutting and tasting, of course.

This is a delicious treat and quite simple - just boil up to the right temp and then pour out and wait:

TOFFEE
2 1/4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
1 1/4 cups butter
1/4 pound chocolate chips (I use good milk chocolate candy bars)
1/4 pound walnuts (or not, whichever your family would like)

Combine sugar, salt, water and butter in heavy pan. Stir to a boil and then cook, stirring occasionally, to 285 degrees.

Pour into aluminum covered and greased 10x15 inch pan. When cool, brush with melted chocolate chips or bars, then sprinkle with nuts. After chocolate is set, break into bite-sized pieces.

Here's another easy favorite that doesn't take much except patience:

PEANUT BRITTLE
1 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 cup molasses
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter
2 cups unsalted peanuts
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon soda

Combine syrup, molasses, sugar and butter in large, heavy pan and bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Add peanuts and salt and boil, stirring, to 280 degrees.

Remove from heat and add soda (this will bubble up), stirring gently but thoroughly. Pour into aluminum-covered, greased 10x15 inch pan and spread thinly.

Even the little kids can help make these for Christmas - they won't get burned because the mixture isn't hot like other popcorn ball mixtures - just remember to butter the (very clean) hands well and no licking while forming the balls:

MARSHMALLOW POPCORN BALLS
6 tablespoons butter, melted
3 cups miniature marshmallows
1/2 of a 3 ounce package gelatin
3 quarts popped corn

Melt butter. Add marshmallows and stir and heat or microwave until melted. Add gelatin - any flavor you wish, red ones and green ones are pretty - then pour over popcorn. Make into balls and wrap individually.

These are something special that everyone likes and nobody makes except at holiday time:

POM POMS
About 50 large marshmallows
2 packages caramels
14 ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup butter
Pinch salt

Place marshmallows in freezer to freeze firm. Melt all remaining ingredients together. Roll frozen marshmallows in caramel, then in chopped nuts or crispy rice cereal.

Use some fancy whole nuts in this treat and you have something really special for the holidays:

OVEN CARAMEL CORN
2 cups brown sugar
2 sticks butter
1/2 cup white corn syrup
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon butter flavor
7 quarts popped corn (some of which can be mixed nuts, peanuts or other good things)

Boil sugar, butter, syrup, salt and soda for 5 minutes in large kettle on low heat. Add soda and stir (mixture will foam up).

Pour mixture over popped corn and nuts and spread on lightly greased cookie sheet.

Place in 200 degree oven for 1 hour, stirring every 15 minutes. Cool in pan and break apart. Store airtight.

And here's everyone's favorite, along with some variations that would be great for the holidays:

DARK CHOCOLATE FUDGE
2 cups miniature marshmallows
3 (6 ounce) packages semi sweet chocolate chips
1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla

In large heavy saucepan, combine marshmallows, chips and condensed milk. Cook over low heat, stirring often, until melted and smooth (7-9 minutes).

Remove from heat and stir in vanilla. Pour into greased 9 inch square pan. Refrigerate at least 2 hours or until firm. Cut into squares.

Variations

Almond Fudge: Reduce vanilla to 1 teaspoon and add 1 teaspoon almond extract at the same time as the vanilla.

Macadamia Nut Fudge: Prepare fudge as directed, then stir in 1/2 cup coarsely chopped macadamia nuts before pouring into pan.

Gratitude For The Greatest Gift Of All

While today's issue of the Northern Watch contains the normal publication date of Saturday, December 26, it is being published on Wednesday, December 23, to ease the pace for Times/ Northern Watch employees on Christmas Eve day and Christmas Day. That situation leaves us with anticipation for the observance of Christmas rather than simply reflecting on it as this issue goes to press.

During the course of the year we often refer to material provided by F. R. Duplantier of America's Future—a nonprofit educational organization dedicated to preservation of the free-enterprise system and our constitutional form of government. We share another of his Behind the Headlines columns for its appropriate assessment of the season:

by F. R. Duplantier
America's Future

Making a list of the gifts we have received can be a good way to develop our sense of gratitude and to sharpen our ability to recognize the hidden benefits in things that have not come gift-wrapped. We might begin our survey of possessions, aptitudes and opportunities by listing those things that we recognize immediately as gifts: the presents we receive for birthdays and at Christmastime, the year-end bonuses, the door prize at the church social.

Then we might list those things we take for granted that reflection will reveal as gifts: our health; our knack for music, games or gardening; the perfect weather for last weekend's picnic..... Next, a list of rights, which, if we're honest, we will concede are not rights at all but privileges or gifts: Life, liberty, good fortune....

Nonbelievers may shower their appreciation on evolutionists, humanists, and technocrats. The rest of us readily acknowledge that God is the source, direct or indirect, of all gifts. But do we thank Him properly, by making the most of the gifts He has given us? The familiar parable of the talents suggests that it is not enough to reach judgment day merely with the gifts God has given us intact. If they were aptitudes, we ought to have developed them; if they were graces, we ought to have invested them wisely. If they were opportunities, we ought to have made the most of them. If they were obstacles, we ought to have overcome them.

Salvation is a gift that everyone should want to receive. The promise of salvation was, and is, the first Christmas gift. It is a gift beside which all others pale. And yet, it is a gift that most people reject. Today, as more and more parents seem to be neglecting their primary responsibility of teaching their children the importance of this gift, the numbers of the ignorant are on the rise. The numbers of the forgetful seem to be increasing too, as technological advances allow ever more manmade marvels to compete for our attention with the made-man marvel of Christ.

The missionary zeal of atheists ensures that thousands upon thousands will remain ignorant, or forgetful, of the true identity of their Benefactor. Taught to sneer at every sign of the supernatural, they will believe in the divinity of nature, the divinity of man, the divinity of science, the divinity of every abstraction that comes down the pike, before they will believe in the divinity of God. They will take salvation for granted, they will proclaim it as a right, or they will reject it as an insufferable burden.

What will we do? Will we show gratitude for the promise of salvation? Or will we fancy ourselves grateful and stand idly by while millions of others reject the gift that we have accepted for ourselves? Will we allow our parents, our spouses, our children, our friends, our enemies—knowingly or unknowingly—to reject the gift that we have accepted for ourselves?

Will we allow our parents, our spouses, our children, our friends, our enemies—knowingly or unknowingly—to reject the gift of God to man? What kind of gratitude would that be?

Gratitude means more than just saying thanks.

Another Thought For The Coming Year

We appreciate the people who pass along items that we might consider for use in our editorial columns. More often than not we will find a way to use at least some of the materials. The following poem was received the other day and seems appropriate with a new year on the horizon:

SLOW DANCE

Have you ever watched kids on a merry-go-round, or listened to the rain slapping on the ground?
Ever followed a butterfly's erratic flight or gazed at the sun fading into the night?

You'd better slow down, don't dance so fast;
Time is short, the music won't last.

Do you run through each day on the fly?
When you ask, "How are you?" do you hear the reply?
When the day is done, do you lie in your bed with the next hundred chores running through your head?

You'd better slow down, don't dance so fast;
Time is short, the music won't last.

Ever told your child, "We'll do it tomorrow," and in your haste not seen his sorrow?
Ever lost touch, let a good friendship die
'cause you never had time to call and say "Hi?"

You'd better slow down, don't dance so fast;
Time is short, the music won't last.

When you run so fast to get somewhere you miss half the fun of getting there.
When you worry and hurry through your day,
It is like an unopened gift thrown away.

Life is not a race. Do take it slower.
Hear the music before the song is over.

Northwest Grain annual meeting Jan. 8 at Eagles

Annual meeting of Northwest Grain will take place Friday, January 8, at 10:30 a.m. at the Eagles hall in Thief River Falls. A regular business meeting will be followed by a dinner.

Northwest Grain is a division of Cenex Harvest States Cooperative with elevators in St. Hilaire, Thief River Falls, Warren, East Grand Forks, Hazel, Gryglu and Fertile.

Four voting representatives of the Joint Powers Board for the Multi-Events Center recently participated in a last meeting for 1998. Each board member represents another governmental agency that is participating in the project. Pictured from left are: Dr. Orley Gunderson, Northland Community and Technical College, Darla Twomey, School District 564, Charles Naplin, Pennington County Board of Commissioners; and Dave Carlson, Thief River Falls City Council representative.

Santa's helpers at the Pennington County Law Enforcement were busy double checking names and packages prior to his visit at the Law Enforcement Center Friday. Friday evening, Santa distributed presents to children and families participating in the Christmas for Pennington County program. Over 300 children received gifts because of the generous contributions of individuals, numerous organizations and businesses in the community.

End of year sparks flurry of fundraising

With the end of the year approaching greater emphasis is being placed upon fund-raising for the remaining elements of Phase I of the Multi-Events Center.

The general public has been very receptive to fundraising efforts, said Darla Twomey, school board representative on the Joint Powers Board, which oversees the project. In her fund-raising update to the board, Twomey said $449,550 had been committed to completing Phase I of the project. The board now has $292,000 in hand to complete some of the elements.

Twomey has been pursing donations from potential donors for several months now. She hopes that with the end of the year, they will receive more donations. It is especially important for Twomey because as of January 1, she will no longer be on the board. Twomey opted not to run for re-election on the school board which means she will no longer be a representative on the Joint Powers board.

As the board begun discussion of a dedication ceremony September 25, Twomey expressed her desire to see the major donors recognized for their contributions. Plans for the dedication ceremony have not been completed. The matter is on the agenda for the next Joint Powers board meeting.

Pressure defense sparks Mustangs past Bears 68-37

Red Lake County Central turned an early 4-3 deficit into a 16-4 lead by the end of the first quarter Monday and went on to beat Clearbrook-Gonvick 68-37 in a girls high school basketball game played at Oklee.

The Mustangs, who will take a 6-2 record into the holiday break, were up 38-15 at halftime and maintained a 52-28 third quarter spread

"Once we scored, our press was pretty effective," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto, who employed the smothering full court pressure defense for only the first quarter-and-a-half.

Heather Schiefert scored 17 points to lead the winners, with Sylvia Hilgeman netting 14 and Emily Fisher 11. Molly Eck had a 12-point game for the Bears.

Red Lake County Central was 27-for-55 from the field (49 percent) and a productive 14-for-17 at the free throw line. Clearbrook-Gonvick struggled with a 16-for-44 game from the floor and a 3-for-13 night at the line. The Mustangs had a 24-22 rebound edge. The Bears wound up with 20 of the game's 29 turnovers

The Mustangs return to action Jan. 5 at East Grand Forks.

Wolverines head into holiday break after a 45-38 win over W-A-O

Dana Wiseth (18) and Kathryn Stanley (16) combined for 34 points Monday to lead Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke past Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 45-38 in girls high school basketball. The game was played at Grygla.

The win put the Wolverines at .500 (4-4) heading into a holiday break. The schedule will resume Jan. 4 at Roseau.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke won despite shooting just 29 percent from the field (15/51) and 46 percent at the free throw line (13/28). That's because Warren-Alvarado-Oslo also had a poor shooting night – 28 percent from the floor (13/47) and 48 percent at the line (10/21). Eleven rebounds by Angie Gast helped give the Wolverines a 39-31 edge on the boards.

"We won, that's about all I can say," offered Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "We looked good in spurts, but I'm never satisfied."

The winners led at the quarter stops 12-7, 25-17 and 31-25.

A battle for a rebound developed between DeNae Wiseth of Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke (44) and Sarah E. Peterson (there's also a Sarah E. Peterson on the roster) of Kittson County North during final day action in the Northland Community and Technical College invitational girls high school basketball tournament. The Wolverines won the game 52-32.

Gators beat Storm for first win, 54-49

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River knocked off Stephen-Argyle 54-49 Saturday in boys high school. It was the first win of the 1998-99 season for the Gators and the first loss for the Storm

"We were surprised," admitted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "I think we caught them a little flat."

Stephen-Argyle led 13-11 at the end of the first quarter and had a 28-25 halftime edge. But a 42-39 Badger/Greenbush-Middle River third quarter lead stood up down the stretch.

Chauncey Hanson scored 14 points and Derek Fugleberg had 12 to lead the Gators, who also got a 9-point, 11-rebound game from Richard Wockenfuss. The Storm attack featured Jared Hanson with 17 points.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River shot 43 percent from the field (20/47) while Stephen-Argyle struggled through a 31 percent shooting performance (15/48).

"We played much better defense than we had been playing," noted Sparby.

The 1-3 Gators were 9-for-19 at the free throw line, where the Storm went 15-for-20. The winners had a 26-21 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 16-15.

Weather moved the game from Friday to Saturday.

Gas prices drop to 1989 levels for Holidays

Minnesota motorists traveling this holiday season will enjoy the lowest statewide gas prices since March of 1989 when the average price of unleaded self-serve gasoline was 96 cents

The current average price of unleaded self-serve gasoline is 97 cents per gallon, six cents less than last month and 19 cents less than last December. The current national average is $1.02 per gallon. According to AAA, prices continue to be controlled by a market with too much supply and not enough demand.

"Traditionally, increased demand for winter heating oil drives crude oil prices - and gas prices - up," said Barb Buchholz, spokesperson, AAA Minnesota/Iowa. "But unseasonably warm temperatures throughout the U.S. have led to weak demand for heating oil, keeping stocks high and prices low."

Millions of citizens will be traveling this Holiday. If you're planning to leave town for the holidays, AAA estimates you will be part of a record 45.2 million people to travel 100 miles or more from home during the Christmas - New Year's time period, the greatest number of travelers for any holiday period. That figure represents a two percent growth over last year's 44.5 million travelers.

"Christmas - New Year's travel has skyrocketed this decade," said Buchholz. "Since 1990, travel during this period has jumped 66 percent. That compares to 35 percent growth for Thanksgiving and 46 percent for the three major summer holidays." AAA estimates 35.5 million people plan to travel by automobile, light truck or recreational vehicle, up to two percent over last year. Another 9.7 million will travel by airplane, train or bus, up one percent. In the Midwest, 5.7 million people will travel by automobile, light truck or recreational vehicle, up two percent from last year. (The "Midwest" includes Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.)

National Guard plans Top Gun event January 11

Fourth annual Top Gun competition will be conducted by Company B of the Minnesota Army National Guard on Monday, January 11, at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls. Competition will begin about 7 p.m.

"This event is designed to teach local junior and senior students gun safety and marksmanship skills," states Sgt. Quincy Lofberg of the local unit. "Our Top Gun events have drawn large groups of students from around the Thief River Falls area and are growing each year."

Students compete in marksmanship using air rifles and air pistols used by the National Guard in its training program. Trophies are awarded to the top three shooters in each event and the top scorer of the evening will receive a .22 caliber rifle.

Following the competition, pizza and soft drinks will be available and the unit recruiter will speak with participants about the importance of college and career development.

Door prizes donated by local business places will also be awarded during the evening. Businesses which would like to donate to the event may contact Sgt. Lofberg at 681-0924.

Pvt. Ryan Hesse completes Marine training course

Marine Private Ryan Hesse, son of Robin Bergdahl of rural Thief River Falls and a 1998 graduate of Lincoln high school, recently completed 12 weeks of basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, CA.

Hesse and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m. by running three miles and performing calisthenics. They also spent many hours in classroom and field assignments learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training. They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry unit during field training.

Hesse and other recruits also received instruction on the Marine Corps values of honor, courage and commitment and what the words mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Training ended with "The Crucible," a 54-hour team effort, problem solving evolution which culminated with a ceremony in which recruits were presented the Marine Corps emblem and addressed as "Marines" for the first time since boot camp began.

DuWayne Heyd surprised by his success and Gary Emerson produced the single Ballad of the Waters. The single CD was recorded at a Devils Lake studio, manufactured in Nashville and sold in local stores. All of the proceeds were donated to the Greater Grand Forks Flood Relief Fund.

On the national scene, the first single from Song in My Heart to be released, Last One to Know, reached No. 6 on the independent country charts in July of 1997. A few months later, the second release from the album, My Little Girl Still Loves Me, reached No. 2 on the charts.

DuWayne says, "I was amazed when so many liked my work." Encouraged by the success of his first album, he went to Nashville to record his second, Goin' Country Style. The album's second release, Angry Bitter Words, climbed to No. 1 on the independent charts in June of 1998. It also reached No. 41 on the country top 100 chart.

The difference between the charts is that the Country Independent Top 50 does not include singles by artists carried by major labels such as RCA and Mercury. Most nationally known artists begin their careers under an independent label and are later picked up by one of the major labels.

Additional releases from Goin' Country Style brought more successes for the still amazed Heyd. 1997 brought him a nomination by Air Play International for the Rising Star Award. In 1998 he was nominated for the Career Achievement Award and was awarded County Album of the Year for Goin' Country Style.

The Opry Style Band

1998 also brought the formation of Heyd's Opry Style Band, a group he refers to as his "musical family." DuWayne's large motor coach took the group to Nashville where they recorded Heyd's third album entitled DuWayne Heyd and his Opry Style Band.

DuWayne delighted in sharing the Nashville experience with the band members. "I feel like their dad," he says. "I want my band members to be happy, and I believe our audiences feel that."

The band includes Gary Emerson of East Grand Forks who sings and plays the piano. Emerson is also manager of the band.

Kelly and Brenda Beck are a husband-wife team from Arvilla, ND. Kelly plays the bass guitar, and Brenda sings lead and backgrounds.

Gordy Bridgeford of Fargo plays the lead guitar, and Rick Lupien of Larimore, ND plays rhythm guitar and sings. The drummer is Bill Rodgers of Grafton, ND.

Autumn Leigh of Devils Lake, ND sings leads and backgrounds. The youngest member of the band, Autumn is currently a journalism major at Moorhead State University.

With every band member bringing his or her diverse talents to the group, DuWayne Heyd and his Opry Style Band deliver a show that includes variety — from modern country to Heyd's traditional style reminiscent of Jim Reeves, Hank Williams Sr. and Johnny Cash.

The Songwriter

Even though he calls his songs "private diaries," it's the people he's met and known over the years who have inspired the lyrics for DuWayne Heyd's songs. Many of them have been regular people with every day problems.

Some songs like Talkin on the Phone and The Marshal and the Outlaw are what he calls "fun songs." Others like Please Hold Me are soft, mellow and easy to listen to. Almost every song has some type of message, leaving his listeners with something to think about.

Someone Sent Her Roses is a tear-jerker about a mother who received roses from her son. She recalled the bouquets of dandelions he had brought her years before. The ballad is about how busy peoples' lives become and how, even though we don't mean for it to happen, we sometimes neglect the ones who love us most.

The Working Man

DuWayne Heyd hasn't quit his day job nor does he intend to. Like the members of his band, he refers to the employees of his construction company as "family" too, and he isn't going to let them down. "Some have been with me since I started the company nearly 27 years ago," DuWayne says. He goes to work at his construction company every day and is still very much in charge. When he is away, he leaves the business in the capable hands of his son and brother.

Heyd believes that his long construction career has helped him write songs. "I'm just average, just another guy," he says.

Seeking Regional Recognition

While DuWayne's songs are currently aired on 1,170 of the 2,200 radio stations that play country music, the singer has had the hardest time getting established regionally. To remedy the problem, he and his band are spending a lot of time performing in a four-state area which includes North Dakota, Minnesota, South Dakota and Montana.

Transporting a huge amount of equipment which includes a grand piano, DuWayne and his Opry Style Band will play in Rugby, ND on New Years Eve, Middle River on New Years Day and Bottineau, ND on January 2.

Performing the opening act for major recording star Neal McCoy at the Chester Fritz auditorium in September was a thrill for DuWayne and his band. "We were star struck," he says. They were also impressed when McCoy liked their performance. The star's advice to Heyd was to "keep doing what you're doing."

DuWayne expects some surprises in the new year but nothing he's willing to talk about "until it's nailed down."

Still Just an Ordinary Guy

DuWayne hasn't let his musical success go to his head. In fact, he was nervous with it at first. "It might have been simpler if I were glamorous," he says. "Instead," he repeats, "I'm just an ordinary guy."

Once he learned that he could simply be himself, he learned to relax and have fun with his music. "I love to meet all of the good, down-to-earth people," he says.

Heyd looks forward to meeting more of those good people in Middle River on January 1. Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 at the door and can be purchased at the Middle River American Legion. Reservations for the show can be made by calling (218) 222-3538.

Santa's Penny Wars was conducted for the second year at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls as a fund-raiser for the Al Krause memorial greenhouse project. Students, faculty and staff raised $3,720.83 during the week of December 7-11, with the amount being matched by the Franklin student council to push the fund drive over its $20,000 goal.

The fund-raiser was conducted in earnest with a good participation by students, faculty and staff. The coins were brought to Northern State Bank where tellers had volunteered to do the counting. The count revealed that $3,720.83 had been collected and the student council match meant the total of this year's fund-raiser was $7,441.66—which exceeded the goal.

Al Krause had a dream for students of Franklin middle school in which a greenhouse would not only enrich the curriculum but provide a truly "growing environment" where new learning could take place. That dream is now just a step or two away from reality and the new goal is to have it ready for the 1999-2000 school year.

The greenhouse project group expressed its thanks to the parents, students and staff who gave of their energy and coins to make the Penny Wars a success and to the employees of Northern State Bank who counted the coins.

Area cities receive insurance dividends

"The positive impact of the continued good liability experience more than offset the negative impact of the increased property losses," says Pete Tritz, LMCIT administrator. "As a result, the League is able to return this dividend."

Jim Antonen, chair of the LMCIT board of trustees and city manager of Moorhead adds, "Cities have done an outstanding job of controlling and avoiding losses. To do that takes both the support of the city elected officials and the efforts of city staff. That commitment to loss control and protecting our citizens from harm is paying off for all of us."

This is the 12th consecutive year in which the LMCIT property/casualty program has returned a dividend to its members. This year's $10 million dividend brings the total to over $100 million since 1987, which is equal to 31 percent of the cities' premiums for that period. The amount of money each city receives is determined by the total amount of premiums paid into LMCIT and the losses claimed for all the years the city has participated. The longer a city participates and the more successful it is in controlling losses, the greater the city's share of the dividend.

League of Minnesota Cities Insurance Trust is also helping cities deal with the unique risks and problems posed by Y2k. Says Antonen, "Providing coverage for claims arising from the Year 2000 problems - a risk that private insurance seem almost universally to be trying to avoid - is one more example of how the insurance trust tries to help cities meet new needs and tackle new problems as they arise."

LMCIT will be providing all member cities with a very minimal amount of coverage automatically under its existing property/casualty program. Additionally, members will be able to buy back much higher Y2k coverage limits, if the city can demonstrate that:

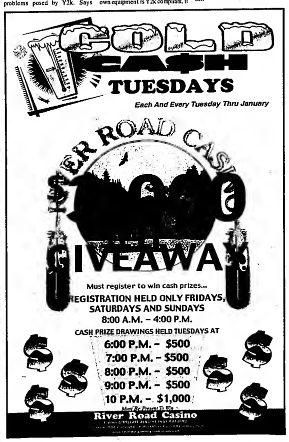
• it has taken reasonable steps to identify and correct Y2k problems; and

• it has planned reasonable contingency measures to address potential Y2k problems.

In cooperation with the League of Minnesota Cities, LMCIT has provided a guide to its member cities to help them identify and address Y2k problems. They will continue to provide more information as January 1, 2000 approaches.

"Y2k is a big question mark," Tritz cautions. "There's just no way to predict with any certainty what sort of losses and claims Y2k problems will cause for cities. It might be negligible, it might be catastrophic, or it might turn out to be somewhere in between."

"However, we do know that Y2k problems do exist in city systems and equipment. And even if a city's own equipment is Y2k compliant, it still has to consider possibilities like power outages or Y2k problems with other service providers," says Tritz. "For this reason, LMCIT believes it's best for cities to be prepared - and we're working to help them do so."



According to Antonen, LMCIT's ability to retain its financial strength in the wake of serious storm losses, to return this year's $10 million dividend, and to provide coverage for the very uncertain risks associated with the Y2k problem, point to two basic tenets: "Our commitment to solid, conservative financial management and our mission to meet the risk management needs of Minnesota cities."

Fargo VA Center accredited after JCAHO visit

Veterans Administration Medical and Regional Office Center in Fargo, ND, has received accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

The center received its accreditations as a result of its demonstrated compliance with the commission's nationally recognized healthcare and long-term care standards following an on-site visit in September.
